RESIGNATION OF CUNO CABINET SEEMS CERTAIN

News Came From Well-Informed Circles—French and Belgians Remain Silent.

GREEK SITUATION

LONDON, July 30.—(Canadian Press).—A Central New correspondent at Berlin has sent the following despatch here:

"Your correspondent learned in well-informed political quarters that the resignation of the Cuno Cabinet is certain. Herr Cuno himself is convinced that this step must be taken.

It is understood that leaders of the new cabinet will be Paul Loebe, President of the Reichstag, and Dr. Gustave Stressmann, leader of the People's Party.

A definite decision will not be reached before the meeting of the Reichstag the end of next week."

No Reply From France

Premier Baldwin told the House of Commons to-day, that no reply had yet been received from France or Belgium to Great Britain's reparation's comunication and that it is very doubtful whether anything would be received which could be published in Thursday's debate

No Revolution

The Greek legation announced to-day that there is no truth in reports of a Republican Revolutionary movement in Greece. It said that these unfounded reports have been appearing for some time in the European Press and that only last night the Legation here received a denial from Greek Government.

PREPARES TO MEET NEXT FUEL FAMINE

Should Hard Coal Miners Strike, a Deluge of Bituminous Available.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., July 30 (Canadian Press). — A deluge of bituminous coal, at prices that will meet the Government and public approval, will be poured into sections of the country where, if the anthracite miners call the threatened strike on 1st September, a fuel famine would be the inevitable result, the bituminous operators' special committee of the National Coal Association announced to-day.

John C. Brydon, president of the association and chairman of the committee, will lay the plan before the United States Coal Commission in Washington to-morrow, and will offer a corps of volunteers to carry it through.

When John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America learned what the special committee proposed to do, he issued a statement charging that the National Coal Association were setting out to wreck the union, and create a strike of soft coal miners next April, so that non-union operators could reap a harvest in profits.

CAVAN TOWNSHIP HOME DESTROYED

Fire Broke Out at Noon on Farm of West Dainard.

BETHANY, July 30.—Fire at noon to-day destroyed the house on the farm of Mr. West Dainard, three miles north-east of Bethany. Neighbors and a number of volunteers from Bethany helped to salvage most of the furniture. The loss, which will be about $2,500, is partly covered by insurance.

TRYING TO PEDDLE A FAMOUS DIAMOND

Italian Government Will Object to Sale of the Evil Stone.

PARIS, July 30.—(United Press).—Former Empress Zita of Austria, who is at Geneva, is reported negotiating to sell the famous Florentine diamond valued at more than a million dollars. The Italian Government has interposed an objection to the sale of the diamond, claiming it should have been delivered to Italy under the peace treaty, but was withheld by Karl. The diamond has had a checkered history for five centuries. The Duke of Burgundy carried it on his person in the siege of Nancy and a peasant took it from his body after he was killed. This was four hundred years ago. The peasant sold it to the Medici family for a few sovereigns.

PIANO FOR $50 ARMCHAIR 85c.

Midsummer, Sale? No-Just the British Canteen Board in a Final Close-Out.

LONDON July 30.— Fifty Dollars for a piano. Eighty-four cents for an arm chair. The elusive millions which the Army and Navy Canteen Board ought to hold, but do not, are gradually being traced. When the board took over during the war the running of all the canteens designed to cater to "Tommy" in all the theatres of war, as inauguarated by the British Expeditionary Force, the authority handing over produced a balance sheet showing a balance in hand of $50,000,000

These millions, in addition to many others which are supposed to have accumulated since, have become elusive.

The assets of the board no longer are assets; they have been disposed of and there is little or nothing now to show, in cash. But there are a lot of other things.

It was provided, in the event of profits being made by the management of the canteeens, where and how the profits should be allocated and since the benefits which ought to have been are not, the beneficiaries in anticipation are clamoring to know what has happened.

Committee is Named.

The Government finaly was forced to appoint a special committee to investigate definite charges made by members of the House of Commons on the floor, and that committee, in carrying out its investigations has developed curiosity unpleasant to many concerned.

Incidentally, the members of that committee are in possession of a report which is a great primer in the search for the hidden millions It was obtained at the instance of the War Office from a widely known firm of chartered accountants, instructed to go into the question of the disopsal of the canteen stock. It draws attention to the fact that armchairs have been sold at 84 cents when their market price was $2.64, and that pianos were sold at prices ranging from $50 to $75 a fraction of the price the average person has to pay for a new one. The committee has tried to trace the sale of these articles, find out who bought them, and who authorized their sale, as well as the sale of many other things referred to in the report.

One person interrogated is Maj. H. Van den Bergh. "The major appears to have been in charge of the operations in connection with the disposal of surplus stores, and a lot of the stuff was sold to a Mr. Pollock, a hardware manufacturer, through the agency of a Mr. Stanley, a truck farmer.

Pretty Good Friends.

Mr. Stanley, the truck farmer, is declared to have been an acquaintence of the major, but the major denies it, saying he was a business friend, not a personal friend, which is declared to be very true. He was a good business friend, it appears. Anyway, the truck farmer interested himself in cigarettes, cigars, candies, tinned fish, tinned meats, and hosiery.

Truck farmer Stanley was in the service of the canteen board, coming under the supervision of Maj. Van den Bergh, and he, on quitting his job, was recommended by the major for a bonus of $500, "for services." He surely must have performed his work well.

Now, did the major take steps to inquire into the financial stability of the actual purchaser, on behalf of whom Truck Farmer Stanley negotiated? Sir Frederick Banbury, chairman of the committee, asked that.

"I left that to my assistant," replied the major, who was also amazingly ignorant on the point that in respect of some of his transactions Truck Farmer Stanley was acting on behalf of a man who has since been committed to prison.

Apparently the assistant was saddled by the major with quite a lot of executive responsibilities, for, asked whether there was anything he did not really leave to his as-

SEVEN BANDITS MAKE GETAWAY WITH PAY ROLL

They Use Revolvers Freely, Killing One Man and Wounding Two Others—Loot $90,000.

BOARDED TRAIN

SCRANTON, Pa., July 30. — (Canadian Press.)— Seven bandits held up paymasters of the Avoca Coal Company on a Laurel Line train at Moosic to-day, using revolvers freely, killing one man named Murphy and wounding two others. The men made their escape, getting away with the mine's payroll, amounting to between $85,000 and $90,000.

Edawrd Murphy, a passenger, was shot and instantly killed; P. J. Derkin and Archie Hensall, paymaster of the West End Coal Co. of Shickshinney, Penn., were seriously wounded; Paul Scribner and an unidentified woman also were shot, but less seriously wounded.

Hensal and another paymaster were carrying the money to pay off workers in the west end anthracite mine. About two miles from here, near Moosic, where the train stopped for a few minutes, two men came aboard and joined five who had boarded the train at Scranton.

After whispered conversation, the seven bandits, all of whom were unmasked, ordered the paymasters to surrender their two satchels. When they refused they opened fire at Hensall, using their revolvers freely. The bullets had struck four passengers and imbedded themselves in the wood of the car before terrified passengers succeeded in ducking behind their seats.

Motor Car Waiting.

With the money in their possession the bandits made off in the direction of Wilkesbarre in a large motor car, which apparently had been held in readiness for their escape.

State and city police snt out general alarms and a description of the automobile to authorities of nearby towns.

RICHARD BATTEN VICTIM ACCIDENT

Car Was Knocked Into a Ditch by Passing Automobile.

While motoring towards Peterboro last evening, Richard Batten, of North Dummer, had his car knocked off the end of a culvert by another car passing in the opposite direction. The occupants of the Batten car suffered some bruises but were not seriously injured. The car turned over in the ditch, smashing the top and windshield. The car which was responsible for the accident drove on without stopping.

STREET RAIL MEN TALKING STRIKE

Detroit's Municipal System Threatened With Tie-up—Decide Today.

DETROIT, July 30. — Whether Detroit's municipal street railway system, the largest city-owned transportation company in the world, is to be tied up by a strike, may be decided to-day.

Taking a strike vote on the part of the system's platform men is believed to rest upon the answers given city officials to-day by Judge Edward J. Jeffries, judge of the Recorder's Court, and representing the employes. The Judge has been asked to explain why the question of union representation has cropped out in discussions between the city and its street car employes over the subject of hours of work and remuneration.

INDICTMENTS CHARGED SEVEN WITH CONSPIRACY

WASHINGTON, July 30.—(Canadian Press).—Counsel here for the United States Harness Company, which bought from the Government more than a million dollars worth of surplus harness after the conclusion of the war were advised on Saturday that indictents charging conspiracy to defraud in connection with the sale had been returned by a Federal grand jury in Elkins, W. Va, against four officers of the company and three former war department officials.

BELGIANS USE GERMANS TO PREVENT SABOTAGE

DUISBURG, July 30.—(Canadian Press).—The Belgians are reported to have arrested 40 additional Germans. They will be forced to ride on trains as guarantees against sabotage.

GOOD WORK BY THE ROTARIANS OVER WEEK-END

Took Fifty-Six Boys to Clear Lake Camp and Established Them There.

AT LUNCHEON TODAY

Rotarians at their luncheon today meditated on the good work they had done over the week-end and laid plans for an extension of the work during the remainder of the week. Yesterday, a number of the members of the club took 56 boys, ranging in ages from 11 to 14 years to the Rotary Camp at Clear Lake, and established them there.

In referring to the camp, President V. J. M. Elderry, said it was a surprise to many of the Rotarians themselves to see the splendid equipment installed at the camp. The committee in charge of the work has done it well as to cause envy among those who were not so fortunate as to be members of it. The camp is a real benefit to the community, Mr. McElderry said, providing a splendid outing for the boys and at the same time inculcating ideals of citizenship which will stand the city in good stead in future years. Volunteers were called on to drive parties of Rotarians to the camp every day the boys are there in order to show continued interest in their welfare.

Thursday next week a picnic will be held at the camp when the members of the club will join in the boys sports for the afternoon.

Adjutant Bunton a Visitor.

Visitors to-day included Adjutant Wallace Bunton, formerly of the Salvation Army Corps in Peterboro and now holidaying at Chemong prior to taking up his duties in Windsor. Adjutant Bunton joined the Rotary Club here and is at present a member in Ottawa. Sydney Rush of Toronto also visited the club.

Chamber of Commerce History.

Leon Frazer, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce was the speaker at to-day's luncheon, and addressed the club on his classification. Reviewing the Cnamber of Commerce organization from its inception and showing its relation to other business men's organizations, Mr. Frazer said:

Chamber of Commerce Aims.

It is its task, in the interests of the community as a whole, and viewing the problems from the business man's point of view, to take a definite position in regard to public movements and tendencies. The esential features of this attitude toward public questions in the case of all organizations of this type which are skilfully conducted, may be summed up as follows: (1) To interpret wisely and without prejudice, all movements and tendenices in the development of a community which have to do, either directly or indirectly, with the civic welfare of the community (2) To prevent the distortion of any such movements by any others who undertake to misuse the power of the community (3) To make sure that every movement or tendency of the business life of the community moves along lines of constructive pregress.

This program, while it may seem rather general, is capable of being interpreted concretely in the case of almost every conceivable community problem.

While the local Chamber of Commerce is functioning directly in accord with the points enumerated above, it is organized on slightly different lines from that of other Canadian and American Chambers of Commerce.

The organizations at present affiliated or in other words using, the Chamber of Commerce Offices as headquarters, are as follows:

Young Men's Section of the Chamber of Commerce.
Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Peterborough Branch.
Retail Merchants' Association, Peterborough Branch.
Ontario Motor League, Peterboro Branch.
Which is also responsible for the issuing of automobile licenses.
Horticultural Society.
Trent Waterway Development Association, being an organization representing all municipalities interested in the development of the Trent System.

In addition to these various organiations there are over sixty organizations using the Council Room holding their regular and speical meetings.

A Chamber of Commerce is an association of all the business men of a community, and others who share in their viewpoint for the purpose of furthering commericial, industrial and civic interest. It is organized in such a way, with is paid staff, [illegible] committees, that it can investigate carefully proposals for the betterment of business and civic life, and arrive at a course of action to be pursued It is representatrve of all business interests in the community, and, through years, has devised and perfected sound methods of procedure.

I am a strong believer, said Mr. Frazer, that the business men in every community ought to have a central organization, widely democratic in its makeup, simple in its machinery, operating through com-

AND SO SHIRT WAIST DANCE WILL BE DRY

Baker's Kin, Running Rum, Fails as Life of the Party.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Julian B. Baker, a brother of former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, Saturday confessed himself a failure as an amateur rum runner and was fined $1,000. His 30-foot cabin cruiser Modesty and six cases of whisky it carried are being held by the Government.

"I had never even thought of trying to bring in any liquor, until the opportunity and the temptation presented themselves together.

"Thursday I was preparing to test a new anchor I had bought for my yacht. My friend, Harry Hyatt, came along. So I asked him to go with me.

"We cruised around and presently found we were in the midst of the rum fleet. At that moment, never before, it occurred to me that the yacht club was giving a shirt waist dance Saturday night, and here was a chance to make it a merry one by getting a supply of liquor without paying the exorbitant prices of the bootleggers on land.

"I bought six cases of Scotch at $27 a case, and we started back. Then the Modesty encountered the coastguard cutter Manhattan, commanded by Capt. Michael J. Ryan."

That ended all hope of the Tamaqua Yacht Club in Sheepshead Bay, of which Mr. Baker is a member, having a wet social.

Baker took all the blame and Hyatt was freed.

LOST 8 MONTHS PHYSICIAN BACK

Dr. James H. Anderson, Long a Victim of Amnesia, Finds Memory, Wanders Back.

DETROIT, July 30.—Dr. James H. Anderson, Detroit physician, who disappeared mysteriously November 1, has returned to this city as mysteriously as he left, after wandering about the Middle West, a victim of amnesia for eight months.

The physician is ill and his memory has only partially returned, it is stated, and the story he relates of his wanderings as a laborer is vague and disconnected. He is in the care of a friend to whom he went, unkempt and slightly clad, immediately after his return to Detroit.

After conducting a persistent but futile search for her husband, Mrs. Anderson recently gave up hope of seeing him again. She sold her possessions and went to Seattle, Wash., to live with a sister. She has been notified of her husband's return. A son is an officer in the United States Army and is stationed in Virginia.

A Previous Attack.

Dr. Anderson suffered a similar attack of amnesia five years ago, and wandered under an assumed name for three months before he was discovered by a friend and restored to his family.

Dr. Anderson's memory returned to him by degrees while he was a patient in a Chicago hospital early this month, friends say. During the long hours of musing on the hospital cot, dim recollections of his identity and his former life as a physician with a large practice in Detroit came to him.

A few days later he appeared at the home of a friend at 479 Navahoe Avenue, and requested shelter. He still is at that address, pending word from his family. Of the incidents of his wandering, he can recall only that for a time he dug potatoes on farms near St. Louis, and then went to Chicago, where he was employed as a dish washer just before the illness which sent him to the hospital.

Dr. Anderson disappeared in 1917 for the first time while he and Mrs. Anderson were guests at a hotel in Chicago. Three months later he was recognized on the streets of Detroit. It was learned that during his absence, he obtained employment at a paint factory in Chicago under the name of Walter Mason, and in a few weeks was advanced to the position of foreman of the paris green department. He was attacked by robbers and struck on the head. During his convalescence, he stopped in Detroit on his way to Akron, O., and was recognized, although he was unshaven, bandaged and clad as a workingman.

At Receiving Hospital it was discovered that his memory extended back only to the date of his disappearance. A few days later he recognized Mrs. Anderson, not as his wife, but as a playmate of his youth. The next step in his rehabilitation was recollection of a white Pomeranian dog which the family had owned several years before. Later his memory was fully restored, only to desert him again last November.

LIKELIHOOD OF CAPTURING THE BANDITS SLIM

BIGGEST HAUL YET

MONTREAL, July 30 Special to The Examiner). — After making exhaustive plans and determined to bring the Toronto bandits to justice a number of prominent bankers in session at an uptown hotel yesterday refused to divulge their decision in the matter of police search, or the offer of a reward for the gunmen.

The meeting was behind closed doors, and is believed to have been attended by several Toronto bankers and heads of local institutions.

The only decision heard outside the meeting room was the determination to spare nothing and to put the country's strongest private detectives on the case. One of the best known of the many detective bureaus, with offices in Canada and the United States, will be asked to join in the man hunt.

The $125,000 hold-up at Toronto and the safe get-away of the armed gunmen may add another to the crimes of lawlessness which startle with their audacity, rouse public indignation, and then melt away in the course of time, to be placed in the category of unsolved crimes.

At the present moment, there seems no likelihood of the capture of the six bandits who held up messengers in the Toronto banking district last week ,and after shooting several defending messengers, escaped in an automobile with the loot, the biggest individual haul the Queen City has suffered through the activities of gunmen.

A Clean Getaway.

While the alarm has been spread to Montreal, New York, Chicago, and other big centres, the robbery is likely to take its place on the unsolved list. That record is filled with doings of dangerous bandits, thugs, and murderers who have escaped the police of two countries and left a toll of death and destruction for the police to ponder and throw away clue after clue in their unsuccessful hunt for the perpetrators.

The police of Canada and the United States are seeking Lewis Edwards alias James Edwards, J. C. Porter, Arthur Stewart, James Williams alias Howard Keavin, and Leo Callahan alias James Malone, escaped prisoners from the Philadelphia Penitentiary as possible participants in the Toronto hold-up.

Montreal detectives have been asked to keep a close watch on all highways and at all railway stations, and have been furnished with photographs of the men by the Philadelphia police authorities.

The theory that they may be heading for Montreal in a stolen automobile has been declared sound by the Toronto authorities, who recovered a revolver which was purchased here a short time before the hold-up.

Unsolved murders are rapidly overtaking undetected crimes in which large sums of money have been the objective of bandits.

Montreal, singularly free from daring highway robberies, bank robberies, and looting of Federal institutions, has a long list of unsolved murders to ponder over. The last one to be added to the list is the jury failed to bring in a verdict holding Raoul Delorme murder. When the finding someone responsible for the death of the student, the case took its place in the category of murders unsolved.

Another Search.

TORONTO, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Inspector W. Wallace and a squad of police headquarters and division detectives of Toronto motored this morning to the barn where the car of the bandits who robbed the Toronto bank messengers last Tuesday morning was found yesterday, and there relieved Detectives Whitelaw and Winters, who remained on duty at the scene all night.

The fresh squad immediately set to work in the hopes of finding something which might serve as a clue towards the apprehension of the desperadoes.

Immediately behind the barn is a thick woods, and the spot is a lonely one, despite the fact that it is not more than five hundred yards from the Donalda farm.

It is believed that the bandits made this thicket their "home" since the robbery.

Combing the Woods.

A despatch from Windsor, Ont., says that a squad of ten Provincial constables are combing the woods in the vicinity of Arkona, where a gang of men believed to be the Toronto bank bandits are said to be concealed. Officials are extremely reticent regarding the information on which they are acting.

AMALGAMATE COMPANIES IN CO-OPERATIVE EFFORT

WINNIPEG, July 30.—(Canadian Press).—Complete amalgamation of the United Grain Growers Limited and the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Co., is the best solution in sight of the problem of marketing economically and efficiently the western grain crop, in the opinion of R. A. Hoey, M.P., for Springfield.

A BANDIT STORY THAT WAS A DUD

Three Men Tried to Get Away With a Tankful of Gasoline.

Everybody is looking for bandits now, and when three men in a high-powered car were arrested on Saturday evening in Trenton for the theft of gasoline the rumor was immediately broadcasted that three of the Toronto bandits had been taken into custody and some person with an exaggerated imagination tacked on the story that at least $45,000 had been found on one of them.

As far as could be learned regarding the case, the three men in a high-powered car stopped at Welcome on Saturday afternoon and had their gasoline tank filled. Before paying for the gas they asked the garage man to get them some oil, and while he was in the building getting it they simply stepped on the gas and were away. A telephone call to Port Hope missed them and the police there relayed the call to Cobourg. They had already passed through Cobourg, and calls were sent to Belleville and Trenton. They were apprehended at Trenton and then the rumor started.

PIPE LINE TO MINE WRECKED

Several Bombs Used to Blow Up Water Supply of Steel Corporation.

SYDNEY, N.S., July 30.—(Canadian Press). —By a series of explosions which roused sleeping city, this pipe lines which supply British Empire Steel Corporation Steel plant, with water, were blown up at several points early this morning. As result plant which was raidly getting back to normal has been completely closed down. The actual damage caused by explosions will be heavy but it may be as nothing to damage cause inside plant by sudden cutting off of large water supply for various operations, particularly in coke ovens section.

One of bombs was exploded in heart of city near corner of Prince and Inglis streets. It is possible that city of Sydney may be able to supply a small quantity of water for vital service, until repairs have been made. Only clue authorities have is that after Prince street explosion, several men were seen making getaway in an automobile.

MAKING REPAIRS TO ST. PETER'S CHURCH

A Number of Changes to the Dignified Old Cathedral.

The sanctuary of St. Peter's Cathedral presents a peculiar appearance just now. The high altar, shorn of its ornamental top-portion, with only the table and part of the upright back sill in use, has been moved forward to within a few feet of the sanctuary railing, to permit workmen to go ahead with the improvements which are being made to the northern end of the edifice.

St. Peter's Cathedral has, up to the present time, had very little repairing or even cleaning, done to the interior, for many years. As a consequence, the entire expanse of the walls is in great need of a thorough going-over. Along with this, the intention is to do away with the old flat wall at the northern end, and to substitute for it the conventional semi-circular wall formation, to allow of the high altar being placed in the arc of the circle, with companion small altars on either side. Fourteen feet of the present vestry space will be used for the proposed change, which will bring the old and dignified Cathedral more in line with the proper type of church architecture. The building itself with its noble exterior of stately grey stone, is in splendid condition and, with the proposed change in the altar formation, which will not alter in any way the cruciform type of construction, and a thorough cleansing, the Cathedral is expected within a month's time to present a very satisfactory appearance.

St. Martin's church, in Ennismore, is rapidly progressing toward completion. It is expected that the roof will be on the building this week.

GERMAN POLICEMEN ARE SENTENCED TO DEATH

DUESSSELDORF, July 30. — (Canadian Press). — German newspapers report that Major Zormack and Lieutenants Keller and Knuth, all former policemen in Essen, have been sentenced to death by a French court-martial at Werden for espionage. The three men are said to have been found guilty of operating a dictograph near a French officers' villa on the outside of Essen.

GRAPHIC STORY OF WRECK OF COAL STEAMER

Cook of the Ill-fated W. J. Carter is Mother of Mrs. M. J. Murray, Peterborough.

IN THREE WRECKS

TORONTO, July 30.—(Special).—Mrs. Cathrine Redmond of Peterborough, cook of the ill-fated "W. J Carter", which sank fifteen minutes off after spring a leak thirty miles off Long Point, about 10.15 Saturday night, this morning related her harrowing experiences.

"This experience of sinking is nothing new to me, I've been on three vessels that have gone down but my experience on Saturday night was the worst of the three," she said. While she was speaking, Mrs. Redmond, who is a kind motherly-looking woman, 59 years of age, showed that she had not gotten over her experience yet. The nerves of her mouth continually twitched, and several times her eyes filled up with tears as she related stories of her rather adventurous career.

Rushed to Pumps

"About 10 o'clock one of the firemen came on deck and informed Captain that leak had been sprung. The en instantly rushed to the pumps but it was seen that nohing could save us. We took to the life boats, instantly, nine of us all told. It was pitch black and it seemed as if every wave would swallow us. I had the captain's clothes on, because I had gone down to his cabin earlier in the evening, and as we saw that it was a very rough night he made me put on some of his clothes. In five minutes we were all soaking from head to foot and the young fellows were obliged to keep on bailing out."

"Were you very frightened?"

"Indeed I was, but I didn't want the men to see it."

Acted Like Men

Every men acted like a man throughout, and Captain Quinn, with whom I have sailed for 12 years, took complete command and had full control of the situation. Four boats passed us and one was either the Toronto or the Kingston, the captain and the men were quite sore on them for awhile, but after they reasoned it out they were sure that our signals had not been seen. Finally we were picked up by the Keyport, just when we thought they also had missed us."

"Would your lifeboat have stood much more buffeting?"

"No, it would not have kept together until daybreak, it was frail, and kept us in suspense every minute of that terrible night."

"Have you worked for Captain Quinn very long?"

"Yes for thirty years, he is best known as Captain Oakville Jimmy Quinn and better man never set foot on a vessel."

"This is not your only experience with Captain Quinn in the lifeboats is it?"

"No, about 18 years ago Captain Quinn's boat, the Jessica Drummand, sank just outside of the Port at Cobourg, I again was obliged to get into life boats but we had a good one and easily made Cobourg port. Again about 12 years ago the steamer Juno sank in the Cobourg port. At that time I was cook on board, it was a coal steamer, but a passing coaler picked us up."

Her Worst Experience

"Saturday's experience then was really your worst?"

By no means, well do I remember the 11th of July 1911, at the time of the big Porcupine fire. I was in the 'Golden City' for three years. That was terrible, the whole forest about us, was just one mass of swirling fire, the air was black and every five minutes men, women and children were rushed into the town, either burnt badly or dying. I have never got over that experience to this day.'

"I guess you have finished with boats for good "

"By no means, Captain Oakville Jimmy Quinn couldnt get along with out me, as soon as he gets another ship, away I go despite my 59 years and my two strokes.

This brave little cook of "W. J. Carter" recounted her story—and in spite of all her adventure, will go back to try once more. "If I go down once more, I assure you it will be my last," was her parting reply.

GRAND TRUNK TRAIN STRUCK MOTOR TRUCK

TORONTO, July 30.—(Canadian Press).—C. Hinan, a driver employed by the Trafalgar Lumber Company, Oakville, Ont., narrowly escaped death early this morning when a Grand Trunk passenger train travelling east, just west of Oakville, struck the truck he was driving at a crossing, demolishing the truck and hurling Hinan several feet. Hinan was found beneath a part of the truck in an unconscious condition, and at first it was thought by passengers on train, who ran to assist him, that he was killed. Later, however, he regained consciousness and was removed to Hamilton General Hospital where it was found that he had sustained severe injuries to his right arm.

MANY WERE KILLED AT RAIL CROSSINGS

Sunday's Death Roll in United States Reaches Twenty-Four.

CHICAGO, July 30 (Canadian Press). — Twenty-four persons were reported killed to-day in six railroad crossing accidents in various parts of the United States, a train striking an automobile in each instance.

One Pennsylvania train struck two automobiles within a few hours, four being killed in the first crash and nine in the second.

A few hours later, the same train hurrying to make up for lost time, struck another automobile at Liggett, Ind., 8 miles from Terre Haute, nine persons being killed.

From New York came the report of five persons killed, including William I. Gottlieb, the well-known manufacturer, when a Long Island passenger train struck the automobile in which they were riding.

Another accident was reported from Wadesboro, N.C., where a Seaboard train demolished an automobile, killing one person and injuring seriously two others.

The sixth accident occurred at Castleton Corners, Vt., where one was killed and two badly hurt when a freight train collided with an automobile.

FIRE KILLED TWO MEN AND EIGHTY HORSES

BOSTON, July 30. — (Canadian Press). — Two stablemen and 82 horses were killed in a fire which swept through a stable in the south-end of Boston on Saturday. The damage was placed at $70,000.

Nine employees were in the two-storey brick building when hay stored in the basement caught fire. The flames shot up a grain shaft and mushroomed out on the upper floors. John Roach was kicked by one of the horses, none of which would leave their stalls, and his body, with a fractured skull, and that of John Scanlon, were found in the ruins.

HOW TO PREACH SO AS TO CONVERT NOBODY

1. Let your supreme motive be popularity rather than salvation.
2. Study to please your congregation and to make a reputation, rather than to please God.
3. Take up popular, passing and sensational themes to draw the crowd, and avoid the essential doctrines of salvation.
4. Denounce sin in the abstract, but pass lightly over sins that prevail in your congregation.
5. If asked, "Is it wrong to dance, play cards and attend the theatre?" answer very pleasantly, "Oh, that is a matter for private judgment. It is not for me to say you shall or shall not."
6. Preach on the loveliness of virtue and the glory of heaven, but not on the sinfulness of sin and the terrors of hell
7. Reprove the sins of the absent but make those who are present pleased with themselves, so that they will enjoy the sermon and not go away with their feelings hurt.
8. Make the impression on worldly, church members that God is too good to send any one to hell, even if there is any hell.
9. Preach the universal Fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man, so as to show that no second birth is really needed.
10. Do not rebuke the worldliness of the church, but fall in with the amusement policy. Instead of meeting for prayer, let the people "sit down to eat and drink and rise up to play."
11. Avoid seriousness, alarm, and earnest efforts to pull sinners out of the fire, and the old-fashioned idea that the church is a rescue mission.

These principles and practices have been tried and the results are sadly apparent.—Charles G. Finney.

GOOD REPORTS FOR THE WESTERN CROP

Wheat in Alberta Has Suffered Very Little and Yield Will Be Above the Average.

CALGARY, Alta., buly 30.—(Canadian Press).—The Calgary Herald's Saturday crop review says:

With prospects indicating that wheat harvesting will be general over the southern part of the Province, and as far north as Red Deer within three weeks, reports from centrally located districts point to yields above the average in this Province this year. With no blight or rust, very little damage from grasshoppers and only a few districts seriously hit by hail, the general outlook is the most encouraging for many years.

Conditions immediately south of Calgary and to the north of this city are most encouraging. From Wetaskiwin and Olds districts, reports are more optimistic for both yield and grade.

In some districts in the south country, near Medicine Hat and Granum, fear is expressed lest the continued heat curtail the yield somewhat, but rains within a week will materially lessen the difficulty. In the Lethbridge district, hail has taken a toll nearly every week in some localities, but the prospects are even yet ahead of the last few years. Considering the situation as a whole, it appears very encouraging for a big yield and a good grade of wheat.

Rye cutting will be general in a week in many localities and estimates of the yield run between seventy and a hundred bushels to the acre. Wheat yields have been variously estimated at from fifteen bushels to 45 bushels to the acre.

Few reports of lodging from rain or wind have been received despite the rank growth in many districts.

FIVE KILLED IN RACE WITH TRAIN

Head of Big New York Firm and Four Young Ladies Victims of Crash With Train.

NEW YORK, July 30.—(Canadian Press).—William I. Gottlieb, President of Gottlieb & Rabinowitz, Inc., garment manufacturers, and four ladies were killed yesterday when a Long Island passenger train crashed into the automobile in which they were returning from Long Beach.

The accident occurred at the Merrick road crossing in Rockville Centre when, according to witnesses, Gottlieb's car smashed through the crossing gates directly in the path of the speeding train.

Wreckage and bodies were hurled or carried for more than 100 feet, and the front of the automobile still was wedged into the locomotive when the train came to a stop 1,000 feet down the track.

Death apparently came instantly to four of the five victims. One of the young women was alive when she was lifted from the wreckage, but died as she was being placed in an automobile.

Gottlieb's body was identified by business cards and a summons for speeding which were found in his pockets.

Edwin John Scott, gateman at the Merrick road crossing, told the authorities he had lowered the crossing gates for the last Babylon Theatre crowd train from New York when the headlights of Gottlieb's car appeared through the gloom and the car came hurtling up the road. Without slowing down, he declared, the machine plowed through the gates just in time to be struck by the train which was travelling at a speed of nearly 60 miles an hour.

Engineer F. X. Yaeger added his testimony that the gates had been lowered. Scott, nevertheless, was arrested by the Rockville Centre police and held on a technical charge of homicide.

District Attorney Weeks conducted an inquiry into the accident yesterday afternoon at which conflicting testimony about the gates was given.

While the gateman and engineer insisted they had been lowered, other witnesses testified that the gates were broken and the red lanterns attached to them smashed.

The dead women were believed last night by police to be:

Miss Verna Tolley, 27, of Manhattan, formerly of Pittsburgh, a writer of fiction and feature stories.

Miss Thelma Miller, 18, sister of Gladys, also an actress.

The latter lived with Miss Tolley, the police said.

JUDGES' STAND COLLAPSED.

MONTREAL, July 30.— (Canadian Press.)—During the 48th regatta of the Grand Trunk Boat Club here Saturday afternoon some fifty persons on a temporary wharf near the judges' stand, stamped their approval of one of the finished with the result that the structure collapsed, precipitating them into the water. Only the prompt action of the paddlers and other spectators averted what might have been a serious affair. As it was, two ladies had narrow escapes from drowning.

13 ARE KILLED IN 2 ACCIDENTS BY ONE TRAIN

Train Making Up Time in First Accident Hit Auto and Killed Nine More.

AUTO TO BLAME.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., July 30.—(Canadian Press). — Nine persons were killed late yesterday when a Pennsyivania eastbound passenger train crashed into the automobile in which they had started across the tracks at Liggett, eight miles west of here. The train was travelling about 50 miles an hour and was two hours late because of a similar accident near Highland, Illinois, in which four persons were killed.

According to G. G. Gillespie, in charge of the Liggett telegraph tower who witnessed the accident, the tragedy was caused by the attempt of the driver to cross the track ahead of the train. The automobile was struck directly in the centre, the occupants being hurled in dismembered fragments for a distance of about 200 yards.

The train sped on for a distance of about three-quarters of a mile before it could be brought to a stop.

As soon as it was backed to the scene of the tragedy work was started at once to gather the mangled bodies.

The dead: Mrs. Vella Bostwick, aged 41, of Danville, Ills.; Richard and Clarence Bostwick, aged 6 and 13 months, respectively, her sons, and Trilla, May and Etta Bostwick, aged 18, 13 and 3, respectively, her daughters; Mrs. Ethel Stevens, 21, of Terre Haute, Ind.; Anna Leona Stevens, three months, her daughter, and Raymond Thomason, 21, of Danville, the driver.

At the time of the tragedy the crew in charge of the train was attempting to make up about two hours' time lost during the accident near Highland, Ills. The victims at Highland are: John Sezs, 40; Sera Denka, 30; Joe Lengyle, 35; John Sezs, Jr., 14, all of Highland.

TWO MARINE DISASTERS.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 30. — (Canadian Press.)— An unidentified ship reported in distress at the mouth of the Strait of Juan de Fuca, which later vanished, and the Siberian Prince, Furness-Prince freighter which went ashore one mile from the Race Rock lighthouse on Bentick Island, just outside Victoria, B.C., harbor early yesterday morning added two to the list of marine disasters of the last three days while heavy fogs hung over Puget Sound waters.

BOEHLER RETURNED.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 30.—(Canadian Press.)— Pitcher George Boeshler, bought by the Pittsburgh Nationals from the Tulsa Club of the Western League, Saturday was turned back to Tulsa, under option, it was announced.

The Pittsburgh club paid $30,000 for Boehler at the opening of the season, but due to a sore arm he was unable to get in form.

Gland Operation Failed in Horse

BUENOS AIRES, July 30.—(Canadian Press)— Yrigoyen, one of the most famous race horses in Argentina, was subjected yesterday to Voronoff's gland operation, believed to be the first operation of the kind ever performed on a horse. The gland used for this purpose was removed from another race horse. Yrigoyen died several hours after the operation.

Yrigoyen was thirteen years of age and the sire of many winners on the Argentine turf. He broke down physically about three years ago and his owners decided in a last effort to restore his vigor to have the glandular operation performed.

BABY'S LIFE SNUFFED OUT

Auto Accident on Gravel Road in Which 8-Months-Old Keith Nichols, Peterborough, is the Victim.

Keith Nichols, aged 8 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Nichols, 473 King street, is dead, and Mrs. Nichols is injured as a result of an auto accident on the gravel road on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Nichols was descending a grade a mile past Bailieboro about 2 o'clock when he saw an empty gravel wagon in the centre of the road. He sounded his horn, he said, two or three times, but the driver of the wagon did not heed. Mr. Nichols turned out to pass the wagon, but had not room, and the auto rolled over into the ditch, which was eight feet deep at that point. The baby was pinned under the car, and died about six o'clock on Saturday night as a result of the injuries he sustained. Mrs. Nicholls was removed to hospital.

Other children in the car, whom Mr. Nichols was taking to Kingston after vacation, miraculously escaped injury.

The motorist, corroborated by two witnesses, states that the teamster held to the centre of the road when he could have pulled over to his own side and left the automobile at least eight feet to pass. The car was badly smashed.

It is believed that there will be an investigation into the accident. This will probably be in Northumberland county, as the tragedy took place in that county.

ENGLAND POSSESSES UNDERSEA BATTLE BOAT

CHATHAM, England, July 28.—(Associated Press)— When England's new "mystery ship," Submarine X-1, was launched here recently, newspapermen and spectators were rigidly excluded, and the approaches to the dockyards were heavily guarded to make sure no unauthorized person should see her take the water. Nevertheless it can be said the launching was in all ways successful, and the latest addition to under-sea power was at once towed to the dockyard for completion.

The new vessel is the last word in submarines; she is really a submersible battle-cruiser. Her displacement when submerged will be 3,600 tons, 1,400 tons greater than that of the largest German submarine and considerably greater than any of the existing American types. On the surface the X-1 will use steam for navigation, but when submerged will use electricity.

There is great diversity of opinion regarding the size of the new vessel's armament. In some quarters it is said she will mount a gun of 12 or 13.5-inch calibre. It is possible, however, that the X-1 has been designed for a high surface speed, enabling her to work with the Grand Battle Fleet. If this is true a big gun would not be carried.

The cost of the new submarine, apart from armament and ordnance stores, will be nearly $5,000,000. At present there are 59 submarines in the British Fleet, and of these the M class, which mount a 12-inch gun, are the most powerful.

BELGIAN REPLY WAS RECEIVED BY THE FRENCH

Both French and Belgian Notes Will Be Delivered to the British Authorities To-Day.

STRICT SECRECY.

PARIS, July 30. — (Canadian Press).—The text of the Belgian reply to the British communication dealing with reparations was received at the Quay d' Orsay yesterday morning, and the French and Belgian replies will be delivered to the British Foreign Office to-day.

Baron de Gaiffier d' Hestroy, the Belgian Ambassador, presented the text of the Belgian note at eleven o'clock yesterday morning to Count Peretti de La Rocca, Director of Political Affairs, in the absence of Premier Poincare. A conversation lasting two hours ensued, in which Jacques Seydoux, Economic Adviser and Sub-Director of Commercial Relations to the Foreign Office, took part.

M. Poincare, who is spending the week-end at his country place at Sampigny, received these contents of the Belgian note over a special telephone connecting his home with the Foreign Office.

While the strictest secrecy still is preserved with regard to the contents of the replies of France and Belgium to the British note, it can be said that the Belgian Government has given effect to certain observations made by the French Government this morning with regard to certain phrases in its draft reply, as M. Poincare did to the observations of the Belgian Government in the draft of his reply submitted to it on Friday.

The secrecy on which so much was insisted has not prevetned the Brussels and Paris newspapers of serious thought from assuring their readers that the replies will be found to be an agreement in principle on leading points; that there will be no negotiations with Germany before abandonment of Germany's passive resistance; that the evacuation of the Ruhr will be subordinate to satisfactory payment by Germany and a settlement of the differences concerning the method of paying reparations, which already has been proposed by Belgium to the Allies.

BANDITS' CAR IS FOUND IN BARN NEAR TORONTO

Mutilated Messengers' Bags Were Discovered in Back of the Vehicle—Blood-Stained Evidence.

ONE BULLET MARK.

TORONTO, July 30.—(Canadian Press.) — The stolen six-cylinder, maroon-colored automobile used by the bank bandits in their escape from the robbery at Jordan and Melinda streets last Tuesday morning, was found in a barn on Dunlop farm at 5.30 Sunday afternoon. The farm is owned by the Dunlop estate and is situated one mile east of Duncan station on the C. N. R., less than eight miles from the city. In the car were found two of the stolen bags used by the bank messengers which still contained missing cheques. These cheques, useless to the gunmen, were hurriedly discarded.

Blood stains both in and outside of the bags and in the car, detectives say, are evidence that at least one of desperadoes had been wounded in the gun battle that occurred in the streets.

Close examination of the car showed only one bullet mark. This shot, supposedly from one of the wounded messengers, struck the tonneau of the car less than six inches above the gasoline tank, then glanced off. A spare automobile tire and a number of copies of the Globe, together with mutilated messengers' bags, were found in the back of the car.

Discovery of the car was made by an eight yearold boy, Jack Sexton, 114 Grenadier road, who along with his parents, was picnicking on the roadside. The boy, when looking for a stream to get water, saw the automobile standing in an old barn.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

Showman in Peterborough Rescued By Thomas Raymond and Others From Watery Grave.

If Thomas Raymond, caretaker at the Lake street swimming beach and several swimmers had not kept their heads yesterday afternoon the midway would be minus a showman today. But they kept their heads.

Denis E. Kane, who officiates at one of the booths of Billie Clark's Exposition Shows now at the Exhibition Grounds, went swimming at the beach at 2.30. He asked if there was a life saver in attendance, and on being informed that there was, he plunged bodly into the water. Seeing what he though was a shallow place beyond the boom he started to walk out, but lost his grip on the bottom and shouted for help.

Harry Adlam, 515 Bolivar street, reached from the boom and caught the drowning man by the hair, holding his head out of the water. The caretaker rushed to his canoe broke the mooring rope rather than wait to untie it, and paddled around the boom, catching Kane just in time to save him from going under. Asa Downer, 149 George street; H. Hattlerley, 5 Brown street; F. Colbert, 271 Wescott street, and Bob Murphy also assisted in bringing the victim to shore.

Credit to Caretaker

The pulmotor and a doctor were sent for, but on their arrival Kane refused to accept their ministrations, saying he was quite recovered. He is subject to cramp having sustained a broken leg, and it is thought that probably this seized him as he entered the deep water.

BERLIN, July 30. — (Canadian Press)—Anti-Facist day with which the German communists had threatened to overthrow the Cuno Government and incidentally wipe out the Bourgeoisie, revealed itself as a Bolshevik hoax of the familiar type, notwithstanding the fact that it proved to be one of the chief elements of aggravation in the perturbed economic and political situation during the past week.

The demonstrations in Greater Berlin and at other points simmered down to indoor meetings distinguished by lurid dratory rather than heavy attendances. In Leipsic, Dresden and at Thuringian points where open air demonstrations were permitted, the communists were able to muster only restricted portions

NEW SUBSTANCE TO REPLACE INSULIN

"Glucokinin" New Substance Which May Prove of Value As a Cure For Diabetes.

NEW YORK, July 30.—(Canadian Press).—Lettuce, bean leaves and onions contain "glucokinin," a substance similar to the recently discovered "insulin," which may prove even more valuable as a cure for diabetes, Professor J. J. Willaman of the University of Minnesota, declared yesterday.

Prof. Willaman said that Dr. J. B. Collip of the University of Alberta, one of the group first to make "insulin," discovered "gluckinin" after experiments with clams, oysters, yeast and mushrooms.

Successful tests with the new substance have been made upon diabetic dogs and rabbits, it was stated. No clinical tests have yet been made on human beings, but Dr. Collip was quoted as saying "there is little doubt that this substance will be useful in the treatment of diabetes mellitus in the human subject."

The Canadian scientist was prompted to the new experiments because of the high cost of "insulin," Professor Willaman said. "Gluckinin," he added, can be extracted at a small cost.

MISSING A LOT OF FUN.

The great success of the monster picnic held by the Conservatives of Victoria County at Long Beach the other day has prompted the Lindsay Post to enquire as to why a demonstration on this scale could not be held in Lindsay, pointing out that many thousands of people were brought together from all parts of the district.

For some reason or other we are as a community singularly without ambition or initiative when it comes to a question of holiday demonstrations.

Our public holidays are allowed to go to at all intents and purposes unnoticed—they are merely a day off from work and an opportunity to go somewhere out of town.

Victoria Day, Dominion Day pass by with nothing to mark them as out of the ordinary so far as Peterborough is concerned.

Our own Civic Holiday, coming next month, is merely a day when every citizen who can shows his interest in his home city by getting as far away from it as possible, and the Monday date is popular because it permits of two days' absence.

Perhaps we have outgrown such things as "big days," real celebrations in which the whole community take part, and in the programme of which there is a place for every one.

If that be the case we have grown out of a whole lot of fun, that is being enjoyed these days by smaller centres in which the real holiday spirit is being shown in community demonstrations on a large scale.

POLICE ESTIMATES.

With a new Attorney-General in charge of Ontario's Department of Justice, it would be interesting to obtain an expression of opinion as to the interpretation by the present administration of the amendment dealing with the estimates of the Police Commissioners and the powers, if any, conferred upon the City Council in connection with them.

Although little is heard of that question just now, it is likely to be a live one in Peterborough before the end of the present year, and Mr. Nickle's opinion of the section would be of considerable interest.

Incidentally, this whole matter should be gone into by the Government.

If it is the desire of the Legislature that the City Council should be given full power to prune the police estimates that desire should be expressed in language that leaves no doubt as to its meaning.

On the other hand, if the original policy is to be followed and the Police Commissioners are to be independent of interference by the city fathers, then the confusing amendment should be killed.

As it exists at present it affords an opportunity for advocates of one side or the other to take the meaning out of the amendment that suits them both.

There is no need for such confusion, nor would there have been any if the legal light entrusted with the drafting of the revised legislation had been able or willing to express the amendment in language that permitted of no misunderstanding.

THE ELEMENT OF SURPRISE.

The remark of the head of the Toronto Police Department in connection with last week's sensational hold-up that he hasn't enough men or enough cars at his disposal, conveys the impression that if Chief Dickson had had a larger force and been equipped with a sufficient number of cars the robbery would have been prevented, or at least the escape of the bandits would have been impossible.

However, it is very doubtful that the bold attempt would not have succeeded had the Toronto police force been twice as large.

There were plenty of men in the department's service to have protected the bank messengers had the thought that they were in any great danger of attack occurred to the authorities.

They probably did not regard such a raid as in the least likely to happen, nor would they have done so if there had been two men at Chief Dickson's service for every one at present on the force.

The bandits planned and carried out an attack on a scale that had not been anticipated, and it was not the fact that the Toronto oplice force is not large enough that made it easy for them to carry out their campaign successfully.

The element of surprise did the work—and it would have in any case.

WHAT ONE FARMER THINKS.

A farmer, writing to the Glencoe Transcript, protests against articles which are appearing in the papers urging that they—the farmers—shall speed up production to "lower the cost of living, pay off the war mortgage, save the country from drifting into bankruptcy," etc., says the London Advertiser.

The farmer who writes the letter claims that at no time have farmers as a class been unwilling to respond to any call made on them, but he fails to see how it is going to help matters to increase production when in many cases the prices received are below the cost of production.

He says he is tired of reading material sent out by well-paid Government officials telling the farmers that it is necessary to farm better, to be more economical, and all the rest of it.

Nor is it to be wondered at that he feels his nerves get the better of him at times. If it is necessary—and it is—to have a campaign for economy in Canada, leadership should be established, and that leadership can best assert itself by starting at the top.

Canada has not yet balanced her budget. The country realizes that there are heavy claims on account of war costs and the interest on war loans; that the fixed charges of the National Railways are still a direct levy on the public purse—but the presence of these prior claims which must be met makes it all the more imperative that other things must wait until we get to the point where it can be said that the national debt has ceased to increase; indeed it has started to recede.

Rightly or wrongly, the people in the country look to Ottawa for leadership. They look for steps that may be drastic, and they are prepared to sanction and approve these steps.

These same people are ready to take step for step with any measure brought forth to give us simplicity, efficiency and service at a price we can afford to pay.

Small wonder that the farmers get out of patience occasionally with the amount of advice on economy and production that is turned their way.

THE U. F. O. SITUATION.

The political future of the U. F. O. is still difficult to picture, the caucus of elected and defeated candidates in Toronto the other day having failed to accomplish much more than to establish the fact that Mr. Drury will only accept the leadership on the condition that he be allowed to carry on with his broadening-out methods.

The ex-Premier has flatly refused to head a class party, and if the U. F. O. wants him as leader of its political forces in the Legislature there will have to be a change in the general policy of the organization.

In other words, the Morrison-Drury clash is on again.

If Mr. Morrison wins out, as he has invariably done, the former Premier will retire from the political field, so far at least as the United Farmers are concerned.

In the Bulletin, issued after the conference, there is no mention of Secretary Morrison, but the whole Province knows his views and realizes that the choice that the Agrarian party has to make is between Drury and Morrison.

Their views are diametrically opposite, and both cannot prevail.

It is an interesting clash, and this time the verdict is expected to be final.

From the standpoint of the Province, the presence of Mr. Drury in the House is desirable inasmuch as a good opposition usually succeeds in keeping the Government active and alert.

SPECULATIVE FARMING.

So accustomed are we to think of farmers as ultra-conservative that it is hard to take seriously the charge that wheat growers are "gamblers." Yet, as made in the latest number of The Breeder's Gazette, it is deserving of attention. The man who makes wheat his chief if not his only cash crop, says this magazine, is playing to win big stakes, but also risks big losses. By putting all his eggs in one basket, he incurs even greater risks than those which the farmer normally has—the hazards of drought and hail and pests. In the marketing of staple crops such as wheat there are uncertainties of price which are altogether beyond the control of the farmers of any one country. Single-crop farming is therefore essentially speculative, and as such is unsound and uneconomic. The winnings, though large in a fat year, rarely offset the losses of lean years.

The answer is simple—diversification. Not only does The Breeder's Gazette advocate this, but such a Moses of the farm country as Senator Capper. So do students of agricultural problems in other sections. As the Senator from Kansas points out, a great co-operative commodity marketing association might do much to protect growers from unfavorable price conditions. Such work, however, in order to be effective, would have to be in part preventive, by endeavoring to advise farmers of the acreage which should go into wheat. But there are so many contingencies in any world crop—a bumper yield in Canada or a drought in Argentina, for example, has its reaction in the United States—that this is unlikely to give the individual farmer sufficient protection. He should devote more energy to other branches of farm activity. To put it in the terms of a Kansas banker writing about the effect of the low price of wheat in his State, "Kansas, which has an income of $50,000,000 from milk, poultry and eggs, can look to Wisconsin, where these products bring in $232,000,000, and find a valuable lesson in farm management."

The South learned its lesson from the single-crop evil. But American farmers as a whole have been slow to appreciate the need of diversification. This has been particularly true in regions well adapted to specific crops. The one-crop policy has invariably led to depression such as the wheat farmers are now suffering. The fact that the wheat output forms only about 7 per cent. of the annual value of farm production and live stock does not prevent depression from causing needless suffering and introducing elements of unrest. The demagogues play upon this to the limit. The Farmer-Labor Party simply happens to be the latest organization to profit by it. Others did so before, and many a vote-catcher is already planning to do so again, and to offer some new legislative panacea to the farmers who had staked everything on one crop and lost. Senator Capper, in his latest broadside to the farmers, is right. "It is evident we cannot obtain profitable prices for our wheat," he warns, "and must grow less wheat and more of the products for which the markets of the world are willing to pay higher prices." This is simply another way of driving home the lesson of diversification. It will be worth a whole volume of farm-bloc laws.—New York Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

"Get Restaurant Bandits," read a newspaper heading, and for a moment we rejoiced. But it turned out the men arrested did not keep a restaurant, but merely robbed one.

Toronto evangelist declares the trouble in the Garden of Eden was that Eve didn't ask Adam's advice before she ate the forbidden fruit. But would she have accepted his advice in any case?

It will be the Toronto Star that will first point out that the coal problem will soon be a burning question.

Somebody proposes that the whole population be armed as a protection against robbers. It is much safer, however, to allow a few bandits to roam at large than to arm the people and turn them out to shoot each other.

High harvest wages are said to be attracting thousands of immigrants to the United States. Why not to Canada?

Incidentally, there is a lot of discussion as to where the Toronto bandits came from, but the really important question would seem to be where have they gone.

EGG MARKET.

OTTAWA, July 30 (Canadian Press). — The Liverpool correspondent writes as follows:

"We do not see any immediate improvement in the market here, but one thing we may mention is that although English eggs are plentiful yet very few have been put away into storage or tanks. The result is that when English eggs are scarce, there will be no reserve of English preserved eggs to take their place, and it will then be the time for imported fresh eggs to be wanted. We look for this at the end of August."

It is also reported that very little business has passed at present for contracts in Danish pickled eggs and Irish cold storage.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, July 30 (Canadian Press). — Fresh downturns in the value of wheat took place yesterday largely as a result of hedging sales of newly harvested wheat and in line with weakness of stocks and cotton. Wheat prices closed heavy 1 1-8c to 1 7-8c net lower, Sept. 95 3-4c to 95 7-8c and Dec. 99 1-8c to 99 1-4c. Corn finished at a range varying from 5-8c decline to 3-4c advance, oats 1-8c to 1-4c to 3-4c down, and provisions 50c to 52c off.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, July 30.— (Canadian Press.)—Trading in cash grain on Saturday's local market was quiet. There was nothing of feature in the flour market. A steady feeling prevails in the millfeed market, but trade in rolled oats is easy. Business is good in eggs. Total receipts from May 1 to date were 263,805 cases, against 206,658 cases in the same period last year. Volume of business in butter is very large. Total receipts from May 1 to date is 62,080 packages less than in the same period last year. There is a very active trade in cheese. Total receipts from May 1 to date are 19,312 boxes in excess of these for the same period of 1922.

RAGS AND TATTERS DANCE AT VIAMEDE

Large Gathering of Merry-makers Enjoy Very Jolly Evening at Mount Julian.

"VIAMEDE," Mount Julian, July 30.—On Friday night last a "Rags and Tatters" dance was held in the pavilion at "Viamede." In spite of the hot weather there was a good crowd from the hotel and also a number unique costumes and the demeanour of their wearers provoked shrieks of laughter from the onups lookers, proving the fact that grown-ups enjoy dressing up as much as juveniles. The music was supplied by Eric Fawcett, the pianist, who responded to many encores. Among the most striking costumes were:

Mrs. Mortimer — A neglected bride.

Mrs. Spinning—"Mammy" Johnson.

Mrs. Butchart—'Mammy's' Girl.

Miss McLean—"Popper" Johnson.

Miss Pauline Bilkey—Tom Sawyer

Miss Constance Butchart—"Hard Times."

Mrs. Bilkey—"Mimosa Saw."

Miss B. Bilkey—Jackie Coogan.

Miss M. Bilkey — Tom Sawyer's Friend.

Miss Gillespie—Pitty Sing.

Miss M. Henderson—Madam Butterfly.

Miss O. Henderson—"Black and White."

Miss Graham—1923 Miss Muffett.

Miss Cook—"Rag o' Muffin."

Master Jimmie Bilkey—Very small tramp.

Mr. Stark—Much daubed Painter.

Capt. Lausier—An ehergetic fisherman.

Mr. Colborne—a frayed toreador.

A Butchart—Huck Finn.

Mr Cass—Janitor.

There were many other arresting costumes, but the above were the best. Capt. Lausier was exceptionally good and very true to life as he is indeed an energetic fisherman. Mesdames Butchart, Spinning and Mortimer were also remarkably good.

of their following, and nowhere did the parades or public meetings call for police intervention.

Much criticism had been levelled against the Cuno Government permitting the Reds to pursue a campaign of unusual violence in their party organs during the past ten days, in view of the prevailing unrest growing out of the money and food situations. That the Reds were able to recruit only a small portion of their following yesterday was due in no small measure to the veto placed upon their agitation by the United Socialists and the labor federations' leaders.

Berlin food difficulties are receiving the active attention of the Federal food controller, who is in touch with the League of agriculture with the purpose of securing increased deliveries and also improved methods of distribution at points of delivery. Imperfect organization in connection with the allotment of consignments of cattle, potatoes and dairy products are blamed for much of the food shortage in the markets of the big cities.

At McCracken's Landing

McCRACKEN'S July 30. — The Victoria House at McCracken's Landing is under the management of Mr. J. C. Strickland of Lakefield, who purchased the hotel from Miss Morgan in February last. The hotel has been renovated and has many added attractions, one being the screening in of the entire lower piazza. This has been very much enjoyed. Also a ground has been laid out for quoits, and so popular has the pastime become that a tournament will be held on August 2, the morning of the annual regatta.

Mr. Strickland is planning a sitting room with an open fire place which will be invaluable on the occasional cold or damp days.

Annual Regatta.

The annual regatta will be held on Thursday, August 2, at 2 p.m. This will no doubt be the great success that the McCracken's regattas always have been. H. E. Pringle, of Cleveland, is the chairman of the regatta committee with A. F. Choate, the secretary. Others on the committee are: J. M. Wilson, of Rochester, T. H. Jones of Toronto, J. C. Strickland, Gordon Graham and J. O. McCarthy of Toronto.

At Victoria House.

The following guests are registered at the Victoria House, McCracken's Landing: Mr. and Mrs. A. White, Toronto; A. A. White, Toronto; J. F. Lillicrap, Lakefield; W. H. Casement, Lakefield; E. M. ## APSLEY VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

Picnic Under Auspices St. Andrew's a Huge Success —Caught Large Salmon.

APSLEY, July 30.—Mr. Bonathan, who is assisting Rev. C. Spence in the Apsley Mission this summer, organized a picnic under the auspices of St. Andrews Church at Owenbrook on Wednesday, which was quite a success, nearly every family in the neighborhood contributing in labour and baking. Great interest was evinced in the sports and competitions, and also in the baseball match Married v Single, which resulted in a victory for the former the score being 12 runs to 7. Prizes were awarded in the following competitions to Mrs. Woodley for the oldest person present; to Mr. and Mrs. Woodley, the longest married couple present nearly 46 years; lookers proving the fact the grown-to the youngest person, Mrs. Ray Peter's baby, seven months— and to Mrs. McCaw with the largest family present, eight children. The races resulted as follows—Little boys race 1 Elwood Peters, 2 Aaron Post. Little Girls race, — 1 Clara Peters, 2 Ettie Winters. Boys race,—1 Sandford Whitney, 2 Jim Walke. Girls race—1 Verna McCaw, 2 Emma McCaw. Men's 100 yards—1 H. J. Johnston 2 Ivan Whitmore. Men's 50 yards dash,— 1 Harold Landon. Married women's race—1 Mrs. Ray Peters; 2 Mrs. Walke.T he proceeds of the picnic amounted to $50.

Open Air Service

An open air service was held at Purdeyville on Wednesday evening, conducted by Rev. C. Spence and Mr. Bonathan, which was largely attended, all the mill hands being present. The devotional address by Mr. Spence was listened to with marked attention, and the singing of well-known gospel hymns was heartily joined in by all. This service was an innovation, and was so much appreciated that it will be repeated in the near future.

Largest Salmon

The largest salmon taken from Loon Lake this summer, so it is reported, was caught recently by Reeve Scott of Chandos and weighed 12 1-2 pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie of Pittsburg, have arrived at their summer cottage on Loon Lake.

Personals

Mrs. and Miss Howe have returned to Toronto after a pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Downing.

Mrs. O'Rourke who motored through to Apsley from Ohio, on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Trickey, returned home this week.

COCOA COLOR

Cocoa colored organdie and georgette crepe are frequently seen embroidered in tans and browns or embelished with self-colored ribbons.

SCIENTISTS WILL REVEAL HORRORS OF NEXT WAR

League of Nations Names Commission to Make the Report Which is Expected to Make For Peace.

BY HENRY WOOD.

GENEVA, July 30. — (United Press)—The entire world is to know at once, scientifically and accurately the full limit of horrors that may be expected in the next war from the use of poison gas and microbes.

Convinced that the best way to check this aspect of war is to create such a world-wide fear and terror of it that the public itself will take steps to render it impossible, the League of Nations has decided to try a little homeopathic experiment along this line.

Acting under orders of the last general assembly of the league, a commision has just been appointed composed of the world's leading bacteriologists and chemists, to prepare a full report of just what the world must count on in future wars from the use of poison gas and microbes.

The report naturally will be based only on the present development of these two arms of warfare, although the commission may go far as to indicate what still further developments the future may hold in store.

The commission has been chosen not only from amongst the world's leading bacteriologists and chemists, but from those countries in which these two sciences have reached their greatest develpment. The commission is composed of the following chemists: Professor G. Bertrand and M. E. Mayer, of France; Monsieur Nernst, of Germany and Signori Angeli and Paterno, of Italy. The bacteriologists consist of Sir Almroth Wright, of Great Britain; Jules Bordet, of Belgium; Richard Pfeiffer, of Germany; Thomas Madsen, of Denmark and W. H. Welch, of the United States.

Germany is the only country that has been honoured with a delegate on each branch of the commission.

In his letter of instructions to these commissioners Sir Eric Drummound, acting under th lines laid down by the league council and assembly, has pointed out that the inquiry is not intended to reveal any of the military secrets or scientific discoveries of any country along the lines mentioned, which they may regard as confidential.

They are merely asked instead to set out in the most precise and scientific manner possible the actual results that may be expected in the event of war from recent scientific discoveries in the use of gases and microbes.

The inquiry is to cover the effects not only on human beings but on animal and vegetable life generally and upon the resources and wealth of the country attacked.

The experts are also asked to pass not only on the results to be expected from gases, but upon the chemical aspect of war generally, including the use of the highest explosives as developed during the recent war.

They will also detail not only what must be expected from a microbe war but from the employment of any other agent, which in defiance af all human laws, might be adopted by a nation because of its great efficiency and destructiveness.

When the report has been made and distributed to the entire world the League if confident that such a world-wide wave if indignation and horror will be aroused that it will be possible to take some new international conferences, towards checking such possibilities.

STONEY LAKE NEWS BUDGET

STONEY LAKE, July 30. — A subject very much discussed at present by the travelling public is that of the travel restrictions which are in vogue on the American border. One lady remarked that she adopted a sliding scale—coming into Canada she was a Canadian and returning she was an American. The greatest difficulty seems to be for a Canadian to cross the line even for a visit. Some travellers have had rather unpleasant experiences, and apparently Canadians are not welcomed by the authorities of Uncle Sam. It has, however, provided a topic of conversation which passes time on the trains and steamers.

Stoney Lake Guides.

One does not hear a great deal of the guides at Stoney Lake, but they are a very essential factor in the summer resort life. A guide is a good cook and knows how to prepare a meal that literally melts in one's mouth, he also knows where the finny tribe congregate, and leads his patrons to the most likely spot. He knows the best places for the preparation and partaking of the "shore dinners" which are justly famous. Also, a guide has a fund of narratives which provide entertainment for the hours when the fish are not biting. He never advertises, for the very good reason that he doesn't need to, as his satisfied patrons advertise him to their friends. He is always in demand, and spends a busy and very profitable season.

The Many Fashions.

The fashions, as seen at Stoney Lake this season, are of the simplest, and make for good times for girls and women, especially khaki drill knickers and middies are seen everywhere, and are very well adapted to the needs of the summer girl. However, in the evening she blossoms out in a pretty frock of bright hue, and the scene at the dances, where there are pretty girls in abundance, all in the daintiest of summer attire, is attractive and colourful in the extreme. The decorations at Juniper Pavilion are well suited for a background for the gay colours which are to be seen there on dance nights. Sweaters are as popular as ever, and are a necessary part of milady's summer wardrobe. It is no uncommon sight to see a lady wearing a sweater and knitting madly at another, as one sweater is apparently far from sufficient. The number and variety of these garments determines one's right to be in the list of summer girls.

Stoney Lake Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mudge, the Misses Margot and Joan and sons Gordon and Dick,- are at Edwards' cottage on Juniper Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivor Brock, Miss their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Cooke, Pearl Brock of Kawartha Park, and took the trip round the Lake on Saturday.

Mrs. Clarke Acton, of Toronto, and Misses Hazel Goodall and Gladys Dunlop of Ottawa are at Towasuntha.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Sholer, who had been visiting friends at Mount Julian, returned to Peterborough on Saturday.

Mr. A. Piper of Toronto paid a flying visit to the Lake on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leir Payne of Lakefield spent last week at Paynesboro.

The Million Dollar Doll

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Teresa Desmond (Terry") seven years old left much to herself believes in fairies and worships.

Juliet D'Arse, the stage name of her beautiful half-sister "Jule" rides in a gorgeous car and talks of a millionaire.

Terrence Desmond, their father is caretaker of an estate on Long Island and had such-and-such taken place in Ireland years ago (he claimed) he would have been a Lord. Julia's flippant talk about millionaires angers him—he is prone to rages.

Mrs. Peter Parmalee, owner of the house wires that she is coming out to spend a few days.

Betty Sheen, her 17-year granddaughter is coming with her.

Miles Sheridan is Betty's fiance.

CHAPTER II.

Betty, the Blue-eyed.

At seven years old one knows more and less than "grown-ups" remember Terry knew a great many things. She knew about fairies and the people in the County of Dreams who were real though it was better not to speak of them.

She knew how to make flowers keep fresh when Mother would have thrown them in the ash-barrel.

She remembered everything that she heard talked about by Father Mother and Jule who were the only persons in her Daytime world. And that is why she knew about Mrs. Peter Parmalee and Betty Sheen in a general "Who's Who" way while knowing nothing of them as individuals.

Mrs. Peter Parmalee was an old lady perhaps as old as seventy. Teresa pictured her with white hair like that of the old ladies she saw when Mother took her into the village of Oldport shopping. Her husband had died many years ago.

Betty's father who had married Mrs. Parmalee's daughter had been an artist. That was why he'd lived in Paris. It seemed that artists liked to live in Paris. But he was dead and so was his wife. There had been an automobile accident.

Betty had no one left except her grandmother though the village heard that she was engaged to a rich young man named Miles Sheridan a "great match" even for such an important girl as Betty Sheen.

Like Betty Sheridan had lost his parents when he was a child. Long ago he had spent his holidays with Mrs. Parmalee; but that was before Paris. It must have been in this very house Silverwood in prehistoric days before Terry was born.

The child didn't waste many thoughts upon Miles Sheridan for she knew no young men with whom to compare him; but she imagined that Betty Sheen would be beautiful and kind like Julia. It was splendid that the ladies were coming to Silverwood. She pictured them as visitors her mother and father as host and hostess.

Terry ran about after Mary dusting furniture with a feather duster when her mother had swept. They got ready the drawing-room dining-room Mrs Parmalee's immense bedroom and Betty's adjoining which was smaller but interesting because of the things stored there.

When the Desmond's first came to Silverwood (rheumatic fever had turned Terrence to caretaking after a career as a riding master) these things were already in the house. They had been left behind when Betty went back to Paris after a visit to Grandma in America. Little silk and muslin dresses Leghorn hats wreathed with roses or wildflowers and delicate shoes.

These relics had spent the years asleep in a cedar-lined wardrobe built into the wall; and on the floor of the wardrobe were ranged toys which no doubt had been too big to travel. There was a dolls' house a Noah's Ark and a Teddy Bear so adorable that Teresa would have given her best treasures (including the red curls which the village people praised) if she could have owned it. She had never been allowed to play with the toy however though she saw it when Mother aired this most fascinating room at Silverwood.

Next door to Betty's and opening into it was a little room originally intended for the dressing-room of a married couple. Now it would be occupied by the ladies' maid; for Mrs. Parmalee had telegraphed: "Just landed New York No time write in advance. Will arrive Silverwood evening June 14th for dinner staying only two days' business. Not necessary get servants. Hope you can manage. Please prepare my room and Miss Sheen s also adjoining one for French maid.

Terry dared to hope that Betty now too old for the Teddy bear would give it to her There might be chocolates too. The maid would help Mother in the housework and everything would be delightful.

* * *

These were things that the child knew or thought of Mrs. Parmalee and Miss Sheen. One of the things she did not know or think was that she was of no more importance in Mrs. Parmalee s house than a fly—a destructive and unwanted fly.

It was only when she and Mother were shelling peas for dinner that Terry received her first shock.

"Do you suppose Betty Sheen will give me the Teddy Bear?' she couldn t resist asking.

"Miss Sheen corrected Mary. "No I don't suppose she'll give you that or anything. She probably won't know you exist. Now mind Teresa you're not to go near the ladies. You're not to show yourself upstairs while they're here or play in the garden unless the kitchen garden. In the house to our own part.".

Mary meant every word Terry knew. The child was called "Teresa" only in serious moments or when Mother (a school teacher as a girl) taught her the multiplication table and horrid facts like that. Terry was not even asked to promise obedience. Mary took that for granted. But—though the basement was nice Terry loved "upstairs"; the large rooms whose pictures and dim haunted mirrors were shrouded with mosquito netting as the massive furniture was shrouded with white calico.

The basement where the Desmonds lived was pleasant enough. It was cellar-like only in front for at the back all the windows looked out through an ivy-draped trellis onto a garden full of flowers. There were three good bedrooms with pretty patchwork quilts on the beds and rag carpets on the floor and Mary had made one-half of the kitchen into a sitting-room. Still upstairs was "fairyland." It called, it lured, especially after two taxis from the nearest railway town had brought the ladies and their maid and luggage to the house. Terry hiding had seen the arrival; and Mother helped by a black woman whom Father had grumpily fetched from Oldport had forgotten the child.

Mrs. Parmalee was very strange to see. She was old, but old in different way from other people's oldness. She had wrinkles all over her face, even on her eyelids, but she was white and pink like Terry herself and her hair wasn't grey; it was a dark sort of crimson.

She had a beautiful figure only rather stiff and Terry had never seen such a handsome grey dress and cloak except the lovely things Julia had worn that day.

More interesting, however, was Miss Sheen. Terry had a chance for a look at her while Mrs. Parmalee explained with stateliness to Father why they had started unexpectedly for America. They stood grouped on the porch and Terry crouched behind a laurel bush.

Betty was pretty with waved hair so fair that it was almost more like silver than gold. She had big turquoise blue eyes complexion like the inside of a shell and a pouting pink mouth.

She looked rather bored and indifferent even when Mrs. Parmalee told how Mr. Miles Sheridan had had a bad accident playing polo; but when her grandmother announced that "Mr. Sheridan and Miss Sheen would be married in a few months' time" the girl suddenly smiled.

A dimple came close to her mouth in each cheek and her teeth were perfect small and gleaming like the lovely beads Julia had worn that morning—beads she called "pearls real pearls."

Terry couldn't keep downstairs

There was a Japanese gong on an old chest in the hall. The black woman Nancibell Washington went up and struck it when dinner was ready. After she had flopped heavily back to the basement again (the French maid had consented to wait at table) Terry stole up to lurk behind a Spanish leather screen.

The old lady and the young one sailed down from their bedrooms. They wore low-necked dresses such as the child had seen pictured in magazines. Mrs. Parmalee was talking of things she wished to take away from Silverwood to some hotel in New York. Josephine the maid had begun already to collect these things it seemed.

Oh what if the Teddy had been collected?

Teresa could not bear to think that he might go. But if he must she wanted to bid him goodbye. She would do no harm. The ladies wouldn't see her so they couldn't be cross. She'd run up while they were at dinner. Besides it was more her house than theirs She had a right to go anywhere in her own home.

The stairway and the upper halls blazed with light for the first time in Terry's knowledge. She made straight for Betty's room and found it lighted too. Miss Sheen hadn't troubled to press the electric switch.

A trunk was wide open. Several dresses lay on the bed. A delicious perfume filled the room. Jewellery was scattered on the dressing table but Terry scarcely glanced at these things. Her eyes were caught by the bear which had been torn from its place in the wardrobe and—oh shame —thrust head down into a big barrel-like waste-paper basket.

The child snatched the plush monster as a mother might snatch an abused baby. "Dear, darling one" she cooed.

But the sound of her own voice frightened the child. What if someone had heard? The maid might run up retrieve the toy and order her away.

It did not strike Terry that if she left the bear in the basket it would fall into her possession sooner or later. She was too excited for prudent thoughts. Her beloved must be rescued

For a moment she stood still listening. There was no sound. All was safe Everyone was busy downstairs. A thrill ran through her veins. How glad she was that she had been in time The Teddy Bear was hers. And she could look at the things scattered about the room.

The plush bear under her arm Terry gravitated to the dressing-table. A mirror hung obove it slightly tilted. She looked up met her own eyes. The light from a pink-shaded electric lamp set her hair on fire. It was strange how much she was like Julia, Julia was beautiful. Why then she must be beautiful too

Some queer vision came to the child of herself grown up. She would have gold-topped bottles and jars with monograms in blue stones like these on Betty Sheen's dressing table. She would have perfumes and sweet smelling powder like this in the cut-glass bowl which Betty had left uncovered.

Terry bent down and sniffed at the powder puff. The scent was heavenly. The same fragrance came from a bottle whose silver-gilt top was not screwed on. Ecstasy swept over the child. She must must have some of that sweetness It couldn't be stealing to take a drop.

The bear left only one hand free. She lifted off the turquoise-monogrammed top and tipped the bottle against the breast of her frock. Oh how lovely. Nothing had ever been so nice!

Terry started; and then everything dreadful happened at once. It was like the end of the world.

DRYING UP GREAT BRITAIN WILL BE A HARD, SLOW JOB

"Pussyfoot" Johnson Sadly Admits Headway For Prohibition is Small —War Hours Remain.

(By P. M. Sarl)

LONDON, July 30. — (United Press).—"Damn his eyes, whoever he tries; To rob the poor man of his beer," is still the slogan in England.

Despite the efforts of Lady Astor, and the prominence given to the views of this lively legislator, prohibition is not making much strides in England.

Even "Pussyfoot' Johnson sadly remarked the other day, "I shall never make England dry. England will only go dry of its own free will, and that will not be for a long time."

The planned concerted attack of the drys, mostly sheltering behind Lady Astors gown staged for the present Parliamentary session, fell rather flat. While there has been no return to pre-war saloon hours—saloons are now limited to nine hours daily (five on Sundays)—the general tendency is towards loosening, rather than tightening liquor restrictions. Extra hours are readily granted for special occasions, and before the present Conservative government goes out of power, the wets can be relied upon to pry the lid a bit higher.

That there has been no serious agitation for return to pre-war hours is due largely to the attitude of the brewers and saloon-keepers themselves. Publicans have found that they can make themselves the same profits sometimes more), with less labor, on the shorter hours, and consequently they are not disposed to meet the average drinker's demand for longer opening hours. Twelve hours daily is the utmost they now ask for, and it is doubtful if this will ever be exceeded. Hotel residents, travellers, etc., can obtain drinks at any hour.

The "Man in the Street" is not greatly concerned about American seizures of liquor on British liners. At first sight he was not unnaturally inclined to regard the seizures a a violation of international laws, a national affront, etc., but he did not get excited about it, for the average citizen does not make trans-Atlantic voyages.

He is now disposed to accept the dictum of Ronald McNeill, undersecretary for foreign affairs, "If you dont like American methods, don't go there.' Accordingly, he is quite willing to let the government handle the matter diplomatically, even if still expressing the opinion that the seizures are "damned impudence" occasionally.

Newspaper stories of bootlegging, and the troubles of the prohibition enforcement officials in America, are a source of endless joy to the British er, who is placidly content with the conviction, "It could never happen here."

NEWS OF HAVELOCK AND THE DISTRICT

HAVELOCK, July 30.—Lionel Conacher of Toronto, is spending a few days at Trent River.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Bedford and family have moved to Trent River, where they have rented a cottage for the summer.

Mr. Harrison Curtis of Edmonton is visiting his brother, Mr. om Curtis of town.

Messrs. Chas. Green, M. Rylott and Clarence Hubel attended the ball game in Peterboro on Saturday.

Mr. Ellsworth Campney of the Standard staff of town, left on Saturday for Lindsay where he has secured a position on the staff of the Lindsay Post.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Campney of Trenton, spent Sunday in town.

A Delight

That millions have discovered

Whiter, cleaner, safer teeth

Look about you—note the prettier teeth you see. Note how people smile to show them.

Think what added beauty those pearly teeth have brought.

Millions now clean teeth in a new way. You will use it when you know. This is to offer a ten-day test so you may find it out.

Teeth are coated with a dingy film — that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms cloudy coats. Tartar is based on film. That's why teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. That's why tooth troubles were almost universal.

Germs breed by millions in film. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea, now so alarmingly common.

So dental science sought for film combatants, and eventually found two. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. Those two great film destroyers were embodied in it.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. Now it has come into world-wide use, largely by dental advice.

Other effects

Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Those are vital tooth protectors. Soapy tooth pastes weaken them. That's one reason why they failed. Pepsodent multiplies their power.

Watch the change

The way to know is to make this test. Judge by what you see and feel. It will be a revelation.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Then you will realize how important this is to the people in your home. Cut out coupon now.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

WILL LODGE IN JAIL RECKLESS DRIVERS

CHICAGO, July 30. —(Canadian Press.)— Speeders and intoxicated and reckless drivers hereafter will be lodged in cells until they furnish bail, it was announced yesterday by Chief Justice Olson, of the municipal court.

An order to that effect, characterized as the most drastic step yet taken in the campaign against automobile accidents, became effective after it had been signed by twenty judges of the court. Justice Olson sent the order to Chief of Police Collins for immediate enforcement. Arrest slips for major violations are a thing of the past under the new ruling.

End Corns

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. Stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in clear liquid and in thin plasters. The action is the same.

¶ Certainly it is not much fun being small and helpless in the hot months of the year; and it is less amusing to be responsible for a baby's food, clothing and health with the mercury climbing.

¶ But many merchants and manufacturers have known both these facts for a long time; if you read the advertisements in your newspaper, Baby will benefit greatly.

LITTLE WANT ADS.

At this time of the year, there are any number of things that are badly needed, either by the man or woman.

These things can be done without, but the Summer is going to be not one s happy without them, and they need not cost you nearly as much as you think, if you only use the Want Ads. to get them.

So many will lose a vast amount of pleasure simply because they have never learned the value of a simple little appeal to the Examiner Want Ad. Column. Don't let this bright month of June go by without satisfying a little extra Summer wants through the Want Ads.

FIFTY NEGROES ATTACK WHITES

Invaded a Community Dance Hall With Knives, Razors and Revolvers—Several Casualties.

CHICAGO, July 30. — (Canadian Press). — One negro is dead, two county highway policemen are believed dying, and two other men are seriously wounded as the result of a fight at Worth, Illinois, between 150 negro construction gang workers, citizens and policemen early yesterday morning, according to the Chicago Herald-Examiner.

Fifty of the negroes, who occupied the camp just outside of Worth, at midnight invaded a dance hall in Worth, where a community dance of white persons was in progress. The negroes, armed with knives, razors and revolvers, chose as partners white women, taking wives from the arms of their husbands, says the Herald-Examiner. Resistance on the part of the whites was met with oaths and threats of death, says the newspaper. The screams of the women were heard by officials of the village. When they entered the place the negroes began firing. Additional help was summoned, and when it arrived a general fight started. More than two hundred shots were exchanged and there was a hand-to-hand fight before the negroes were overcome.

Spraying Potatoes for Late Blight

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Late blight and rot is the most destructive disease of potatoes and in some years causes tremendous losses. The potato leaves are the factories in which the starch is manufactured, later to be stored in the tubers produced underground. Should these factories be impaired in any way the yield must necessarily be reduced. In the case of late blight, loss results both from the blighting of the leaves and the consequent failure of the tubers to the consequent failure of the tubers to attain their normal size, and by the rotting of the tubers which follows an attack of the disease. These losses can be greatly reduced, if not entirely prevented, by careful and thorough spraying with Bordeaux mixture. Applications of this spray should be given whether the crop is being grown for "seed" or for table stork.

Careful experiments conducted over many years have demonstrated that the best spraying solution to use is home-made Bordeaux mixture of the 4: 4: 40 strength. The most convenient method of making this mixture is by the use of concentrated stock solutions of copper sulphate (bluestone) and lime, diluting them as required. These solutions are prepared as follows:

(1) Bluestone stock solution: This is prepared by dissolving 40 pounds of copper sulphate in a barrel containing 40 gallons of water. A convenient method is to place the chemical in a sack and suspend it over night in the barrel of water just below the surface. A more rapid method is to crush the bluestone crystals and dissolve it in a smaller quantity of hot water and make up to 40 gallons. Each gallon of the solution will then contain one pound of bluestone. Metal vessels must not be used in handling this chemical.

(2) Lime stock solution: Slake 40 pounds of fresh quick lime in a barrel by gradually adding water. Mix thoroughly and continue to add water until the barrel contains 40 gallons.

In order to keep out dirt and prevent evaporation, the barrels containing th stock solutions should be kept covered. T To make up a tank of spay ready k use, transfer four gallons of the stock solution of bluestone in the spray tanf and add 32 gallons of water. To this solution add 4 gallons of the lime stock solution. This should be poured through a fine mesh strained to remove all solid particles, otherwise clogging of the nozzles will result. The solution in the tank should be kept thoroughly agitated while the lime is being added. the tank now contains 40 gallons of Bordeaux mixture.

If the above directions are carefully followed the resulting solution will usually contain the proper proportions of bluestone and lime, but since the composition of lime often varies it is preferable to test the mixture in order that the foliage may not be injured by an excess of bluestone. A testing solution may be prepared by dissolving one half ounce of potassium ferrocyanide in one half pint of water. This material is a poison. Sprinkle a few drops of this re-agent onto the surface of the spray mixture, and, if on striking the surface of the solution, a distinct brown colour results more lime should be added to each 40 gallons of solution for the control of potato beetles.

Commence spraying about the middle of July and repeat every two week throughout the season. When the [illegible] will be sufficient. This amount should be increased as the plants grow larger. The sprayer should be equipped with three nozzles to each row,—two side nozzles pointing slightly upward and one pointing downward—so that both upper and lower surfaces of the leaves will be thoroughly protected. The spray should be applied under a pressure of 125 to 200 pounds. At least four applications are necessary during the season, but five or even six will usually be found preferable. Particular attention should be given to the later applications. If these are neglected or are carelessly applied a late attack of late blight may cause more damage than if no spraying had been done. In the later sprays the proportion of copper sulphate should be increased using the formula 6: 4: 40. That is add six gallons of the stock solution of bluestone instead of four, and 30 gallons early blight and tip-burn, and will act as a repellant for the potato flea beetle.

Many Operations In Manufacture of Your Velour Hat.

The manufacture of velour and felt hats is far more interesting and compicated than the average pers on realizes.

The material of which they are made consists of the fur of hares and rabbits specially treated for the purpose. A factory engaged solely in this work exists in East Anglia.

To this factory come pelts from New Zealand, Australia and Asia Minor, Smyrna being one of the chief trading centres. They arrive in millions, and are packed in bales containing tens of thousands. Our own country also contributes its quota, says a writer in the London Chronicle.

In the receiving room all these skins are separately examined and graded by expert hands. When this has been done the pelts are damped and sent to the first operators, who deftly stretch each skin to its full extent by means of a hand implement.

The ears, feet and tail are removed, when the skins are put through a whirling, brushing machine that removes the surface of the fur, and raises the portion still adhering, so that it presents a smooth, velvety appearance.

It is this state of the pelt that is the foundation for the "seal coney" so much in vogue.

The Acid Test

The skins now undergo the acid test, which consists of putting them into a revolving machine, during which strong acid continually drips upon them.

The next process is the drying. A special apparatus, through which each pelt takes a quarter of an hour to pass, performs this work in the time just stated. Before the machine now in use was designed, twenty-four hours were necessary for extracting the moisture. Revolving brushes are then applied: these give the fur a very rich appearance, and cause it to stand well up from the skin.

The skins then undergo the final operation of passing through a machine fitted with knives that revolve at incredible speed. These take off every vestige of fur, and by the same process the skin is shredded so that it presents the appearance of hay, and falls into a receptacle beneath.

The fine, downy fur is now packed in thick paper bags, and sold to the hat-makers. It is also exported to New York, Rio Janeiro, Palermo, and other centres engaged in the industry.

In the course of a year one factory alone handles tens of millions of skins, many of which have travelled 20,000 miles before they reach the hat-maker.

They call the baby pictured here "Miss Lucky Leedon" for want of a name until she receives one. She weighed 13 pounds when born on Friday, July 13, of this year. And more over she is the thirteenth child of B. F. Leedon, Goodyear industrial assemblyman, Akron, O., Mrs. Thomas Morrison, eldest child of the Leedon family, is holding her.

FARMER TURNS TO BUSINESS METHODS TO ESCAPE THE BIG WHEAT CRASH

Why is the price of wheat slumping? And what is the farmer going to do about it?

These two articles tell you. One is from Kansas Wheat Belt, the greatest fall and winter wheat producer; the other from the greatest wheat trading city in the world.

They treat of different angles of the same subject in a clear, concise manner.

The gist of it all seems to be that the farmer at last is showing that he has become a business man. He realizes he must not only supply the demand but actually must create the demand, if necessary to keep apace with his supply.

When he produces less than the world is able to consume, there is a shortage.

When he produces more than can be absorbed—the situation that now exists—he suffers through overproduction. That lesson he has learned.

Every person in the civilized world is interested in the wheat market. That's why these two articles are so vital.

PRODUCTION COSTS ARE HIGHER

(By J. P. Wright)

Kansas City, Mo., July 30.—As their reward for a season's work, the farmers of the United States will have to pocket a loss of $472,000,000 on this year's wheat crop as result of the recent slump in wheat prices.

That is the estimate of J. C. Mohler, secretary of the Kansas State Board of Agriculture.

The slump, caused by mainly overproduction throughout the world, will sweep away the earnings of millions of farmers, Mohler estimates, and leave them poorer than they were a year ago.

It means a check in the prosperity wave that has swept the country during the recent months, he believes, but will not bring on a panic.

The loss estimate is based on a production cost of $1.36 a bushel, the estimate of what it costs a farmer to raise a bushel of wheat in Kansas this year. The farmer will get only an average of 77 cents a bushel for his product.

Must Offset Losses

"It means 40,000,000 people of the middle west and west will have to cut down expenditures during the coming year," Mohler says. "It means there must be a change in the mode of living of farmers and those who depend upon the prosperity of the farmers for a living.

"Of course, farmers will make a profit in other lines, possibly from their livestock and corn," the agricultural expert continues. "But one can see that it will take a great deal of profit in those lines to offset the losses of wheat growers.

"Kansas farmers will be $55,000,000 worse off for their year of work and investment in growing wheat.

"I am not a calamity howler and want to make the reservation that Kansas farmers have seen hard times before, and will pull through some way. They will still ride in motor cars, but many of them will be old ones, I fear."

The situation is such that farmers simply will have to give up raising wheat in such large quantities," Mohler says. "It is idle to expect legislation of any other factor to increase wheat prices while the world markets are being flooded.

Declining Market

"The farmers of this continent obeyed the economic law and produced more wheat when more wheat was needed. They are just as certain to obey the economic law and produce less wheat when less wheat is needed.

"It is comparatively easy to extend a business on a rising market. It is difficult to readjust a business on a profitable basis with a falling market, but that appears to be the big job confronting the wheat farmers of the United States.

"A reduction of wheat acreage and more diversified farming in the wheat producing states constitutes the only certain remedy.

"I believe it has been clearly shown that legislation cannot be depended upon to make wheat a profitable crop when there is an over-production.

"Our own agricultural college has recommended that farmers feed wheat to hogs, saying they can get as much as a dollar a bushel in that way for their wheat if present prices of hogs continue. The experts have made a close study of how much wheat it takes to put a pound of weight on a hog and I am willing to take their figures.

"Much depends upon the grade of wheat and how it is mixed with othe feeds. It might be very profitable to feed a low grade wheat to hogs."

Strike Improbable

Asked regarding the suggestion of Governor Jonathan M. Davis, "dirt farmer" executive of Kansas, that wheat sellers go on a strike, Mohler says:

"I believe such a movement would have to take in virtually all of the wheat producing states to be successful. It would be hard to arrange with banks to liquidate loans."

Mohler's belief is that the big world market, which the United States has had the last few years, is being narrowed down rapidly by European countries returning to production of wheat—something they dropped during and immediately after the war.

"Russia and the Balkan states once more are in the field," he said. "India already has harvested a record crop with an exportable surplus of at least 60,000,000 bushels this year and the exports of that country may go as high as 100,000,000 bushels. It must be remembered that India exported only 9,000,000 bushels last year and year before last imported wheat.

"As to the increase in production in the United States: During the war period and since then the wheat acreage has increased about one-third and during the same period the wheat acreage in Canada has almost doubled.

"In Kansas we used to plant twice as much corn as wheat. Now we plant twice as much wheat as corn.

"We simply must get back to the old ratio. In the meantime we have to learn our lesson and stay in debt another year or two."

CONSUMER TO BE "SOLD"

Chicago, July 30.—"Wheat will win the war" is a good slogan, provided one understands its post-war meaning.

Today that phrase advises all Americans not to Hooverize, but to eat more wheat.

In that sense, according to the newly organized Wheat Council of the United States, wheat will win the consumer's war for health and yield the farmer a victory over hard times.

Increased wheat consumption will be made a community matter as well as one for the individual. Not only will each citizen be urged to eat the equivalent of an extra slice of bread at each meal, but every means will be used to din into the ears of the nation the healthfulness, economy and patriotism of eating wheat.

Eating Less

"Wheat makes the bread of the world's sturdiest, keenest races," declares Congressman Sydney Anderson of Minnesota, president of the wheat council, which has its headquarters here.

"Yet America since the war has cut its consumption of wheat. Figures published this summer by the American Farm Bureau Federation show per capita consumption, which was 3.8 bushels in 1840, 4.9 bushels in 1880 and 5.6 bushels in 1910, dropped to an average of 4.8 bushels for the four years since 1919.

"Thus, where the average household in 1910 ate 5 6-10 loaves, it now consumes 4 1-2 loaves.

"Even normal high consumption of wheat in the United States is only a little more than half that in Canada and is less than most of the progressive nations of Europe."

Wheatless days during the war are blamed for starting the slump. That campaign reduced consumption by an estimated 200,000,000 bushels in a year.

"An over-rich diet necessarily means less of wholesome food such as wheat bread," interposes Charlotte E. Chatfield of the Department of Home Economics in the Wheat Council. "But we shall find that the simpler foods cannot be neglected."

Farmer Bears Brunt

"All these causes, surviving the war, have brought it about that the wheat farmer is the only business man in America for whom the war is not over," says Congressman Anderson.

"Most people have forgotten the war. Hatreds are dying out and political prisoners are being pardoned. But the wheat farmer who patriotically raised more and more food for the soldiers is still carrying a war burden by continuing to raise too much.

"Thirteen million acres more of wheat are grown now than in 1909-13.

"While working to increase consumption of wheat we are, of course, attacking the problem from other angles. We aim to promote more efficient marketing methods. We are preaching that reduction of acreage to limit production is essential. If this year's crop had been reduced instead of increased, the price would not have dropped below a dollar a bushel in the Chicago Board of Trade."

GET 13 CENTS LESS

Kansas City, Mo., July 28.—Farmers are getting 13 cents a bushel less for wheat this year than last. Production costs this year are higher than last.

Kansas agricultural experts estimate it costs a farmer $1.36 to produce a bushel of wheat. They are getting an average of 77 cents a bushel for this year's crop.

The resulting loss to Kansas farmers is estimated at $55,000,000 and to those of the United States $472,000,000.

That means reduced or wiped out incomes of 40,000,000 residents of the United States this year.

In 1919 farmers of Kansas got $289,886,000 for their wheat crop. This year they will get approximately $72,400,000.

QUIZ CORNER

SASKATCHEWAN.

Q—What are some of the outstanding features of Saskatchewan?

A—Saskatchewan is the very center of Canada's prairie land, covering an area larger than France. Regina is the capital city. The atmosphere of Saskatchewan is clear and bracing. There is an abundance of sunshine and usually a sufficiency of moisture. The fertility of the soil is almsot inexhaustible and holds in store great wealth for those who till it for the production of wheat and other grains, or use it for the pasturage of their live-stock. Only a small part of the vast agricultural lands of the province has been brought under cultivation. It is estimated that there are over 72,000,000 acres suitable for agriculture without clearing forest land, etc. The cattle industry has reached an important place in the life of the farming community. Saskatchewan has now over 6,000 miles of railway. Few of the established settlements are more than ten to twenty miles from transportation

FISH EGGS.

Q.—It is said that Canada does a big business in fish eggs. What is meant by it?

A.— Fish eggs to the number of more than 1,122,000,000 were collected by the Hatcheries branch of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, during 1921 according to a report made by the Deputy Minister fo Fisheries. In addition to the eggs collected by the department, 600,000 rainbow trout eggs and 980,000 speckled trout eggs were purchased from commercial farms; 507,000 rainbow trout eggs, 200,000 cut-throat trout eggs, 800,000 speckled trout eggs and 85 brown trout eggs were received from federal and state departments of the United States in exchange for Atlantic salmon eggs.

BATTLE OF LUNDYSLANE.

Q.—When was the battle of Lundy's Lane fought?

A.—On July 25, 1814, the Battle of Lundy's Lane was fought. The wheat was growing in the tiny clearings on the Canadian shores of Lake Ontario, and the Americans were invading to destroy it, and by famine force Upper Canada to surrender to the. It holds the world's record of being the battle in which the largest percentage of the men engaged were either killed or wounded.

U. S. RECEIVES BENEFIT WITHOUT SIGNING PACT

LAUSANNE, July 30.—(Canadian Press).—The U. S. and Turkish experts reached an agreement on Saturday night whereby the United States receive, "the most favored nation treatment concerning the freedom of the Straits for merchantmen and warships." The United States, while not signing the straits convention will receive all privileges, according to the report.

NICKLE LOAF LIKE JESS WILLARD

HARD TO DO A COME-BACK

NEW YORK, July 30.—Wheat prices have tumbled from their high places to pre-war levels. But it doesn't mean anything yet to the consumer.

American consumers of bread need not look for a reduction in the price of bread for some time, if at all, according to a nationwide survey.

Upward trend of wheat prices sent bread skyrocketing in 1916. But bakers insist now that the price of flour is but a small part of bread cost, and scoff at hopes of Old Nickel Loaf doing a comeback.

The most optimistic reports come, strangely enough, from opposite ends of the country. New York and Los Angeles buyers may in 30 or 45 days, have a cent clipped from the price of a loaf. They might be able to do it, but that's as far as grocers, millers and wholesalers will venture in the business of prognostication.

In other large cities of the nation, the prospect of a cut seems dim. Flour to the wholesaler has slumped, but the latter has at least a month's supply on hand that they bought at the high figure. Moreover, they complain that the cut in price of a barrel of flour would have to be very sharp before it would make a dent in the retail price of a loaf of bread, because labor is the biggest item of cost to contend with, and not flour.

Farmer Suffers

Other telegraphed news from New Orleans, Denver, St. Paul, Cleveland, Seattle and San Francisco reveals about the same conditions, except that the price of a loaf won't be cut for a long time, if ever, is more positive.

The fact that the farmer is getting only about 90 cents for a bushel of wheat—said to be actually below his cost of producing it—seems to make no difference in the price of bread.

In San Francisco, lower wheat prices caused a drop of 60 cents to $2 a barrel, depending on the grade. The demand is off, as bakers are waiting developments in an agitated market. No immediate bread reduction is in sight.

The same condition holds for Seattle, where flour dropped 40 cents a barrel—but bread prices remained stationary. S. B. Asia, large wholesaler, says sugar, labor and delivery constitute the greatest expense in making bread.

"A temporary drop in flour cannot be reflected so quickly," he says. "We need a $5 barrel of flour to do that. It now is $7.40."

Flour men of Minneapolis and St. Paul, big grain centers, expect the price of wheat to rise soon. Consequently, instead of further reductions, they expect increases in flour and consequently no changes in price of bread.

Dealers at Denver say that the drop in price of a barrel is negligible when split among 200 loaves. There isn't a chance of a reduction, they report.

"Little Fellows"

Bakers in New Orleans complain that millers, despite the drop in price of wheat, have quoted them no lower figures on flour. They believe this is the time for the "little fellows" to get together and cut in on their wholesale opposition.

The grocery trade is of the opinion that housewives will get busy with their ovens again if millers allow the price of flour to drop along with that of wheat. As to the dining-out public—bah—they will continue to pay as usual.

Cleveland prices of bread will not change, according to present outlook. Flour is slightly cheaper, due to the wheat drop, but as in other cities, bakers say this slight cut can't possibly mean lower price for the loaf.

* * *

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Despite the decline in the cost of wheat, no proportionate reduction, government figures show, has been made in flour or bread.

The index figure, or cost, of bread as compared with the average pre-war cost in 1913, is exactly the same today as it was on Jan. 1, 1922—155. Except for three months in 1922, the index for bread has remained fixed at 155, and no change whatever has been recorded in the general average of prices since December, 1922.

In a few cities, there has been price-cutting, but these are the exception, not the rule. One chain store firm in Washington sells a one-pound loaf of bread at 5 cents. But the prevailing price is 8.

Reduced prices to farmers for things they produce have not been reflected in the selling prices in eastern consuming centers, one member of the Senate farm-bloc explains.

Therein lies the explanation, he says, of the east's inability to understand the political and economic revolt that is brewing throughout the agricultural belt.

"The east thinks that with factories running full time and prices high everything is all right," this member said. "It doesn't understand that despite the high prices it is still paying for foodstuffs, the price to the grower has been cut to below the cost of production, while the farmer is still having to pay top notch prices for every manufactured article he must buy. The situation is one that simply cannot continue.

"There has got to be regulation of marketing, proper financing and storage of crops to regulate and stabilize prices at a level where the farmer can live. Today, too often—as in this year's wheat crop—he is producing at a loss, while the increase in value piled on between grower and consumer amounts to more than the producer got for all his labor and expense."

* * *

NEW YORK, July 30.—Lower wheat prices don't mean a thing to New York consumers yet. But in 30 days chain stores expect to cut a cent a loaf off the retail price, a representative of one of the chain stores said.

Those restaurants which have not as yet eliminated the extra charge for bread plan doing so soon, it was said by restaurateurs.

* * *

LOS ANGELES, July 30.—It will be 30 or 45 days before Los Angeles and the southwest may feel the reaction in restaurants and households from the new drop in the price of wheat. The supply of old wheat bought at old figures is expected to last that long.

Meantime reduction of bread prices from 10 and 12 cents to possibly eight cents, and the removal of extra charges for bread in restaurants still maintaining that practice, is a good prospect, although wholesalers hesitate about making predictions.

* * *

CHICAGO, July 30.—Flour is selling at only 25 cents cheaper now than before the drop in wheat below the price of $1 a bushel. And bread is selling at exactly the same price as before.

Flour brokers, bakers and the ultimate consumers apparently haven't heard about the cut which is putting gray hairs on the farmer.

HOW TO SAVE COAL

In these days of costly coal, the problem of economizing in its use is of interest to every class of the community, and particularly to those who employ steam boilers for power or manufacturing processes. Recognizing that the first step towards saving coal is the perfection of some reliable means of measuring the rate at which it is consumed, a British firm has developed a simple but effective "coal meter." This device is designed for use on boilers with machine stokers, in which the rate of admission of coal to the furnace is regulated by the position of a shutter or door. All that is required to measure accurately the rate at which coal is supplied, is a pointer connected to the admission door of the stoker and moving over a scale which is calibrated according to the speed of the grate. This combination has the advantage of showing continuously the rate of coal consumption at the moment, and it is thus an invaluable guide to the stoker. Though the coal is actually measured by volume, it is found that the instrument can be calibrated in terms of weight, and that its readings agree with the known total weight of coal consumed during a period. The meter is equally reliable for all the classes of coal used in practice and experience in a number of British boiler installations shows that the use of this meter leads to very important reduction in costs.

REPUBLIC IN GREECE

LONDON, July 30. — (Canadian Press).—Reports have reached the British Government, of an attempt to set up a Republic in Greece, in place of the Monarchy, Ronald MacNeill, under-secretary for Foreign Affairs, told House of Commons this afternoon.

Hundreds of Elderly Men and Women Praise Tanlac For Its Great Benefits

Many People Join in Words of Gratitude That Pour Into Tanlac Offices From All Over The Continent—Tell of Remarkable Experiences.

One of the features that has stood out most prominently in connection with the introduction and sale of Tanlac everywhere has been the very large number of men and women of advanced age who have testified to the splendid results they have derived from its use.

Among the many elderly people who have recently realized the powers of the medicine and voluntarily express their great gratitude to Tanlac is Thomas Palmer, Sr., well known retired farmer of Hansel, Ontario. Mr. Palmer says:

CAN GET AROUND LIKE A YOUNG MAN

"You don't often see a man as spry as I am at seventy-two and judging by the way Tanlac fixed me up I am sure it is fine for anybody.

"Before I took Tanlac I could hardly walk and had not been down town without my walking stick since last September. Sometimes every joint in my body ached. I was terribly run down, had suffered from constipation for ten years, my kidneys bothered me a great deal, I had no appetite and seldom got a good night's sleep.

"I took different medicines for two years without any relief to speak of but Tanlac and the Tanlac Vegetable Pills have put me back in fine shape and I stand ready to praise it to the limit."

GAINED FIVE POUNDS ON EVERY BOTTLE OF TANLAC

Mrs. Fannie Judson, widely known and highly esteemed resident of 228 Albert St., Windsor, Ont., recently said:

"There is nothing better I can say for Tanlac than that I am still enjoying the splendid health it brought me four years ago. At that time I had been suffering from a complication of troubles for five years and was right on the verge of a complete breakdown I had fallen off to a mere skeleton of my former self and was too weak and nervous even to hold a writing pen. I could sleep little and suffered from indigestion.

"I used five bottles of Tanlac and gained five pounds for every bottle and am now enjoying as fine health as most any school girl."

PROMINENT BUSINESS MAN PRAISES TANLAC

"I was one of the first to buy Tanlac when it was introduced in Montreal, and ever since then I have been one of its firmest friends," states Mr. S. Chaille, 94 de Granpre St., Montreal, Que., for twenty years a prominent real estate man. "The medicine put me back in the finest health. It is certainly a dependable preparation."

THREE IN THIS HOME RESTORED

"I can not speak too highly of Tanlac," says James Desjarlias, well known contractor, 235 Boyer St., Montreal. "The medicine not only rid me of indigestion, nervousness and loss of weight and built me up thirteen pounds, but put my wife in fine condition and restored my father and built him up seventeen pounds. Tanlac is simply grand."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Take no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. Sold everywhere.

HAS NOT SEEN ITS EQUAL IN SIXTY YEARS

"I thought all medicines were about alike until I took Tanlac, and I want to say I have not seen its equal in all my sixty years,' says Wm. Sadd, 28 Mulberry St., Hamilton, Ont. "For six years I had asthma and hay fever so bad every spring I could hardly breathe. What I ate nauseated me, I was so nervous I had to walk the floor at night and had such a pain across my back I could hardly stoop over to lace my shoes.

"Tanlac fixed me up so fine I feel as active as I did thirty years ago."

BALDWIN WILL ASK RETURN OF FOUR MEMBERS

Labor Members Were Suspended Recently and Havo Refused to Apologize to the Speaker.

RUHR STATEMENT.

LONDON, July 30.—(Canadian Press).—Premier Baldwin intends before the adjournment of Parliament to submit a motion which would have the effect of cancelling the suspension of the four members of the Labor party who were suspended from the House of Commons a month ago and who since have declined to apologize to the Speaker. The Premier would permit them to return to their seats in the House after an interval without apologizing.

This would enable the members to resume their seats when Parliament re-assembles in November.

The idea prevails that Mr. Baldwin may make a statement with regard to the Ruhr situation before the House rises, but this still depends upon the receipt of the French and Belgian notes, the date of which is still uncertain. Little hope is entertained that the replies of France and Belgium will greatly advance the negotiations, in which case the Premier's statement can be only of a negative character. It is believed the Government still will depreciate any discussion of the question of reparations on the floor of the House of Commons.

TRAGIC END OF A DUMMER MAN

Edward J. Merriott, Resident Near Warsaw, Fell Into Canal at Healy Falls and Drowned.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 30.—Edward John Merriott, whose home was in the vicinity of Warsaw, where he was well known, met with a tragic end Sunday at Healy Falls, when he fell into the canal and was drowned. The body was recovered after a long search by residents of the district.

The deceased was one of a picnic party that came from Warsaw yesterday forenoon to the power plant at Healy Falls, always a point of interest with strangers. He was walking on the cement wall that borders the canal at the gate house a short distance above the plant, when he lost his footing and stumbled into the water, which is about 20 feet deep at that point.

The unfortunate man, who was unable to swim, never rose to the surface. This is accounted for by the fact that the wheels in the power house were running at the time and this causes a strong under current in the canal, which held down the drowning man.

The staff of the power plant lent every assistance in the recovery of the body. The wheels were stopped as soon as the accident became known and dragging for the body was started at once. Those who took part were Walter Waldorf, chief operator, Walter Badgley, Charles Keller and Claude Emsley.

It was ten minutes to twelve when Merriott fell into the water. At ten minutes to four o'clock in the afternoon, the grappling iron which was operated by Mr. Badgley, brought the body to the surface, about 40 feet from the place where Merriott had fallen in.

Dr. W. F. Loucks, coroner at Campbellford, was notified and motored out to the scene of the tragedy but after investigating the circumstances he decided that an inquest was not necessary and a burial permit was issued. Undertaker McDonald of Norwood, was called up and took charge of the remains.

The victim of the tragedy was about 29 years old and unmarried. So far as known he has no relatives in Canada, all the members of his family being residents of the old country. For the past 11 years he had worked in the vicinity of Warsaw and for four years had been in the employ of Gordon Payne. All of his acquaintances who were with him Sunday spoke of him as a steady and reliable workman, who was well thought of by all who knew him.

The wall from which Merriott fell to his death is about two feet in width. The deceased had lost the sight of one of his eyes, the one that was next to the water, and this is taken as an explanation of how he came to take a false step.

Members of the power house staff are highly commended by the public for the assistance which they rendered, both in closing down the plant for a time and in working without rest for four hours dragging for the body.

SAYS HE DID NOT SEE ONE DRUNK IN RUSSIA

LONDON, July 30. — (United Press).—The form of prohibition in force in Rsusia might offer America their solution of this problem,' former secretary of the Interior Fall, declared here to-day, upon his arrival from Moscow.

'Russian Regulations,' he explained "Forbid the manufacture and sale of liquor containing more than 20 per cent alcohol and the Government manufactures the Vodka, which is 20 per cent. "I didn't see a single drunk in Russia."

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Public School Renovated for Another Year—Ball Game Tonight—Funeral John Durran.

CMPBELLFORD, July 30. —The property committee of the Board of Education, the members of which are J. C. Birmingham, chairman, Major J. M. Bygott and J. L. Hoover, have completed the renovation of the Public school building and when the teachers and pupils gather after the summer vacation they will find everything as spick and span as when the doors first opened. The decorating was done by J. Pryor, whose work is highly commended by all those who have inspected the school since the completion of the contract. The painting is unform throughout all the rooms, the walls being a light buff color, the ceilings cream and the woodwork a light grey. Formerly the walls were painted a dark green and the lighter tint makes a vast improvement in the appearance of the rooms. The members of the Board of Education have been invited to inspect the building and the invitation has been accepted.

Cartaker Massie, who has three school buildings to look after, has been putting in extra time getting the various departments in shape for the coming term. No extra expense has been incurred in the High school or in the building used for the primary classes as the latter will not be used after the new High school is completed. The primary classes will be moved into the old High school, which will be remodelled for the purpose. It is hoped that the new High school will be completed by the beginning of the New Year.

In some of the rooms in the Public school the old-fashioned type of desk—for two pupils—is still in use. In one room there is seating capacity for 98 children, more than any one teacher could take care of.. The desks are so close together that it is a difficult matter for the caretaker to do his work. He suggests that each seat and desk be cut in two so as to accommodate one pupil. This would be sufficient for the class and would increase the available space by 100 per cent.

The old style desks are still in Miss Hazel Atkinson's room. These desks were taken from the old school building that was abandoned years ago, and are scarred and defaced by the knives of ambitious boys who were anxious to have thier initials preserved in the hall of learning. There are staid business and professial men in Campbellford to-day, the first letter of whose names are carved wide and deep and more or less artistically upon the desks at which they imbibed the first rudiments of education.

The Board will, at a future meeting, consider the question of replacing these relics of a bygone scholastic age.

John Durran Funeral

The esteem in which the late John Durran was held was evidenced Saturday by the large turnout of friends and neighbours to his funeral. There were over 100 autos in the procession. The remains were interred in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. Rev. C. F. McIntosh, conducting religious services at the home and at the grave. J. H. Douglas, ex-M. S. A., formerly of the Workworth district a cousin of the deceased, came from his home in Toronto to attend the funeral. The pall-bearers all friends and neighbours of the late Mr. Durran, were Alfred Merril, John Petty, Peter Scott, Myles Lynch, James Wilson and John Issaac.

Ball Game This Evening.

The Brighton team will play the Campbellford nine at Fair Ground here this evening, the game to be called at 5 o'clock. This is sure to be a contest worth seeing as both teams are anxious to improve their standing in the League. Charlie Holmes, all-round player for Campbellford, will not be able to take part as he had one of his feet injured Saturady while at work on the new power house and is home as a result.

BACK BROKEN IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Fatality on the Hamilton-Niagara Highway in Which Three Others Are Also Injured.

HAMILTON, July 30. —(Canadian Press.)—His back broken in an auto accident yesterday afternoon at stop 111 on the Hamilton-Niagara highway, James Moore, Guelph, died in the General Hospital yesterday. Robert Evans, James and Mrs. Ducksberry and their young son James are also in hospital suffering from bruises and shock. Robert Evans had a badly lacerated head and face, his right arm is injured and he is suffering from shock.

The aprty was motoring from Guelph and reached Winona shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday morning. James Moore, who was driving, turned from behind a large National truck in order to pass it, but another car coming in the opposite direction blocked him. In an attempt to get back on the right side of the road he swerved his machine back again, but the front end of the truck was struck. The machine toppled over and rolled into a ditch and landed on the radial tracks, pinning all its occupants beneath it.

The injured were rushed to the General Hospital by passing motorists.

COAL LOST TO PETERBOROUGH

Steamer Load Consigned to Robert Hicks Sunk in Lake Ontario During a Gale.

Peterborough suffered a serious loss Saturday. when the steamer Carter was sunk in Lake Ontario, carrying with it a cargo of coal destined for this city.. The steamer, with a full cargo of coal consigned to Robert Hicks of this city, ran into a heavy gale about twenty miles out of Oswego and developed a serious leak. At 10:30 Captain Quinn and his crew were forced to abandon the ship. At 2:15 in the morning they were picked up by the steamer Typort, bound for Montreal and taken to Cape Vincent, where they got a boat to Kingston and returned to Cobourg yesterday.

The personnel of the Carter consisted of Captain Quinn, eight men and a woman cook, all of whom came through the ordeal safely and all of whom were loud in their praise of the treatment they were given by the officers and crew of the Typort. Four of the crew hail from Kingston. The cook was from Toronto and the remainder from Cobourg.

Four Hundred Tons.

A despatch from Kingston this morning says:

Laden with a cargo of 400 tons of hard coal from Oswego, the steamer W. J. Carter, springing a leak in the storm-tossed waters of the lake, sank practically without warning in 150 fathoms of water about 30 miles off Long Point at 10.30 on Saturday night.

The leak was first noticed by a fireman, and the pumps were immediately manned, but without avail, the vessel beginning to fill with water with great rapadity.

Captain James Quinn, of Toronto, thereupon gave orders for two lifeboats to be made ready and for the crew to prepare to leave the ship.

One of the lifeboats got befouled in the davits, and it was found impossible to launch it, but a second boat was successfully floated.

By this time the water had made such ingress into the steamer that the crew had to take to the lifeboat at once, no time being available for securing provisions or warm clothing.

Woman Aboard.

The crew of nine, including the cook, Mrs. Catherine Redman, all boarded the lifeboat without mishap, and the waterlogged steamer soon afterwards went to the bottom.

The lifeboat drifted about helplessly in the open lake all Saturday night, and although the lights of three vessels were sighted during this time, the occupants of the boat had no means of attracting their attention, and it was not until the early hours of Sunday morning that the little craft was sighted by Captain McKee, of the steamer Keyport, and their rescue effected.

Captain McKee took the shipwrecked crew to Cape Vincent, and they were brought to Kingston yesterday afternoon.

Personnel of Crew.

The crew of the ill-fated W. J. Carter consisted of: Captain James Quinn, 132 Seaton Street, Toronto; Chief Engineer Thomas Ralph, formerly of Toronto, now of Fort Erie; Second Engineer Robert Robertson, Mate Henry Mathews, Cobourg; Wheelsman Walter Smith, Napanee; Wheelsmen Walter Smith, Napanee, and William Steadman, Aurora; Firemen James MacIver, Kingston, and Bernard McLaughlin; Cook Mrs. Catherine Redman, Toronto.

PROBABILITIES.

To-morrow, mostly fair, with a few local showers.

WHITBY AFFAIRS SUBJECT MEETING

No Civic Officials on Duty —Accusations of Irregularities Freely Hinted — Feuds Going On.

WHITBY, July 30.—Municipal affairs are in a state of chaos, Whitby is now without civic officilas. At a public meeting held in the Town Hall fully a thousand citizens, out of a population of four thousand listened for over three hours and a half to a debate, some demanding the resignation of Mayor R. N. Bassett and the Council while others were strongly in favour of the dismissal of Town Clerk A. W. Jackson This is the result of alleged "pork barrel" irregularities which have been going on in the civic body for years. It was the most heated meeting ever held in this county town, and during the evening excitement was at fever pitch. Among the large crowd which assembled in the hall were several of Whitby's leading citizens and fully 200 women. Catcalls and hissing were much in evidence during the debate.

Excitement General.

Early in the evening, small groups of men gathered on various street corners arguing and discussing alleged irregularities of the civic body. By eight o'clock, the hour set for the meeting, the hall was comfortably filled and at eight fifteen, when David Bullock, President of the North Ward Ratepayers' Association, took the platform to act as chairman, the hall was filled to capacity; but 3 members of the council were present at the meeting.

Mr. Bullock stated that invitations had been sent to Mayor Bassett and the council to be present to find out if the accusations were true or not.

Councillor Thomas Conlin was the first to speak on irregularities after an invitation had been extended to anyone to some to the platform who might wish to. Mr. Conlin stated it was about time that the citizens of Whiby woke up to the fact that civic matters were of vital interest to them. "That is the reason why you are here tonight," continued Mr. Conlin. "After the public meeting held in the South Ward on Monday night, Mayor Bassett and Town Clerk Jackson shook hands after the Town Clerk had publicly said that along together in municipal affairs. along togeher in municipal afairs. They agreed to bury the hatchet and I heard the Mayor say that he could not recall one instance when they had not worked together in peace and harmony. What happened ? Five minutes afterwards Mayor Bassett got a few of his backers together and said "We have got to get rid of Jackson."

Regretable Affair.

"It is a very regretable affair in the history of Whitby and a terible black eye and will be a shock to other places when they hear of this matter. However, it is necessary now to clean out this bunch of grafters. At the present time a great injustice is being done the town clerk. He is swamped with work. There is enough work for two men there, but it 's all shoved on the shoulders of the clerk.

Town Clerk Jackson spoke next, "For the past few months I have been the victim of a most bitter attack by R. N. Bassett, E. R. Blow, J. M. Kenny, R. H. Vickery, J. E. Willis and W. E. Vanstone," stated Mr. Jackson, "And they don't know what they are talking about. J. E. Willis is saying things behind my back that are absolute untrue. So is Vanstone. T. G. Colwell is another. These men have obtained a certain following. From these ... t R. N. Bassett got votes by saying that he would oust Jackson. Whether he has or not remains to be seen.'

Saved Town Money.

Mr. Jackson pointed out how he through his own efforts had saved the town much money which otherwise would have been lost.

N. W. Conlin declared that charges against Mayor Bassett and the Council were unt ..c, and ex-Mayor F. N. Burns said the Mayor and Council wanted to get rid of Jackson.

Eventually the meeting broke up in disorder.

SAY INTIMIDATION WHEN BUYING GRAIN

MOOSE JAW, July 30 (Canadian Press). — Commenting on the charges made against several elevator companies here on Saturday, Chairman W. F. A. Turgeon, of the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission, said it was evident the companies made a practice of pursuing the system of making buyers believe they had larger shortages than was the case, and that the companies wished to intimidate their buyers to steal from the farmers to get overages.

"If such intimidation exists, and if the buyers' shortages are being exaggerated falsely, it is certainly high time that the practice was stopped," he said.

Singapore is to have $50,000,000 spent on it by the British government to make it an impregnable naval base.

But it was only 100 years ago that the site of this city, now important enough to the British Empire to be thus fortified, was nothing but an apparently impassable jungle swamp. It is today one of the greatest trading centers of the East, with a population of 400,000.

It is one of the most cosmopolitan cities in the world. You can have your choice there—jinrickishaw or automobile, electric street cars or ancient horse drawn carriages.

A man with prophetic vision founded the city. He was Sir Stamford Raffles. He looked ahead to the time when the island city would be, as he said:

"A great commercial emporiund and a fulcrum whence we may extem. our influence, politically, as circumstances may hereafter require."

TO REPLY TO BRITAIN'S NOTE THIS AFTERNOON

LONDON, July 30 (Canadian Press).—The light of publicity seems likely soon to be thrown on the present reparations negotiations, through an airing of the subject in the House of Commons, which is to adjourn on Thursday until November.

The French and Belgian Ambassadors were to deliver to Lord Curzon this afternoon the replies of their Governments to Great Britain's recent reparations note.

Dr. Sthamer, German Ambassador, had an appointment to see the British Foreign Secretary afterward.

There will be a full meeting of the British Cabinet this morning to consdier the note, and it is expected that to-morrow night the House of Commons will engage in a debate regarding the Ruhr, which will end the secrecy of the recent Allied negotiations.

It is anticipated that Prime Minister Baldwin will outline the British policy in the course of the debate.

SAYS HE'LL MAKE THE POOR WEALTHY

Illegitimate Son of Karl Rudolph of Austria Aspires to Throne.

BERLIN, July 30.—United Press. Karl Rudolph announced Sunday, he is the illegitimate son of the late Crown Prince of Austria, and he will appear in public on January 30th, 1924, with notarized documents showing his royal birth and assert his right to the job of being King of all German speaking peoples.

Despite the fact that both Austria and Germany are repu...lics and that Hapsburgs, legitimate or otherwise, are rated low in Europe these days, young Rudolph seems much in earnest about getting a job ki...ging it over half of Europe. Looking at it detachedly he believes that in being King he would fill a long-felt want. He has gone about the job scientifically, organizing a "bund" to support his claims. Far from keeping secret the unfortunate aspects of his birth he states that his illegitimacy gives him claims no othe could possess.

The sixty page ...ocure promises he will make the poor wealthy, impoverish the rich and bring order to a disturbed world.

Petes Walloped Kingston--Vets. and Woollens Tie--Girls' Game

PETES OUSTED PONIES IN BRILLIANT BATTLE SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Visitors Put Up Great Scrap But Were Outplayed in Every Department of the Game.

SCORE WAS 4 TO 2.

The Petes eliminated Kingston from the race for the honors of the second half and increased their own chances to cop the bacon by turning back the Ponies 4 to 2 in a brilliant battle at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon. The game was an epic scrap from start to finish with the local boys outplaying the visitors in every department of the game. The Kingston crew went under but they did so fighting to the last ditch and it could not be said that the game was won till the last ball was pitched and Helson had scooped in a line drive to retire the last of the Kingston batters.

The fact that the visitors were retired in order in seven of the nine innings in which they came to bat is ample indication of the brand of ball the local boys were playing. Heckman did the gunning and was accorded almost faultless support, the one error checked against his team mates came in the fourth frame and did not figure in the scoring. He held the Ponies to three hits, two of which were bunched in the sixth frame after two men had been retired and which netted the visitors two runs. The runs incidentally came after Kingston had been held scoreless for twenty nine consecutive innings on the Riverside ball lot.

Gallagher went the whole trip for the Ponies. He walked the first man to face him and was in continual trouble for the first three innings. After that he tightened up and held the Petes to but two hits, one of which, however, went for three sacks when Collins sent the pill into the bushes in deep right.

Ansaldo and Comolli were close on Collins' heels for the long distance batting honors, each hitting for two bases. Heckman also had a fairly good day with the willow getting two singles in three official times to bat.

Legon was the fielding star of the day. His shoestring catch in the fourth robbed Cherry of what looked like a certain hit and retired the side cutting off one if not two runs for Kingston. Ansaldo turned in a great fielding game, taking nine chances without a slip.

The Play.

First inning — Kingston — Twigg sent a pop fly to Ansaldo. Nicholson was called out on the third strike and Rice sent an easy grounder to Helson and was thrown out at first.

Peterboro—Legon worked Gallagher for a walk and was sacrificed to second by Johnston. Ansaldo grounded to Evans and was thrown out at first, Legon going to third on the play. Comolli's best effort was a fly to second.

Second inning—Sommerville sent a pop fly to Ansaldo. Cherry and Batstone both sent easy grounders to Ansaldo and were out at first.

Peterboro—Helson fanned. Heckman buzzed a single between third and short and went to second on Swanston's sacrifice. Swanston was safe on Gallagher's error and Wolfe beat out a bunt down the third base line, filling the bases. Collins singled to left scoring Heckman. Legon sent a short fly to short and Gallagher threw Johnston out at first.

Third inning—Daley grounded to Johnston. Evans sent an easy roller to Comolli who also picked of Gallagher's foul fly.

Peterboro—Ansaldo hit the first ball pitched him into deep left for two bases. Comolli fouled two and then sent one after Ansaldo's for two more sacks, Ansaldo scoring. Helson sent a wicked one through the box which Gallagher managed to knock down but which went for a hit, Comolli going to third. Heckman singled, scoring Comolli, Helson going to third. Helson scored on a wild pitch. Swanston grounded for the first out. Wolfe bunted a foul on his third strike and Collins was an easy out on a grounder to third.

Fourth inning—Twigg was safe on Helson's error and went to second on Nicholson's single. Rice sent a fly to Legon and Ansaldo scooped up Sommerville's grounder to throw Nicholson out at second, Twigg going to third. Legon made a great shoestring catch of Cherry's fly to short left.

Peterboro—Legon fanned. Johnston grounded to second. Ansaldo was called out on the third strike.

Peterboro—Comolli lined into Batstone's hands. Helson sent a high fly to deep center. Heckman was given a pass but Swanston put up a high foul to Rice.

Sixth inning—Gallagher was hit by a pitched ball. Twigg sent a high fly to Wolfe. Gallagher was forced at second on Nicholson's roller to Ansaldo. Rice singled to right sending Nicholson all the way to third and going to second on Collins' throw to third. Both scored on Sommerville's single. Cherry sent a high fly to Wolfe.

Peterboro — Gallagher knocked down Wolfe's hot one and Sommerville gathered up the ball to throw him out at first. Collins hit into the bushes in deep right for a three bagger. Legon grounded to short and Johnston fanned.

Peterboro—Ansaldo fanned. Comolli singled to center but Helson hit into a double play, Evans to Sommerville to Daley.

Peterboro — Heckman fanned. Swanston sent a fly to short. Wolfe walked and stole second. Collins sent a fly to center.

Ninth inning—Rice sent a fly to Helson. Sommerville grounded to Heckman, and Helson made a great catch of Cherry's line drive for the third out.

KINGSTON PLAYER MOTORED SATURDAY

Missed the Train By Ten Minutes But Arrived in Peterborough on Time.

KINGSTON, July 30.—(Special.)—"Lexis" Rice, the crack catcher for the Kingston team in the Central Ontario League, was in the line-up with Kingston at Peterborough on Saturday afternoon, but he had to do some hustling to get there. Owing to the blunder of a local taxi driver in calling at the wrong address, Lexis missed the early morning train which carried his team mates to Peterborough. When the time came for the train to leave the Kingston Junction, Lexis was conspicuous by his absence and the S.O.S. sign was sent out for him, but he could not be located. Ten minutes after the train left, Lexis arrived at the station just in time to be too late. He then hopped into his own car, stepped on the gas and was in Peterborough in time to step into the game. So all's well that ends well.

Twenty-Seven Homers For Cy Williams.

ST. LOUIS, July 30.—(Canadian Press.)— Cy Williams, centrefilder for the Philadelphia Nationals, cracked out two home runs in yesterday's game with St. Louis and brought his season's total to 27. He smashed out his twenty-sixth circuit drive off Doak in the first inning with Sand on base. His twenty-seventh four base hit was made off Barfoot in the eighth inning.

LEAFS WALLOPED SYRACUSE STARS

Glazer Hero of the Game—Great Pitching and Hard Hitting—Baltimore Won in Eleven Innings.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., July 30 (Canadian Press). — Hill was poorly supported yesterday. Parks was hit hard, and Toronto had no difficulty in winning from Syracuse 11 to 2. Glazer, besides pitching effectively for the Leafs, hit a home run with two men on the bases. Score:

Rochester 7, Buffalo 4.

BUFFALO, July 30 (Canadian Press). — Rochester won the third of the series yesterday, the score being 7 to 4 against Buffalo. The Bisons led 4 to 3 until the seventh when the bases were filled by Mohart's deliberate pass to Merkle to get Smith. The latter cleared the bases with a scoring himself on Jenkins' sacrifice triple, hitting the first ball pitched, fly to Dye. Score:

BALTIMORE, July 30 (Canadian Press). — It took the League-leading Orioles eleven innings to defeat Jersey City here yesterday afternoon, 4 to 3. Walsh's double, Boley's bunt, a pass and a sacrifice fly by Styles turned the tide to the locals. It was a hurling duel between Groves and Sellars, left-handers, with the former having much the better of the argument. The Baltimore left-hander struck out 11, and did not allow a hit through the last six innings. Score:

THE KIWANIS RINK OF BOWLERS

CHICAGO ON EVEN TERMS WITH YANKS

Split a Double Bill in New York Yesterday—Washington Swamped Detroit

NEW YORK, July 30.—(Canadian Press). — The New York Yankees and Chicago broke even here yesterday, the visitors winning the first game 3 to 2 and the Yankees the second 8 to 2. Faber defeated Bush in a pitching duel in the first game, the New York pitcher making his first appearance since discolating a finger several weeks ago.

RAGGED SUPPORT LOST FOR COBOURG

Belleville Scored Eight Runs in the Third Frame When the Cobourg Infield Went to Pieces.

COBOURG, July 30.—(Special)—Belleville scored eight runs in the third inning of Saturday's game when the Cobourg infield wavered making four errors and these coupled with three singles and a two bagger put the game in the bat bag for Belleville. Oulette pitched splendid ball for the visitors allowing Cobourg only eight hits and fanning ten batters. Derry started for Cobourg and pitched well but his support was wretched. Schafer replaced him in the third and was replaced by Jahren at the beginning of the fifth. Jahren was in good form, Belleville getting only four hits and one run off his delivery. The Belleville team played snappy ball and deserved their win. Brownscombe formerly with Lindsay has replaced Weir at short, the latter going to left. Thompson shone in left field for Cobourg, getting several nice catches. Kenney was out of the game with an injured leg. J. Kenny had a big day at the bat getting a triple, double and single in four trips to the plate.

Score by innings:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Belleville | 00811000—10 | 11 | 1 |
| Cobourg | 00011002—4 | 7 | 5 |

FOOTBALL NOTES

C.P.C. and Quakers will play a league game at the Oval on Tuesday evening at 6.30.

The regular meeting of P. and D.R.A. will be held tonight in the Chamber of Commerce.

Detroit Boat Club Carried Off Honors.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 30.—(Canadian Press).—The Detroit Boat Club carried off the greatest share of the events at the 41st annual regatta of the Canadian Association Amateur Oarsmen held on the Canadian Henley course on Friday and Saturday, gathering up a grand aggregate of 23 points, leading the Dons of Toronto. Argonauts, who in many previous years swept things before them, this year had to be content with four points, one second place and two thirds.

SCARLET LEATHER.

Bags of scarlet leather were much in evidence at the Paris races. Those of red good brocade or colorful embroidery were also popular.

ALL STAR GIRLS BEAT COLONIALS

Exhibition Game For the Benefit of the Health Association Was a Big Success.

The All Star girls' team proved just a little too much for the Colonials Saturday evening when the champions went down to defeat by a count of 21 to 18. For the first four innings the game was nip and tuck but in the fifth the All Stars landed on the Colonials for eleven runs giving them an eight run lead. The Colonials battled hard for the remainder of the game but eight runs was too much of a lead for them to overcome.

The game was featured by plenty of hard hitting, Miss Gimblett leading in the batting honors with two home runs to her credit. Mrs. Lee and Miss Plunkett also hit for four bases. The fielding stars were numerous with Miss Thornton turning in an exceptionally good game.

A return game will be played on Saturday evening, August 11. The collection taken at the game amounted to about $25 and will be turned over to the Peterboro Health Association as a donation from the Girls League.

The players were:

Colonials—Plunkett, c; Bradshaw, 1b; Lee, p; Scott, 2b; Saunders, 3b; Todd, ss; Greenhaulgh, ss; Thomas, rf; V. Wade, cf; Goodwin, lf; T. Wade, rf.

All Stars—McArthur, lf; Edwards, 2b; Mann, c; Thornton, 1b; Drury, p; Millard, 3b; Adams, ss; Gimblett, cf; Fowler, ss; Patterson, rf.

Score by innings:

Umpire—J. Cathcart.

Old-Timers Have Not Lost Their Cunning.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 30. — (Canadian Press.)—Cy Young, the only pitcher to win 500 games, showed yesterday that he had lost none of his cunning when, pitching for a team of old-timers of the Cleveland major league clubs of yester-year against the old sandlotters of this city, he struck out two men and allowed only one hit in the two innings he was on the mound. He also got one of his side's five hits. Chief Zimmer, who caught Young more than a decade ago, did the receiving.

The game, a five-inning exhibition for the benefit of the medical protective fund of the Cleveland Amateur Baseball and Athletic Association intended to be used in the event of injuries to sandlots and umpires, was attended by approximately 20,000 persons. The sandlotters won 6 to 4.

LANKEE YACHT WON.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., July 30. — (Canadian Press.)—The Huskie, flying the colors of the crescent yacht club of this city, retains the George Cup, as a result of the sail-off on Chaumont Bay Saturday, in which she defeated the Nayada, representing the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto, in a 12 mile breeze. Both yachts had tied for first place in a series of three races, competing against Riowana, of the Toronto Canoe Club, the Chirya, of the Kingston Yacht Club, and the Latonka, of the Oswego Yacht Club.

LUQUE HUNG UP ANOTHER VICTORY

Has Had Seventeen Wins This Season—New York Broke Even With Chicago.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 30. — (Canadian Press.)—Cincinnati won a pitchers' battle from Boston, yesterday, 2 to 1. It was the seventeenth victory of the season for Luque, who not only pitched great ball, but won his own game with a triple in the eight inning, scoring on a single by burns. The Braves escaped a shutout in the second when Earl Smith doubled and came home on a single by Ford. Score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Boston | 010 000 000—1 | 8 | 1 |
| Cincinnati | 010 000 01x—2 | 8 | 0 |

New York 15, Chicago 3.

CHICAGO, July 30.— (Canadian Press.) — New York got an even break in the four game series with Chicago yesterday by defeating the locals 15 to 3, in a slugging match which was very one-sided. Score:

Philadelphia 6, St. Louis 2.

ST. LOUIS, July 30.—(Canadian Press.)— Two home runs by Cy Williams, with Sand on base each time, enabled Philadelphia to defeat St. Louis 6 to 2 yesterday afternoon. Williams sent both drives into the right field bleachers. Flack also knocked out a circuit smash. The victory gave the Phillies the series, three to 1. Score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Philadelphia | 201 000 021—6 | 10 | 0 |
| St. Louis | 000 010 100—2 | 9 | 0 |

DATE ALL SET FOR TITLE BOUT

Dempsey and Firpo Will Meet at the Polo Grounds on September 14.

NEW YORK, July 30 (Canadian Press). — The next heavyweight boxing bout is on the calendar.

Promoter Tex Rickard announced the place and date on Saturday.

Early this week he promised to make known the purse and the percentage each boxer would receive.

Under the laws of New York State the match will be a 15-round decision fight.

The promoter announced that when he had constructed new stands around the ring, which will be erected on the Giants' home diamond, 80,000 persons would be able to witness the battle. Rickard estimated that more than 90,000 persons watched the Dempsey-Carpentier go, and more than 100,000 the recent fray in which the former drug clerk in Buenos Ayres knocked out Willard.

Tickets will cost less than those for any other previous heavyweight championship bout of recent years. They will range from $3.00 to $25.00, about half the price that Rickard collected on the pasteboards for the Dempsey-Carpentier bout. But since that famous "battle of the century," Jersey has passed a law fixing $15.00 as the maximum price—which may have been no small factor in bringing the present bout across the Hudson.

Firpo, before he went into the ring against Willard, had Rickard's virtual promise for a crack at the heavyweight crown. Several days however, were required to settle the details of the bout. These conferences Firpo attended for himself, while Jack Kearns, manager for the champion, looked out for the interests of his protege.

Kearns on Saturday wired Dempsey, who is in Los Angeles, to come east at once. The champion's manager announced that Saratoga Springs had been tentatively selected for training quarters, and that Dempsey would begin preparing himself for action as soon as he arrived.

Firpo, on the other hand, may train at Atlantic City, according to Rickard.

Firpo is scheduled to return to New York about the middle of next month. On a barnstorming tour of the West, he is scheduled to enter the ring three times before meeting Dempsey.

Rickard expressed himself confident that a battle royal would be waged at the Polo Grounds. Both men, he asserted, were in wonderful shape. If anything, he said, Firpo was in better physical condition because he had been fighting right along, whereas Dempsey has had only the Gibbons bout since knocking out Carpentier.

As to Firpo's condition, Rickard pointed to the fact that he had knocked out Joe Burke in two rounds at Grand Rapids, Mich., on Friday night.

Experts to-day indicated that at present the champion was their choice.

Firpo, on the other hand, while a grim and gritty fighter, still is green. His much-touted left didn't do much more in his bout with Willard than it did last winter when he met Bill Brennan in Madison Square Garden. His knock-out power was still clinched in his massive right fist.

Both men have been in against Willard. It took Dempsey only three rounds to finish him. It took Firpo eight.

Petes on Top in Second Half Race

With the Petes one game to the good in the race for second half honors the game here next Saturday should be a hum dinger. The Belleville nine will be here with a decided determination to wipe out the stigma of two defeats on their home lot and the Petes will have to be at their best to trim them. A victory for the Petes will almost clinch their hold on first place for this half while a win for the visitors will put Peterboro and Belleville on even terms. Kingston was practically eliminated by Saturday's defeat and the battle now lies between the old time rivals. Belleville has already carried off the first half and with the Petes leading for the second it looks like a lively time in the Big Four League for the next few games.

The present standing of the teams are:

| | Won | Lost | P.C. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Peterboro | 6 | 2 | .667 |
| Belleville | 5 | 3 | .625 |
| Kingston | 4 | 4 | .500 |
| Cobourg | 1 | 7 | .125 |

OSHAWA TOO MUCH FOR LEASIDE CREW

Lakeshore Motor-makers Grabbed Off the Big End of a Seven to Two Score on Saturday.

OSHAWA, July 30.—(Special).—Manager Shultz and his Central Leaguers jumped into the Toronto suburb Saturday afternoon and handed the Peacock-Henderson-Hoose-Maguire combination its second defeat of the Central Ontario League season by a score of 7 to 2, and are now on even terms with Leaside in home-and-home games. The western motor crew won both games of the fist section, while the locals have both ends of the second.

The game Saturday started away to be another battle between the Southpaws Maguire, of Leaside and Dainty, of Oshawa. The former worked well for the first two frames, but in the third when Palmer, the first man up for Oshawa hit for two bases the fireworks commenced and when the smoke had cleared away with all hands batting around with six runs across the portsider walked out and McSloy was sent in. His roundhouse delivery got by in the fourth, but in the fifth trouble overtook him and after one run had been sent across the derrick was taken out, Breckenbridge going to the rescue and the elongated right-handers, with plenty of speed, finished the game with no score hung up against him. Dainty had one of his good days, letting Leaside down with two hits and two runs, making fourteen of the Leasides make dents in the air.

The score by innings was:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Leaside | 100100000—2 | 2 | 6 |
| Oshawa | 005010008x—7 | 9 | 5 |

INTERMEDIATE GAME.

The C.G.E. and Mercantile teams will meet tomorrow afternoon for an Intermediate City League battle. This will be the first meeting for these two teams for the second half of the schedule. The game is called for 6 o'clock sharp and owing to the gradual shortening of the days which is already beginning to be felt every player is urged to be on hand sharp on time.

WOOLLENS HELD VETS TO A DRAW

Vets Were Short-handed and Outplayed But Managed to Keep the Score Even.

The Vets and Woollens battled to a 2 to 2 draw in a league game at the Oval Saturday evening. The Vets started with nine men and finished with ten, their team being badly disorganized throughout. Though the Woollens showed a decided superiority at times they lacked the essential finish in front of the goal. Blowers showed up as one of the best men on the field.

The game was only seven minutes gone when Blowers beat Chambers with a long drive from far out. Immediately afterward Shaw penetrated the Vets to equalize. From the centre of mid-field Shaw again walked past the defence into Charlie Griffin. The Woollens' player had nobody but the goal-keeper to beat but the Vets' goalie cleared. Play ran from end to end until the Woollens' forwards worked into the Vets area only to be held in check by the defence. They gave a fruitless corner, Griffin saving Geskill's hard shot. Crowe was penalized twice in succession which gave the Vets cause for worry but Burrows cleared up field. Dyer accepted a pass from Curtis, then Perry relieved to Mitchell who put past at the other end. With a goal all his own, Monkman travelled in but missed the upright. The same thing happened with Dyer in front of Chambers. Perry relieved the pressure. Burrows shot back into goal in the last minute of first half to gave the Vets the lead. Vets 2, Woollens 1.

The Woollens were the first to make any headway in the second half but offsides robbed them of good opportunities. Jimmie Sharman travelled along the left wing and centred into goal where Chambers made a brilliant save. Quick as a flash Downes evaded the right defence to make a splendid effort to score but Griffin lifted the ball in fine fashion. He punted up mid-field. Mitchell returned into centre for Monkman to pass in front of the goal but nobody was there to touch it through. They were rewarded later when James Shaw caught a drop ball to equalize. Monkman came down the field in a lone rush and shot hard for goal. Griffin handled the ball in a cool fashion to clear. Blowers was the whole Vets team, time and again he would pop up at critical moments and he held Woollens' repeatedly. At last, Mitchell beat Crowe in the corner then centred in front of goal where Gamble accidently handled. Chambers took the penalty kick which Griffin saved. For the last twenty minutes, the Woollens had most of the play. They could do everything but increase their scoring. Play was in mid-field as final sounded. Vets 2, Woollens 0.

The player were:

G.W.V.A.—Griffin, goal; Gamble and Crowe, full-backs; Burrows, Hurle and Blowers, half-backs; Curtis, Dyer, Peel and Sharman, forwards.

Woollens—Chambers, goal; Cridland and Perry, full-backs; Reid, Monkman and Sayers, half-backs; Mitchell, Gaskill, Shaw, Roberts and Downes, forwards.

Referee—J. Russell.

BRIGHTON PILED UP SCORE OF 32

Harwood Simply Registered 6 Runs in Northumberland League Fixture.

BRIGHTON, July 30.—Saturday's Northumberland League game here between Harwood and Brighton was a one-sided affair the locals winning easily by the large score of 32-6. The game was simply a work-out for the Brighton players, who combed Dunnett's offerings for twenty-nine hits, including home runs by McKee, Halliday and Ross. These three hits are among the longest even made in King Edward Park.

Keith Roblin pitched a very steady game for Brighton and struck out eight batters. Strong and Frise divided the catching and both were in good form. Solomon's throwing was good . Saturday's attendance was about 150, a good crowd for a Saturday game in Brighton. A very large crowd is expected when Trenton plays here on Friday next.

RUTH HAS 24 HOMERS CY. WILLIAMS HAS 27

CHICAGO, July 30 (Canadian Press). — Babe Ruth, leading home run slugger of the American League, last week tied Cy Williams, of the Philadelphia Nationals, who has been leading both Leagues in home runs, but held his neck-and-neck stride for only a day.

The home run duel started on Tuesday when Ruth slammed out a four- bagger, tying Williams' record of 23 for the season.

Williams on Thursday hit two homers and Ruth poled out one on Friday. On Saturday Williams retaliated with two more.

Last night Ruth had a total of 24 homers to his credit, while Williams was credited with 27.

The other Williams, Kenneth of the St. Louis Americans, was third in the home run race in both Leagues with 18 to his credit, he having batted out but one circuit clout during the week.

DISCREDITS SIBERIAN EXPEDITION TO WRANGEL

OTTAWA, July 30. — (Canadian Press).— Officials of the National Defence and Naval Departments, refused to give serious consideration last night to a despatch from Nome, Alaska, to the effect that the Siberian Government was fitting out an expedition at Vladivostok to wrest Wrangel Island from the party of British explorers now in possession of it.

In the Nome despatch it was stated that the Russian expedition was prepared to capture Alan Crawford of Toronto, and his companions who are holding the island in the name of Great Britain. This officials of National Defence Department claimed, would be equivalent to an act of war.

CARNIVAL SHOW DREW CROWD ON OPENING NIGHT

HERE FOUR DAYS

Billie Clark's Broadway Exposition opened Saturday night to a big crowd at the Exhibition Park. The grounds were thronged not only with city people but also many farmers delayed their motoring home to enjoy an evenings's fun around the ring of attractions that comprise this big carnival show.

This is the Broadway Exposition's first visit to Peterboro and in their present itinerary through Canada their stay in Ottawa coincided with the twelfth of July celebration in the Capital. They remain here until the Thursday night, and on to London where they will be a feature of the Old Boys' Reunion.

Mr. Al Fisher, the manager, was delighted with their reception in Ottawa, and the impression they made there is indicated by the following testimonial from His Worshop Mayor Plant:—

Office of the Mayor,
Ottawa, Canada.
July 14, 1923.

To Whom It May Concern:

The Billie Clark Shows have been playing in our city during the past week in connection with the Orangemen's Celebration held at Lansdowne Park. During their stay in our city I have had much dealings with Mr. Clark, Mr. Al. Fisher, His Manager, and their associates and have found them most splendid men.

They have a very splendid variety of shows and a good assortment of riding devices, all of which have been conducted in a very creditable manner. They established at this celebration one of the best Midways that we have ever had in our city. In departing from our city they are leaving a very fine impression behind them, everything having been conducted in a most satisfactory manner and everybody who had any dealings with them whatsoever being perfectly satisfied.

F. H. PLANT.
Mayor.

Johnny Wallace's trained animal show made a hit Saturday night, especialy with the women and children. Performing monkies, dogs, ponies and goats provide an interesting program with "Dooley" a monkey of almost human intelligence, the centre of interest.

The Wild West Show includes lariat throwing, riding and shooting and features "Captain Sigsbeee" a trained horse that was a year at the World's Fair at San Fransisco in 1915.

The Hawaian Village comes from the Keith Circuit, and is composed of genuine Hawaians in a varied act of dancing and vocal and instrumental music. The Minstrel Show, Poppy Land with war scenes of English French and American troops in action, and the motor drome in which Barney Page and "Mile a Minute Marie," ride a vertical circular wall at a speed of from 65 to 70 miles an hour, all drew their share of the opening night patronage.

The Palace of Mystery supplies an entertainment in illusion, including magic, escapes and other novelties of that kind. Another feature is the Scottish giantess, eight feet threeet inches tall, who was with the Ringling circus, and in the same stand is a tiny woman.

There is also an Athletic show with a special invitation to wrestlers of any weight who are offered one dollar for every minute they stay off the mat.

These are some of the main attractions with the usual concessions, refreshment stands and three rides, a merry-go-round, feerris wheel and sea plane.

Sunday the grounds were bare and everything was closed up. Some of the show people went to nearby churches, and in the afternoon many of them took advantage of the pleasure of a dip at the Lake Street Beach. One of them was Dennis Kane who is connected with a refreshment stand, and who narrowly escaped drowning as a result of a cramp. This is not his first experience from this weakness in the water, it was stated and one of the men remarked that it had almost become a habit with him, so often had Kane been seized with cramp while bathing.

WAR—HOW TO END IT

When I have overcome myself
And each of you do the same;
The world will be a joyful place
Well rid of its strife and pain.

It will swing on its way at morn with a song,
At noon-day reach its height,
Praise God with song at evening
And with cheer say, brother, Goodnight.

Men Will love their wives
And women again,
Have reverence for their lords,
Friends, Friends, it's worth while trying,
And finding our reward.

Of Peace within our borders
And love within our home
And hearts at peace with Heaven,
With no desire to roam.

MAN FULLY CONSCIOUS TALKS AS SURGEONS DRILL SKULL

Brown Had Only One Chance to Live—Knife in Brain.

NEWARK, N. J., July 30.—Henry A. Brown, once owner of a small furniture business, regards himself as a man who has come back from the grave. He had a rendezvous with death, but today he is practically well and ready to start life over again.

Brown was placed on an operating table in Beth Israel hospital, New York, Feb. 27. For two hours he lay fully conscious while surgeons bored holes in his skull, joined them, lifted out a section, and then by cutting into his brain removed a tumor four inches long, two inches wide and three-fourths of an inch thick. And today he is pondering on ways and means of economic independence for his family and himself.

Brown was admitted to the hospital February 1. He had lost his memory and was tortured with headaches so painful they were almost maddening. Epilepsy attacked him occasionally. He was partially paralyzed and his general condition was such that surgeons who made the examination decided that general anesthesia would be fatal. Nevertheless they continued their efforts to save his life.

Only One Chance

To locate the tumor a ventricular puncture was made Feb. 25, cerebral fluid was removed and air injected, after which X-ray photographs were taken. Then Brown was told that he had one chance—the tumor could be removed by means of a local anesthetic.

"I knew I was going to die anyway," said Brown at his home here. "In fact, I was more of a dead man than a live one, anyway. With the pain I had been suffering death did not seem to be so awful, and nothing they could do with knives would be worse than I had already suffered Besides, there was my family to consider. A half paralyzed man who had fits and who forgot his own name at times was not much use. Dead, they would be rid of supporting me. So I told them to go ahead.

"I was conscious all the time and knew that they were drilling into my head and cutting into my brain. The doctors kept asking me how I felt and generally I told them I was all right. Sometimes it hurt a little and I told them about that. It was a queer feeling. It seemed like I was there on the table, and at the same time I was far away. But I feel all right now, and that is the main thing."

Knife in The Brain

Everything was ready for the difficult and delicate operation, with a human life as a possible forfeit, by 9 a.m. An incision was made just back of the left temple. Holes were then made in the skull bone. These were connected, and the bone and overlying structures turned back. The dura, or covering of the brain, was then cut into, this exposing the tumor.

With the greatest care the knife was inserted into the brain itself. Moments sped away as Dr. K. Winfield Ney, assisted by Dr. Emil Altman, attending neurologist of the hospital, and Dr. Bernard Davidoff, the house surgeon, worked. Finally the tumor, described as "of the benign type and self-contained," was removed. Then the osteoplastic flap was turned back and the scalp sutured.

It was found necessary to sacrifice the anterior portion of the frontal lobe of the brain, but this has not affected Brown's faculties.

Now Brown's memory is as clear as ever, his headaches trouble him no longer, he has full use of his limbs and the epilessy has vanished. On March 26 he left the hospital to spend a convalescent period at the Burke Foundation at White Plains. He left there April 6 for the home of relatives in Brooklyn, where he remained for only a few days, as his recovery was so rapid he was allowed to return to his home here.

The success of the operation and the complete recovery of the patient is held all the more remarkable because of the size of the growth that was removed. The brain tumor that caused the death last year of Henry P. Davidson, a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., was only about the size of a hazelnut at the time the first operation was performed.

PIANO FOR $50

sistant, he ricocheted, saying his duties took him all over the country. Nevertheless, he accepted teh moral responsibility, for what his assistant did.

Assistant is dead.

But this assistant is dead and so can not be called, a fact which a member of the committee bemoaned.

Another sale entirely carried out by the assistant according to the major, was that of 50 tons of tapioca, at $115 a ton (the market price was $275). The arm chairs and the pianos also were handled by the assistant, who, as stated, is dead.

Sir Francis Towle managing director of the Gordon Hotels, who was a member of the board of management of the Navy and Army Canteens, declares that the bulk of the profitts were not trading profits, but due in the main to a rise in price of the goods held, and he argues that for that reason all profits, so declared shoud be regarded as paper profits until the business finally is wound up. But when asked wether he was satisfied with Maj. Van den Bergh's conduct of the sales of the surplus stocks, he informed the committee that he could not be satisfied as his instructions had not been carried out, though he repudiated any suggestion of dishonesty.

Presently the committee will issue a report but the missing millions will still be missing, while the truck farmer has retired comfortably to his farm and the major's assistant is dead.

More harvesters than ever will be needed this year in Western Canada on account of the bumper crop. Special trains will be run by the Canadian Pacific Railway, which is advertising the usual low rate of $15 to Winnipeg, plus a half-cent per mile beyond to destination in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Returning the fare will be $20 from Winnipeg, plus a half-cent per mile from starting point. Going dates are August 13, 15, 22 and 24, according to the territory in Ontario. On the lunch cars food and refreshments may be obtained at reasonable prices. Special cars will be provided for ladies, children (full fare) and their escorts. First special train will leave Toronto on each date at 10.00 a.m., and last special at 10.30 p.m. on each date.

Full information may be secured from any Canadian Pacific ticket office.

THE KING CAN DO NO WRONG!

By MILTON BRONNER

LONDON July 30.—King George of England, had the time of his life the other day, when he visited a new hospital in the east end of London named after the queen.

The king always was strong for the old-fashioned stuff and he still is.

For instance, in one hospital ward, while he chatted with a young mother, he started to rock the cradle in which was her baby. Greatly daring, the nurse in charge said reprovingly:

"We don't rock babies nowadays, your majesty."

The astonished sovereign turned upon her.

"Don't rock them? Well, please tell me why not? My children used to be rocked and I did some of the rocking."

The nurse stuck to her guns.

"Your majesty, we find that rocking is liable to make the babies ill."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed King George. "Perhaps, I am an old-fashioned father, but I never heard of rocking the cradle hurting my children."

There was a pause. Then the sovereign of the kingdom turned upon the sovereign of the hospital ward and said with defiance:

"And I will rock this cradle!"

Which he proceeded to do.

President Millerand of France has lately been making a little propoganda visit in Alsace. The truth is the French are finding that the people of Alsace and Lorraine, the restored provinces, are not quite so keen about being back under French rule as they were when Germans still bossed them.

High taxes—higher than the French pay—that's the answer.

In the task of making the provinces entirely French once more, every effort is being made to teach French to the children in the public schools. In one Alsatian town a little girl presented Millerand a boquet and made him a speech in French.

"It's very nice, my child," said Millerand beamingly benevolent, "to hear you speak our beautiful French language so well. Do you like to speak French?"

"Oh, yes, Monsieur le President," said the child without the slightest hesitation or embarrassment. "I love to speak French because I can talk with my big sister without papa and mama understanding a word of what we are saying."

And speaking of the French language, a German writer has got all France simply bursting with wrath. No one knows whether Ernst Fuhrmann is really in earnest or whether it is an elaborate spoof designed to make the Gauls hopping mad. But he has just published a pretentious book with the self-explanatory title —"The French tongue is a German dialect." And he proceeds very gravely to prove that French is only a corrupted, a debased German.

Back in the fifth century, he says, the Gauls began to talk a German which their tongues couldn't handle properly. They twisted the German tongue. They spoke a patois. It is the French of today.

The French claim their language descends from the Latin. Rot, says Fuhrmann. The French word for woman — 'femme"— doesn't come from the Latin "femina" but from the Germanic "memm," from which also comes the word "mama."

French officials also allowed the German police to resume the carrying of weapons Sunday only as disturbances had been feared.

RUSH PRESIDENT BACK TO CAPITAL

Return to Washington by Special as Soon as Possible.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—(Canadian Press.)—President Harding will be rushed back to Washington by special train as soon as he recovers from his present illness sufficiently to travel, probably within two weeks. The two San Francisco physicians who were called into consultation by Brigadier General Sawyer last night, were again in conference with Dr. Sawyer at 9.20 this morning.

The illness of President Harding, which became more serious after his arrival here yesterday through the development of complications, following a touch of ptomaine poisoning, was the subject of a consultation by physicians which ended early to-day without announcement of conclusions reached. None of the four physicians who participated in the conference would make any statement, but from other sources it was learned that a statement might be made later in the day. This was interpreted as meaning that the physicians were awaiting development of what had been described in a bulletin sisued late last night by Brigadier-General Sawyer, personal physician to the President, as "new symptoms indicating complications."

NEW YORK, July 30.—(Special.)—The stock market opening to-day was fairly active with most stocks fractionally under Saturday's closing. A few exceptions to the general trend were Studebaker and American Can., up 1-4 and 1-2 respectively.

The foreign exchanges were lower. Cotton options opened higher, while sugar prices were again reduced.

The opening declines from Saturday's closing levels, while fractional in most cases, were sufficient to put many stocks at 1923 lows.

While trading continued on a fairly active scale in the first half hour, stocks were in a better demand and as a result the list showed the stability with a tendency among the leading issues to firm up. Numerous stocks, which were under heavy pressure on Saturday last ,were not subjected to heavy liquidation to-day and around 10.30 the general list showed improvement over the opening levels as well as the closing prices on Saturday.

Firmness continued in Studebaker folowing its fractional gain at the opening and with offerings apparently well absorbed it sold up to 100 3-4, a point above the previous close.

Steels also showed a better tone, with Steel Common up 5-8 at 87 1-2 while Bethlehem and Crucible were each half a point above the previous close.

Professionals attacked the market around the close of the first hour and though stocks reacted for a short time, selling pressure was lifted and the leading stocks enjoyed a sharp rally. Some irregularities developed, Texas Pacific getting to a new 1923 low at 15, off 2 7-8, while Willys Overland Preferred to a few sales advanced four points to 70.

Street reports are that professional operators are still on the bearish side of the market and to them is credited largely the selling on Friday and Saturday which brought in some public liquidation and resulted in the drastic decline in the last two days of last week.

Pan-American issue still showed signs of support with the common close to 57, where it was up over a point, while the "B" shares at 54 were two points above the low on Saturday last.

MOTHERS, ARE YOUR CHILDREN HEALTHY?

Enter Them Tomorrow at the Well Babies' Clinic in G.W.V.A. Hall For Exhibition Baby Contest.

Mothers of children under three years of age who find their child has not developed in the manner in which it should are again reminded of the invitation given them to take the babies to the Welfare Baby Clinic at the Great War Veterans' Hall Tuesday afternoon, where records will be kept of their condition, and the babies showing greatest improvement between now and Exhibition Week will receive valuable prizes, given by the Exhibition Board.

This is a wonderful opportunity for mothers to have their children's health guarded and to receive instructions on feeding, and in every way makes it possible for the little ones to grow up healthy, strong children.

Nurses and doctors are at the Great War Veterans' Hall every Tuesday afternoon and those who are attending entering in the contest where under-developed children are concerned, have only to-morrow and next Tuesday to do so.

OBITUARY

MISS JOHANNA GEARY.

The death occurred in Ottawa on Friday last of Miss Johanna Geary, a former resident of this city. The deceased is survived by three sisters, Mrs. W. P. Castricum of this city, and the Misses Elizabeth and Catherine, of Ottawa, and four brothers: John, Alexander and Michael, of Ennismore, and William Geary, of Peterboro.

FUNERAL TO-DAY.

The funeral of Keith Nichols, 8-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Nichols, who died as a result of an automobile accident on the Gravel Road on Saturday, took place to-day. Rev. P. H. Neville officiated, and interment was made in Bridgenorth Cemetery.

HEAVY FINES IMPOSED ON MAKER OF LIQUOR

Having a still on his premises cost a north country man $200 and costs, when he appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley in County Police Court this afternoon, and a fine of $200 and costs was imposed on a charge of having liquor unlawfully in a place other than a private dwelling. The accused pleaded guilty to both charges.

The still was seized and the liquor confiscated by License Inspector Joe Stewart and Inland Revenue Officer W. H. Buller on July 12, following information received by them.

On failure to pay the fine, the accused will be committed to jail for nine months.

mittees of investigation and committees of execution, and under the supervision of a board of Directors. Such an organization is the Chamber of Commerce. It ought to be the initiator, leader, and co-ordinator, and not least of these is the co-ordinator. It ought to be able to enlist in its undertakings the co-operation of such special organizations as the luncheon clubs; and they in turn ought to be able to enlist in their undertakings the co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce.

I believe that if a Chamber of Commerce is active and maintains leadership in its own field of commercial and civic betterment, business men's luncheon clubs will not prove a hindrance but rather a help and that the Chamber will encounter no difficulty in working out a satisfactory relationship with them It is already being done.

BRITISH SHIP LEFT TO REPORT ON WRECK

ST. JOHN'S Nfld., July 30.—(Canadian Press).—The British cruiser Calcutta, with Admiral Seymour on board, left here yesterday for the Straits of Belle Isle to examine the wreck of the big cruiser Raleigh, which grounded on Point Amour, Labrador, Sept. 8th last. A report will be made to the British Admiralty on the position of the wreck and the possibilities of salvage.

The Calcutta will then proceed to Quebec and Montreal.

RECONSTRUCTED RIVER ADDS MILES TO DOCKS

DETROIT, July 30.—The River Rouge, site of the great blast furnaces of the Ford Motor Company, has been initiated to deep draft vessels. For years a lazy twisting stream, the river has been developed as an artery of the Detroit River at the behest of the Ford interests.

To permit the great ore carriers of the lakes to bring their cargoes direct to the blast funaces, the river has been reconstructed. Instead of the twisting stream of former years a new River Rouge has been created. From the mouth of the Detroit River to the Ford turning basin the stream is three miles long, almost two miles shorter than the old course Its width at the mouth is 400 feet and the average width along the dock lines is 300 feet with a bottom width of 200 feet. The depth at low water is 21 feet.

A new canal, 3,000 feet long, was cut through the entire sub-division of property, avoiding an "S" turn where the river joins the basin.

Some 15 industries in addition to the Ford blast furnaces are operating along the banks of the Rouge, and with th, improvement just completed six miles of docking facilities have been added to Detroit's waterfront. Heretofore th, industries located at the Rouge have attracted an annual cargo tonnage of 2,000,000. The Ford plant alone expects to bring in 2,000,000 tons during 1923.

Th, total cost of the new Rouge, including bridges, dredging, and right of way is estimated at $10.000,000.

ALLIED REPLY TO BRITAIN IS IN HAND TODAY

JAPAN MAY REPLY

LONDON, July 31.—(Special). — The Allied replies to Britain's reparations note were laid before the Cabinet to-day by Marquis Curzon. The contents are to remain an official secret, it is understood, however, as a result of a suggestion by Italy that the British note to Germany may include an invitation to join the League of Nations.

Germany is understood to be quite willing to enter the League.

Reply From Japan.

The replies of France and Belgium were delivered formally in writing, while that of Italy was conveyed in a brief conversation between Lord Curzon and the Italian Ambassador. A reply from Japan also is expected.

In many quarters it is believed a further interchange of notes will result from the Cabinet's consideration of the French and Belgian suggestions.

Pessimistic Impression.

Although it was reported that the French note permits of further exchange of views it is understood the initial British impression of it is decidedly pessimistic. It has been definitely decided that Baldwin shall reveal the Government's official attitude in the House on Wednesday.

MANY PASSENGERS ON LINDSAY TRIP

"Stoney Lake" Made Second Trip of the Summer Through the Kawartha Lakes.

The second and last of the Stoney Lake's Peterboro to Lindsay trips this season afforded a pleasant outing yesterday of two persons from this city. With a warm sun and a fresh breeze off the west shores the weather was ideal, too perfect, in fact, for most of the passengers and the crew too would doubtless have perferred a day's rain for the wilting crops.

Some of the excursionists had made this trip many times, finding in its scenic diversities an attraction of enduring interest and charm To those acquainted with Stoney Lake and the adjacent waters to Burleigh and Buckhorn there were no unusual features to that part of the outing but the lakes further west were something of a revelation in their transitory population and a degree of beauty that matched even Stony's glories. There may be finer waters courses in this country, but it is past ordinary imagination that Kawartha group could be surpassed. And singling out the resorts and their locations impartial observers would have to place Jacob's Island in Pigeon Lake far up in the list if not right at the head. The prospect from that Island, its beauties of foliage and surroundings left an impression that survived the conglomerate effects of blue skies and water, islands and a moving shore with their innumerable cottages, small craft and literally thousands of people in pleasant leisure. The crew handled the trip faultlessly and made good time in docking at Lindsay. In their service to the passengers they anticipated the needs of the people, and left nothing undone for their comfort.

Drinking Places Take 750 Pounds of Ice Each Day

There are 1,500 pounds of ice placed in Peterborough's drinking fountains every two days to cool the water.

The three fountains—in Central Park, in Victoria Park and at the corner of Water and Hunter streets—are iced regularly. As much ice as it will hold is placed in a tank below each fountain, where the water flows through a worm consisting of several pipes. The ice is placed on top of this net-work of pipes, cooling the water very effectively.

HARDING MAKES FIGHT OF LIFE

Doctors Refuse to Predict Outcome But Are Optimistic--Operation Necessary.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 31. — (Canadian Press). — President Harding was so far refreshed by sleep which lasted more than six hours last night, that he said this morning he felt able to look at the news of the day, and sent out for the morning papers, all of which were devoted largely to accounts of his illness. It was said that an informal statement as to the President's condition would be given out within an hour or two.

Life Is at Stake.

President Harding is fighting the greatest battle of his career, a struggle in which his life is at stake. Arraigned against him are broncho - pneumonia symptoms, which were discovered by the attending doctors late last night, and also the danger of other complications. Arrayed in his favor are his calm determination, a subsidence of earlier abdominal trouble and the hopes of prayers of the nation. His handicap is an admittedly weakened physical resistance. None of the five attending doctors will predict the outcome, although all are optimistic. All of the doctors who have been called in spent the night within easy reach of the executive's bedside, and Brigadier - General Charles E. Sawyer, his personal doctor, and Lieutenant-Commander Joel Boone, assistant to General Sawyer, were in the sick room nearly all the time. None was more faithful at the President's bedside than Mrs. Harding, who since the executive was brought here Sunday morning, has obtained little sleep or rest.

Passed Best Night.

President Harding passed the "best night comparatively since he has been ill," Brigadier-General Sawyer, his personal physician, said in a statement made at eight o'clock this morning.

"The President has had the best night, comparatively, that he has had since his illness began," said General Sawyer. "That augurs well. The conditions seem to warrant the statement that apparently he has gotten into clear sailing."

Much strengthened and refreshed after his brief holiday, but still suffering severely with his throat, he will have to undergo an operation, but purposes postponing it for a few weeks, in accordance with advice. This he seems to feel safe in doing as neither Crown nor defence appears anxious to hurry matters for the next session, and by November he will probably have recovered from the effects of the operation.

FARMER'S OPINION OF WHEAT PRICES

Could Make More Money By Feeding His Grain to Hogs.

"I could make more money by feeding my wheat to hogs than I can make by selling it," a farmer in Saturday's market said, referring to the drop in the price of grain.

At the prevailing prices the farmer would get from 70 to 90 cents a bushel for his grain. One man claims he can feed the grain to his hogs and get a return equivalent to over $3.00 a bushel. Yet another said that by feeding the wheat to his milch cows the quality of the milk would be increased and the greater supply of cream would yield him a greater return than the sale of grain at the present market price.

TWO OUTDOOR FIRES.

The Fire Department was called to a grass fire at 12.08 p.m. yesterday on a vacant lot on McDonnel street.

At 11.45 p.m. a bonfire caused an alarm. This was at the rear of Fitzgerald's at the corner of Brock and Water streets.

POLICE COMB TORONTO FOR BANK ROBBERS

Believed That Bandits Are Still Hiding Either in the City or Its Suburbs.

SEVERAL THEORIES

TORONTO, July 31. — (Special). —Believeing that the bandits who held up the bank messengers at Melinda and Jordan Streets last Tuesday, are still in Toronto or the vicinity, the police have become suddenly active in the city and the suburbs. Headquarters detectives are working on the theories that one of the desperadoes, seriously wounded, is hampering the movements of the gang, that the gunmen are hiding until they feel that they can pass the stolen money or that both may be possible.

Score of Warrants.

A score of search warrants have been issued to a number of detectives and it is evident that he police intend searching rooming houses in the city wherever it is possible the bandits are in hiding.

An intensive search of the country in the vicinity of the barn where the bandits car was found, has so far been fruitless. Squads of detectives under Inspector Wallace and Detective Sergeants Wickett Cronin and Mitchell, all heavily armed, carrying revolvers and rifles, have been scouring the country from Leaside to Agincourt covering the bush along the Don Valley Road. One posse worked from the Kingston Road to the Dunlap farm.

Using Ten cars.

Additional rounds of ammunition for rifles and revolvers have been issued at Police headquarters. There is now mention of the use by the Police of at least ten high power cars to respond to rush calls such as the one when the bandits car was discovered. Inspector of Detectives Guthrie has expressed the idea that the hold-up has shown the necessity of a high-power car being part of the equipment at every Police Station.

CHERRIES RISE IN PRICE SOON

Black Currants Have Arrived—City Markets in General.

Fruit dealers predict a rise in the cherry prices, commencing to-day. Growers are quoting now, they say, wholesale prices which are on a par with the retail charges made heretofore, so the quotations on the red Montmorency are expected to rise considerably.

The eleven-quart container that has been retailing for 90 cents will probably be selling in a few days, if the dealers are correct in their surmise, at about $1.25, an advance of about 40 per cent.

The black cherry will soon be off the market altogether. It is selling now in 6-quart baskets for $1.25 to $1.50. Black currants are the latest arrivals in the fruit section, retailing at 40 cents per quart, or $3.50 for a large basket.

There is a reported scarcity of blueberries.

Plums are decreasing in price, and may be purchased in large baskets for $1.25, while Clingstone peaches are in, at the same price for an 11-quart container.

From local gardens there are good quality new potatoes, tomatoes and cucumbers. Potatoes run from 60c to 70c a peck, cucumbers are $1.25 for a large basket, and tomatoes $1.75 for the same, or $2.00 a basket for the No. 1 quality.

Dairy butter is scarce, running over the creamery in price, and there is a slight increase in live hog prices, with a decrease in the dressed variety.

New hay is selling from $12.00 to $14.00 a ton. The prices on hides show an increase, also.

The grain dealers report a big crop of alsike clover seed, of fine quality. The opening price runs at the same level as the closing for last season, at from $4.00 to $5.00 a bushel.

Fall wheat is expected to be on the market in about a fortnight, oats a couple of week later.

GERMANY IN BAD WAY.

DUSSELDORF, July 31.— (United Press.) — Germany's floating debt is increasing at a rate of 30,000,000 marks per second and has passed the 47,000,000,000 mark, according to statistics compiled by French sources to-day.

CRUSHED BY ELEVATOR.

TORONTO, July 31. Canadian Press. — Crushed by an elevator in the building of the Office Specialty Co., at Newmarket yesterday, Stephen Doyle, aged 75 years, died soon after the accident. He was in charge of the elevator and was cleaning it when the mishap occurred.

FAIR PRICE BOARD NEEDED TO PROTECT THE CITIZENS

Cost of Necessities of Life Should Be Garded Just as Workingmen's Wages are Set by Fair Wage Board, Says Visitor From Toronto

"The time has come when the Government should establish a fair price board which will regulate the prices charged for the necessities of life, such as bread and milk," said A. Roberts, proprietor of a large Toronto factory employing nearly 200 workers, when interviewed on his way to Kawartha Lakes yesterday afternoon. "If a fair wage board was effective in deciding the wage to be paid to the workingman, I don't see why a fair price board should not benefit the people."

Mr. Roberts was shown a stock sheet on which it was indicated that in 1914 when wheat was 89 cents a bushel, a 24-ounce loaf of bread was selling for 5 cents. Today Ontario's soft wheat is selling for less than $1 a bushel, but the price of a loaf in Peterborough is from 8 to 10 cents, or double the pre-war price.

Competition Needed.

This increase in price was justified by the article which stated that, while wheat today is practically at the same level it was before the war, flour is still higher per barrel. Baking and mill hands are receiving higher wages than in 1914, and the overhead and delivery costs have greatly increased. The report concluded with an optimistic assurance that the price of bread is expected to drop shortly.

"The hold-up in the bread prices," Mr. Roberts said, "is the result of the centralization of the business in large establishments. When we had a small bake-shop on every other corner the price of bread was kept low by competition. It is the same with milk, which is being sold through big dairies. A fair price board would give us a square deal in our food supply."

TEST CASE OF RACING FORMS

Asks for a Decision as to Just What is Considered Betting Information.

HAMILTON, July 31. Canadian Press. — The test case regarding the sale of racing forms on the streets of Hamilton, in alleged contravention of the amended act covering publication of racing information in Ontario, was tried this morning before Magistrate Jelfs.

Phil Strausman, one of the newsboys handling the publication known as "The Racing Form," which is published in Buffalo, was the defendant. T. J. Agar, K.C., of Toronto, was consel for the defence.

His Worship found Strausman guilty and was about to impose a fine of $500 when he was asked by Mr. Agar to reserve judgment on several points and to give him a stated case when finally handing down his judgment. The magistrate is considering this request.

Oscar J. Drinally said that he was the editor and publisher of "The Racing Form" in Buffalo and sent his publication to Hamilton for sale on the streets. He said that he had issued forms in their altered condition so as to conform with the regulations recently issued by the Attorney-General's Department, and that he had followed the advice and instructions of his attorney in doing so, and that it was on the advice of his Canadian Attorney that he had again offered the forms for sale on the streets.

Mr. Agar explained that it was not the intention of his client to break the law, but that his client wished to have it clearly established just what is considered betting information.

PROGRESS SEEN CITY BUILDING

Sub Station Will Ee Impressive Structure — S. A. Temple Roofed.

A review of the building in progress in the city shows that most of the buildings begun early in the season are nearing completion and the others are proceeding according to schedule.

The Salvation Army Temple has once again a roof over its head, and work on the interior partitions has commenced. The sub-station basement is nearly complete, the foundation cement work being laid and the casing removed. The sub-station, described in the building permit as a "Municipal Distributing Station," is 92 feet nine inches long; 38 feet ten inches broad and will be 37 feet high from the cement foundation, which is 13 feet high. The walls will be solid brick, and the roof is specified as concrete, tar and gravel. It is to be completed by October 15.

The Lake street bathing beach is completed and in operation, providing locker space for ten and dressing accommodation for those who do not desire the use of lockers.

St. Andrew's Sunday school does not present an attractive appearance at present, the work up to date having been mainly destructive, but a fine building is promised.

In addition to the renovating being done to the interior of St. Peter's Cathedral, a new fence is planned, which will improve the exterior appearance of the church.

DELORME TRIAL IS A PROBLEM

Not Likely That Re-hearing Will Take Place Until November.

MONTREAL, July 31. — Canadian Press. — The prospects of the new hearing of the Delorme murder trial taking place at the September session of the Court of King's Bench are becoming daily more remote and at the present moment the most likely thing is that the hearing will take place in November.

The September roll in King's Bench promises to be a heavy one, with several important cases to be heard. Much business was put off at the last session in order to dispose of the Delorme hearing, and counsel in these cases are certain to clamor against any further attempt to hold them back another session. The Crown readily admits the reasonableness of this and will probably made no objection to having the Delorme hearing stand back until November in order to give justice to other prisoners who are waiting for sentence or release.

R. L. Calder, K. C., Crown prosecutor in the cause celebre, has just returned from the country.

Russian Soviet Threatens to Seize Ship for Relief of Crawford Party

NOME, Alaska, July 31 (Canadian Press). — Harold Noice, head of the expedition to Wrangel Island for the relief of Alan Crawford and his party, marooned there since 1920, has been advised of an announcement by the Soviet Government authorities at East Cape, Siberia, that unless his ship, the Donaldson, calls at Petropavlovsk for a proper clearance and also at East Cape for a contingent of Red Guards to be taken to the island, the vessel will be confiscated.

PLANS TO RUN WHISKEY SHOP ON THE OCEAN

Titled Resident of England Invites Investment in Scheme for Shipping Liquor Abroad.

BIG PROFIT ASSURED

LONDON, July 31. — (Canadian Press).—A business circular is being distributed here in the name of Sir Broderick Hartwell, veteran of the South African and World Wars, inviting investment in a scheme for shipping whiskey abroad. The plan, says the circular, offers "an opportunity of making a twenty per cent. profit on the capital every sixty days."

5,000 Cases Ready.

The paper asserts that 5,000 cases of whiskey will be shipped within the next four weeks, and that arrangements have been made to transport thereafter ten thousand cases monthly, payment for which is guaranteed on the arrival of consignments at a point twenty miles from shore. The circular leaves the investor to guess what shore is meant, but the Daily News says it is the shore of the United States.

"My idea is to run a shop on the ocean," Sir Roderick told the Daily Mail, which also carries a story of the distribution of the circular.

Fame of "Big Hat" Al Fisher Marred By Fred. Bullied

Famous Announcer Forced to Use Megaphone For First Time in His Career—His Crown Dented Here Last Saturday.

Chalk up an achievement for Fred Bullied, market clerk and Stentor.

Last Saturday he unconsciously flecked the record of the champion announcer of the world when he forced "Big Hat" Al Fisher, manager of Billie Clark's Broadway Exposition, to use a megaphone in announcing the publicity stunt of George Daly, of the House of Illusions, in escaping from a straitjacket while suspended by the feet from the roof of the Empress Hotel.

That was the first time in his bustling, colorful career that "Big Hat" was driven to the expedient of employing an artificial amplifier to transmit his message out over a crowd. At boxing matches, World Fairs, circuses and other big public functions Al Fisher has for years been official announcer vocally encompassing the largest gatherings of his day.

Al Fisher was the official announcer of the World'sfair at San Francisco in 1915; he introduced Georges Carpentier in all the principal cities of America visited by the gallant French boxer in 1920; he announced from the ring the Dempsey-Miske fight in Benton Harbour, Michigan, and the Benny Leonard-Friedman fight, and three other world's championship engagements. He was the official announcer for the 101 Wild West shows, and some weeks ago was offered the job as announcer for the Dempsey-Gibbons fight at Shelby, Mont. Other business obligations together with the doubts surrounding the Shelby affair cut short his consideration of that assignment, and the long trip further influenced him to pass up that chance.

Mr. Fisher's voice is so clear and resonant that he has never required the aid of a megaphone in speaking to large audiences. His vocal organs may not have the fine timbre of a Caruso nor the gigantic muscular chest recources of a Chaliapin, but he has made a name for himself as an announcer that is known throughout America. For fourteen months he served with the U.S. infantry in France, and after the signing of the armistice he put on his famous show "Toot Sweet" (tout de suite meaning hurry up) for the soldiers over in France. They played 128 performances in France, including a two weeks' engagement in Paris. This show was witnessed by General Pershing, Netwon Baker and Frankie Roosevelt, U.S. army and navy ministers in the Wilson cabinet, and by nearly all the allied representatives at the peace conference. In other years Mr. Fisher used to wear a big wide-brimmed Stetson, from which came the sobriquet "Big Hat."

And after all his travels and engagements before the multitude he comes to Peterborough and unavoidably meets Fred Bullied in a vocal combat that compelled Mr. Fisher to send out for reinforcement in the shape of an immense megaphone.

"I never used one of those things before in my life," said Mr. Fisher. "But there I was with a crowd around the street and the market, and this fellow, I don't know his name, was selling stuff on the market and shouting so loud I simply couldn't take a chance, so I went

Civic Holiday Is Not a Matter of Discord Here

Peterborough's civic holiday will be on Monday, August 13th, and no serious objection has been made by a section of the community which wished the first Monday in the month adopted to be in line with many other cities and towns in Ontario.

In Ingersoll, Ont., there are two parties making the rounds of the town with petitions, one for a civic holiday on Monday, and the other desiring it postponed until Wednesday in order to coincide with a picnic. Similar controversies are reported from other cities and towns.

CHINESE HERE TAKE EXCEPTION

Do Not Approve Order-in-Council That All of Chinese Origin Must Register.

The registration of all persons of Chinese origin and descent, provided for by an Order-in-Council gazetted this week, does not meet with the approval of the Chinese population of the country, according to Charles Cheu, proprietor of the Classic Cafe on Simcoe Street.

This registration is necessary to carry out Sections 26 and 27 of the Chinese Immigration Act of this year, which sections state that any Chinese who has entered Canada as a merchant or as a member of any other class which by the Act is exempt from paying head-tax, and who has since coming to Canada taken up work other than that which exempted him must now either pay $500 to the Government or else be deported. The only way to find such people is by having all the Chinese in Canada register.

Notices will be issued stating where Chinese may register under the new law, and every person so registering must produce three photographs, front view, and without head covering; certificate of landing is also required where available. Parents must register children under 13 years of age, but such children must appear in person before the registrar.

Certificate Will Issue.

Chinese thus registered will be issued with a certificate giving their name, age, description, address, occupation, condition, birthplace, date of entry into Canada, and amount of head tax paid. Attached to the certificate will be a photograph of the person concerned.

By another Order-in-Council now gazetted, officials of the Department of Immigration are made controllers of Chinese immigration at the ports where they are now located, and are required to forward completed registration forms to the Chief Inspector of Immigration at Ottawa, who now becomes also Chief Controller of Chinese Immigration.

Unpopular Among Chinese.

The Order-in-Council is very unpopular among the Chinese throughout Canada, according to a statement made to the Examiner to-day by Mr. Cheu, who is in touch with the Toronto officials of the Chinese Association in Canada. Mr. Cheu thinks the Act is not in conformity with the principles of a free Christian country, and believes that the origin of the idea was in the Far West.

According to the secretary of the Chinese Association, there are not more than 1,200 such illegal Chinese residents in the Dominion, and to find them it is necessary to register the entire 39,000 others. This official defines the Chinese immigration policy of the present Government as being not only restrictive but retroactive as well. "They have not only prohibited the Chinese from coming in," he said, "but they are as well trying to deport as many as possible. There is right at this moment a very strong feeling against it being expressed in the Chinese press. Most of the pressure is due to the members from British Columbia, many of whom I have heard make absolutely misleading statements in the House concerning conditions there after having made themselves out to be experts on the subject of Chinese problems in Canada." When this question was before the House, the Chinese Association sent a delegation to Ottawa to try to have some of the more drastic measures removed from the bill.

Other Opinions.

Chinese in Canada have taken a very strong stand on the question, and they have had many of their best students in Canada working on it.

In one of his speeches on the Act in the House, Premier King said that it must be borne in mind that it was absolutely necessary to retain the good-will of the Chinese people. That Peterborough members of the race are almost insulted by the legislation is the opinion gleaned from several to-day. "They all make after trouble with Chinese" is the way one man put it when referring to the people of British Columbia. "It's an awful thing for Christians to do," said another. "It cost a lot of money," declared one who had evidently not gone very deeply into the ethics of the question, "who gonna pay for the picture, huh?"

WILL RENOVATE TURNBULL SHOP UNDER EXPERTS

Toronto Architect of Note Will Remodel Feterboro Store--Carry on Business.

START NEXT WEEK

The task of reconstructing the J. C. Turnbull Co. building which was partially burned in a destructive fire some time ago will be started next week, Mr. H. E. Hodgens, president and manager, told the Examiner today.

The renovation will be made under the supervision of Mr. Rolph, one of the leading architects of Toronto. Mr. Rolph is now in charge of the extensive alterations going forward in the T. Eaton store, whereby a ten storey addition replaces part of the old store, the work being carried out without interruption to business. Every confidence is held in the ability of this expert in construction and architectural work, and the Turnbull building when completed is expected to reflect credit on him and on the owners.

While the work is going on in the store, business will be conducted as usual. It is recognized by the management that this will be done under difficulties, but every effort will be made to make shopping as profitable and convenient as possible.

To Rush the Work.

The contractors are putting every available man on the construction work, and will hurry it through in the shortest possible time. When completed, Mr. Hodgens said, there will be a better and more convenient store than ever before.

STARVED HUBBY TO CARRY INSURANCE

London Man Carries Sad Tale of Woe Into Police Court.

LONDON, July 31. — (United Press.)— A London husband, who claimed he was starving to death because his wife spent all her housekeeping money on insurance, came into a police court here Monday with a sad tale of woe.

"My wife doesn't give me enough to eat," he said. "She has insured every member of the family, and is now carrying 23 insurances in all. It's a mania with her. She's even got four policies on the life of our two year old baby. The more money I give her for food the more she spends on insurance.

Asked why he didn't eject the insurance agent, the husband said the wily man always came when he was away.

The court regretted that the case was outside its jurisdiction.

TREES UPROOTED AND CROPS ARE DAMAGED

SAULT STE. MARIE, July 31. — Canadian Press. — In a violent wind and thunderstorm w ich hit this district at noon yesterday. Dozens of trees were uprooted, crops were damaged and other havoc created. Seven tenths of an inch of rain fell in half an hour, and the streets and basements were flooded. Electric light and power services were affected but the large industries escaped without loss.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THE NEW FAITH.

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The following clipping from the Mail and Empire sums up in the words of the Rev. E. R. Young the situation of Protestantism as it is at the present time. The rejection of a revealed religion and the substitution for it of the hazy ideas of men must show to all Christians how distinctive the new clergy and their new profession of faith have become. The whole bottom seems to have fallen out of Protestantism, thanks to the Protestant ministry. It is appalling.

READER.

"There never was a time when science was so much the handmaid of religion as she is today," stated Rev. E. R. Young in the course of his sermon on "Spiritual Life" in the Islington Methodist Church on Sunday evening. God and truth would not be mocked, he said. The Fundamentalists and the Modernists. One class looked upon faith and religion as a great venture of the individual soul, and the other class believed in organized and creedal religions, which faced men with iron rituals. The average man of today, said the preacher, preferred to work out the truth for himself rather than have it worked out for him. Every generation had to do its own thinking, for what was pure water to one generation might be stagnant to the next.

MONTHLY RUSH OF IMMIGRANTS TODAY

NEW YORK, July 31.— (Canadian Press.)— Entrants in monthly immigration sweepstakes will arrive at the barrier, Ambrose Channel Lightship, shortly before 12 o'clock to-night for the dash into quarantine. Sixteen ships bearing immigrants from almost every country in the world will make this port, when the August quota becomes operative.

The rush is not expected to exceed that of June 30, when the same number of vessels brought more than 18,000 strangers to this country and overwhelmed customs, immigration and public health officials in an effort to get them all landed.

Several steamships bound for the port of New York have been ordered to put into Boston, because a congestion is feared by officials here. The Tyrrhenia will discharge her steerage passengers at Boston, it was announced to-day, the Gothland will go to Philadelphia and the Finland will also divert to Boston.

U.S. NAVAL TRAINING SHIP VISITS KINGSTON

KINGSTON, July 31.—(Canadian Press). — The U. S. naval training ship Wilmington was in port last night on her way to Chicago, where she will be used in the training of cadets. The Wilmington was formerly a defence cruiser of the old type, and carries six guns mounted on the side. She was used on the Atlantic coast stations and will now be used on the lakes for the naval recruits.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Teresa Desmond ("Terry"), seven years old, left much to herself, believes in fairies and worships
Julie Dietze, the stage name of her beautiful half sister. She rides in a gorgeous car and talks of a millionaire.
Terrence Desmond, their father, is caretaker of an estate on Long Island and had such-and-such taken place in Ireland years ago (he claimed) he would have been a Lord. Julia's flippant talk about millionaires angers him—he is prone to rages.
Mrs. Peter Parmalee, owner of the house, wires that she is coming out to spend a few days.
Betty Sheen, her 17-year granddaughter is coming with her.
Miles Sheridan, is Betty's fiance.
Terry, fearing than an elegant teddy bear is to be taken from the house is discovered in the act of taking it out of Betty's room.

CHAPTER III.

Betty Scores a Triumph

The perfumes spilled! Terry was drenched with it. Somehow the bear's hind leg must have caught in the strip of lace on the dressing-table. Off came the lace and gold and glass came with it.

Powder rose from the floor like white smoke. A box of chocolates turned upside down and small brown shapes scattered like frightened mice. Stepping back, Terry trod on two or three, crushing them into the carpet.

"Petite bete! Petite diable!" shrieked Josephine, the maid, who had been sent up to fetch scarves for the ladies' shoulders.

She sprang at the guilty one, and shook her fiercely. No one had ever shaken Terry before, not even Father. The child was dumb with horror, but she clung to the brown bear.

Josephine bored her ears very hard, so hard that Terry's head spun as if a top were going round inside, and for an instant she almost lost consciousness, when she became aware, through a shower of sparks, that Betty Sheen stood in the doorway.

Betty must have run up, hearing the Frenchwoman's cries. To the bewildered child the figure in white was welcome as an angel. Escaping from Josephine she staggered across the room, sure of help and sanctuary.

Of course Miss Sheen would hold out kind arms and say: "Poor little thing! She meant no harm. Don't hurt her!"

But no! Betty did nothing angelic. She pushed the offender roughly away before her dress could be touched, and Terry fell.

"Who is the little brute? How dare she come into my room and throw my things about!" the girl exclaimed. "All my powder, and that lovely Paris perfume spilt! Oh, and look at the chocolates! The carpet's spoiled. Disgusting! Is she a thief?"

"It is a child of the caretakers, Mademoiselle," said Josephine, in English. "I saw her in the basement. But she must have come to steal. See, she has taken that toy; and maybe other things!"

By this time Terry had stumbled to her feet, brought to her senses by that word "steal."

"I'm not a thief!" she gasped. "You're wicked to call me that. You're both wicked! I took Teddy because—I love him, and you'd thrown him away."

"You're an impudent brat!" snapped Miss Sheen, eyes very bright, cheeks scarlet. "Josephine, take that thing away from her. She shan't have it."

Josephine, nothing loth, grasped Terry by the shoulder. But suddenly the child saw red. She felt that cruel forces of injustice were arrayed against her. All that was deepest in herself resisted.

She struggled silently at first, then, when Josephine had wrenched her arm, she gave one cry, seized the Frenchwoman's dress and tore it from the waistband.

Betty and the maid both screamed, actually frightened by the little fury with the passion-pale face, blazing dark eyes and mane of flame-red hair.

Downstairs the alarm had been given. Mrs. Parmalee had hurried to the foot of the stairs when Betty ran up; and stood there calling on Desmond for help. There were burglars in the bedrooms! Miss Sheen was being murdered!

* * *

The caretaker, big and handsome still, though lamed with rheumatism, made a fine showing with an old-fashioned pistol as he limped to the rescue but tha desperate cry from Terry reached Mary Desmond's ear an waked her mother-courage. Someone was hurting her child! The mild woman became a tigress.

She pushed past Desmond on the stairs, and reached the door of the lighted bedroom before him.

Instantly Terry flew to her arms—the eternal refuge! But she did not shed tears or accuse Betty and Josephine. Something kept her silent, some mystic race-memory forbade the child to throw the blame on others, though she had lost her first sense guilt.

It was Miss Sheen and her maid who broke into accusations

"Take the creature away!" Betty shrilled. "She's a little beast—a thief. She sneaked in here to steal my things. I'm going to tell grandmother, and have you all discharged."

Desmond was in time to hear these words, and his temper bla ed up. He himself might have called the child "names," but no one else should do it.

"Discharge us indeed!" he flung at Miss Sheen. "We'll discharge ourselves, damn it! And damn you for your lie! My daughter's no thief! Who are you to treat me like the dirt underfoot, you little upstart? Me that has the blood of kings in my veins! I'll go down now and warn your old grandmother that we'll not stay the night in her cursed house."

* * *

They did say the night, but Mrs. Parmalee had to beg Desmond to remain. She appealed to his chivalry, his wife's sense of decorum. She and her grand-daughter must not be abandoned, left helpless, in a lonely house at night. Perhaps, in the end, the storm might have blown over with mutual concessions, if it had not been for Betty Sheen. But Betty didn't easily forgive or forget.

When Mrs. Parmalee had heard the story from both sides she urged upon her grand-daughter the fact that as caretakers the Desmonds were perfect.

They were of a superior class, yet had no airs. They were honest. The woman had kept the house in good condition, and the man looked after the whole place to a certain extent.

What if he had hot temper? What if the child was pert and spoiled? In future the little pest could be confined to the basement!

Betty, however, would not "look over" what had passed. If the Desmonds stayed, it would be their triumph, her defeat.

Miss Sheen said that she would "hate Silverwood, if those people were in it," and Mrs. Parmalee didn't want her grand-daughter to hate Silverwood.

She had come there as a bride. She wished Betty to come as a bride, and live in the house with Miles Sheridan, who had loved it in his boyhood.

She did not, therefore, insist. The Desmonds were merely asked to stay until they had been replaced. And the day of the flitting was Terry's second milestone.

Labor-Saver Results Cutting Bias Folds.

OKLAHAMA CITY, Okla., July 31.— Mother may think Mrs. Dora Delaney of this city when she sits down to measure and fold and cut material for her own and baby's dresses.

For Mrs. Delaney has invented a device by which all this cutting and folding into hems ruffles and bands, is reduced to the least amount of wwork. And all it consists of is one of the gilt knobs atop baby's crib, two discs of a watch and a discarded six-inch tin tube about three-eighths inch in diameter!

Mrs. Delaney got the idea for this device after struggling through pleats and ruffles and hems of all sorts, until it made her dizzy. Too tired to continue this sewing, she started working with her brain.

The result was this invention for which Mrs. Dalaney says she has just refused an offer of $85,000!

he labor-saving invention is called a "Handy Help," and is made to fit on any pair of scissors. While the dressmaker cuts the cloth for a bias fold, or a two-inch ruffle or a band the little "Handy Help" sifts chalk through tiny perforations and marks a line exactly where she wants it for the next cut.

Think of the joy of snipping gaily down long lengths of grievous crepe de chine for a bias fold and not having to measure and turn down the widtr for the next fold.

Mrs. Delaney is marketing her invention by herself, and has a crops of salespeople selling them for her.

THE CHURCH UNIONISTS RAISING OBJECTIONS

TORONTO, July 31.—(Canadian Press).—Objections are being raised by the Presbyterian Church Association to the Church Union Enabling Bill, which was approved by the General Assembly.

They declare the bill is unfair. In support of their contention they are sending out from their office in Toronto a special statement prepared by Rev. Dr. J. D. Cunningham. He states that the bill seeks to rob the minority, by force of legislation, of those rights which belong to the minority by common law. Dr. Cunningham asserts the three uniting churches do not require a bill to accomplish union, a bill only being required to transfer property, and calls upon the members of Parliament to protect the sacred rights of the minority.

FRANCE AND BELGIUM HANDED THEIR REPLIES TO CURZON YESTERDAY

There Seems But Little Hope of France and England Reaching An Understanding on the Reparations Question.

STILL IN SECRET.

LONDON, July 31. — Canadian Press. — The French and Belgian ambassadors last evening handed to Lord Curzon, the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, the replies of their governments to the British note proposing negotiations with Germany to solve the problem of the Ruhr and the greater problem of German reparations. Thus commonplace enough, ended one chapter in the trying negotiations.

Yet it is a question in the mind of the British public whether these notes do more than open another chapter in the wearisome process. If Premier Baldwin has t ought about any change resembling finality or an allied agreement, he will be acclaimed as a miracle worker. But there are no signs that a miracle has been worked.

Premier Baldwin and Lord Curzon plainly cherish no such optimism. Both spoke briefly in Parliament, the Commons and the Lords, respectively, yesterday, on the position of the negotiations at present. Both were terse; neither voiced any hope that Great Britain and France had drawn closer together.

There will be an attempt to discuss the topic before parliament adjourns on Thursday as the members are eager to learn the exact aspect of affairs.

No promise was given yesterday that they would likely see the curtain raised. The Premier, speaking only an hour or so before the Foreign Secretary received the ambassadors, told the Commons it was very doubtful whether anything would be received which could be published in Thursday's debate. The Premier gave one gloomy hint. "I am afraid," he said, "it will only be a continuation of the negotiations."

Lord Curzon informed the Lords with an air of weary resignation he certainly would give them a statement on Thursday if it were within his power to do so; but his manner clearly indicated that he did not think it would.

No hints have come across the Channel that Premier Poincare has abandoned or even modified the views which his government has previously held tenaciously; and on every opportunity he has reiterated the planks in his platform, that there will be no beginning of conversations with Germany until and unless Germany formally renounces passive resistance in the Ruhr and that there will be no withdrawal from the Ruhr until Germany has paid France all that she demands.

That seems to be the deep gulf which no minor concessions that France makes to Great Britain can bridge.

One outstanding feature of this latest chapter in allied dealings has been the deep secrecy which has enshrouded it. There has been no attempted revelations of details of the British note nor of the French and Belgian replies on any important points except such as intelligent guesswork based on what knowledge of the policies of the two governments could offer.

Seldom have secrets known to the Foreign Offices and to the Cabinets in half a dozen countries been so successfully secreted. In the previous stages of the debate all the important facts have been quickly published and the French newspapers have been the quickest and the most sure in their knowledge making allowances for their natural leanings towards placing French interests in the centre of the picture.

The German and Italian ambassadors also visited Lord Curzon this afternoon but there is no reason to believe their visit was connected with reparations for Germany still is in the position of awaiting a reply to her latest communication. It is believed that the German ambassador wanted to discuss the latest developments in the financial chaos of his country.

It is not yet known whether the Italian armbassador presented any written answer to the British note.

CAMPBELLFORD BEAT BRIGHTON

The Visitors Hopes Were Crushed by an Adverse Score of 9-4.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 31. — Rooters from Brighton, some of them sedate and mature business men, swooped down on Campbellford yesterday evening, with sounding brass and tinkling cymbals, firm in the faith that their natty and dashing young ball players would add another to their long string of victories. Alas, for human hopes. The visiting fans met with the disappointment of their lives when they witnessed the team upon which their faith was fastened, trimmed to the most fastidious royal taste, outbatted, outfielded and outclassed in every phase of the game. The score was 9-4 at the end of the best contest seen on the local diamond this year, and by common consent one of the most finely played in the league.

The attendance was fair, but there were as many spectators from Brighton as from Campbellford. Like a bunch of sheep and goats, the two elements naturally fell apart, and each side vied with the other in cheering their teams on to victory. McKee, the third baseman on the visiting team, is the big noise among the Brighton players. In private life he is a dentist, skilled in the art of putting people under the influence of anaesthetics, and it seems to be his role to try the same tactics on the opposing pitcher. McKee scored two of the four runs made by the visitors. He is a waiter, and three times, in five times at bat, got to first on balls. Once he smote the atmosphere three times and landed on nothing concere, and on another occasion he died on an easy roller to Eagleson.

He is certainly a player of temperament. He ragged his own umpire, W. Adams, of Brighton, with whose work on balls and strikes, Campbellford had but little criticism, and engaged in wordy argument with Manager Davidson, only to be worsted.

Every time McKee went to bat he glared at Brody with a most ferocious glare, at the same time scraping out two holes with his calks in the sack at the plate. By applying himself to this work he managed to scoop out cavities at least a foot in depth, pawing the air like an infuriated Taurus that has caught sight of a red garment. When he stood in these caverns he was at least a foot short in visible stature, and it would have bothered any pitcher to accommodate his delivery to the changing posture of the batter. Had the game lasted much longer McKee could probably have managed to dig a trench deep enough in which to hide completely. Brody pitched the entire nine innings, and was at his best when there were men on bases. Innings after innings he retired the side, leaving runners to cool their heels on the bags. His fielding too was of professional brood, and he showed the speed displayed in former games in covering first base to take throws from Weston.

It was good fielding and timely hitting that won the game for Campbellford. They ran up a score of three in the first innings on a single by Hume, a base on balls by West, and hits by Weston and Eagleson.

In the third, Nesbitt, Hume, and West made safe hits when Weston cleared the bags with a sizzling double to left centre. Shillinglaw and Blakely both hit safely in this inning ,and Weston was home with the fourth run.

Nesbitt's Four-Bagger.

It was in the sixth that the best hit of the game was made, a four-bagger by Nesbitt, after two men, Blakely and Cowell, had been retired. The ball went clear across the race track, and would probably have been drowned in the Trent River but for the collision with the right field fence.

Only three home runs have been made in the League this year, all by Campbellford players, and on their own diamond. Weston, Hume, and Nesbitt are the men who have made the circuit without a halt.

The home team's ninth run was made in the seventh on a triple by Weston, who tallied when Eagleson singled. Brady sent Eagleson to second on a safety, but the latter was thrown out by the Brighton catcher trying to steal third.

McKee Scores First Run.

Brady held the visitors scoreless up to their half of the sixth, when McKee, the post-hole digger, by watchful waiting, managed to reach first. He stole his way around to third, and waltzed across the plate, when Soloman, the 16-year-old shortstop for Brighton, died on a fly to Weston.

McKee was the first to score again in the eighth after he had waited out Brady, committed a double off Coveney, and come in from third on Solomon's single. Strong and Solomon both scored in this inning. That ended the run-getting by Brighton.

Some Good Plays.

There was a brilliant double play which retired the Brightons in the third innings. Walt hit safely to centre and went to third on Halliday's hit to right. The latter stole second, and with no one out it looks as if the visitors were certain to score. The McKee, the irrepressible, made three futile smashes at Brady's curves. Strong sent a sky-scraper to the right, but Hume was under it after a hard run, and shot the ball to West, who tagged out Halliday at second.

In the fourth inning the visitors were retired with only three men up. Solomon perished on a fly to Weston, and Ross sent a fly to Cowell, who made a running catch and fell just as the ball landed on his glove. The game young third baseman rolled over and over on the grass, but hung like grim death to the sphere. Then Hare was out, Eagleson to Weston.

The line-up:

By innings—

| | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|

Holmes Makes Hit.

Holmes, who had a toe crushed on Saturday, and who is lame as a result, batted for Blakely in the eighth and made a single to centre, limping to first ahead of the throw. Shillinglaw took his place on the bases.

Campbellford is now safe in third place, with 7 games won and five lost, a percentage of .84.

GOOD WEATHER CONDITIONS ARE HELPING CROPS

The Prairie Provinces Are Making Fine Headway, According to Government Report — Small Hail Damage.

BLACK RUST.

WINNIPEG, July 31. — Canadian Press).—Favorable weather has prevailed during the past week with scattered showers over the prairie provinces, crops are making fine headway and the situation is very promising according to the weekly report issued by the agricultural department, Canadian Pacific Railway, here to-day. Rye harvesting is already well under way and is proving a fair crop. There has been some hail damage in Alberta, but the loss is not as heavy or extensive as in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, but more particularly in the former province. Present weather conditions are unfavorable to propagation, the report states, but it will be at least ten day before it can be determined what damage has been done. Early varieties such as ruby wheat, will, it is expected escape rust owing to advanced development. Throughout the West, it is stater, there is considerable discoloration of the stalks of wheat, caused by the damp weather which has been mistaken by many farmers for rust.

Wheat cutting has commenced on a small scale in Manitoba in the Winkler and Morden districts, one farmer at the latter point having already cut thirty acres ,samples of which weighed sixty three pounds to the bushel.

Saskatchewan has experienced splendid weather for crop development generally clear and sunshine with light winds. It is expected that harvesting in this Province will commence in the southern districts in about 10 days' time.

Condition in Alberta continue favorable, wheat is filling and showing healthy colour, with good heads and thick heavy stalk. Harvest activities will, it is said, be commenced in two weeks' time.

On the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway the weather has been generally warm and all grains are in excellent condition..

CANADIAN RAILWAYS TO BE SELF-SUPPORTING

Sir Henry Thornton Says Co-ordination of Lines Will Be Completed in Three Years' Time.

MONTREAL, July 31. — (Canadian Press).—In about three years' time the Canadian National Railways may be expected to have ceased to be a burden on the pockets of the taxpayer, Sir Henry Thornton, chairman of the Government railways, declared here yesterday afternoon. He added however, the proviso that such would be the case if no unforeseen disaster struck Canada.

Sir Henry explained that the different lines making up the Canadian Government system formerly rivals and mostly weak, could not be co-ordinated and brought into harmony in a few months, but progress was being made. Net receipts were already improving greatly and showed signs of continuing to improve. He believed that with normal luck this year would end much better than last year still much better. Another three years ought to see the end of the succession of deficits.

Sir Henry stated that "we have enemies and we know it and we know we have a stand-up fight before us. believe in this thing and I am going through with it and will fight to the end.. We will get out, not when the politicians tell us, not when the big capital interests tell us, but only when the people of Canada themselves tells us they consider us a failure and want to get rid of our administration.

Speaking of the consequences of failure, Sir Henry said an alternative would be to give the Canadian Pacific Railway the whole system. "That sounds feasible, but I don't think the people of Canada would allow the Government to hand over the whole line to the C. P. R. and I doubt whether the C. P. R. would take it if offered them"

COLBORNE LOST TO WARKWORTH

A Good Crowd Attended Northumberland League Fixture.

WARKWORTH, July 31. — Warkworth beat Colborne at Colborne in a Northumberland League fixture played yesterday. A good crowd of fans from Warkworth attended the game. The Warkworth team did not play up to last Wednesday's form ,when they defeated Trenton, but had no difficulty however, in beating Colborne. Brighton losing to Campbellford, now puts Warkworth in second place in the Northumberland league.

Mulhall hit a homer in the third which brings the Warkworth home run total up to eight. The home team now have a splendid chance of entering the finals. Fred White of Warkworth acted as plate umpire, and Crossey of Colborne was umpire on bases.

The line up was as follows:

Warkworth — Zufelt p; Wilson c; Zufelt 1b; Poole 2b; Dick 3b; Mulhall ss;Dawson lf; Beatty rf; McGregor cf.

EDUCATE FARMERS IN GROWING CASTOR BEANS

ROME, July 31 (United Press).—Following a lengthy conference between the Minister of Industry and his experts, plans for a movement to educate Italian farmers in the growing of the castor bean were announced.

OBITUARY

MRS. FRANK PETHICK.

The death of Mrs. Frank Pethick took place in Rochester, N.Y., on Saturday, 28th July, after a long illness. The funeral was held on Monday, 30th July.

The deceased, who befire her marriage was May Nelson, was the youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Nelson, of Lakefield, and was married about twenty-five years ago to Frank Pethick, of Rochester, where she has resided ever since. She is survived by her husband and two sons, Francis and William, and two sisters, Mrs. R. J. McWilliams, of Peterborough, and Mrs. W. F. Trude, of Smith.

MISS JOSEPHINE GEARY.

Miss Josephine C. Geary, for 20 years secretary to the Judges of the Supreme Court of Canada, and latterly secretary to Mr. Justice Anglin, passed away at her residence, 283 Lisgar Street, Ottawa. Death followed a lingering illness, and was due to organic trouble.

Miss Geary was born in Ennismore and had resided in Ottawa since 1903. She attended St. Joseph's Church for several years, and latterly had attended St. Patrick's Church. Though of a quiet and retiring nature, Miss Geary had a large number of friends who were grieved to hear of her passing.

Left to mourn her are four brothers and four sisters. The funeral took place from 283 Lisgar Street at 8.45 a.m. on Monday to St. Patrick's Church. Burial in Peterborough.

Seeking Solution to Shipping Troubles.

WINNIPEG, July 31 (Canadian Press). — To find some means of ending the lake shipping deadlock caused by the recent Lake Rates legislation, the Board of Grain Commissioners will hold a public meeting in Winnipeg on 7th August. The Commission will hear representations and suggestions from shippers, exporters, shipping agents, and everyone interested in the grain trade.

"All differences which may impede the movements of the fall grain crop must be removed," said Matthew Snow, member of the Commission, in announcing the meeting. The Board will go into conference after the meeting, Mr. Snow expected, in order that the grain movement is free to proceed in its normal channel.

STEPS TO STOP PUBLICATION OF DIVORCE NEWS

Parliamentary Committee Would Give the Judge Authority to Decide What Shall Be Published.

STRONG OPPOSITION.

LONDON, July 31. — (Canadian Press.) — The Parliamentary committee appointed to report on the proposed bill aiming to greatly curtail press reports on divorce proceedings, which has been strongly criticized by the newspapers as undue interference with the liberty of the press, last night issued its report, which is against the hearing of all cases in camera and also against giving the judge authority to decide what shall be published.

The committee submits an amended bill which prohibits the publication in any judicial proceedings of any indecent matter or medical, surgical or physiological details calculated to injure public morals, while in divorce, judicial separation of military proceedings nothing shall be published except the following:

First, the names, addresses and descriptions of the parties and witnesses; second, the grounds on which the proceedings were brought and resisted, as set forth in the petition and answer; third, the judges' summing up, the jury's verdict, and the court's judgment.

There is certain to be a strong outcry by the press against the amended bill.

Farmers Faced With Serious Labor Shortage.

TORONTO, July 31.—(Canadian Press.)— Farmers are in the thick of their harvesting, and in many cases have been badly handicapped by lack of help. The shortage was never greater, says the report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture yesterday. In some cases as high as $65 a month with board is offered with little response. Leeds county reports that border counties find it hard to compete with the prices paid to harvesters by farmers across the river.

Hay has been cut and housed under most favorablie conditions, and the yield is also first class. In many cases the grain harvest has overtaken haying, to the detriment of the latter crop. Fall wheat is very variable both in yield and quality. The average yield for the Province is estimated to be about twenty bushels an acre.

BERLIN SUFFERS FROM SERIOUS SHORTAGE OF BOTH FOOD AND MONEY

France Expects to Harvest Good Crops.

PARIS, July 31. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—Good crops in all the districts of France are expected this year. Last year the crops were excellent in some districts and poor in others.

With the first arrivals of this year's wheat in the market and plentiful offers of old stock at the same time there was a drop in the price of wheat amounting to five francs per capita (3.67 bushels) in the last ten days. Wheat is now selling at 82 francs per quintal compared with 95 to 97 francs which were offered some weeks ago.

NEW FLYING RECORD.

PORT WASHINGTON, New York, July 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Lieutenant Rutledge Irvine, flying a new Navy Curtis seaplane, yesterday established a new speed record for seaplanes of 175.3 miles per hour. The previous record was 146.

Cuno Ministry Taking Steps to Import Potatoes and Lard—Million Marks For a Dollar.

CABINET CRISIS.

BERLIN, July 31. — Canadian Press.- Potatoes and fats are two commodities destined to play an important part in determining the Cuno ministry's further tenure of office. If the government succeeds in effecting an early improvement in the food situation in Greater Berlin and other industrial centres, particularly in the Ruhr, the social and political crisis which threw Berlin into a panic last week, will have been overcome.

The government yesterday started out on a hurried marketing trip in Holland and Denmark, having instructed the Reichsband to surrender a liberal share of its reserves of foreign currencies in order to meet

THE GRAND ENCAMPMENT.

The choosing of Peterborough as the location for this year's grand encampment of the I.O.O.F. is not only a very good thing for this city but it is also a challenge to the enterprise and hospitality of the community.

There will be hundreds of visitors during the two days of the encampment next week and the local committee, patriotically jealous of the reputation of their home city, are anxious that their guests shall go away from Peterborough, feeling that they have been royally entertained and impressed with the hospitality of the people of this city.

Therefore, the co-operation of the public generally is urged and one special way in which the visitors can be shown that Peterborough is glad to see them and is interested in their order and its ideal is pointed out.

That is, that the city shall be decorated as lavishly as possible and the merchants are particularly urged to contribute their share in this feature of the entertainment programme by decorating their premises and by using the I.O.O.F. colours, orange and purple, in their window dressing during the period of the encampment.

Peterborough won laurels on the last occasion the Grand Encampment was held here for the extent and beauty of the decorations used.

FALSELY ACCUSED.

However excellent may have been the idea behind the "No-More-War" parade in Toronto on Sunday, the promoters were not justified in singling out the Boy Scout movement as typical of militarism and therefore deserving attack as a menace to peace.

There is no militarism in the Scout movement, and if there are no more wars until this most excellent training system starts one the world should be fairly peaceful for the next few hundred years.

A few simple military manoeuvres are used by the Scouts merely to add the element of discipline, and to make it possible for them to move as a unit rather than as a mob, but no attempt has been made to make soldiers of them or to lead their thoughts in the direction of a military career.

The "No-More-War" leaders have evidently made a very cursory study of Boy Scout work when they pick on this organization as one likely to disturb the peace of the world.

As for military training in the schools there is only enough to teach youngsters some idea of discipline—the course is not extensive enough to instill a spirit of militarism in the boys.

David Harum used to say that a "certain amount of fleas is good for a dog. They keep him from worrying too much over the fact that he is a dog."

War will never be stopped by parades or by eliminating the Boy Scout and cadet training, because the cause of war lies much deeper beneath the surface than such elements.

MR. HAY'S RETIREMENT.

The decision of F. Wellington Hay, Leader of the Ontario Liberal party, who was defeated in his own constituency in the Provincial election, not to remain in politics is perhaps not to be wondered at, but is a matter for regret nevertheless, and the majority of the people of Ontario, regardless of their political affiliations, will be sorry to learn that his services are not to be available in the next session.

Mr. Hay is the kind of public man that is needed in the Legislature.

There is nothing of the professional politician about him, no hint of any desire to make politics merely a trade or a life job.

He is merely a business man who felt that by applying to the affairs of Ontario the same principles as he used in the transaction of his own affairs he could be of service to his fellow-citizens and do something to benefit Ontario.

The Opposition would be the better for having Mr. Hay in its ranks, and the Government would gain by reason of the constructive and helpful criticism upon which they could count from the Liberal Leader.

Apparently, however, his decision to retire cannot be shaken.

That is unfortunate, for there is a place for such men in the Legislature, and it would be a pity if both the ex-Premier and the head of the Ontario Liberals were to vanish from the Provincial arena.

THE DEADLY GRADE CROSSING.

No fewer than twenty-four people were killed in the United States on Sunday as a result of trains colliding with automobiles at level crossings.

This is the greatest one day's harvest of death through this form of accident, and the carnage is sufficient surely to impress upon every motorist's mind the fact that the quickest possible route to the cemetery lies over a grade crossing.

It is all very well to argue that these death-traps should be abolished, or at least be protected, but at present they are in existence in every part of the country, and drivers of cars will have to let their own judgment and common sense be their protection.

Most of the victims of Sunday's accidents were killed because the drivers of their cars attempted to gain a few seconds' time by trying to beat the oncoming train across the crossing.

It is a dangerous game at best, and the wise motorist will be satisfied to give the train the right-of-way at all times, realizing that gambling with death is too hazardous a pastime to tackle merely to save a delay of a moment or so.

In the vicinity of Peterborough there are several dangerous crossings, in approaching which every driver should remember the old advice, "Stop, Look and Listen."

LIGHTNING RODS WORTH THEIR COST.

There has grown up of late years an impression, almost generally held, that lightning rods were of little or no efficacy. As a result, not one building in a hundred—probably not one in a thousand, taking the country over—has this form of protection, and fires started by lightning are numerous, says the New York Times. A sudden and somewhat belated realization of this fact has moved the Board of Fire Underwriters to begin preaching sound doctrine as to lightning rods, to tell why they have fallen into disrepute, and to explain when one of them serves a good and when, instead of a faithful guardian, it becomes a standing invitation to the bolts it pretends to ward off.

The truth is that a lightning rod, to be useful, must be put up by somebody who not only is honest—and lightning-rod agents, whether justly or not, managed to create a widespread belief that they were not honest—but also has enough knowledge of the manners and habits of electric discharges to arrange for their safe passage between the clouds and the ground. That knowledge has been lacking in the agents at least as often as the honesty, and probably much oftener.

And after a lightning rod has been put up properly, with as few sharp turns as possible, that is, and has been well insulated and grounded deep enough to reach moist earth, it has to receive intelligent care to see that these conditions persist, as they will not do unless the intelligent care is given year after year. The rules are simple and easily can be learned by any householder, and, if they are learned and observed, the lightning rod will serve its designed purpose to a degree that justifies ranking it among the several really great achievements of its distinguished inventor, Benjamin Franklin. It is not needed on steel frame buildings, and it is so nearly needless on houses in city blocks that for them it hardly is worth its cost, but isolated houses in the suburbs and out in the country are subjected to a considerable and entirely unnecessary risk when left unprotected by this too neglected device.

CRIME PREVENTION.

In the midst of the pursuit and uproar following the flight of the Toronto bank robbers it is well to ask why such things as the shooting down of innocent bank messengers with a rich haul in money should be. A perusal of what happened in the Toronto affair creates the belief that the adoption of reasonable precautions would have made the feat of the robbers, if not impossible, at least more difficult.

At the present day the men who are warring against society have the initial advantage. They can select the point for their attack and can hope to realize profit from the surprise. The forces of the law, on the contrary, are put in the position of having a stern chase before them, and that is a long one.

The present-day success of police forces against criminals is not so much in the direct prevention of crime as in punishing the perpetrators, and acting as a deterrent. It should be possible for police systems to fill a larger hole in the direct prevention of robberies such as the Toronto one.

It is easily understood that the robbers who descended on Toronto were not amateur thieves. They evinced skill in both planning and execution, indicating their education in crime. It would be surprising if some of the band had not some prison experience.

With the foregoing considerations borne in mind it should be within the bounds of achievement for the organization of a special preventive police. An extensive criminal intelligence service should form part of it. The haunts of potential criminals should be watched. Men who have served sentences in prison should not be hounded, but they should be under a surveillance for a certain number of years after their discharge. The prison sentence should therefore include not only confinement in cells, but restriction to certain areas afterwards in matters of larceny, robbery and other misdeeds that serve as an education in the criminal profession. The reform of prisoners, in fact, should continue long after they quit the jails and penitentiaries.

In addition, deep and exhaustive research is required into the cause of crime. Certain conditions in large cities and bad homes in towns and villages furnish their quota of desperadoes. On investigation and report on such conditions a sincere attempt should be made of their rectification. If robberies and murders should increase, it may also become necessary to establish almost universal identification bureaus.

Another means for increasing the difficulty of criminals would be the education of the public into accurate methods of observation for purposes of future identification. The ability of spectators to supply full and exact descriptions of persons whose apprehension for crimes in the open is sought would materially assist in the detection of criminals and their deterrence.

Above all, the adoption of ample precautions against attacks on bank messengers and other persons whose duties include the carriage of large sums of money would save in the end not only many thousands of dollars but lives and disablement. In the conveying of much money daily from such fixed quarters as bank clearing houses it would pay to employ closed and armored automobiles. But a sufficiency of extra guards should also be provided. It should be recognized that the loss caused by such unlawful transactions as the Toronto robbery includes not only the money actually stolen, but the hospital and wage bills of the wounded messengers, the rewards payable for the capture of the thieves, and the expenses of the extended police search to the community. It would therefore be profitable to spend more on the defensive forces.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Wonder if anybody has thought about looking for the bank bandits in Toronto's new Union Station?

Unfortunately the report of the capture of the bandits was like the story of Mark Twain's death.

Ever notice how many wild stories start on Sunday when there are no newspapers to check up the accuracy of the reports?

Level crossing accidents continue to increase. And the pity of it is everyone could be avoided if motorists would only stop, look and listen.

Non-stop motoring is the newest specimen of fool stunts. It is about as silly as its predecessors.

The exit of Mr. Ramsden from the Hydro-electric Commission seems to have been accompanied by several electrical disturbances.

The story that one of the Toronto bandits was spotted is no doubt due to the fact that an eye-witness states that one of the hold-up gang had a pimply face.

Soon the coal dealer will be singing over the telephone, "Yes, We Have No Coal Today."

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, July 31. — There was a fair, steady market for good quality butcher cattle, at from $7.00 to $7.60. Two or three loads extra choice, heavy steers about 1,200 pounds for killing, sold at $8.00.

A demand for about 300 heavy steers for export, made a little firmer market in this class at from $7.50 to $8.00.

For the balance of the cattle offerings, with a total run of over 4,400, about 1,300 or 1,400 were Western cattle . The load was too much for an already weakened market, and with the exceptions above named, the trade was very slow and draggy.

There was little demand for the common and half medium butcher stuff, at prices barely steady with last week's declines. The Western offering included a lot of feeders of only fair quality, and prices were rather weak, at from $4.00 to $5.00 for heifers, $5.00 to $5.50 for the feeding steers. Western cows were weak at from $4.00 to $5.00. There would be quite a considerable holdover at the close yesterday.

Lambs firmer at $13.50 to $13.75, tops.

Hogs steady at $8.25 f.o.b. and $8.85 fed and watered.

Farmers and shippers are reminded that there will be no market next Monday (Civic Holiday), and should govern themselves accordingly.

Receipts.

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 2,244 cars, 4,412 cattle, 522 calves, 1,613 hogs, 847 sheep and lambs, 17 horses.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, July 31 (Canadian Press). — Unfavourable crop reports from Manitoba and Saskatchewan had much to do yesterday with lifting the value of wheat here. Prices closed unsettled 1-2c to 1 3-8c net higher, September 96 3-4c to 96 7-8c, and December $1.00 1-4 to $1.00 3-8.

Corn finished at a range varying from 1 5-8c to 1 3-4c decline to 3-8c advance, oats at 7-8c setback to 1-8c to 1-4c gain, and provisions 5c to 10c down.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, July 31 (Canadian Press). — Receipts, 2,937 cattle and calves, 838 hogs, and 153 sheep and lambs.

There was a better class of cattle offerings on the market yesterday, with prices showing about steady. Best killing classes were in demand, good steers making $5.00 to $6.50, and good heifers $4.00 to $5.50.

The market for thick smooths and select bacon hogs remains unchanged with packers offering 2c to 4c less on No. 1 and No. 2 sows.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, July 31 (Canadian Press). — The market is again firmer for the better grades. Specials and extras are increasingly scarce, and the demand for the better grades is still heavy. Receipts are very much lighter in Ontario, though there is an improvement in quality.

Toronto dealers paying delivered extras 29c to 30c, firsts 25c, seconds 18c to 19c. Jobbing specials 36c to 37c, extras 34c to 35c, firsts 30c to 31c, seconds 26c.

Montreal steady and higher. Specials 37c, extras 33c, seconds 24c.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, July 31 (Canadian Press). — The domestic cash grain market was dull yesterday, with little demand in evidence, but prices were firm. There was no improvement in the flour market. The market for millfeed was without any new feature. A steady feeling prevails in the rolled oats market. There was no change in the condition of the market for baled hay. Prices for all grades of eggs are being maintained under a good steady demand. The potato market was rather quiet. There is a lull in the demand for butter, but the feeling is firm. The tone of the cheese market is steady.

OFFICERS ELECTED WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Annual Meeting of West Northumberland District Delegates—A Good Programme.

COBOURG, July 31.—The annual meeting of the West Northumberland Women's Institutes was held recently, with a large attendance of delegates from the different branches of the district. As the president, Mrs. F. Nichol was not able to be present, the second vice-president, Mrs. F. Standly presided. Mrs. A. Nill, first vice-president gave an interesting address in her capacity as Director for this Division on the Federal Board. She outlined the work the Board has in view.

The financial report was most satisfactory. The total receipts for the year were $2,655.64 and the expenditure $1,504.54, leaving a balance on hand of $1,151.10. The membership has increased by 38. Much good work has been done. Large donations of money and supplies have been sent the Northern Ontario fire sufferers and generous help given the Childrens Shelter and in every community the Institute has taken an inteerst in home and school welfare. Prizes has been given at school fairs and contests among the girls. Demonstration lectures were held at Fenella and one is now in progress at Grafton.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected:

Mrs. A. Nill, Fenella, president.

Mrs. W. H. Mann, Baltimore, first vice-president.

Mrs. Jessie Phillips, Grafton, second vice-president.

Mrs. R. C. Allan, Cobourg, secretary-treasurer.

Mesdames Butler, Bray, Eagleson, Davey, Burgess, Bradley, Wait and Misses Stevenson and Jewell, District Directors.

Mrs. Davey—District Representative to Federal Board.

Mrs. O. Butler, Mrs. A. H. Middleton, auditors.

The secretary on motion was instructed to send a vote of thanks and a resolution of sympathy to Mrs. Nichols, our retiring president.

Excellent Programme.

An excellent programme was given. Mrs. Davey gave an address on the "Training of Girls" and recitations were contributed by Mrs. Precious and Miss Jewell. Dr. Eadie of Toronto gave an instrumental selection that was much appreciated. Miss Staples sang very sweetly, and with Miss Richards gave a duet that delighted the audience.

An invitation was kindly extended to Roseneath to hold the next annual meeting there and it was cordially accepted.

The Baltimore branch served a delicious luncheon and a hearty vote of thanks, moved by Mrs. Jibb and Mrs. Middleton, was responded to very graciously by the Baltimore president, Mrs. Sully.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, July 31.—A coroner's inquest was held at Brighton this week to inquire into the death of William Smith at Lakeport, who was crushed by falling gravel in a pit near Trenton. The verdict was as follows:

"We find that the deceased William Smith came to his death on July 11, 1923 at the township of Murray, County of Northumberland, while employed in a gravel pit near Trenton on Canadian Pacific Railway by being thrown against the journal box on steam shovel and crushed by falling gravel from the high bank.

"We find according to the evidence that there was no negligence on the part of any one concerned and the accident was unavoidable in carrying on such work as taking gravel from high banks with a steam shovel."

Grafton Boy Injured.

As Mr. Wm. Heenan was motoring from Grafton to Cobourg on Wednesday, his little son George in some way got the car door opened and fell out on the road, when the car was going at a good rate of speed.

He received a severe cut above the eye that required several stitches, but was not dangerously injured.

Successful Excursion.

Three hundred and fifty people from Cobourg, Port Hope and different parts of Cobourg District enjoyed a very pleasant excursion to Rochester on Wednesday, which was held under auspices of the Young Peoples' Societies of the Cobourg Methodist District in honor of Rev. Dr. W. E. Smith, who has been for over twenty-five years the representative of the Young People's Leagues of Cobourg District as Medical Missionary in West China. Dr. Smith has been in Canada for nearly a year on furlough, and expects to start for China again in a few weeks time. Since his arrival here, his wife, whose devoted service is well known, has passed away. The District Leagues some years ago presented Dr. and Mrs. Smith with a small organ that proved of much service in their work. The net proceeds of the excursion Wednesday will be used to purchase a phonograph or Victrola for Dr. Smith's use in China.

HER BABY SUFFERED WITH SUMMER COMPLAINT

A fact mothers must face is that summer complaint with the prostration, often verging on collapse, which sometimes accompanies this disease, makes it one of the most serious and dangerous to contend with during the hot months.

Thousands of infants die annually whose lives could have no doubt been saved by the timely use of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and it has been the experience of thousands of mothers during the past 78 years this valuable preparation has been on the market, that it is the safest and most effective remedy for use in all cases of looseness of the bowels.

Mrs. S. Lafontaine, Great Desert, Ont., writes:—"My baby, when a year old, was suffering with summer complaint. Two doctors attended him, but nothing would stop the vomiting and diarrhoea. A friend told me to try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and after the second dose the baby was better and I can say it saved my baby's life.

I wouldn't be without a bottle of 'Dr. Fowler's' in the house for untold gold.''

AUSTRALIAN FRUITS PROSPER.

SYDNEY, Australia, July 31.—(Associated Press)— The annual fruit production of Australia has increased from about 1,000,000 bushels in 1918 to 4,762,876 the figures for last year.

The fruit finds a ready market in England, where it has already served to lower the price on all classes of fruit.

Strength Returns to E. S. Johnston

Dreco makes such improvement in Mr. Johnston's health that he discards cane. Is better in every way after five years' suffering.

The experience of Mr. E. S. Johnston, of 425 Spadina Avenue, Toronto, is a typical example of the health-building qualities of Dreco, the famous herbal remedy.

"For five years I had suffered from arthritis," says Mr. Johnston. "I had terrible pains in my hips and knees and my ankles were also in very bad condition and I often had sharp pains shooting across the small of my back. In fact, every muscle was sore and painful. I sometimes feared rheumatism of the heart as the pains were so intense. The least exertion caused shortness of breath. I could scarcely walk without the aid of a cane to get up and down stair was almost impossible.

"I have tried almost every kind of medicine but seemingly could not build up my system up at all. I was discouraged and had lost faith in every kind of medicine. My wife, however, had read of the wonderful benefit many people were receiving from Dreco so I decided I had better give it a trial. And truly, in just five weeks' time I had improved 100%.

"My pains are not so severe and the swelling in my hands and ankles is nearly gone. I now enjoy my food and feel the benefit of the nourishment I am now deriving from it. I rest better and can go about without my cane. Dreco is the first remedy every to go to the root of my troubles. My wife is also elated over my experience with Dreco thus far and we can heartily recommend it."

Dreco by toning and regulating the organs puts them in proper working order and a general improvement in health results. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs but is prepared from roots, herbs, bark and leaves of established value.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterboro by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold in Lakefield by E. H. Northey, and by a good druggist everywhere.

MILLBROOK SCHOOL PICNIC AT COBOURG

MILLBROOK, July 31.—The annual picnic of the Methodist Sunday School was held at Cobourg Park on Thursday afternoon about twenty-five cars conveying the members of the School and their friends to this popular resort which is so suitable for an outing of this kind. The weather was ideal and everyone, apparently, in the humor to enjoy the gathering to the fullest possible extent. The unfortunate accident to the truck which was conveying twenty, or more, of the younger boys to the Park, and which encountered serious tire trouble when some three miles from the village, was a keen disappointment not only to the boys themselves but also to their mothers, since some of them never reached the picnic grounds at all. Later in the afternoon Mr. J. Peel brought the majority of the load in his smaller truck, but five or six were still left behind.

The Canadian National Railway employees, from Belleville, and the G.T.R. Library Society of Kingston, held a monster picnic at Cobourg the same afternoon, and their sports and band, with the funny antics of their clown, entertained the Millbrook picnickers as well.

The men from the training ship then in Cobourg harbor added their quota to the day's fun, while the bathing, baseball, tennis and football games left no dull moments during the hours spent at the Park. A bountiful supper was served at 6 p.m., and everyone's appetite fully satisfied, the executive of the School taking charge of this part of the day's duties.

Quite a number remained for the band concert at night and found this not the least enjoyable feature in connection with the annual outing.

DISCOLORED WOODWORK

Discolorations on light woodwork may be removed by rubbing first with a slice of lemon and then with whiting. Afterward they should be washed in soap and water.

WANTS TO HELP OTHER WOMEN

Grateful for Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for backache and for weak and dreary feelings caused by my condition. Sometimes I felt so bad that I couldn't do my housework. My neighbor told me of your medicine and I read about it in the 'Toronto Telegram' and thought I would take it. I got very good results. It built me up and I have told several friends what it has done for me. You may use this testimonial as it may be of help to some one who has suffered as I have." —Mrs. J. Lee, 25 Harvie Avenue, Toronto, Ont.

Mrs. Lee is willing to write to any girl or woman suffering from such troubles, and answer any questions they may like to ask.

Women suffering from female troubles causing backache, irregularities, pains, bearing-down feelings and weakness should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Not only is the worth of this splendid medicine shown by such cases as this, but for nearly fifty years letters like this have been received from thousands of women.

BERLIN SUFFERS

the heavy costs of Dutch potatoes and United States and Danish lard, Chancellor Cuno discussed the situation with several of the leading industrialists.

The situation in the Kuhr especially is making the government apprehensive and the industrialists have impressed upon the Government the decisive influence of early remedial measures there. The German agrarians also are alive to the the food question and through their political significance attaching to central organiation are directing appeals to the country's producers to release available stocks.

The talk of an impending Cabinet ciris is dismissed by the political writers and party leaders, who primarily lay stress on the inadvisability of swapping horses while Germany is fording the troubled waters of her foreign relations.

The Reichstag leaders generally appear to view a change in the ministry at this stage as a superfluous luxury, the more so as Chancellor Cuno is able safely to count on a majority support in the Parliament for a constructive programme of internal relief measures. Neither the middle parties, constituting the present coalition nor the United Socialists are inclined to take the initiative in effecting the overthrow of the present cabinet, and indications now are that when the Reichstag resumes next week the government will succeed in appeasing the critics by presenting a "programme of action."

The Chancellor yesterday received delegations from the various ltbor federations, who presented demands relating to taxation laws and other economic issues; they asked ofr immediate action by the government.

The mark has finally reached and passed the one million notch in the Berlin Bourse. Quotations for well known industrials again set new records because of heavy demands.

COVER CITY WITH SOOT.

LONDON, July 31.—(Associated Press).— London's atmosphere is said to be the smokiest and most polluted in the world. At 10 o'clock one day recently 70 tons of soot were floating about the capital. Twenty tons is an average amount for any day in June.

The smoke and soot are due largely to the fact that most homes, offices, factories and hotels in the capital are heated by the old-fashioned coal fire, which gives off excissive smoke. The Englishman loves his open hearth too much to bother with steam heat or gas and electric appliances.

Piles

are usually due to straining when constipated.

Nujol being a lubricant keeps the food waste soft and therefore prevents straining. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it not only soothes the suffering of piles but relieves the irritation, brings comfort and helps to remove them.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative — so cannot gripe. Try it today.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

CAMPBELLFORD, July 31.—At a meeting the Golf Club held recently, it was decided to give up the grounds on the west side of the river occupied last year and so far this season as owing to the rocks the course proved unsatisfactory. It was decided at the same time to lay out a course on the fair grounds and this has been done. The formal opening was set for last Friday but the rain on that day interfered with the arrangements. The course is now in commission and the club is in a more satisfactory position than it has been since its organization over a year ago. The new course is in excellent shape and the location is convenient. All that is lacking is space so that the arrangements at the fair grounds are only temporary. The club has another location in sight and it is hoped that when the golf season of 1924 opens the members will have a regulation nine hole course on which to play.

The club has secured the services of J. C. Doody of Cobourg, one of the best known golf professionals in Canada, who has acted as instructor for several of the leading clubs of the province and who is a thorough master of every detail of the game. All those desiring instruction in the pastime can secure this by making an appointment with Mr. Doody who also keeps on hand full stock of clubs and supplies at the club house on the grounds.

With the opening of the new course interest in golf has revived. There are now over 50 members of the club, these including a majority of the leading citizens, and there are a number of others who it is expected will be enrolled within the next few days. The course is never without a number of lady and gentlemen enthusisast who are intent on perfecting themselves in the pastime. The green and fairways are in fine shape.

The first club tournament will be held on August 20th, full particulars of which will be announced later.

The officers of the club are: I. A. Humphries, president; S. H. Neale, treasurer; G. Nicol, secretary; green committee, J. C. Birmingham, A. J. Meyers, S. J. Moore and C. Weston.

Eloquent Preacher.

Rev. E. A. Thomson, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Monkton, who is visiting his parents, Rev. and Mrs. D. A. Thomson of Hastings, was the preacher at the Union Services held here Sunday night in the Methodist church. He preached an eloquent and interesting discourse which was based on the story of the Good Samaritan. Miss Bonnycastle rendered a solo during the services.

On Sunday next, Rev. Wesley Elliott, the new pastor of the Methodist church, will preach his first sermon and will have charge of the union services during the month of August. The United congregations will worship in the Methodist church in the morning and in St. Andrews in the evening. Beginning next Sunday the Methodist choir, under the leadership of R. T. Cowell, will furnish the music.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Collins, Helen and Robert Collins and Miss Winnifred Phillips of Hastings spent Sunday in Campbellford the guests of their cousin, Mrs. Janet Phillips.

Miss Winnifred Phillips is spending her holidays with friends in Hastings.

Rev. C. F. McIntosh will be one of the speakers at Warkworth Thursday evening when Rev. George Hammond is ordained and inducted with church.

Rev. C. F. McIntosh, Rev. J. J. Black of Brunbrae and Fred Wiglesworth leave today on a fishing trip to the vicinity of Bancroft.

Rev. Rural Dean Clarke, who has been appointed rector of Christ Church, Belleville, preached his final sermon here last evening. His parishoner and friends will take a formal farewell of Mr. Clarke at a gathering to be held tonight in the Parish Hall.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Curle, who reside on the Havelock road a few miles from town, will regret to hear of the death of their only child, an infant of two months, who passed away Sunday.

ICE CREAM EARLY OUTLAW.

LONDON, July 31.—(Associated Press)—England does not have to contend with prohibition but, according to the ideas of the Ice Cream and Temperance Refreshment Trades Federation, the regulations againts the sale of ice cream and soft drinks would make Mr. Volstead envious.

Under the present law the sale of this class of refreshment is prohibited after nine thirty in the evening. The bone of contention is that the West End Clubs and hotels are allowed to sell ice cream until midnight, while the working classes cannot buy it after half past nine. The regulation was enacted as a wartime measure.

The Federation will urge the Labor Party to place the matter before the House of Commons.

PULLMAN PORTERS' FINE IS REDUCED

But Judge McGillivray Could Not Disturb Magistrate's Findings.

LINDSAY, July 31.—On Saturday the appeal from the conviction of Police Magistrate Bradford, whereby he fined Joseph Cox, the colored C. N. R. Pullman porter, $750 and costs and six months in jail for having kept liquor for sale in a car at the C.N.R. station, came up at the court house here before Judge McGillivray, of Whitby.

Mr. I. E. Weldon, who appeared for the accused, claimed there was nothing but suspicion upon which they found conviction, and that the fine was an excessive one.

Mr. A. M. Fulton, acting for the Crown, claimed that portions of the O.T.A. shifted the onus of proving his innocence on the accused.

His Honor Judge McGillivray said he could not disturb the findings of fact of the magistrate. He felt, however, that the punishment inflicted was altogether too severe, and reduced the fine $200.00 and costs of $8.50.

FRANCE WILL HAVE A HUGE WHEAT SHORTAGE

PARIS, July 31. — Canadian Press —Despite the previous optimistic reports that France would depend entirely on the Algerian wheat crop, and not make any importations this year it is now declared there will be a wheat deficit of seven to eight million quintals.

CAUGHT WHITE CROW

SAULT STE. MARIE, July 31. — Canadian Press. — Reggie Bailey, the ten year old son of Peter Bailey, during a ramble through the bush on the outskirts of the Soo to-day captured a white crow. The bird, which is not yet fully grown, is perfectly white, with the exception of the tips of the tail feathers, which are black.

I will be placed on exhibition in this city during discovery week.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

Campbellford Child Saved by Quickness of James Benor.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 31. — There was a near drowning accident here Saturday afternoon. The three young sons of Engineer R. W. Scott of the Water and Light Commission, were fishing in the river in the rear of the residence of Charles Ackerman when Gail, the youngest fell into the water. The screams of his brother attracted the attention of Mrs.. Ackerman and her sister, Miss Grace McDonald and both rushed to the rescue.

James Benor, who was at work in his father's planning mill near by, was ahead of the ladies. He reached a board to the struggling boy who clung to it and was brought safely to land.

In her haste to save the young fellow, Mrs. Ackerman sprained her ankle and has been confined to her home ever sine.

Local Champions Off.

Mayor Meyers, Deputy Reeve Wilkinson Ed Tait, and W. Wiggins, motored to Kingston, yesterday to take part in the bowling tournament in that city. As this quartette is supposed to comprise the champion of the local club, their fellow members are hopeful that they will bring back some of the silverware.

Racer Purchased.

R. J. Jarvs has purchased from W A. Diamond, a re-modelled racer and now all speed records art likely to be shattered.

Robert A. Sinn of Menie lost a valuable horse last week supposedly as a result of the intense heat.

27 ARE KILLED IN A TRAIN COLLISION

Several Passenger Coaches Smashed and Overturned

BERLIN, July 31. — (Canadian Press.)—Twenty seven persons are reported killed and twenty-five others fatally injured in a collision of two passenger trains near Kreiensen.

Several coaches were smashed and overturned, according to advices from Hanover.

M. M. MACBRIDE NOT IN RUNNING

Says He Does Not Seek Job on Hydro Commission.

TORONTO, July 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Referring to press rumors that he was a likely nominee for post of municiapl representative on the Provincial Hydro Commission, M. M. MacBride, M.P.P. South Brant, stated yesterday that he was not seeking that position.

"No doubt," he said, "the municipal association will make such selection as in their judgment seems best, and the government will consider their suggestions. I have not discussed the matter with any person and I am not an office seeker."

CALL U.F.O. CONFERENCE.

BRANTFORD, July 31.—(Canadian Press.)—W. C. Good, M.P. for Brant, has suggested to the executive of Brant U.F.O. the calling of a provincial conference for the discussion of effects of provincial election and other matters.

WHEAT PROSPECTS GOOD.

PRAGUE, July 31 (United Press). —Wheat prospects are better in Czecho-Slovakia, a crop increase of 20 per cent. over last year being predicted.

HUNDREDS DRIVEN FROM THEIR HOMES

Cloudbursts Cause Patapsco River to Overflow its Banks — Towns Isolated.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 31. Canadian Press. — Cloudbursts and a series of terrific thunderstorms, sweeping through the counties of Western Maryland, caused the Patapsco River to overflow its banks late yesterday, sweeping bridges and buildings before it, and driving hundreds of families from their homes and causing damage that will run into millions of dollars. Town after town was plunged into darkness and cut off from all communication with the outside world.

NO CLUE AS YET TO ROBBERS' IDENTITY

TORONTO, July 31.—(Canadian Press.)—With Leaside as the centre of operations, for whole of yesterday detectives searched the entire countryside for Toronto bank bandits, one of whom they are positive is wounded. From daybreak three different posses of heavily armed detectives tramped through bush and farm land for some trace of the robbers.

A thorough search of the barn on the Dunlop farm, near Duncan station, was made by police and farm hands. Six tons of hay were removed and some six thousand feet of lumber lifted. A shirt which was worn by one of the men, together with the finding of a small screw driver, were the only new clues found on the Donalda farm. Last night a doctor in the east end found a parcel of clothing which might have been discarded by robbers, and handed it over to the police.

Working on the theory that the hold-up men were in hiding within a few miles of where the car had been hidden, squads of police were armed with rifles, shot guns and revolvers and went in three large speed motor cars to the district. They worked under instructions of Inspector William Wallace.

Left Six Children In Speeding Auto

KINGSTON, Ont., July 31. — George Toppings, a Deseronto youth ,aged about twenty, is a fugitive from justice with a posse of provincial and local police in pursuit, since he broke into Thompson's garage in Deseronto early on Sunday morning, made off with an auto, turned up in the vicinity of Read, drove members of two families to church, later dined with one of them, took a party of six children out for a joy ride in the afternoon and then abandoned the autoombile and the six precious lives on a lonely piece of trail when police officers hove in sight in pursuit of him and the stolen auto. He cruelly opened the auto to fullest speed just before he jumped from it, leaving the machine and its load of six children to their fate.

Fortunately fate was kind to the children, for after being abandoned, the automobile ran up the side of a hill, struck a boulder and overturned, but none of the children were injured.

GROWTH OF COLONY.

TOKIO, July 31.—(Associated Press)—Britishers, who formerly had the largest foreign colony in Japan with the exception of the Chinese, now are being given a close run by the Americans.

Returns just issued show that there are 2,562 Britishers resident in Japan and 2,549 Americans. There has also been an increase in the number of Russians, composed largely of political refugees.

There are just under 30,000 foreigners resident in the islands, of whom nearly 20,000 are Chinese.

IMPROVES THE FLAVOR.

Today's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

MARKET OPENED LOWER.

New York, July 31. Canadian Press. — Prices were fractionally lower on fairly active trading at the opening of the stock market to-day. Baldwin Locomotive showed the widest decline among the leaders at 113 5-8 was off 1 3-8 points. On a few sales it touched 114¼. Steel Common was up ¼ at 87 3-8, while Great Northern Preferred was up 3-8 and Northern Pacific was unchanged. Bulletins on President Harding's illness, which took a turn for the worse late on Monday when pneumonia developed were being closely watched.

Foreign exchanges were irregular sterling and marks being off, while the cotton market showed gains at the opening. The general list in later trading reacted a point or more on fairly active turnover but by 10.30 had recovered considerably. The tone was decidedly irregular and commission house reports were to the effect that resident Harding's illness was the predominating factor governing trading. The Missouri Pacific issues both made new lows for 1923 with the preferred at 28¼ and the common at 10½.

American Locomotives showed a better tone due to its splendid six months' statement; its opening at 68 was off ¼ but it held around that level and at the end of the first half hour was a fraction under 69.

Earnings of $12.79 a share on 500,000 no par common in the first ¼ year explains the relative firmness of the issue. At the August meeting the directors are expected to put the common on a $6 annual dividend basis.

Selling of the oils centered on Cosden which sold to a new 1923 low at 30 7-8 off 2 5-8 points while Marland at 29 3-8 was off nearly 2 points. Phillips Petroleum got slightly under 22 off fractionally.

BLACK INVADES FASHION WORLD

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 31. — (United Press). — Black crepe, for years considered only as a material for mourning apparel, has become a fixture in the fashion world. Today almost every woman includes a black crepe frock in her wardrobe. Not only does this sheenless material outwear the shiny-surfaced silks but it is decidedly becoming to the figure and can almost be called "non-crushable."

Often black shoes, black hat and black accessories accompany the black crepe frock, making it almost impossible to distinguish the fashionably gowned mannikin from the mourner. Only one who is familiar with the minor details of mourning wear can detect any significant difference. In fact, the only way that mourning apparel can be distinguished from the popular black apparel of to-day is by its accessories.

Mourning calls for mourning accessories, such as black hosiery, black jewels, black-furs, etc. Jewels other than gun-metal pearls, and dull jet or the imitations of these are not considered appropriate for mourning wear, although many women wear pearls for the reason that they are presumed to mean tears. This is rather a far-fetched idea, however. Strictly speaking, jewels of any description should be barred for first mourning, as a woman who is conspicuous with bracelets, ear-rings and chains looks anything but a mourner. Diamonds and all other sparkling jewels are decidedly in bad taste, as mourning jewellery, like mourning materials, should be devoid of all luster.

Shoes, likewise, keep to the lusterless effects. Black patents and shiny-surfaced satins are not considered as appropriate, as are dull, black kids. Styles in shoes that are to be worn with mourning should not be too extreme, as cut-out sandle effects and numerous strapped effects are not in good taste. Even the little shoe button should be dull finished, if one is to be accurately groomed.

Usually the mourning hat can be distinguished from the popular crepe turban by some little touch of heavily crinkled crepe. There may be a little band of this crepe finishing the line about the head, a crepe bow or crepe flowers, but though the heavy mourning veil has been done away with to some extent, the mourning bonnet is distinctly a mourning bonnet. It has no luster, either in its material or in its trim. Even hatpins and ornaments have a dull black finish.

On the other hand the ordinary black crepe frock is worn with a bit of color. Fawn colored hosiery, jade earrings, a panel embroidery or some slight deviation from the all-black idea. Perhaps the color can be found on Milady's handbag or on the border of her handkerchief. To be perfectly smart this season, one must touch up the black costume with a bit of color.

THE LONE WOLF.

MEXICO CITY., Mexico (By Mail to United Press). — The "Lone Wolf" is operating in the Puebla district.

Reports of his activities have been sent to officials here asking aid in his capture.

He is believed to be Feliciano Machorro, scarcely nineteen years old, and, unlike the ordinary Mexican bandits, operates alone.

He began his career by murdering a wealthy resident of Atlixco. Since then he has committed a number of murders and many robberies.

He always wears a charro costume and it is said that at six o'clock in the evening, when the Angelus is tolled, he has been seen to kneel and pray for the souls of his victims.

DUBLIN, July 31. — (Canadian Press).—President Cosgrave announced yesterday that the dissolution of the Dail would probably take place this week.

RECIPES

The thrifty housekeeper will make her own pickles. In winter and spring good home-made pickles stimulate many a jaded appetite and help teke the place of a formal appetizer. Gherkins are expensive to buy when put up but not out of reach for most pocketbooks during the pickling season. They are delicious to serve with sandwiches for a Sunday night lunch. The midgets can be used with afternoon tea sandwiches.

Gherkins

One hundred small cucumbers, 2 quarts of boiling water, 2 cups salt, 1 gallon vinegar, 4 sticks cinnamon, 6 tablespoons sugar 2 teaspoons mustard seed, 3 tablepoons whole cloves, 1 tablepoon celery seed, lump of alum size of a untmeg.

Wash cucumbers and wipe with a dry cloth. Put in a large deep crock and pour brine over crock with a cheesecloth and let stand three days. Drain brine from cucumbers and bring brine to the boiling point. Pour over cucumbers and let stand three days.

Drain brine from cucumbers and let stand in alum water over night. Drain off alum water and let stand in clear water for three hours. Drain off water.

Put cucumbers, vinegar and spices in preserving kettles Bring to the boiling point and simmer, closely covered for ten minutes. Pack pickles in sterlized jars. Fill with boiling vinegar and seal.

Cucumber Rings.

Soak cucumbers in a strong brine for three days. Drain off brine and soak in clear water for three days. Drain and simmer in weak vinegar for two hours. A small lump of alum should be added to the vinegar.

Cut cucumbers in inch rings. Pack in a crock and pour over the vinegar sugar and spices which have been boiling. Drain off vinegar and heat to the boiling point for three successive mornings. When cool after the third morning cover with a big plate and store in a dark cool place. These pickles are a delicious sweet pickle.

Cold Sliced Pickles.

One hundred three or four-inch cucumbers, half their bulk in onions the size of English walnuts, 2 cups olive oil, 1-2 cup white mustard seed, 1-3 cup celery seed. Peel onions, wash cucumbers and put in brine strong enough to bear up an egg. Let stand over night. In the morning drain and slice both cucumbers and onions. Put layer of each in a large crock. Sprinkle with celery seed, mustard seed and olive oil.

Continue until all is used. Cover with six stalks of horseradish roots. Pour over cold vinegar to cover. Weight with a plate and keep on a cold celar bottom.

PARIS SADDENS TOURISTS LOOKING FOR WICKEDNESS

"Gay Paree" No Longer Lives Up to Its Reputation and Guests See Only Manufactured Naughtiness.

By JOHN O'BRIEN

PARIS, July 31.—(United Press).—"So this is Paris!"

Reminiscent of the bored tone in which J. Sergeant Cram uttered his famous dictum about the lair of the Tammy Tiger in Fourteenth street is the pained, puzzled stare of the average American tourist the first time the "sights" of this Modern Babylon, as many millions consider it, are flashed before his, or her, eyes.

They're coming in droves just now, at the rate of six hundred to a thousand a day. There isn't a room to be had for love or money in any of the well-known hotels, unless it has been reserved weeks ahead. But the tourists are not to be found in the hotels. They are out looking for "wicked, gay Paree." It is hard to find. Whence the pained expression. They don't realize that wickedness is like Bohemia. You have to carry it with you.

But in their searching they stumble into many interesting places where "canned wickedness" is part of the day's or rather night's program. There isn't any doubt about it. Ninety per cent of the Americans who come to Paris in the tourist season want to catch a glimpse of the "real Paris, not the underworld, you know, but the naughty, lively places."

They usually waste two or three days in parading through so-called American bars named for every city between New York and San Francisco, until somebody suggests that that is not seeing Paris at all. Then they get a move on and start "up the hill" toward Montmartre.

Here they have more success, but more than half the time that pained and disappointed expression becomes permanent. Yes, they wanted something stronger than that for their money. Paris as the haunt of devil-may-care and laxity of morals has not come up to their expectations. Those whose business it is to please the tourist are fully aware of this. They do everything in their power to "put over" the idea that the visitor is looking for.

The days when you could wander into the Moulin Rouge, or any one of half a dozen places of the kind, and see the woman star of the attraction "fling her bonnet over the windmill," as the French say it, meaning in plain language: niftily kick her last vestige of garment over the head of the gloomiest tourist in the hall, these days are past.

But the surface exuberance, the veneer of vice, is still to be found. Look into the dance halls or cabarets as the evening wanes and a fresh bunch of pleasure seekers, obviously from the Land of Emperor Dollar, arrives. Something like the crack of the whip over a group of trained animal performers brings life into the faces of the girls whose business it is to entertain. Cigarettes fasten themselves to the lower lip, carefree abandon becomes the "leitmotif" of the dances and if the managers see fit, the tourists can actually see some of the girls in a mazy whirl with the gentleman to who they refer as "My Man" as partner.

This is really all that the ordinary visitor sees of the "gay life" of the French capital. No wonder he judges that it isn't what it has been cracked up to be.

HELP ARRIVED JUST IN TIME

Couldn't Have Held Out Much Longer, States Perrier—Thanks Tanlac For Restoration.

"I'm mighty glad I listened to the friend who told me about Tanlac, for the medicine fixed me up to where I can do more work than ever before," said Raoul Perrier, an employee of the National Loose Leaf Company, residing at 333 Breboeuf, Montreal.

"A few months ago I got to where I felt tired out all the time, and it was an effort to do my work. I couldn't sleep well, had no appetite at all, and never seemed to have strength or energy enough to do anything. It took just all I could do to stay on the job, and I'm afraid I couldn't have held out much longer, for I was run down in every way.

"However, Tanlac has changed things right around for me. I have more strength and energy than ever, I sleep like a child every night, and a hard day's work doesn't worry me a bit. Tanlac is surely great."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

EXPOSED FOR TWO DAYS.

PROVIDENCE July 31.— Canadian Press).—Thomas Petreault, 78, an old time Canadian woodsman was found pinned under fallen tree in woods, near Manchaug, Mass., yesterday afternoon. It is believed that he had been in this predicament since Friday. He is now in Woodsocket Hospital with both ankles fractured, probable internal injuries and suffering nervous exhaustion caused by hunger and exposure.

FIND BOOKS AN AID TO PILLS IN CURING SICK

CHICAGO, July 31.—(Associated Press)—Books as well as pills for curing the sick are now being used in the principal hospitals of the country, according to Miss Louise Singley, district manager for the American Library association.

"Robinson Crusoe won't cure a case of tuberculosis, but reading does keep a patient's mind off his troubles," Miss Singley said. "Efforts are made to put the right book in a sick man's hands. A librarian in a hospital studies her patrons somewhat as a doctor does. Everything depends on the individual case.

"Some books depress and others excite. Many librarians say that whole classes of books should be tabooed from hospitals for these very reasons. But if a librarian studies her patients like the doctor, she can prescribe books for him without danger. A book that would hurt a person with a certain ailment or with a certain temperament will be all right for another.

The psychology of the patient must be taken into consideration. A tuberculosis patient can undertake more serious reading than most of the other sick people because his convalescence covers a longer period of time.

"A librarian cannot tell a patient he must take one novel a week in large doses. However, she has to steer her readers without them knowing it. Later on the patient gets interested in some particular line of work, and after that he takes care of himself."

WRECKED PIPE LINES TO N.S. STEEL PLANT

SYDNEY, N.S., July 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Although police were active all day tracing down such meagre clues as have developed, no arrests were made, and complete mystery surrounds the identity of the person or persons who early yesterday morning exploded charges of dynamite and wrecked pipe lines supplying the British Empire Steel Corporation steel plant with water. It is learned that the breaks have been repaired and interrupted operations will be in full swing soon. The exact nature of the damage to the steel plant, if any, will not be known for several days until a thorough survey has been made.

PRELATE COMES TO SAVE ALTARS OF PALESTINE

NEW YORK, July 31.—(Associated Press)—The sacred places of the Holy Land, the places hallowed by the human presence of the Saviour are in danger of becoming shabby and neglected. That is the word issued by Archbishop Panteleimon, representative of the Patriarchate of Jerusalem, who has come to this country to interest Christians of America in saving these places and maintaining them in the dignity to which their sacred associations entitle them.

The locations include the Holy Sepulchre, Bethlehem, Nazareth, the Mount of Olives, and others woven into the life of the Lord. They have been maintained in the past by the Patriarchate of Jerusalem, one of the four great branches of the Orthodox Eastern church. But today the Patriarchate faces the rapid exhaustion of its funds as a result of conditions following the world war, and the archbishop is here to cooperate with the American Committee on the Preservation of the Sacred Places in the Holy Land in making good the deficiency.

The committee is under the joint chairmanship of Rt. Rev. William T. Manning, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, and the Rev. Charles S. MacFarland, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

Abbe Delorme May Be Sent to Asylum.

MONTREAL, July 31—(Canadian Press). — Within a few days, says the Montreal Star, rumor has it that Adelard Tetreault, curator of the Delorme estate, will petition the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province to intern Abbe Delorme in an asylum. The Lieutenant-Governor will be approached directly with a petition to have him examined by alienists. It is understood that in the request the clause in the civil code has been quoted, which authorizes the sheriff to demand an examination as to the mental state of any person in a jail whom he thinks is not in his right mind.

THE LONDON PRESS ON PRESIDENT'S ILLNESS

LONDON, July 31. — (Canadian Press).—President Harding's illness is attracting sympathetic interest here, and reports of his condition are displayed prominently by newspapers.

The Daily Chronicle, in an editorial, expresses hope that there will soon be better news from San Francisco, adding, "The office the President holds assures him sincere interest and regard of the British public. They respect him as the chosen head of the largest community in the world which speaks our own language."

LEAFS FELL TO SYRACUSE NINE

Toronto Lost Opportunity to Get Into Third Place When Rochester Walloped Buffalo.

SYRACUSE, July 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Syracuse made the most of its seven hits against Taylor yesterday and defeated Toronto, 5 to 4, evening up the series. Reinhart was in trouble in nearly every inning, but he tightened with men on bases. Syracuse bunched four of its hits off Taylor in the fourth inning and scored four runs. Score:

Syracuse. .. ..000 401 00x—5 7 0

Taylor, Fullerton and Vincent; Reinhart and Nibergall.

Rochester 17, Buffalo 1.

BUFFALO, July 31.—(Canadian Press.)— Buffalo received the season's artistic trimming yesterday afternoon from Rochester, the score being 17 to 1, in favour of the Tribe, they scoring eleven runs with as many hits in their eighth inning. Keenan was almost invincible and should have been credited with a shut-out, Buffalo's lone counter being due to a misunderstanding on a fly ball between Smith and Jenkins. Score:

Buffalo.. .. ..001 000 000— 1 6 2

BASEBALL COMMENT

The ascendancy held by Al. Heckman over the Kingston Ponies at Riverside Park is illustrated by the fact that the Limestone crew only scored four runs in their four games here. They were whitewashed in two fixtures and scored two markers in each of the other contests. Incidentally they crossed the plate in only two innings of the thirty-six played and were blanked for twenty-nine consecutive innings which must be about a record.

The Petes pay their last visit of the season to Kingston tomorrow and on Saturday will clash with Belleville at Riverside Park. The second half schedule ends a week from Saturday with Cobourg as the attraction. With four games to go the Petes are a game in front and they have the advantage of having their nearest rivals the Belleville crew for a home game. Belleville have games at home with Cobourg and Kingston and have to visit Kingston and Peterboro. The Ponies two games behind the Petes entertain Belleville and Peterboro in Kingston and have to visit Belleville and Cobourg. The latter, of course, are hopelessly out of the running, having won but one game in the second half. Singularly enough that was at Kingston, where no other visiting team has been successful this season.

A big factor in the Petes fine showing in the second half race has been the consistent hitting of Leo Comolli who has hit at an even .500 clip during the second section campaign and has got one or more hits in each of the last eight games. The big fellow was in a slump during the first half but has found his batting eye with a vengeance and his hitting has been hard and timely.

Saturday's victory was Heckman's eleventh Central League victory this season, the Petes' ace being the only twirler in the League whose wins run into double figures. His string includes two shutouts over Kingston and one each over Cobourg and Belleville.

AMATEUR CARD FOR DALEY.

KINGSTON, July 31.—(Special).—Joe Daley, former manager of the Kingston team in the Central Ontario League has been given his amateur card. It was learned yesterday, that the request had been granted and that the card was being forwarded to Stanley Trotter, District Commissioner for the Amateur Athletic Association.

Firpo is Ready to Fight on September 14.

OMAHA, Neb., July 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Although Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight championship contender, would prefer to postpone his September 14 New York meeting with Champion Jack Dempsey until some time next year, he will not request a change from that date, he told the Associated Press late yesterday, through his secretary and interpreter, G. Wilmer.

Firpo will be in New York before September 14 to start training for the bout.

LONG LAY-OFF WILL BEAT THE CHAMP

Boxing An Art That Is Easy to Lose Through Lack of Practice.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, July 31.—No art can be lost quicker through the lack of practice than boxing. No art is harder to get back than boxing, after a long layoff, in the opinion of Jack McAuliffe, the veteran undefeated lightweight champion.

His theory has been proved three times within the early summer months by Johnny Kilbane, Jimmy Wilde and Jack Dempsey.

Three champions went back into the ring after remaining idle for an average of about two years or more, and two of them suffered the penalty of losing their title.

Kilbane and Wilde were knocked out, and Dempsey, while he retained his championship against Tommy Gibbons, lost a lot of prestige.

Kilbane blames the loss of the featherweight championship to Eugene Criqui on his long absence from the ring.

"I always watch the feet of my opponent and I knew that Criqui was starting a right-hand punch that proved to be the knockout. I saw it coming, but I felt positive that I was at least a foot out of range. I misjudged the distance and it hit me right on the jaw and knocked me out," Kilbane said.

"Had I boxed oftener and kept my eye tuned up for distance I could have avoided that punch," he said.

Jimmy Wilde, game little fighter and one of the best champions, remained out of the ring too long. He was knocked out by Pancho Villa and he lost the world's flyweight championship. He did not fight for two years after he was knocked out by Pete Herman in London, and time sapped all his punch and his resistance.

After Tommy Gibbons has stayed fifteen rounds with him in Shelby, Montana, Jack Dempsey replied to question asking for an explanation of his rather poor showing:

"There was nothing the matter with me, only I haven't been fighting enough."

Gibbons is one of the finest boxers in the world and he is a hard target for any fighter to find, but the Dempsey of Toledo and Jersey City would have crashed through the weaker Gibbons in fifteen rounds if the champion's timing and judgment of distance had not been thrown way off by lack of work.

Dempsey missed three punches for every one that he landed on Gibbons and had it not been for rules which permitted him to use everything but the ring-posts and had it not been for a referee who would not keep him away from the ragged edge of rules, Dempsey's showing would have been most ridiculous.

"I'm going to fight from now on. If there are opponents for me, I will not allow big purse demands to interfere with the promotion of the fights. It is better to have two or three smaller purse fights and keep in fighting shape than to have one big shot every two years and get out of form," Dempsey said after the fight.

Johnny Wilson will have the same proble to face when he goes to defend his middleweight championship the next time and unless Mickey Walker shows more ambition he will have trouble when he finally decides to give a good welterweight a shot at his championship.

Tommy Gibbons had his big advantage over Dempsey in that he had kept busy in the two years that the champion was idle. Gibbons has engaged in over thiry fights while Dempsey was doing most of his work on the stage. The results were apparent. Gibbons never missed when he found an opening, and Dempsey was short and over all the time.

Firpo, if he meets Dempsey soon, will have almost the same advantage. The South American is keeping himself busy mixing up soft ones with hard ones, and although he may not be able to pick up anything in the gymnasium, he cannot forget the lessons that he learns in the ring.

Dempsey, however, is bound to be better in his next fight than he was against Gibbons. Fifteen hard rounds at Shelby should be the very thing to get the champion back on edge, and if he fights on Labor Day, which seems certain, the crowd will see a Dempsey who should be like he was against Willard and Carpentier.

Johnny Dundee's success in the ring was due in part to the frequence with which he put on the gloves. He was smart enough not to burn himself out, as he knew just how much work he needed and he managed to get it. Dundee never had any big shots, but he fought oftener for smaller purses, and he is as well fixed financially as any fighter in the business.

Cleveland Took Both Ends of a Double Bill From Boston—St. Louis Won Two.

BOSTON, July 30. — (Canadian Press.)— Cleveland observed Shriners' Day by defeating Boston twice yesterday afternoon, 5 to 4, and 2 to 0. ### Duluth Boat Club Will Defend Title.

DULUTH, Minn., July 31.—(Canadian Press.) — The Duluth Boat Club, holder of the Julius H. Barnes Trophy, emblematic of the national amateur rowing championship, will defend its title at the national regatta at Baltimore, August 3 and 4, despite reports to the contrary, said Phil. R. Moore, D.B.C. coach yesterday. Seven crews will leave for Baltimore to-night. Walter Hoover, world's singles sculling champion, will not accompany the crew. Reports from New York last night said that the Duluth Boat Club was not represented among the 51 entries in the regatta.

The champion is understood to have said that he would not participate in the national regatta, since Paul Costello, national champion, refused to meet Hoover in a world's championship race on the local course.

Also, Hoover is out of condition, having broken training shortly after his defeat at the English Henley. The champion has resumed training, preparing to defend his title here Labor Day against Hilton Belyea, of St. John, N.B.

GOLF TOURNAMENT IN TORONTO TODAY

Two Canadian Titles Will Be Decided at the Lakeview Club.

TORONTO, July 31.—(Canadian Press)—With two golf championships to be decided on the links of local clubs during the present week, golfers, both amateur and urofessional, with national and international reputations, have arrived in the city to do battle for the professional and Canadian open championships. The professional championships will be played today over the Summit course, while the open championships commence on Friday, concluding on the following day at the Lakeview Golf and Country Club.

It is expected that the number competing in the professional championships will be the largest on record. The growth of the popularity of the royal and ancient game has been remarkable and whereas there were only a score or so of clubs when the open championships were established in 1904, there are now approximately 300 clubs, with new ones being formed with more or less regularity from coast-to-coast. It is only a matter of time until the ambitious club secures a "pro" and with the increased number of professionals goes hand-in-hand a larger entry, not only in the professional championships, but also in the open championship.

The Open Championship is open to all amateurs and professionals and consists of 72 holes medal play, with 36 played each day—18 in the morning and 18 in the afternoon. The rules of the Royal Canadian Golf Association govern the tournament. The Rivermead Cup, a trophy competed for annually under the rules of the R.C.G.A. is presented to the winner of the championship and his held for one year by his club, or until the next annual competition takes place.

FRITSCH WON.

LONDON, July 31. — (Canadian Press.)—Paul Fritsch, who won the Olympic featherweight title in 1920, last night defeated Seaman Hall, former European lightweight champion, in a 10-round bout, on points.

To Swim Lake Erie.

CLEVELAND, O. July 31. — (Canadian Press).— Carbie Walkers attempt to swim accross Lake Erie from Point Pele, Lighthouse on the Canadian side to the Lorain, Ohio., Lighthouse was postponded for 24 hours late yesterday. He is now scheduled to make the start at 3.30 o'clock this afternoon. Failure to get a steam launch to accompany him on the swim caused the portponement.

Marquard, McNamara, Miller and Smith, O'Neil; Osborne, Fussell and O'Farrell.

TALKS BY RADIO TO TENNIS FANS ABROAD

LONDON, July 31.—(Associated Press)—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the famous lawn-tennis star, recently entertained hundreds of thousands of "listeners-in" with a piquant talk about herself and her habits. In winning French manner she tripped from one thing to another, and surprised her unseen audience with her command of English. She told her admirers how she kept her stockings up in play, why she sometimes cried on the court, what it is like to be a champion at Wimbledon, and what a false legend it was which depicted her as a slave of her father, who was really very kind and patient.

"I am so pleased to have a chance of speaking to you," said Suzanne with a charming French accent. "When I played at Wimbledon, where there were thousands of people, looking, I could not talk to them. Now I understand I am talking to thousands. How nice it is to be in England! I have great love for this country, because my great grandmother was English.

"I like to give you tonight some hints about myself, as I understand you all talk about me and are curious about my stockings. How do I keep them up? I role a piece of elastic round twice. I hope the gentlemen will not be shocked.

"Sometimes I feel a little sick Then you cannot do yourself justice, so I retire from court. This is allowed, but I am laughed at that I feel faint and I cry. I do not, but I have dust in my eye. I do not cry because I am behind in the score; they cannot believe I am ever ill, so I cry."

TUG WAS SAFE.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 31. — (Canadian Press.)— The tug Tyee, reported as piled on the rocks in the Strait of Juan De Fuca, arrived at Port Townsend, Washington, yesterday. Shipping men expressed the opinion that the vessel reported in distress was the Seattle halibut schooner Tyee, which was known to have been in the Strait yesterday.

OFFER FOR DEMPSEY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 31.—(Canadian Press.)—James W. Coffroth, racing promoter of Tia Juana, Mexico, has offered Jack Dempsey $400,000 and Luis Angel Firpo, $150,000, for a championship prize fight in Tia Juana on some date before the opening of the racing season in November, according to a telegram received from Coffroth yesterday by Thomas Mulvey, secretary of the Superior Courts here.

APSLEY VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

Youth Dies From Drinking Swamp Water—Personal and News Paragraphs.

APSLEY, July 31. — Courtney Nelson McCauley, the seventeen-year-old son of Joseph McCauley, a well-known resident of East Road, died on Thursday evening after only two days' illness, resulting from drinking a quantity of swamp water while in an overheated condition, and the news came as a shock to his many young friends.

The day before his death he was in the village for medicine, and just twenty-four hours later passed peacefully away.

The deceased was a sturdy young fellow, and had never known a day's sickness. Had he seen the doctor earlier, his life might have been saved, but he thought he could work the sickness off and stuck manfully to his work until he had to give in. His father, who was working on the Purdy drive near the Auburn Dam, was telephoned for, and arrived just before he breathed his last.

The funeral was held on Saturday at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Lasswade, and was largely attended, the service being conducted by the Rev. C. Spence, interment being made in the cemetery.

Personals.

Wellington Fife and Howard Windsor, of Keene, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Windsor over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs.. Norman James and family, of Dunsford, visited in Apsley on Saturday and Sunday.

The following guests registered at the Union Hotel: W. G. Gallaher, Peterborough; W. H. Puffer, Norwood; F. M. Becker, H. E. Miller, Akron, Ohio; F. G. Niebel, W. J. Wilson, S. M. Roe, Toronto; P. Annual Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Eden Methodist Church, Haultain, was held on Friday, 27th July, and in spite of the threatening weather was a great success, a large crowd taking it in. Proceeds amounted to over $182.00.

BRITAIN UNITES EMPIRE.

LONDON, July 31.—(Associated Press)—During the war Great Britain seized a German submarine cable running from Emden to the United States, and at the conclusion of hostilities one end of the line was drawn up to England and the other diverted to Halifax.

Today at Halifax the wire joins the telegraph system which extends from Halifax across Canada to Vancouver and thence under the sea to Fiji, Norfolk Island, Australia and New Zealand.

As a result, messages can now be sent from London to the Antipodes in 30 minutes. Thus are the far-flung parts o fthe British empire held together.

HENRY FORD'S BIRTHDAY.

DETROIT, Mich., July 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Henry Ford celebrated his sixtieth birthday, yesterday by remaining away from his private workshop at his Dearborn automobile plant. It was understood that his plans called for dinner last night with the members of his family and that of his son, Edsel.

BELLEVILLE TEAM HERE ON SATURDAY

Championship of Second Half Will Hinge on Week-End Clash.

The championship of the second half of the Big Four section of the Central Ontario League will depend to a considerable extent upon the result of next Saturday's game at Riverside Park when Belleville and the Petes will clash. Although the Petes won both games in Belleville, the Trunks grabbed off a win here on their first appearance in the second half race and if they can repeat on Saturday they can offset the result of the double victory of the Solomon clan in Belleville. Manager Gerow's outfit are dead anxious to get revenge for that pair of wallops on their own grounds and as they always play good ball at Riverside Park they will be as usual dangerous adversaries in Saturday's game and with so much at stake it should prove just about the most exciting tussle of the season, although it will have to be a wonderful game if it surpasses last Saturday's from the viewpoint of fast, accurate fielding.

Fans from all over the district are planning to see the two old rivals come together on Saturday, the attendance from outside points promising to be by long odds the best of the year.

GIRLS WON.

The C.G.E. girls soft ball team defeated the married men of the Production Department by the score of 20-7.

Miss Millard did the twirling for the girls having 8 strike-outs and 3 walks to her credit.

Sam Calladine did the heaving for the men having but 1 strike out and 5 walks to his credit.

Hubrise and McFadden umpired the game.

BELMONTS TIE WITH CURLERS

For Second Place in First Half of the Bantam Series.

Wild pegs to first and third allowed Calladine to score with the run that won for Belmonts in their Bantam game with Curlers last evening, the score being 10 to 9. Belmont took the contest in the last half of the seventh, and tied with the Curlers for second place in the first half of the series.

Crary and Connors did the twirling for Belmonts, the latter going to the mound in the fifth, after Crary had been touched up for a home run in the third and a quartette of singles in the fourth which put Curlers one run to the good. Connors stopped scoring until the seventh when the curlers broke anew, two singles a wild pitch and a wild peg giving them two runs.

Harry Doughty held Belmonts to seven hits and he found twelve Beavis got the only extra base clout when he stretched a wallop to right into three bases and scored wren the throw came in wild. Connors wafted out a double to the fence in the seventh but went out at second.

Curlers score on the first, Walton leading off with a single to left. He stole and made third on Beavis' error. Martin flew out to third, and Walton came in on Elcome's grounder to first.

Belmonts took four, Beavis hit through second. Jones was deadheaded, Barrie hit in both runners. Crary fanned. Kenneallys single scored Barrie. Connors fanned. Calladine's fly drop by Baker and Kenneally scored.

Curlers failed to do anything in the second. Belmonts got one on Beavis' triple and a wild throw by Dillion.

Crary's failure to hold a bounder from Martin and Sturgeon's home run gave Curlers two in the third. Errors by Baker and Martin and a stolen base allowed Connors to count for Belmonts.

Good hitting, a pass and a passed ball accounted for four Curlers runs in the fourth which placed the team in the lead Dillon, Kingdon, Walton and Martin hit in a row in third frame Belmonts were held back.

In the fifth with Connors pitching and Crary at first base Curlers went out in a row Three out of four Belmonts fanned in their half, Kenneally getting on when Elcome muffed Sturgeon's throw.

Curlers could do nothing with Connors in the sixth Belmonts went into the lead by getting three runs. Walton mussed Henry's grounder and DeForge was passed. Beavis hit in the runners. Jones was safe at first on Walton's error which also allowed Beavis to score. Barrie and Crary fanned and Kenneally popped to Walton.

Curlers tied it up in the seventh two hits by Martin and Sturgeon, a wild pitch and a wild throw.

Following a dispute over Connor's hit and the play on him at second base, in the Belmonts half, followed by a wild throw to first on Calladine's grounder and an equally bad peg to third on which two runners scored, Calladine was credited with a run that made it a win for Belmonts.

GAMES TONIGHT

Interesting ball games are billed for this evening and Wednesday evening. At Sacred Heart Grounds, to-night Curlers and Sacred Heart will replay their tie game in the Midget series. On the former meeting, the teams battled for nine innings for a run apiece. At King Edward School Grounds, Rotary and Kiwanis Bantams open the second half of the series.

To-morrow evening at Riverside Park, Sacred Heart and Maple Leaf Juveniles play an important contest, and at King Edward Grounds Cognawagas meet Keene. A win for Keene practically assures them the East Peterborough League championship. A Cognawagna win will tie the teams for the second half.

Lawn Tennis

The Jackson brothers, Walter and Bill, won their semi-final games in the Peterborough Tennis Club's tournament, defeating J. McKee and A. McLeish by the scores of 6-3 and 11-9. As the score indicates, the Jacksons were given a real battle in the second game which was one of the keenest in the whole tournament.

Scott and Ross will meet the Jackson brothers in the finals this week.

FAME OF "BIG HAT"

The foregoing explains the revelance of the name "Big Hat" which was labeled on a moniker on the baby monkey that was born here last Saturday in the trained animal show. Last night's crowd was even bigger than Saturady night's and the last of the merry-makers left the grounds about 11.30 o'clock. The rides did a big business, and all the shows on the grounds were busy.

Police officials who were about the lot all evening said that everything was well conducted and the public apparently had a lot of fun.

A PRESENTATION AT KING'S WHARF

Earl Holsworth Entertained and Presented With a Purse of Money.

KING'S WHARF, July 31.— On Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Collins, a pleasant event took place, where Master Carl Collins entertained a large number of his friends and playmates in the honor of his friend, Earl Holsworth, of Calgary, Alta., who, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. P. Holsworth, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Murtha here. During the afternoon the little ones took their friend by surprise when they presented him with a purse containing a nice sum of money and an address.. This was on the eve of his departure for his home in Calgary. Afterwards the children sat down to a bountiful repast, especially prepared for them by the hostess. A number of the little folks delivered some very nice addresses to their friend after justice had been done to the good things set before them. The remainder of the evening was spent in a jolly good time.

Following is the address:

Dear Earl,—We, the children of King's Wharf and vicinity, and Carl's playmates, have assembled here this afternoon to bid you welcome to this part of the country. It is to be a farewell also because we understand that your visit with us is almost at a close. We wish to convey to you the greeting of Ontario children and we hope your next visit among us will be longer. We ask you to accept this litle gift as a token of our high esteem for you as a playmate. We all unite in wishing you a safe journey and hoping that you will soon visit us again.

River Moved So Mother Can Have Cripple's Body

CISCO, Calif., July 30. — The crippled body of little Clyde Patnoe, twelve years old, was buried here with simple ceremonies. Nearby, and audible to his grief-stricken widowed mother and the men employees of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company was the hum and roar of the Yuba River, as its swiftly flowing waters dashed onward to the sea.

Two weeks of herculean efforts by hundreds of workmen ended on Saturday. The course of the Yuba River was completely changed and diverted into a new channel in order that the body of the little drowned cripple boy might be restored to his mother's arms and laid by her in a last flower-strewn resting-place.

Fifteen days ago Clyde fell into the Yuba and was swept over a 30-foot falls. Because of the terrific rush of water below it was impossible to recover his body.

Showered Love Upon Him.

The boy was an only child. He had come into life pitifully handicapped, and because he had not been "born equal" with other boys his mother showered upon him a love even greater than that given most children.

Then he was suddenly taken from her—under the waters and alone. A witness of his death, she had tried to throw herself into the river, but was restrained.

Engaged in hydro-electric development work along the same stretch of river were engineers and labouring crews of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, one of the West's great power concerns. They were preparing to harness for electrical power the same falls over which the little boy was swept.

Clyde frequently had played among the workmen and hardly a labourer, straw boss or engineer but had heard his childish prattle and loved him for the cheerful smile that always was on his drawn and twisted face.

Corporation With a Heart.

So when Mrs. Patnoe knelt before them on the river bank and prayed that God might permit her just once more to hold the broken little body in her arms, little time was lost in reaching a decision to divert the river's course. Officials of the corporation readily sanctioned the move

Engineers quickly planned the feat, and workers toiled night and day with steam shovels, dynamite, picks and wheelbarrows. Enormous rocks were rended and thousands of tons of earth moved. With a snarl of angry waters, the Yuba was turned into its new channel, and the boy's body was recovered from between jagged rocks just below the falls.

To-day the river will go back into its old channel and the Pacific Gas and Electric Company will set down an item of more than $20,000 on the red ink side of its ledger.

QUIET TALKS

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

A—Prince Edward is the smallest province in the Dominion, being only 150 miles in length, and varying in breadth from 2 to 34 miles. The isolation of the island from the mainland has been overcome by the maintenance by the Canadian Government of a car ferry service which operates the year round and carries railway freight cars to and fro without the necessity of unloading. Charlotte town is the capital city. The proximity of every part of the island to the sea, not only enriches the air but moderates the heat of summer and the cold of winter. The air is bracing and healthy. The soil of the island is very fertile and 85% of the entire area is cultivable.

TO CHLORINATE DRINKING WATER

Agitation in U. S. to Enforce This Method of Precaution From Contamination.

Some of the residents of Peterborough object to the chlorination of their water supply, an auxiliary precaution taken when the danger from contamination is exceptionally great. The filtration plant is adequate for the purifying of the water, and when chlorine is added it is merely as a supplementary measure, and the fact that the water is chlorinated cannot be gathered from the taste. Those who object to the precaution, however, will be interested to learn that in the United States an agitation has been started to have all drinking water chlorinated. The following extract is from a leading United States paper:

"There are 2,800 cities in America having a population of 2,500 or more, and 7,500 having a population of 1,000 or more. The total number of incorporated towns is 13,000. Before these figures are considered it is impressive to read that there are 2,000 chlorinating machines in use in America, but since every incorporated town should chlorinate its water to prevent typhoid it is evident that chlorination is only just beginning to receive adequate recognition.

"In an article entitled "Official Manslaughter" the reader will find reference to a recent court decision holding a city liable for damages because of typhoid infection caused by the use of 'raw water.' A few more such salutary decisions may hasten the day when every water supply is chlorinated. The cost of chlorination is nominal, and there is no valid excuse for failure to use this precaution against typhoid."

ITALIAN POLICE RAID EMIGRATION AGENCY

PALERMO, Italy, July 31 (United Press). — The police raided a clandestine emigration agency yesterday, arresting four persons who had paid large sums for first-class passage to America.

The woman proprietress was also arrested.

The persons were to be equipped with false passports and forged per-

NARROW ESCAPE.

OTTTAWA, July 31.— (Canadian Press).—Henry A. McGowan, manager of local bread company, narrowly escaped death by suffocation, while his summer residence at South March, near here, was completely destroyed by fire when Mr. McGowand suffered fainting spell while carrying an oil lamp to his sleeping quarters last night.

The fall was heard by Mrs. McGowan who rushed dwon stairs to find her husband body encompased by flames, which by this time had gained considerable headway. Mrs. McGowan succeeded in rescuing her husband but by time fire fighters arrived house was doomed

THE OLD GARDENER SAYS:

Chinese cabbage is such a quick growing vegetable that seeds can be sown now with full assurance that a crop will be matured before freezing weather comes on. The fact is that Chinese cabbage grows very much better in late summer than in the spring, when it usually runs to seed. Plants started now are likely to weigh from two to five pounds within two months. This vegetable has a delightful pungency which commends it to epicures. It can be eaten cooked like other cabbage or used as a substitute for lettuce and served with mayonnaise.

JANETVILLE KIRK'S MANY ACTIVITIES

Social Is Looked Forward To—Epidemic of Whooping Cough Sweeps the Community.

JANETVILLE, July 31. — Earnest and appreciative congregations worshipped at the Methodist church here on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Ross took for his subject, "The Discord of a Silent Harp," which was a development of Ps. cxxxvii:, "We hanged our harps on the willows." Many expressions of appreciation were offered by the members of the congregation at the close of the service. There was a marked interest on the part of the choir and the members have increased in numbers.

In the evening the pulpit was occupied by the Rev. F. J. Fallis of Toronto, who delivered an excellent sermon on the text found in Philippians iv:6: "Be careful for nothing." Mr. Fallis is camping at the lake, and leaves on Tuesday of this week for his home.

At the request of the choir Rev. and Mrs. Ross sang a duet, and the effect upon the congregation, members said, was real pleasure, profit and delight.

Whooping Cough.

Whooping cough has been doing an extensive business in this community for the last two months and is still holding his job. H is no respecter of persons for the attack seems to be general. The ravage has had and is having its effect on the Sunday school but the residents are looking forward to a let up soon.

Picnic from Orono.

There was a picnic to the lake from Orono and a delightful time is reported. All roads lead to Scugog Lake for a real, quiet first class outing.

Y. P. S. Social.

The young people of Janetville will hold their monthly social evening at the lake next Friday at 6.30. The C.G.I.T., and all other organizations are looking forward to the "Time of the Year." There will be baseball, and the two rival teams will clash again in all probability.

Silent Zone and Heavy Tide Cause of Wreck.

VICTORIA, July 31.—(Canadian Press).—A six-knot tide, a "silent zone" which effectually muffled the bell and fog alarm at Race Rocks are declared to be responsible for the stranding of the Furness-Withy freighter Siberian Prince, which rests solidly on the rocks at Bentick Island, ten miles from Victoria. The Siberian Prince drove hard ashore at 1.30 a.m. Sunday while southbound from Seattle for Portland and San Francisco. The ship was partly loaded with five thousand tons of freight for the United Kingdom. The Siberian Prince is wedged between shelving rocks. She is taking water in numbers two and four tanks, but is in no danger. Gangs of longshoremen are engaged in lightening the cargo, and when this has been accomplished it is expected that the vessel will be floated without difficulty.

STRIKE HAS BEEN SETTLED.

STOCKHOLM, July 31.—(Canadian Press.)—A strike of 22,000 iron workers, which had been in progress since last February, has been settled. Settlement was reached practically on the terms laid down by the employers. Thus the attempt of the men to gain control of the question of hours they should work, was defeated.

THEATRES

Epic Entertainment

Anyone who would like to see how they do things in an English picture would do well to patronize the Capitol Theatre while "Diana of the Crossways" is showing. It is English from start to finish, in background and staging and atmosphere, slightly heavy in spots, and with a somewhat dragging tempo, but the characterizations are splendid. They hold the pose for many minutes in this picture. The beautiful Diana is compelled to maintain her expression of injured innocence or of outraged virtue, through many long feet of film, but she does it well. Fay Compton gives a splendid rendition of a difficult part, in which she has to be an English "vamp." This is a large order, because English methods compel her to be always perfectly proper, while mixing things up very well. She fascinates the husband of her best friend, to her excessive surprise, then gets married in order to obtain protection from the pursuing male sex. Her husband is sent abroad on a Russian mission, and the beautiful Diana captures the fancy of the Prime Minister. She goes through a divorce case with serene calm and succumbs then, with pleasing rapidity, to the plea of another suitor. By a trick the wily editor of "The Thunderer' obtains from her political information which ruins her lover's career, and he casts her off, in a scene of intense atmosphere. But the lady is not left uncomforted. The picture closes with a smile on her countenance, as she hears of the faithful love of another flame, who is rushing to her on news of her husband's death.

In the picture the producer has adhered with faithfulness to the story by the title name, written by George Meredith, and the somewhat choppy and sudden methods of the novel are reproduced in the screening. To Fay Compton, with a supporting cast which contains an entirely new set of names for Peterboro picture-goers, belong the honors of the piece. She does great acting throughout, with one tiny exception, and she achieves her effects against heavy odds. For a lady to appear really magnetic and convincing, and a terrible heart-breaker to modern audiences, while wearing the demure lace mittens, the pious shoulder shawls and the voluminous draperies of another and older period, is really some job. The "vamping" qualities of long ago were evidently far removed from modern methods, and it requires a slight inflation of the imagination to picture the heroine as a true home-smasher when she done a hideous coal-scuttle bonnet and a plain black shawl. Nevertheless she is a great actress, with a quality of restraint that "puts over" her emotions in fine style.

The Christie comedy is "A Hula Honeymoon" with a fat, curled maiden as heroine. There is something about this comedy that recalls an earlier type of picture fun-maker. The hero becomes involved with a lovely Hawaiian charmer, but remains faithful to his fat lady love. They have numerous adventures in the land of the ukelele and the hemp skirt.

GIRLS GAME TO-NIGHT.

C.G.E. and Colonials at Central Park.

GERMANS INCREASE TAX.

BERLIN July 31. — (Canadian Press).— German cabinet to-day adopted number of taxation measures with purposes of supplying country with considerable sums of money it needs owing to depreciation of the mark. Bills provide for 100 per cent increase income tax to meet expenditure necessitated by occupation of Rhineland and Rhur. Trading companies must pay heavily increased corporation tax for same purpose. These taxes will not be levied in occupied territory.

Beer tax will be increased but tax on mineral waters is dropped.

TRAPPED BY FLOODS TWO MEN DROWNED

PUNXSUTAWNY, Penn., July 31 (Canadian Press). — Trapped by the flood waters of Plum Creek, which left its course and poured down the slope of the Rinn-Sutter Coal Mine, seventeen miles from here, Emil Johnston, Ed. Gustafson, and Gust Carlson, miners, were drowned last night.

Four other miners escaped. One body floated out of the mine this morning.

CANADIAN REVENUES SHOW BIG INCREASE

OTTAWA, July 31 (Canadian Press).—There has been an increase of over $17,000,000 in the Customs and Excise revnue of the Dominion for the four months of the current fiscal year, which ends to-day, according to returns available at the Department here.

For the month of July alone the increase over last July was over $3,000,000.

The largest part of the increase is in the revenue from the sales tax and other excise taxes.

BANK MESSENGERS ARE RECOVERING

TORONTO, July 31 (Canadian Press). — The trio of bank messengers who were wounded by bullets of the bandits in the Melinda and Jordan Streets battle of a week ago, are now steadily improving, and their recovery seems assured.

James W. Harris, the Standard Bank messenger, who pluckily jumped from the Standard car as he grasped a pistol from one of his companions and went to the aid of the attacked men, is probably in the most serious condition, but the bulletin from General Hospital to-day was quite optimistic.

He had a very good night, and is much improved, it said.

Mrs. Harris was sent a similar message.

Walter S. Duck, Union Bank messenger, who took a bullet meant for his comrade, Brown, is also steadily improving, though still very weak from loss of blood.

David Campbell, the Sterling Bank messenger, who has a hole through his lung from a bandit bullet, also continues to make steady recovery at St. Michael's Hospital.

Harris has not yet been able to tell his version of the affair of a week ago. His doctors deem him too weak to make such an effort yet.

Duck, however, is sufficiently strong to talk a little, though the newspapers are not permitted to talk to him. He has told his wife, however, a few of the details of the battle with the robbers.

"I would know the man who shot me if I saw him again," said Duck to his wife. "I had a good look at his face."

WEDDING BELLS

NICHOLLS—KELLY.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Martin, 70 Constance street, Toronto, when Madeline (Teddy) Kelly, only daughter of Mrs. Mary Kelly, 322 Mark street, Peterborough, was united in marriage by the Rev. F. C. Kearn, Toronto, to Mr. Albert Thomas Nicholls, second son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Nicholls of Toronto.

The bride, who entered the drawing-room on the arm of Mr. C. G. Martin, looked charming in white Canton crepe, with hat to match, and carried Ohpelia roses and lily of the valley. Her bridesmaid, Miss Ada Wilson of Toronto, wore grey Canton crepe, with hat to match, and carried Columbia roses. Mr. Percival Martin was best man, and the Lohengrim Bridal Chorus was rendered by the groom's sister, Miss Mildred Nicholls.

After the wedding breakfast at the home of Mrs. C. G. Martin, 70 Constance street, the happy couple left for a motor trip for Buffalo and other points. On their return they will reside at 51 Lippincott Street, Toronto.

OBITUARY

MRS. JAMES HEAD.

The death of Mrs. James Head occurred at the Nicholls Hospital on Sunday evening. Arrangements for her burial had not been determined this afternoon.

ROBERT WILSON.

Mr. Wilson had been a valued employee of the city for a great many years. He was a regular attendant at Trinity Methodist church, a member of the Orange Order R.B.P., Canadian Order of Foresters and the Chosen Friends.

There are left to mourn his loss, his wife and three daughters, Mrs. J. F. Gillespie, Mrs. D. R. Gardiner and Miss May, all of Peterborough.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, on Wednesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, to Little Lake cemetery, Rev. James Rollins will officiate in the absence of Rev. A. J. Langford.

CHRISTINA ARNOT.

The death took place this morning, after a short illness, of Christina Arnot, aged 68 years. She was the daughter of the late Wm. Arnot, born in Peterborough and a member of St. Paul's church.

She leaves to mourn her loss one brother, David of Carthage, N. Y.; two sisters, Helen S. Arnot of Kearney, New Jersey, Mrs. John McLean, 168 1-2 Charlotte street, this city.

The funeral will take place on Thursday, Aug. 2nd, at 2 o'clock, from the residence of her sister, Mrs. McLean, 168 1-2 Charlotte street, to the Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Robt. Pogue will conduct the service.

2000 PILGRIMS

ROME, July 31. — (Canadian Press).— A band of two thousand pilgrims left to-day for Lourdes, France, to visit famous grotto. Pope Pius received delegation but insisted that three hundred patients whom it included should not be taken to vatican lest they be further fatigued. He sent these sufferers apostolic benediction and his good wishes for their recovery.

UNCLE SAM'S FOREIGN TRADE IS IN DANGER

Director Klein Warns Exporters They Are Killing Goldegg-laying Goose by Their Practices.

(By William J. Losh.)

WASHINGTON, July 31 (United Press). — American export trade is awakening to a danger of loss of foreign markets, Dr. Julius Klein, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of the department of commerce, said in an interview with the United Press.

Exporters of this country, who formerly refused to recognise orders from foreign buyers when the domestic demand for their articles was good, have now taken heed to a recent warning against such an attitude sent out by him, Dr. Klein stated.

"As a result of my warning," he declared, "many large export organisations are canvassing their memberships to see if any of their members are carrying on such a policy, and if any are found they will be requested to discontinue it.

"This sort of practice is confined mostly to the small exporters and manufacturers, who had their first experience in exporting in 1921. They do not realize the seriousness of a policy disregarding foreign orders. Such a policy is threatening the reputation of American exporters in general."

Refused the Orders.

Dr. Klein explained that some American manufacturers give their line of goods to a foreigner and then after the foreign dealer has spent time and money in developing a demand for the merchandise, the American demand for the manufacturer's articles becomes good and he refuses to handle orders from the foreign buyer.

"This is a bad practice," said Klein, "and as a considerable number of American manufacturers do this, among them some of the large and well-known houses, the effect is serious, even though the proportion of the total number of small exporting maunfacturers is small."

Klein said that the fact that a number of exporters are guilty of this practice "is sufficient in the minds of the foreigners to give American exporters in general a bad reputation."

A Serious Mistake.

Some of the large exporting and manufacturing companies have written to Dr. Klein denying the statement made in his warning to the American export trade. Klein has informed these companies that the warning "was not intended as an indictment of American exporters in general but its purpose was to call attention of American exporters to a serious mistake that some of them are making to the detriment, not only of themselves, but to the American exporters in general."

Many Are Guilty.

"The grounds were thoroughly established before the warning was issued," declared Klein, "and the replies that have been received in this office indicate that the shoe fitted a distressingly large number of genuine exporters."

Many large export houses and export associations have commended Dr. Klein for his warning and declerade that "it would not only be unwise, but definitely unfortunate, if the American exporter should assume the general attitude that the foreign trade of this country maintained by aking ordrs only a such times as might suit the manufacturers' convenience."

Dr. Klein stated that although the exporters are beginning again to recognise foreign orders, the danger point has not yet passed. He said that a failure of American manufacturers and exporters to keep in touch with foreign buyers would ultimately result in the loss of their foreign trade.

EXPELLED BURGOMASTERS.

AIX LA CHAPELLE, July 31.—(Canadian Press).—The Belgian forces of occupation to-day expelled the Burgomaster and five members of the Municipal Council of this city. No reason for the expulsion of the Germans was announced.

HISTORY OF LOST SHIP.

The steamer W. J. Carter which sank in Lake Ontario on Saturday, is well-known in marine circles. In the fall of 1917 it was purchased from a Chicago party by J. A. Bresnan, of the firm of J. R. Bresnan and Co, Brockville coal company, and was used for four seasons in carrying cargoes to Brockville for the owners. Two years ago the craft was sold to the Ogdensburg Coal and Towing Co., and a couple of months ago later was sold by the latter concern to Robt. Hicks of this city. Upon being purchased by J. R. Bresnan and Son the craft was changed from American to Canadian registry

ANCIENT COINS FOUND.

ROME, July 31.—(Associated Press)—Interesting relics in the form of two large brass vases filled with pieces of gold, and believed by experts to belong to a period 300 or 400 years B.C., have, by order of the government, been removed from Ognina, which is situated at the foot of Mount Etna, to Rome.

The vases were discovered in a fissure in the ground under an old wall, after a slight earthquake, by a deaf and dumb peasant. The news of the find only reached the authorities when the peasant offered the vases for sale to collectors.

PRINTERS TIRE MAKING MARKS QUIT THE JOB

Consternation in All Germany When the Manufacturers of Paper Cash Went on Strike.

WAGES STABILIZED

BERLIN, August 1 (Special to The Examiner). — A two-hour strike of printers in Berlin spread consternation throughout Germany on Tuesday.

With the mark dropping and the money at a premium, the nation was faced with reversion to primitive methods of barter unless the printers could be induced to continue turning out paper marks.

Presses were hitting a high total of three thousand million marks daily, when word came that they had to quit.

Without their day and night labour of making the worthless pieces of printed paper, the country would literally wear out its fragile currency within a fortnight.

Stabilised Wages.

The printers' demand for stabilised wages will probably be met, as theirs is now one of the nation's key industries.

Their strike recalls the concessions made in South Russia to Bolshevik printers a year ago. Then the pressmen demanded free use of the presses for two hours daily—to print pocket money for themselves—and got it.

Food Shortage.

The effects of last week's fall of the mark are beginning to show themselves in a pronounced food shortage throughout the Ruhr.

Farmer sare refusing to exchange good potatoes for badly depreciated money, and in consequence potatoes, meat, and other staples are almost unobtainable at any price. The farmers simply will not bring to town anything that will keep.

This is true not only in the Ruhr, but elsewhere in Germany. Yesterday, for example, 485 carloads of foodstuffs entered the occupied territory, but not a single carload of potatoes was among the shipments.

Both French and German authorities are seeking to reassure growers so that potatoes may be procured, but it is recognised that there is no way of forcing farmers to sell.

The situation has become so acute that an aggravation of the present shortage, it is felt, would make food riots not improbable.

LANDED BIG LUNGE WITH A LIGHT LINE

Dr. Harold Long Caught 23-Pounder in Chemong Lake on Tuesday.

Fishing with a light pole and line in Chemong Lake yesterday, Dr. H. J. Long, dentist, of this city, hooked a big lunge which he finally hauled into his boat after a struggle of 35 minutes. It weighed 23 lbs., and measured 45 inches from nose to tail, with a 16 inch girth. Dr. Long was using an artificial minnow and was equipped for bass but not for leviathans. This lunge struck hard and fought so desperately that it was nearly 30 minutes before the doctor got a look at his capture. His comparatively light line required him to exercise care in playing the fish, and his tactics were rewarded with one of the biggest catches in Chemong Lake this summer.

AN EXCELLENT MARKET.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Aug. 1.—(Associated Press)—The American consul here believes Bulgaria offers an excellent market for manufactured articles of many kinds. He is Graham H. Kemper, and he says the value of the market is evidenced by the desire of foreigners to share in it.

"American merchants," says Mr. Kemper, "should pursue a definite campaign here extending over several years, as do the British. The latter are not deterred by lack of immediate profits, but build for the future. The Bulgarian market is worth going into, but this cannot be done by circulars. The work needs personal representation."

Consumes 25 Tons of Garbage Daily

The daily consumption of the Peterboro incinerator is twenty to twenty-five tons of garbage, the operator said to-day. An average of 20 loads are brought to the incinerator by the garbage collectors every day, and there are numerous other conveyances, including automobiles, which deposit their loads in the cavernous jaws of the big plant.

John Murphy and Walter Whitehead are the stockers and they say they are kept busy from 6.30 a. m. to 5 p. m. burning things the public don't want. There are eight furnaces in the plant and the interior is kept wonderfully clean.

Twice the amount of rubbish is being brought to the incinerator this year, Murphy said compared with other years.

BANK ROBBERS DIVIDED SPOIL AT MONTREAL

Discovery is Made by Private Detectives—No Wild Dissipation But All Level Headed.

BIRDS HAVE FLOWN

MONTREAL, Aug. 1.—(Special). —A Montreal office building was the headquarters of the gang of bandits who attacked the Toronto bank messengers, and it was in a small office in that building that the immense haul of bank notes was divided.

This is the discovery made by private detectives here, but made, alas, after the birds have flown.

The robbers returned to Montreal two days after the hold-up, the leader, who was the fat man mentioned in the early despatches, carrying a black suitcase in which, it is now considered, was the entire haul of bank notes. The leader and one of the gang, a man with a dark moustache, evidently his chief lieutenant, arrived first.

Cool Headed.

They reached the office building early in the forenoon and rode up the elevator. In the late afternoon, when most offices were closed, the remaining four members of the gang arrived. They walked up the stairs to the office on the second floor. There the gang remained locked up. Earlier in the afternoon, preparations for the arrival of the balance of the party were made by the second in command, running out to purchase a bottle of Scotch whiskey from the Quebec Commission store near at hand. That there was no wild dissipation that evening, and that the bandits were under the control of a cool-headed leader, is shown by the fact that a quarter of the bottle of whiskey remained after the bandits had taken their departure and their office was searched by private detectives.

ALIENS RUSHING TO UNITED STATES

Eighteen Thousand Immigrants in Quarantine at New York Today

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—Immigration officials on Ellis Island to-day were in the midst of the heaviest rush of aliens in the history of the station. Almost 18,000 crossed the imaginary line from Graves End Bay into Quarantine within ten minutes after the stroke of midnight when the new monthly quota opened.

Commissioner Curran stated that he would rush them through the Island as fast as possible, but that he did not expect to handle more than 2,000 a day. At least eight and probably more quotas will be filled within a few hours, Commissioner Curran said.

During the day the total of arriving aliens was expected to reach 21,000 at least.

Price-Cutting on Sugar Continues

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—The price-cutting movement in sugar went merrily on to-day, when all refiners announced further declines in fine granulated, one cutting as low as $7.00 in an effort to get business. Other prices ranged up to $8.10 per hundred. This represented a decline of two cents from the high price reached in April.

BRITISH GOVT. NOW FACING A HARD PROBLEM

Encountering Difficulty in Framing Single-Handed Policy Without Endangering Entente.

STATEMENT SHORTLY

LONDON, Aug. 1 — (Canadian Press).— The British Cabinet resumed its sessions this morning in Downing Street, with the prospect that proceedings would develope into one of the most important conferennce, of British ministers since the war.

Attempt to formulate a British policy, to be adopted in reparation settlement with Germany, will be continued throughout to-day and to-morrow. The ministers are expected to remain almost continuously around the conference table until the Prime Minister Baldwin is ready to make his statement in the House of Commons, to-morrow night on the status of reparations negotiations. It is understood the Government is encountering greatest difficulty in framing a policy, which will allow single handed action with the Germans and at same time ensure continuance of the Entente with the French and Belgians.

If Great Britain decides to act alone, full publication of all recent negotiations may be expected immediately.

Foreign Relations.

Premier Baldwin announced in the House of Commons to-day that he was afraid it would be impossible to publish any of the papers regarding foreign relations in time for to-morrow's debate on the reparations situation.

He pointed out that the French and Belgian notes have just been received and that it was necessary to get permission of these governments before publishing the documents.

A STATE OF WAR DOES NOT EXIST IN IRELAND

DUBLIN, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—A state of war does not exist in Ireland, Court of Appeal decided to-day in giving its judgment in the case of Mrs. Nora Connolly O'Brien, reversing the opinion of Master of the Rolls of the Chancery Division, who held that civil war did exist in Ireland on June 25.

VITAL STATISTICS FOR MONTH OF JULY

Vital statistics for the month of July show 36 births, 22 marriages and 20 deaths. The figures for June were 46 births, 31 marriages and 27 deaths.

July, 1922, had 18 more births, 13 more deaths, and 12 fewer marriages than July this year.

ODDFELLOWS LOOKING AFTER ACCOMMODATION

Telegrams have started to arrived demanding extra accommodation for visiting Oddfellows on the occasion of the Grand Encampment next week.

Canton No. 10 of Toronto wired this morning for 35 extra billets. Members of this Canton will arrive by C.P.R..

Grand Scribe and Grand Secretary "Bill" Hutcheson of Connecticut, well known to Oddfellows the world over, wired that nothing could keep him absent from the Grand Encampment here on 6th and 7th August.

Decorations Promised.

The committees in charge of arrangements met last night to pick up loose ends in preparation for the great influx of visitors on Monday.

Many of the merchants in the city have offered to decorate their places of business in the Encampment colours.

AMERICAN UNIFORM ON A CANADIAN MONUMENT

TORONTO, August 1 (Canadian Press). — The representation of a United States soldier, wearing the United States official issue tunic forage cap, etc., on a Canadian monument in Eugenia Park has caused no little comment in the city to-day, while the monument, inscribed with the names of the men who fell in that district during the war, is located in Hydro Park, the memorial has no connection with the Hydro Commission.

From the Department of Fish and Game of the Government which has control of the park comes information that the monument was erected by the town of Eugenia, and that neither the Government nor the Hydro Commission have any connection with it at all.

While the officials of the Department of Game and Fisheries have noticed the monument, the American uniform has been overlooked until spotted quite recently by a citizen of Toronto who visited the park while on vacation.

2 MALE FLAPPERS IN FREAK APPAREL

Newest Fad in Attire is a Huge Silk Sash, it Seems.

Two male flappers on George Street last night displayed the very latest in freak wearing apparel. Alighting from a car with a sang froid scarcely justifiable under the circumstances in pioneers of this class, these young men paraded about a block and decided the stares with which they were welcomed were too much.

The latest fad is a huge silk sash, about a yard wide, with long dangling tassels at each end. The sash is bound around the waist a la Rudolph Valentino, in place of the old-time leather belt, and the tassels are allowed to hang down below the coat. The colors are gaudy in the extreme.

Bell-bottom pants, jazz vests and House of David haircuts were vaguely known of here, but seldom encountered. With last night's appearance of the latest in dress for the male flapper, however, Peterborough has jumped into the limelight as a leader in male costumery.

EXCISE STAMPS MUST BE USED ON CHEQUES

To-day is the first day on which postage stamps will not be accepted in payment of cheque tax. By an order which came into force this morning, only excise stamps must be used on cheques.

These stamps may be purchased at any chartered bank in the city, arrangements having been made with the banks by the Department to keep a stock.

HON. P. C. LARKIN MAKES TRIP TO THE DOMINION

QUEBEC, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner in London, England, arrived here this morning on the C.P. S. Empress of Scotland. In the course of an interview with the High Commissioner, he stated that his first intention is to confer with Hon. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, and other members of the Federal Government as soon as he arrives in Ottawa. He would not divulge what the subject of the conference would be, but stated that he was going to the capital on purely Government business in connection with Canadian interests in the Empire capital.

PAPER MARKS GROWING DAILY IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—The German money presses ground out a trillion marks per day during the third week in July and then threw in an extra 333 billion for good measure.

The Reichsbank home gold reserve decreased by 40,500 million marks, which amount is reported to have been sold abroad. The official bank now has slightly more than 500 million in bullion in its Berlin vaults and 110 million on deposit abroad. Its holdings in treasury notes of discount increased by more than nine trillion paper marks during the same period.

THE COUNTESS WORKS

COUNTESS OF CLONMELL

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Call it reaction from the war, if you will, but the fact remains that British women, bred in court atmosphere, are finding it difficult to go "back to the old way of living."

One of the nobility who "felt that way" is the beautiful Countess of Clonmell, wife of an Irish peer.

During the war she was active in relief work. She worked hard. And when the armistice came and court life settled back she grew restless, she says.

She wanted to be a business woman. In the world of facts and figures, she felt, she could find true happiness.

And so the countess startled aristocracy by opening a laundry in the fashionable Mayfair district. She called her establishment "The White Elephant." Perhaps she felt it would prove such.

But it didn't. Business flourished. She made money. And then she displayed typical American enterprise by expanding and starting branches in various parts of the isles.

The countess was the former Miss Rachel Berridge of Toft Hill, Warwick. She intends to remain a business woman always.

SEEK BOMB THROWERS AT THE SYDNEY MINES

HALIFAX, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press.)— Chief of Police J. B. McCormick, who arrived in Halifax today to interview Attorney General W. J. O'Hearn, told the Canadian Press that he was confident that the perpetrators of the Sydney water main explosion last Monday morning would be shortly brought to justice. Chief McCormick said he had examined craters caused by explosions and was satisfied they had not been caused by ordinary breaks in water mains. He had found no trace of bombs but believed, he said, that charges of dynamite or other high explosives had been laid.

Huron Chief Weds An Irish Colleen

QUEBEC, August 1 (Canadian Press). — The marriage of a Huron chief to an Irish colleen was an event of outstanding importance in the Huron village of Indian Lorette yesterday.

The groom was Chief Eugene Sioui, and the bride was Miss Marguerite Burke, of this city.

The bride was gowned in white, with a wreath and veil, while the groom wore the costume of an Indian chieftain, and was accompanied by the chiefs of the tribe, also in full costume.

SMALL ARMY OF WINSOME BABES FOR BABY SHOW

Popularity of Contest at Next Peterborough Fall Fair Shown in Number of Entrants.

HIVE OF BUSY BEES

Anyone who visited the Well Babies' Clinic yesterday afternoon, wouldn't have much doubt about the popularity of the Baby Contest which has been inaugurated under Clinic auspices, in connection with the coming Fall Fair. Last week's attendance of 42 was considered a record. Yesterday saw that number almost doubled, with 83 babies examined and weighed, of whom 27 were entered for the contest, and 35 were new entrants in the special class for under-developed infants. These additions to last week's entries make a total of 50 infants already registered for the regular contest itself, and 42 in the special class for under-developed babies, whose progress until the opening of the Fair will be watched with interest. One wee mite, entered in this section is 15 months old and wieghs only 10¼ pounds.

Like a Hive of Bees.

The Clinic yesterday, as one visitor expressed it, was like a hive of busy bees. On the green outside, nuumber of baby carriages were parked, and in and out of the entrance, streamed all afternoon lines of mothers (in one case, a father), with their small warm bundles.

It was warm yesterday afteroon, and the babies felt it. The commonsense of those mothers who remember that a baby, although inarticulate, is a human being, and not a doll, to be swathed in innumerable wrappings, was demonstrated in many cases. A tiny thing, with thin white dress, bare arms and feet smiled contentedly at its mother who fanned it happily while a small morsel, its brick red curls vieing in color with its red face, wailed loudly over its many petticoats and woolen bootees.

The Clinic babies have nohing the matter with their lungs. Many of them smile, but many, also, in the heat, cry and they do it lustily, from the faint "ah-h" of the tiny tning reposing on its mothers' lap to the hearty yell of the bigger children, aroused to protest by inexplicable weighings and measurings. A small boy baby, with tight high curls and piercing black eyes, cultivated a sudden loud scream throughout the afternoon that sent neighbouring smiling kiddies into whimpering refuges on comforting shoulders.

One Protested.

On the measuring table a small, placid child played with the yellow tape, another protested with upraised voice against such inquisitive advances, while a third, a small, attractive morsel little Andree, just five months old and twenty - five inches all, sucked a fat, white thumb in philosophical fashion.

Evelyn peered through the uprights of her small chair; a widely smiling, blue-eyed lady who as the reputation of cheerfulness. She has two new teeth, and was showing them in a large smile. "That child is always cheerful. I never saw her cry," said an admirer. "Well, I have,' announced her mother, with vigor, but Evelyn only beamed more broadly as if to discount any such contradictory remark.

Irene resents her head measuring, a small man with two fat black chicks on his yellow muslin chest sucks loudly at the head of his pink celluloid doll, another tests the eatable qualities of its white frock, and a small baby, evidently dissatisfied with the record of its weight as its parents remarks, tries to consume the offending card.

Serious Little Lad.

A serious little lad, with close cut hair, brown eyes and a rose bud mouth, stands up gravely to be weighed. He is by way of being an object lesson to the small pretty thing in blue ruffled frock whose nerves are on edge with the heat. She is a dainty little creature, with brown curls and dark lashes about blue violet eyes, but she doesnt like the Clinic, or the babies or the contest. She doesn't want to get a prize or have a candy, or buy an ice cream cone, and her eyes overflow with tired tears.

Besides her, sits a serene little creature, with lovely white skin and firm little arms, quite unmoved by the sticky atmostphere or the crescendo wails of neighbouring infants. In and out to the examining corner go the mothers, and around the tables where the cards are being filled out they cluster in animated groups. The little room is alive with growink life and the buzz of cheerful conversationn.

Enquiring Looking.

On his mother's knee, with wide open eyes and enquiring - looking upright yellow hair, sits a small boy. He was small, weak baby at birth, but his mother announces with prtide that she rubbed his back daily with olive oil and now he sits up very straight and firm, a child whose growth has resulted in his aunt declaring that he is much too big for

Building in July Shows Improvement

Building permits issued in July were $10,345 higher than in July of last year. The figures are:—July, of 1922, $34,570; July, 1923, $53,115. In the latter half of July the value of permits was three times that of the first two weeks.

In 1912—in the days that are referred to as never likely to return—the total for July was only $44,210.

The biggest item in the permits in July this year, was the sub-station, at an estimated cost of $31,520. Repairs to St. Peter's Cathedral are placed at $5,000. The next biggest item is a garage on Weller street, estimated at $1,000. No permits were issued for dwellings in the last two weeks of the month.

CROSSES INTO ONTARIO WITH TWO CONVICTS

Governor of Ohio is Accompanied on Holiday Trip to Coboconk by Life-Termers.

ARE HIS SERVANTS

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Aug. 1. —(Canadian Press)—Governor Donahey of Ohio and Warden Preston Thomas of Ohio State Penitentiary crossed the border into Canada here yesterday with C. Zipriani and Carl Jennings, convicts trusties as servants. The party expected to make an extensive hunting trip through the province of Ontario. Other members of the party includes six of Governor Donahey's sons, and a son of Warden Thomas.

They Are Lifers.

According to a despatch from Columbus, Ohio, the two convicts referred to above are serving life sentence for murder.

Acrimonious comment has been aroused all over the State of Ohio, by the Governor's action, which is said to be unprecedented in history of the United States.

The Governor was accompanied by Warden Preston E. Thomas, the Warden's son, Don, and Donahey's six sons. They took along Earl Jennings, sentenced in 1916 from Butter county to serve life for first-degree murder and C. Jipriani, sentenced in the same year, from Cuyaoga county, to serve life for second - degree murder. The party will camp at Coboconk, Ont.

One Cook, Other Chauffeur.

Zipriani has been acting as cook for the Warden's family at the penitentiary for several months, and Jennings has served as chauffeur for the Governor, with quarters at the executive mansion.

Might Raise Grave Question.

At the Attorney-General's office, Toronto, it was pointed out that should the two murderers escape while in Canada, it would raise a grave international question as to whether they could be extradited to complete their sentences. Jennings was sentenced for killing James Nicholas by beating him to death with a fence rail. Another man he assaulted at the same time died.

The records on file, in the pardon office do not disclose the nature of Zipriani's crime, other than that he was received at the State Prison on November 16, 1916, from Cuyahoga county, to serve a life sentence for second-degree murder.

Province Not Concerned.

Questioned to-day as to whether the Ontario Provincial Police authorities would take any steps to extradite the two convicts with life terms who are said to have accompanied Governor Donahey of Columbus, Ohio., on his vacation to Ontario, Deputy Attorney General Bailey stated that the Ontario Provincial Police were not concerned in the matter any way. "We do not know anything about this,' he said, "except what I saw in this morning's paper. If a life termer from the States comes into Canada, with or without permission he is free but the immigration authorities can take steps to have him extradited. Unless we are asked to do anything by the immigration authorities, it is not our intention, nor do we think it necessary, to concern ourselves with this matter in any way. The matter rests with the immigration authorities."

Not Eligible Here.

A despatch from Ottawa says instructions have been issued by the immigration department to their inspectors at ports of entry to watch for the two convicts who are reported to be endeavouring to enter Canada from the United States. It was said at the department this morning that no person with criminal record is eligible for entry into Canada.

Drury's Permission.

A later despatch from Niagara Falls reads "Governor Donahey of Ohio, entered Canada here en route to Coboconk, Ontario, and has a letter from ex-Premier Drury, according him full privileges. The immigration officers do not fear complications from the entry of the two convicts.

CHEESE BOARD HAD SIX BIDS THIS MORNING

For the First Time This Season Two Factories Were Left Unsold.

THE DAIRY ACT

With the usual buyers present, the Peterborough Cheese Board this morning disposed of 1,600 boxes of cheese at 18 13-16 cents, an increase of nearly 2 cents over last Board. For the first time this season two factories were left unsold—Ster and Dunsford.

Only six bids were entered, G. Thompson opening at 18¾ for the A. A. Ayers Co., Montreal, and J. S. Cooke, buying for W. S. Cooke and Son, setting the final figure at 18 13-16. On first selection he accepted 615 boxes; W. F. Fanning, for the Canadian Packing Company, took the remainder.

The factories to board were: Warminster, 95; Warsaw, 140; Young's Point, 115; North Dummer, 60; Cedardale, 58; Dumsford, 75; Star, 55; South Burleigh, 23; Buckhorn, 68; Killarney, 219; and Oakdale, 148.

Last week's price in Campbellford was 19 3-4.

Dairy Act Upheld.

On a motion put by G. A. Gillespie and seconded by E. Hawthorne, the Board expressed its approval of the Standard Dairy Act, to which boards in the surrounding district have objected.

The matter was brought up by a communication asking the Board to co-operate with Belleville and other Boards in having the Act amended so as to make the enforcement optional with the different factories.

Mr. Gillespie said, "There was never any Act placed on the statute book so good for the farmers as that very Act." J. Cooke opposed the Act, saying that the cheese factories were not satisfied.

Mr. Gillespie: "Since this Act came into force we have not had to add a drop of cream to bring our milk up to 3.2 per cent. Before that we had to add cream regularly. The milk is nearly all up to standard today. It is not fair that when one man sends us 2.5 grade he should be paid the same as a man who sends a 3.5 grade."

Mr. Cooke: "The opinion of the cheese men is that the dairymen are pulling them into a hole."

Mr. Hawthorne: "I think we would be going back by subscribing to this change."

Mr. Thompson: "Two many instructors are spending their time testing milk when they should be trying to improve the quality of the cheese. We want to get back to the old system of inspections by going to the men who are not sending in the right grade of milk, and trying to improve the quality."

Several members of the Board expressed the opinion that the decision as to whether the maker would pay by test or by butter-fat should be left to the factories. At the same time they declared their determination to pay only by butter-fat.

President Braden put the motion, and as a result of the vote, no action will be taken by the Peterborough Board.

THE WEATHER.

August gets its name from the Emperor Augustus, because it was his lucky month. To make it equal to July, which had been called after Julius Caesar a few years before, a day was taken from February—the last month in the Roman year—and added to August. The past month of July was exceedingly dry as compared with June. July had but three-quarters of inch of rain (.76), as compared with 4.77 in June. If it had not been for the heavy downpours that we had from 3rd to 9th of June, and which at the time were viewed with dismay by the agriculturists, the crops would be in a very precarious condition at the present time. The highest temperature in July was 93 degrees; the lowest 42. July had three days of 90 or over. —W. P.

PLEASE NOTE

That during July and August our office will be closed all day Thursday, our hours for the rest of the week will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. except Saturday, when we will be open till 10 p.m. —W. H. LACEY, Optometrist, 410 George street, 'Phone 1160.

FROM MANY RANKS COME SHOW FOLKS

"Big Hat" Al Fisher Draws Curtain on Antecedents of Billie Clark's Helpers.

"We're sorry we can't stay in Peterborough for the whole week," said Al Fisher to the Examiner at Exhibition Park last night, where Billie Clark's Broadway Exposition are entertaining thousands every night. "We like this city," he continued. "And everybody connected with the show will say that in all sincerity. We have been well patronized, every night's crowd being bigger than that of the preceding night. But beyond that we like the city and the people we have come in contact with. But we are booked for the Old Boys' reunion in London, and we've got to be on our way. We will be open Thursday afternoon. Everything will be going, especially the rides for the children."

Mr. Fisher referring to the personnel of the show said that there were many interesting facts connected with the business which the general public would never imagine. An occupational roll would disclose the presence of professional and business men, lawyers, ministers, bankers, brokers, salesmen, in fact recruits from some or other of these classes, but here and there a former banker, or broker, or minister and so on was unearthed.

"For example," said "Big Hat" Al, "there is Joe Corey, the young man with the black bushy hair who lectures on the front of the Minstrel Show. At one time Mr. Corey was a missionary in Syria and for six months was captive of a gang of bandits. After his release he went to New York city and was a minister of the Gospel, and finally went into the show business and is rated to-day as one of the best lecturers in the outdoor world.

Another interesting character is Gus Homilcopsingkeropulos or Gus Augur as the show boys call him. He is the "chef de cuisine" at the dining tent on the show grounds and for four years was a second lieutenant in the Greek Army. In the service he received the magnificent sum of 80c. a month in Canadian money. Gus can be seen any morning at the grounds at the back of the cooking tent with some of his Greek army going through setting up exercises. Gus believes that his country will be at war again before long over the Turkish situation.

Then there is Louie Pan who, for the past five years has had a concession at the Toronto National Exhibition. He always speaks with pride of the day the Prince of Wales stopped in front of his stand and played at it.

As for Billie Clark himself, the owner, he was travelling salesman for a razor blade company before he dreamt of the show business. Mr. Clark will never forget the day he put a preparation on his face to keep his skin smooth so he could sell blades more readily, and in after years when he would try to encourage a moustache he found it an impossibility. And even to-day the little misplaced eyebrow is the best he can produce."

"The man who started out to be a doctor often proves his special skill in some emergency, but the lawyer's services are rarely required."

Mr. Fisher said it would take a book to tell about his people. They are in a business that keeps them on the move, although they have visions and dreames of settling down in the place they call home just the same as other people.

COMPETITIONS FOR CITY'S BEST LAWNS

Entries Invited by President T. E. Bradburn—Eight Classes With Prizes.

The president of the icultural Society, Mr. T. E. Bradburn, advises The Examiner that it has been decided to hold the annual lawn and garden competition on Monday, August 6th, during the afternoon, and arrangements have been made through the Horticultural Association for Mr. George Baldwin, P.R H.S., of Toronto, to again act as judge. In the last year's judging, Mr. Baldwin awarded points under various headings according to the class of competition and through the publication of points awarded those entering the competitions received pointers as to the necessary attention which should be given to the lawns and surroundings.

This system will be adopted again and should be the means of securing a considerable number of entries, not because of the prizes, but because of the suggestions offered by a capable man such as Mr. Baldwin for the betterment of the properties owned by the competitors.

As in the previous year, there will be eight classes as follows.

Class A—Open to all for the best kept grounds surrounding the premises. 1st prize, the F. W. Adams cup for one year. If being won by the same contestant for three consecutive years, the cup becomes the property of the contestant. 2nd prize $3, and 3rd $2.

Class B — Amateurs only, for the best lawn and surroundings. 1st prize, $3; 2nd and 3rd, membership for the coming year.

Class C — Workingmen only, for best garden and surroundings. 1st prize, $3; 2nd, $2; and 3rd, membership for the coming year.

Class D—Best display of window boxes, hanging baskets or urns. 1st prize, $3; 2nd $2 and 3rd, membership for the coming year.

Class E—Best flower bed cared for solely by boy or girl, 16 years of age or under. 1st prize, $3; 2nd $2 and 3rd $1.

Class H—Best kept grounds of schools nad public institutions. 1st prize, $3; 2nd, $2, and 3r1 $1.

Entries.

There were nearly 50 entries in the various classes last year and the directors of the Society are expecting a considerable increase in this number.

Entries to the competition must be made in writing and forwarded to the secretary of the society, 358 George street, not later than Saturday, August 4th, and must show the contestant's name and address, and the class or classes for which the entry is made.

All citizens whether members of the society or not, are eligible to enter into the competitions.

MINIMUM WAGE FOR CLERGY

LONDON, (United Press).—A minimum wage of $1,500 a year will shortly be established for Church of England clergymen, the Archbishop of Canterbury announced today.

More harvesters than ever will be needed this year in Western Canada on account of the bumper crop. Special trains will be run by the Canadian Pacific Railway, which is advertising the usual low rate of $15 to Winnipeg, plus a half-cent per mile beyond to destination in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Returning the fare will be $20 from Winnipeg, plus a half-cent per mile from starting point. Going dates are August 13, 15, 22, and 24, according to the territory in Ontario. On the lunch cars food and refreshments may be obtained at reasonable prices. Special cars will be provided for ladies, children (full fare) and their escorts. First special train will leave Toronto on each date at 10.00 a.m., and last special at 10.30 p.m. on each date.

Full information may be secured from any Canadian Pacific ticket office.

SCORES INJURED IN WRECK IN GERMANY

Express Train Crashed Into a Train Which Was Standing in Kreiensen Station — 100 Believed Dead.

BERLIN, August 1. Canadian Press. — A great disaster occurred at the Kreiensen station at junction of the Hanover and Cassel line yesterday, caused by a collision between the Hamburg-Munich express and a train standing at the station. Up to 4 o'clock 40 bodies had been recovered from the wreckage, and the estimated number of killed is 100, while 34 of the injured are being cared for in the hospital at Goettingen.

Identification of the killed is extremely difficult and in some cases impossible, owing to their mangled condition. The collision is attributed to the inability of the driver of the express to see his signals because of grit which had blown in his eyes. The crash was terrific and most of the cars were scattered and piled on top of one another.

Those who were killed instantly suffered the happiest fate for many others were crushed down in the wreckage and endured agonies before the end came.

GOLD BASIS WOULD HAVE CAUSED RUIN

Chancellor Cuno Explains Why Germany Did Not Place Finances on Pre-War Footing.

BERLIN, August 1. — Canadian Press).— Just why the Government has delayed placing its finance, and economics on a good basis was revealed yesterday by Chancellor Cuno, in the course of extended parleys with representatives of the Labor Federation, to whom the Chancellor admitted that sudden conversion to a pre-war gold computation would have revealed the presence of "much bluff," in the nation's financial and economic position. Sudden deflation, he believed, would have resulted, depriving untold numbers of their livelihood, and dragging innocent victims to ruin In his opinion, an "over-sudden transition to a gold basis would inevitably have brought about economic catastrophies and widespread unemployment.

The Chancellor asserted that so long as Germany's former foes were occupying German soil there was grave prospect of unemployment in unoccupied Germany. The adoption of a per-war gold standard was not feasible while reparations remained unsettled.

Rudolf Havenstein, President of the Reichsbank, stated that transition to a gold basis was a compulsory development, although he believed the Reichsbank was not in a position to take the initiative in restoring gold currency.

FIRE CHIEFS MEET.

BOUNTIFUL HARVEST IS PROMISED TO ALL OF WESTERN CANADA

Some Cutting Is Being Done and Harvest Will Be General By August 15th.

GOOD REPORTS.

WINNIPEG, August 1. — (Canadian Press).— On the eve of the harvest, early promise of bountiful yields of wheat and other grains is not in the least diminished, though a few localities have suffered from the vicissitude, of the weather which have affected individuals rather more than communities, the crop report of the Canadian National Railways for the week ended July 28, states:

In a comparatively small section of Southern Manitoba prospective wheat yield, are threatened with depreciation by rust, but conditions in this respect are not very serious. Elsewhere in the province the situation is generally favorable.

Reports from all sections of North of the Assiniboine River, west of the Souris, forecast a good harvest while the greater part of the southern section of Manitoba, will contribute largely to the total production in spite of untoward circumstances in some localities. Some wheat cutting is now being done and harvest will be general by the fifteenth if the weather becomes more settled.

Reports from Saskatchewan are very optimistic. While there have been heavy local rain storms, sometimes accompanied by hail, no widespread damage has been done In some places grain has lodged as a result of winds and rains but it is expected this will recover. There is a heavy stand of straw with long heads which are filling out nicely. There will be considerable wheat cutting in the first week of August and the work will be general about the fifteenth to the twentieth. The rye harvest is well advanced and barley cutting is now in progress. Thtre has been a good crop of native hay. The rye harvest and haying have been delayed in some sections by rains. It is estimated that rye will run from 20 to 25 bushels to the acre, and there will be disappointment in most parts of the province if wheat yields do not equal those of 1915. Some red rust has appeared, but has occasioned no damage.

Perhaps of the three provinces, Alberta gives greatest promises for a uniformly heavy yield of wheat and oats There is a heavy stand of straw, carrying large well-filled heads, according to reports received from practically all Canadian National points in the province. The harvest will be general about Aug. 20.

Only local damage has occured from adverse weather and that in but few places. There has been no damage from other causes.

Six Young Men Were Sentenced For Robbery.

MONTREAL, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—Sentences of seven, five and two years in the penitentiary were the sequel to the reign of terror which six young men, all around 20 years of age, caused on the highways around Montreal in June and early July of this year. Highway robberies with violence had been committed by the men at L'Assomption, Lanorais, Carterville, River des Prairies and Montreal North and Judge Amedee Konet made a scathing review of their crimes before imposing sentence. He said it was only at the request of their relatives that he had refrained from imposing the lash as part of the sentences. The men who drew the sentences and their terms are:

Louis Philippe Longpre, seven years; Jas. Villeneuve, seven years; Louis Dagenais, five years; Victor Groulx, five years; Jos. Deschenes, two years. A sixth man, Odinas Giroux, was remanded for sentence to September 11. All the accused pleaded guilty.

Swiss Notes Will Be Offered To-Day.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.— (Canadian Press).—Public offering of $20,000,000, three year, five per cent. notes of the Government of Switzerdand at a price to yield the investor 6 per cent. will be made throughout the country to-day by a group of bankers headed by J. P. Morgan and Company.

This is the first foreign loan of any consequences since the $25,000,000 loan to Austria a few months ago, which carried a 7 per cent coupon and was offered at 90 to yield 7.80 per cent.

While the purpose of the loan was not made public, it is understood that the proceeds will be used to finance purcahess particularly of wheat, in the United States. The Swiss Government particularly specified that dollar credits were wanted which confirms the belief that the money will be spent in this country and explains why no effort was made to arrange the financing in London, where interest rates are slightly lower than they are here.

TEN CHURCH HOLIDAYS.

MOSCOW, August 1. Canadian Press. — The council of Commissars yesterday fixed upon ten church holidays to be observed according to the new style of calendar. Thus this year will be the first that Russia will observe Christmas simultaneously with the rest of the world, on December 25th.

Chief of Police Arrested on Charge of Robbery.

WINNIPEG, August 1.—(Canadian Press).—Alex. Martin, chief of police, of Selkirk, and Robert Ramsay, hotel proprietor of Selkirk, were committed for trial here yesterday on a charge growing out of an alleged liquor robbery at Selkirk, June 4 in which the accused were alleged to have used force in robbing Gaston Gatin and George Conley of liquor, valued at $1,254 which the two men had contracted to sell to Ramsay. Bail of $16,000 for each man was renewed.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Wrong Impression With Regard to Holsteins Corrected By Cheese Salesman — Baseball News Notes.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 1.—An observing traveller stated the other day that he could form an estimate of the farmers in the riding who voted against the Drury government by merely noting the breed of cows pasturing in the various fields. This traveller said that it was a safe assumption that the owner of Holsteins were anti-Druryites on account of the opposition to the Standard Dairy Act which was given effect by the late government. This act provides for the sale of milk, not by weight, but according to the percentage of butter fat which it contains. As the milk from Holstein cows is supposed to run to quantity rather than quality, it is evident that owners of that type of animals were more opposed to the new law than are farmers who keep other breeds of cows.

W. M. Stephens, salesman for the Trent Valley cheese factory, which is loctaed in town, says that this impression with regard to Holsteins is entirely wrong. All of his cows are thoroughbreds of that type and yet his milk, which shows three per cent of butter fat, grades the highest of any delivered at the factory.

Mr. Stephens voted at the meeting of the cheese board last week in favour of asking the Department to have the law amended so as to permit each factory to decide whether or not it should operate under it. He says that his objection to the act is that it deals with only one ingredient, butter fat, while there are other elements essential in the production of first class cheese and butter.

President Innis, of the cheese board, also defends the reputation of the Holsteins. He says that owners of these cows, opposed to the Standard Dairy Act at the start, are in favor of it after a trial.

Salesman Dan Petherick, of the Stanwood factory, who refused to board the output last week because the price received averaged lower than that paid at Belleville, afterwards sold the cheese on the street for 19 1-2 cents, the same as was paid on the board.

Baseball Notes.

Campbellford will have an open date to-day in the Northumberland League. The next scheduled game, that with Roseneath, will, by special arrangement, be played at the celebration to be held at Warkworth on Wednesday of next week. On that date at the same place, there will also be a game between Warkworth and Brighton.

Some of the clubs are claiming credit for home runs made by members of their team. A Warkworth player is credited with a four base hit made at Colborne on Saturday. This was probably the same kind of home runs as those made by two Campbellford players on the Colborne grounds last week, when the ball was lost in the waving grass and the batter circled on what would not at the outside have been more than a double if the crop of hay had been harvested before the game. Neither of the Campbellford players claimed a home run for his hit.

ARREST MADE FOR ALLEGED HOLD-UP

North Bay Police Arrested Arthur Hebert in Connection With the Hold-up of Thirteen Poker Players.

NORTH BAY, August 1. Canadian Press. — Following the receipt of information from the north that a man wanted in conection with the hold up of 13 men engaged in a game of poker at Kirkland Lake, was aboard the continental limited, Provincial Inspector Elliott arrested Arthur Robert, a saxophone player, as he stepped off the train at North Bay.

The affair with which Robert is alleged to have been connected has a distinctly sensational flavor, inasmuch as he is alleged to have been the man who donned a fancy masquarade costume, left the ball at 2.30 in the morning, held up the poker game then in progress a short distance from the dansant and escaped with more than $660.

He is then supposed to have left Kirkland Lake accompanied by a 14 year old girl whose father, Mike Dolan of Swastika, swore out a warrant that night for his arrest on a charge of abduction.

The girl was taken off the train on which Robert was caught at Cobalt but he gave the officers the slip until he was met by Constable Elliott at North Bay.

Robert is described as an immaculately attired young man of 20 years. He speaks both French and English fluently and when arrested was packing a .38 calibre and 27 rounds of ammunition. He was taken north for trial by Constable Elliott and Constable Mitchell, of Swastika.

Snow Reported West of Calgary

CALGARY, Alta., Aug. 1. — Snow has laid the crops 15 miles west of Calgary, and the foothills are white.

Rain is general from Edmonton to the border with the exception of a few districts.

Snow is reported in Banff, with a very brief fall in Calgary, Dewington, and Claresholm.

These are the outstanding facts about the storm that has swept over the greater part of the province since Sunday night.

BIG LIVE STOCK MARKET IN JAPAN

And Proposition to Establish Feeding Centre in Vancouver.

Western Canada's livestock may find a big market in Japan and stockyards and a feeding centre may be established in Vancouver to take care of store cattle before it is shipped across the Pacific Ocean, if negotiations by H. P. Kennedy of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, livestock dealer and exporter to Europe and the United States, with steamship companies are successful.

Mr. Kennedy, who early this year, was asked by United Grain Growers of Western Canada to direct the distribution of all livestock originating in the pool system of marketing adopted by the farmers of Western Canada, is seeking to equalize the cost of shipping a head of cattle from Edmonton to Japan with that of shipping from Edmonton to Great Britain.

Prices Vary.

His firm has a price of from $15 to $20 a head across the Atlantic. The price quoted by Pacific Ocean companies is $75. If he can bring the cost of the short railway haul from Edmonton plus the steamship charges to Yokohama to equal the cost of shipping across Canada to the Atlantic seaboard and thence across the ocean, Mr. Kennedy said he would experiment with a shipment. From an authoritative source he had learned that there was a good market in Japan for Canadian meats of the cheaper grades. Lean meat, not easily sold in Europe, is in demand there, he said.

"If we can get the right price," he said yesterday, "we shall send a cargo of live cattle to Japan. On the success of the first shipment depends our future policy. Western Canada needs every market open to it. Cattle originating west of Moose Jaw could be shipped with profit to the Orient via Vancouver. The westward route is the natural channel."

Suggests Feeding Here.

If Vancouver becomes a big grain shipping port, Mr. Kennedy points out, cattle could be sent here to feed on the screenings from the elevator as they are doing in Fort William, Ont.

Regarding conditions in the livestock industry generally, Mr. Kennedy said that they were much improved with the removal of the embargo in the spring. Several thousand head of cattle have been shipped through Eastern Canada ports in the past few months. Because of a shortage of feed last year, the production of livestock this year will not be so heavy.

"England has found the quality of Canadian meats from cattle shipped very satisfactory," he said. "But the British farmer is making bitter complaint against the branding of Canadian cattle. The butcher docks the farmer about $7.50 for each hide bearing the brand."

Through the pool system of marketing, the prairie farmer is receiving 1-2 cent a pound more for his stock than previously. Begun February 15, the pool system has been a big success.—Vancouver Sun.

CHANGES IN REVENUE ACT.

OTTAWA, August 1.—(Canadian Press)—New legislation, which takes effect Wednesday morning, makes letters, including form letters, forwarded by mail, also post cards, acknowledging payment of money of $10 and upwards, subject to stamp tax on receipts.

One change provided for in the amendment to the special War Revenue Act makes the maximum stamp tax collectable upon cheques one dollar instead of two dollars as was the case formerly. But the change which will affect the general public most is the regulation stipulating that in future banks and the government will not accept postage stamps in collecting the tax but will insist upon use of the special revenue stamps issued for the purpose.

TERRIFIC HAIL STORM.

MOOSE JAW, August 1. —(Canadian Press). — Hail damage of 100 per cent. over a wide area was reported yesterday from Drinkwater, on the Soo line ,south of Moose Jaw. The storm was accompanied by very heavy rain and a regular gale of wind. Practically every building in Drinkwater had a number of windows broken on the west side.

Garden stuff was destroyed and the garden plots looked as though they had been ploughed.

MANY CHANGES ARE ANNOUNCED IN PATENT ACT

Several New Advantages Given to the Inventor—Several Changes of a Technical Nature.

OTTAWA, Aug. 1. Canadian Press —In yesterday's issue of the weekly journal published by the Federal Patent Department are printed the provisions of the new act which will govern the granting of patents after Aug. 31.

The new regulations are more liberal in the consideration extended to inventors. Summed up briefly the most important departures from the old legislation are extensions of the time limit set for the manufacture of the patented device; provision for one partner in an invention to secure a patent upon it under certain conditions; making registration of patent attorneys obligatory and reducing the amount of fees and the danger of permitting the patent to lapse through the failure to pay a second fee installment.

Some of the amendments are of a wide interest because of the effect they will have upon the prospects of Canadian investors seeking to reap benefit from their ingenuity and labors.

The amendment makes it necessary for all patent attorneys practising in Canada to register, gives the Federal Department disciplinary powers over men in their profession who treat their clients unfairly or are guilty of other forms of unethical conduct.

The provision making it possible for one party to an invention to secure a patent removes a long standing grievance which was often apparent under the old act. Under present legislation a disagreement between partners in an invention can hold up an application indefinitely. Sometimes one of the inventors assumes a "dog in the manger" attitude, and because he will not collaborate with his partner in securing protection for the invention the applicant who is anxious to proceed can find no redress

STILL SNOOPING AROUND.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 1.—Several recent arrests have revealed German spies still are active at Seebrugge, according to government agents.

President Harding Has Passed Crisis

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal, Aug. 1.—(Associated Press).— President Harding has passed the crisis and is on the road to recovery, according to a statement late yesterday to the Associated Press by Dr. Charles E. Sawyer, the President's personal physician.

Dr. Sawyer said :

"Since we have our toxin well under control, I feel safe in saying that we have passed the peak load of trouble. I don't want to be too emphatic about it because we always face complications. But I feel that the crisis is over and that the President is well on are road to recovery."

FOOD SITUATION IS GETTING WORSE

Many Families in the Ruhr District Without Supplies Since Saturday.

BERLIN, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—Reports from the Ruhr indicate that the food situation there is becoming steadily worse. At Gelsenkirchen, several thousand miners failed to report for work; they informed the management that they were physically unfit to enter the pits, as their families have been without potatoes and other food supplies since Saturday. The French are charged with having systematically bought up the food at various places in the occupied zone.

Food transports from unoccupied Germany are reported to be stalled at the zone frontiers, owing to disorganization of the French administered railway lines, which is preventing shipments from reaching their Ruhr destinations.

Chancellor Cuno has conferred with a delegation from the Agrarian League, which promises to mobilize the potato stocks. The Government also is voting a special appropriation for foreign purchases of oleomargarine, of which there is an acute shortage in the cities and industrial centres.

TO COLLECT TOLLS IN GOLD.

HAMBURG, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—Port tolls are hereafter to be collected on a gold basis. The rate will be eight gold pfennigs, or two cents, per cubic metre of tonnage.

FRANCE WILL NOT DRAW COLOR LINE

Tourists From the United States Warned That the French Negroes Must Be Treated As Their Equals.

PARIS, August 1. — (Canadian Press).— "Foreign tourists, forgetting they are our guest, and therefore bound to respect our customs and laws, recently on several occasions have forcibly manifested their aversion to seeing colored men sit by their side in public places. They even have gone to the length of demanding expulsion in insulting terms If such incidents are repeated, punishment will be exacted."

Thus reads a note issued by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs last night: It probably was called forth by a recent incident which created much comment in Paris. Colored cadets from the Freujas Military School for the training of colored officers and non-commissioned officers were visiting Paris as official guests after joint exercises with the St. Cyr and St. Maixent Military Colleges. Some seats were reserved for them on sight-seeing cars belonging to a tourist agency

Four United States citizens, who had booked for the same ride objected to the presence of the colored men and refused to take their seats in the car. Certain members of the Chambers of Deputies including colored Deputies, thereupon took up the matter and lodged a protest with the Foreign Office.

McMaster to Explain His Change of Front.

OTTAWA, August 1. — (Canadian Press).—Andrew E. McMaster, Liberal member for Brome, who crossed the floor of the House during the Budget debate at the recent session of parliament, will open a speaking tour of his riding at Knowlton on Thursday next, August 2. Mr. McMaster will lay before his constituents the reasons governing his course of action in parliament and will ask for approval. There has been a good deal of spectulation as to the political future of the member for Brome, and his speech at Knowlton is expected to throw a good deal of light upon it.

THE ENGLISH METHOD.

One answer to the query, Why there are so many more murder cases in the United States than in England is the report of the Chief Commissioner of the London Metropolitan Police, which shows that there were 26 murder cases in the London area last year, that arrests and convictions were made in 13 cases, and that in the other 13 the murderers took their own lives rather than be arrested.

In other words, the law is enforced in England, and the person who commits murder knows that his chance of escaping the gallows is not worth talking about.

In certain sections of the United States, Chicago for example, the authorities seem at a loss to secure the arrest or conviction of murderers, and in an appalling number of cases the guilty parties have gone Scot-free.

The result is that there is not the dread of the law that exists in England; criminals kill with impunity because they realize that they need have little apprehension of receiving the supreme penalty.

They do things differently in England, as Sir William Horwood's report shows, although the record for last year is notable even for that efficient body, the London police.

That not one murderer in a year escaped the vengeance of the law in some form or other is a remarkable demonstration of the success of the British method.

It should afford American police forces some interesting thought.

FOREST FIRES.

Ontario is experiencing a particularly dry summer, and at present the conditions in the forests of the Province are such as to make serious bush fires inevitable unless the greatest care is exercised by everybody who has reason to be in the woods during these summer days.

To Peterborough people who go camping, particularly to those who visit the more remote sections, it may not be out of place to point out that it will be their duty to be even more than usually careful in regard to camp-fires, and the handling of matches or cigarette or cigar ends.

Forest fires do an immense amount of damage in Canada every year, destroying many times as many tress as the lumbering operations of the various companies have been accountable for, and in the majority of cases such fires have started as a result of somebody's carelessness.

A camp-fire left smouldering is one of the most prolific sources of danger so far as forest conflagrations are concerned.

Many people build fires unnecessarily large, and are equally careless about seeing that they are extinguished before the camp site is abandoned.

With the ground bone dry and the grass like tinder, a smouldering fire soon eats its way along until the timber is reached, and then suddenly the forest is aflame and vast tracts of valuable trees are swept over in a few hours.

The danger of such fires is particularly great this summer, and caution should be the watchword of every camper, hunter, lumberman and settler.

STOP, LOOK AND LISTEN!

Yesterday the Examiner called attention to the numerous fatalities over the week-end as a result of level crossing accidents, and warned local drivers that there are many crossings in this vicinity at which it behooves motorists to exercise common-sense and caution.

That the advice was timely is shown by the fact that the Lakefield train has in the last couple of days on two occasions nearly figured in an accident of this kind.

On Monday evening at Auburn Station and again yesterday morning at Nassau, the brakes had to be applied suddenly to avoid a crash with a motorist who attempted to cross in front of the train, the second escape being a particularly narrow one, only the quick action and the presence of mind of the engineer averting a terrible accident.

A spirit of carelessness, coupled with a general reluctance to be held up for a few moments, gives rise to such incidents as these, and so often are cases of this kind repeated that it seems almost hopeless for newspapers to attempt to bring about an era of more careful driving, or for such organizations as the Ontario Safety League to devote itself to campaigns on behalf of people who apparently are deaf to warnings and impervious to advice.

Yet in these days when news of level crossing accidents appear daily in the papers, it is a duty to continue to issue warnings, even if there is not the slightest evidence that such warnings have any effect upon those for whose benefit they are promulgated.

"Stop, Look and Listen-" is a thread-bare motto, but it should be engraved upon the mind of every person who drives a car.

A WELCOME ASSURANCE.

The assurance from Sir Henry Thornton that within the next three years the Canadian National Railways will cease to be a financial burden upon the people of this country, is a splendid bit of news.

Sir Henry has had time to acquaint himself fully with the railway situation in this country, he has been careful to study the conditions before making any promises, and the fact that he now sees fit to make the flat announcement that better days are in sight for the Government-owned system is most gratifying.

The obviously inspired, sensational articles in the Montreal Star, intended apparently to serve no other end than to destroy public confidence in Canada's own railways, appear more nonsensical than ever in the light of the statement issued by Sir Henry Thornton, the one man most able to speak with authority upon the subject.

The people of Canada will undoubtedly place their reliance in him rather than in the Star when the matter under discussion is the railway question, and therefore there will be satisfaction everywhere that the expert railwayman called in to lead this country out of the morass in which the problem had developed, sees daylight ahead and is confident enough to say so.

Relief, to some extent, from the pressing burden of taxation, such as should be afforded when Sir Henry's prediction comes true, will be looked forward to by many people, who had almost come to the conclusion that there was no hope of any relaxation in this respect.

The railway tangle is one of Canada's biggest problems—and if it has been solved now, or will be in the near future, there is every reason for general rejoicing.

THE FATAL HASTE.

Monday mornings are beginning to assume such a shocking aspect as days of death-records that it almost seems as if Death spent each week-end levying a special toll upon the public, says the Montreal Star. Not a week passes but Monday's news records literally dozens of people killed, either in automobile accidents, or boating accidents, or at train crossings, or in races. In almost every instance it will be found that the element of undue and unnecessary haste played an important part. Speeding in cars, rushing to keep appointments and driving recklessly over level crossings en route; hastily changing places in boats; collapse due to overstrain in swimming races or other forms of exercise; everywhere the sinister factor of haste looms up predominant.

This fatal haste is one of the curses of the times. Particularly so is it to be considered in relation to periods of relaxation and recreation. In the good old days which it is fashionable to decry, but which possessed many merits the good new days lack, it was the custom to make a week-end a period of relaxation. Work having kept the individual at a sustained pressure all the week, when Saturday came the time to slacken the pressure arrived automatically. The week-end holiday was undertaken as a time for leisurely enjoyment of fresh air, exercise, rest. There was no fierce rush after anything, not even in the form of travel. It is unnecessary to recall that times have changed. That fact is painfully obvious, and in no direction more so than in the changed methods of enjoying holidays. The strenuous life has displaced the leisurely life during holiday time. It is a change for the worse, from whatever viewpoint it may be regarded.

WHEN THE CHURCH SPLITS.

The pastor of a church in the northern part of Ontario has resigned his charge and is now seeking another location because there has been a split in the ranks, says the London Advertiser. From very reliable and unbiased sources it appears that some time ago the young people of the congregation wanted to conduct a skating rink on a piece of property owned by the church and for which permission was granted. All went well for a time, until the complaint was made that the place was kept open too late, especially on Saturday night, and that on several occasions it was after midnight before some of the skaters returned to their homes.

Last year the request came up again before the church officials, and they declined to sanction the move. The pastor did not fall in with their views, and then the trouble started. He offered at that time to resign, but the great majority of his congregation would not hear of it. So the church officials who had opposed the opening of the rink for another season pulled out and hired a hall of their own and secured supply preachers. On many occasions these supply speakers, instead of trying to bring the two factions together, took the ground that those who had pulled out had done so on a matter of principle, and that they should never turn back.

It was impossible to finance two churches of this denomination in the town, and the pastor, feeling that his leaving might help matters, insisted on his resignation being accepted.

The reasonable course would have been to have rules and regulations for that rink, one of them being that it should be closed at a certain hour at night. But here, again, it seems it was impossible to agree.

What a spectacle for the man not interested in churches to look at! Two factions splitting the church from top to bottom over the conduct of a skating rink! The man on the outside looking in has a right to see in the church something better than he sees in the world outside. If he does not, then there is something very much wrong with the church. If, on looking at the church from the outside, he sees nothing but a body of people who are ready to stage a fight over a matter that a few reasonable men ought to be able to settle in a few minutes, then he has looked in vain and his impressions are going to be negative.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Evidently the Montreal Star and Sir Henry Thornton are not travelling on parallel tracks in their opinion of the National Railways.

M. M. MacBride of Brantford declares that he is not seeking a position as municipal representative on the Hydro-electric Commission. There are many who will hope that the position will not seek him either.

Lloyd George says he is coming to Canada to thank Canadians for what they did in the war. And the Dominion will take advantage of the opportunity to thank him for his war service.

Peterborough will "celebrate" its Civic Holiday a week from Monday, the observance of the day chiefly consisting of an exodus out of town.

The purses offered prize fighters, the wages paid bricklayers and the fortunes presented movie stars these days must make many a college professor wonder.

The anti-gambling regulations are making progress. As proof, the arrest of a few newboys may be mentioned.

The craziest suggestion arising out of the Toronto robbery is that everybody should be allowed to carry revolvers as a protection against bandits. The result of such a plan would be easily shown by an examination of the death rate.

Most men you notice wearing a worried look these days are trying to figure out a way of getting next winter's coal or else wondering how they are going to get all those dishes washed before the family comes home from the annual vacation.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—Wheat averaged higher in price yesterday, largely as a result of absence of any heavy selling either of a hedging character, or in the nature of speculation. With no special incentive to market wheat quickly, it was expected that receipts hereafter would be rather light. The close was unsettled, ranging from 3-8c. net decline, to 1-2c. advance, with September 96 5-8c. to 96 3-4c., and December $1.00 to $1.00 1-8. Corn finished 3-8c. off to a gain of 3c., oats varying from 1-8 and 1-4c. lower to 1 1-4c. up and provisions unchanged to 10c. down.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—There was no change in the condition of the local cash grain market yesterday. While there is so far nothing official it is well known that the present prices in the flour market are being shaded. There was no change in the condition of the millfeed market. A steady feeling prevails in baled hay. Trade in rolled oats is slow. Prices for eggs were up 1 cent per dozen. There was no change in the potato market. The butter and cheese markets are both quiet.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, August 1 (Canadian Press). — Consumptive demand continues fair with receipts lighter. One Western Ontario shipper is offering firsts by the car at 26 cents shipping point in shell cases. Some cable offers for fall shipment are reported having been received, but no definite information is available as to sales.

Toronto unchanged.

Winnipeg firm, country prices unchanged. Jobbing extras 28c to 30c, firsts 24 to 26c, seconds 22c.

Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia unchanged.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, August 1 (Canadian Press). — Receipts, 312 cattle and calves, 527 hogs, and 23 sheep and lambs.

Killing classes, apart from butcher cows, were selling steady yesterday. Good butcher steers made $8.00 to $8.50; medium to good butcher cows $3.00 to $4.25.

The hog market was unchanged, choice smooths $8.75; select bacons, $8.25 to 8.50.

The few good lambs offering made $9.25, with the common as low as $5.00.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, August 1 (Canadian Press). — Cattle receipts, 11,000; better grades beef killing classes steady to strong; others very dull; uneven on choice; top matured steers $11.65; best long yearlings $11.00; bulk beef steers and yearlings $8.50 to $10.50; choice steers and yearlings scarce; bologna bulls closing 25c lower; vealers 50c to 75c higher to packers $10.50 to $10.75; outsiders paying up to $11.50 and above; around 100 head Western grassers averaging around 900 pounds to feeder dealers $5.00; stockers and feeders steady; bulk bologna bulls $4.25 to $4.75; canners and cutters $2.00 to $3.25.

Hogs, receipts $33,000; good kinds fairly active; strong to 5c higher than yesterday's average; common and medium grades mostly steady; bulk good and choice 160 to 250 pound averages $7.50 to $7.65; top, $7.70; bulk good and choice 260 to 325 pound butchers, $7.20 to $7.45; packing sows mostly $5.60 to $6.00; estimated holdover, 19,000.

Sheep, receipts 17,000; Western fat lambs mostly 10c to 15c higher; natives steady to strong; culls and aged sheep strong to 25c higher; spots more; bulk good and choice Western lambs, $12.50 to $12.75; top to shippers $12.85; native $12.00 to $12.25; top, $12.25; sorting moderate; culls mostly $6.50 to $9.00.

HANGS SELF.

PERTH, W. Australia, Aug. 1.—William Nowers, 16, an immigrant on the steamer Ballarat, bound for Sydney, hanged himself in a building at Fremantle during the vessel's stay in port. At first it was believed the boy's real identity would disclose and internationally famous personage, but this proved groundless, and the youth is merely believed to have been despondent.

Keene Pastor Took Charge of Union Services—Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, August 1.—Rev. Archibald, Presbyterian minister from Keene, took charge of the union services in the Methodist church on Sunday, morning and evening, the congregation of Grace Presbyterian church joining with their sister church during the month the respective pastors are away for their holidays. Next Sunday the Methodist church will again be used for the services and the following two the Presbyterian church will be the place of worship.

Rev. Mr. Archibald is always a popular speaker here, and delivered especially timely messages on Sunday, his talk to the boys and girls on Sunday morning from Daniel 6: 10—"Now his windows being open toward Jerusalem," leaving the thought of how a happy, loving nature, with the "windows" of mind and heart open toward God will make life yield its best.

The text for the sermon was chosen from Galatians 2:20—"The life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave Himself for me," the subject of the discourse being, "What it is to be a Christian. Many a minister is rebuked to find among his church members an uncertainty regarding the reality of a Christian experience, and others, by laying stress upon the non-essentials, and insisting on what Christ does not insist upon, make the Christian life confusing to themselves and to others. The starting point is Jesus Christ, not simply trying to be good; the latter is praiseworthy but the wrong way of approach. Why Christ at all if a man may be good without Him? Some indeed have a moral character apparently without a stain but are spiritually dead and fall short of what they might be were theirs a soul union with the Saviour. "He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son hath not life."

Other points emphasized were that the Christian life does not necessarily mean belief in a creed, though we make a mistake in ridiculing theology which is man's knowledge of God systematised; nor does it mean to have once experienced the change called conversion though this, the soul's first surrender, is the first step but there are other dedications; "He that endureth to the end shall be saved." Love and trust are the basis of union with Christ and God, and the only cement which binds together human hearts. Who is it then thus claims our love? "The Son of God who loved me and gave Himself for me." God does not love the marks which sin puts upon us, but none are excluded from Him who has given us His all except those who exclude themselves. "Lovest thou Me?" is his questtion. What answer from you and you?

"O Master, let me walk with Thee,
In lowly paths of service free;
Teach me Thy secret, help me bear
The strain of toil, the fret of care."

Personal Mention

The many friends of Mr. Isaac Larmer will regret to learn that he is seriously ill. Mr. and Mrs. Larmer have been with their daughter, Mrs. A. J. Fallis, for a visit but returned to their home, 4th Line, Cavan, on Saturday. In September of this year they will, if both are spared, celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding day.

The following arer the successful contestants in the winter wheat competition conducted under the auspices of the Millbrook Agricultural Society: 1, R. J. McCamus; 2, James Whittington; 3, D. A. Henry; 4, George Bonner; 5, G.A. Pair; 6, L. H. Winslow; 7, Jas. H. McGill. J. H. Tisdale, judge, Brampton, Ont.

Mrs. P. Stinson, and two children, Jean and Jack, who have been visiting her mother, Mrs. Hammond, at Powassan, for the past two weeks, returned home on Saturday, Mr. Stinson meeting them at Omemee and bringing the them the remainder of the journey by motor.

Miss Etta Needler, who has been staying with Dr. G. H. and Mrs. Needler at their summer home on the Lake of Bays, Muskoka, for the past three weeks, returned on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Elson and family, have moved into the village and are occupying the house recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Needler, Princess street. They will be welcomed as progressive and hospitable citizens with the hope that their sojourn in Millbrook may be a permanent one.

MINCED HAM SANDWICHES.

Chopped sweet pickles, or chopped stuffed olives, make a pleasing addition to the minced ham filling for sandwiches.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, Aug. 1.—Sunday Rev. W. A. Bremner, who has returned to town after spending a few weeks' holidays at his cottage at Bruce Beach, Lake Huron, occupied his pulpit at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here and preached excellent sermons. Mrs. Bremner and her two daughters are remaining for the month of August.

The pulpit of the Methodist Church was occupied by Rev. Dr. Gen. H. Workman, Toronto, who preached scholarly sermons. In the morning he took for his theme, "Walking in Newness of Life," and in the evening, "Seeing Clear and Thinking Straight." Dr. Workman needed no introduction to the people of this church as he had often worshipped there in days long gone past.

S. A. Services.

Capt. Dunkley and Lieut. Burrows had charge of the services of the Salvation Army. They are new officers, who recently came to Cobourg. In the afternoon an open-air service was held at Victoria Park, and this, as usual, was a pleasing feature of the day's work.

The Baptist Church.

Rev. J. N. Norton, the new pastor of the Baptist Church, is winning favor every day with his congregation. In the morning he based his remarks on the vital question, "Have You Been Saved" and at night he spoke on "The Unpardonable Sin." Last week he brought his wife and family from London to Cobourg and all are now duly established at the Baptist parsonage.

Visiting Clergymen Here.

Rev. A. F. Pollock, B.D., of Ottawa, who is visiting at the home of Mr. Thomas Harvey, preached at both services in the Cobourg Congregational Church, and also in the Congregational Church at Coldsprings.

The Death of Dr. Hugh Pedley.

It was with very great regret that it was learned here Sunday that Rev. Dr. Hugh Pedley had passed away. Dr. Pedley was a noted man in the Congregational Church in Canada, and the ties that bound him to Cobourg were strong ones and of long standing. He was a former pastor of the Cobourg and Coldsprings Congregational Churches, and the son also of a former pastor. He married Eliza, eldest daughter of the late Corelli C. Field, ex-M.P.P. of this town, who, with a married daughter, Mrs. Nora Gord of Knowlton, Quebec, and a son, Dr. Frank G. Pedley of New Liskeard, survives him. Dr. Pedley was in town last week spending a few days at the home of Mrs. C. C. Field, and it was expected that he would return early in the autumn for a more extended holiday. This year Dr. Pedley was re-elected President of the Congregational Union of Canada. He has been for some years actively engaged in the furtherance of church union. He was a man of broad-mindedness, keen intellect and rare intellectual ability, which was enhanced by an agreeable personality. Miss Clara Field, sister-in-law; Mr. F. M. Field, K.C., and Dr. Geo. H. Field, brothers-in-law, left yesterday for Montreal to attend the funeral.

Death of Mrs. Worby.

An old resident of Cobourg, Mary Titbrook, widow of the late Henry Worby, passed to her reward after a very short illness on Friday. But although the call came after only about twenty-four hours' illness with acute indigestion, Mrs. Worby had not been in very good health for a year or so past. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. John Reeve, with whom she resided, and Mrs. John Bray, Oakville, Man., and by her grandchildren. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Reeve, to Cobourg Union Cemetery. Mrs. Worby was in her 85th year.

Death of Barnley Resident.

Peter Inglis, an old resident of Barnley, died recently at Rainy River, where he has resided of late. His son, Mr. Arthur Inglis of Winnipeg, brought the remains back to his former home, and the funeral took place to the Stone Cemetery. Mrs. Greenley and Mrs. Albert Birney are daughters of deceased.

Crop in Haldimand.

Many of the farmers in Haldimand Township have finished haying and report a good yield. Nearly all of the hay has been put in the barn in prime condition as there has been very little rain. The harvesting of fall wheat and rye is now in progress. It is feared that spring grain will not fill out very well, unless there is rain at any early date.

Supper and Concert.

A supper and concert under the auspices of the Methodist Church at Gore's Landing was held in the Public Park at that place on Friday evening. Supper was served from 5 p.m. until all were served, after which there was an enjoyable entertainment.

Golf at Cobourg.

The popularity of golf seems to be on the increase here, and the links are frequented by interested players. On Saturday evening a general meeting of the members was held to discuss matters in connection with the future of golf in Cobourg. A dance and social gathering on Saturday evenings are features of the club's summer programme.

Number of Applications.

A school in the lake-front district that advertised for teachers to fill a couple of vacancies upon the staff received over sixty applications. Some of these were from teachers who had gone to the United States, and seems to indicate that the trek is Canadaward again.

Was Hanging On To Load.

A young boy named Kidd met with an accident at the four corners one day during the week when he fell from a load of hay he was hanging on to and had his foot caught between the wheel of the vehicle and the sidewalk. The toes of one foot were painfully bruised and jammed.

More Building.

Mr. Reuben Jackson, it is stated, will put up three houses on some lots he purchased in the west end of the town. Mr. Jackson has erected three other houses this season.

Motored Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Cheslitt motored here from Winnipeg and will spend a few weeks in Cobourg and in Port Hope.

Mr. and Mrs. Ennis of Peterborough were in the village on Monday.

Miss Wilma and Mr. Alton Burgess of Norwood spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. B. German.

Dr. J. H. and Mrs. Hess took a trip to Wooler on Sunday to visit the former's sister, Mrs. McColl, who is very ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Fleming of Colborne spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. Fleming.

Clifford Hess motored to Oshawa on Monday.

Mr. J. Staples has returned to his home in Lindsay after a pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. Tate.

Dr. Doran of Galt spent the week-end with friends in this district.

Rev. M. L. and Mrs. Hinton and family are camping near Cobourg.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hess and Mrs. E. Beavis were in Frankford recently calling on Rev. and Mrs. I. Snell.

POPULAR RECTOR IS LEAVING TOWN

Campbellford Expresses Regret at Departure of Rev. Rural Dean Clarke.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 1.—At the call of the wardens, the members of Christ Church met in the parish hall Monday evening to take formal leave of Rev. Rural Dean and Mrs. Clarke, the former having on Sunday last preached his final sermon, after six years' efficient and successful service as rector of the parish and who leaves this week for Belleville where he will become pastor of a large parish in that city. The hall was filled, among those present being J. F. B. Belford, M.L.A.-elect, who is himself an Anglican clergyman. S. H. Neale, who occupied the chair, explained the object of the meeting and said he hoped the farewell would not be tinged with sadness as Mr. Clarke was going only about 30 miles away and his Campbellford friends hoped to have the opportunity to see him frequently and that he would come back to preach to them occasionally.

Addressing Mr. Clarke personally Mr. Neale assured him that when he did return he would find that the good work which he started on coming to Campbellford and which he had carried on so successfully for the past six years would not be allowed to drop. If Mr. Clarke came back on a visit he would find his former parishioners in their places at the services and the Sunday classes being conducted as usual.

R. J. Bullen, one of the wardens, at the conclusion of Mr. Neale's remarks, presented Mr. Clarke, on behalf of the parish, with a gold watch and a well-filled purse.

The retiring rector briefly returned thanks for the gifts and assured his friends that any time they went to Belleville they would be welcomed at the rectory of Christ Church by Mrs. Clarke and himself.

Gifts From Choir.

Miss Ethel Belford, on behalf of the choir, presented Mrs. Clarke with a hand bag and her husband with a club bag, accompanying these gifts with expressions of appreciation of their services in the parish.

Acting for the Boy Scouts and the Wolf Cubs, Major J. M. Bygot, Scoutm..ster, presented Mr. Clarke, who had been made an honorary member of the organization, with a gold scout pin. Both Mr. and Mrs. Clarke made short addresses, gracefully acknowledging these tokens of esteem.

Musical Programme.

Music was furnished by the Sunday School Orchestra and solos were rendered by R. Dunk, Miss Bonneycastle, Mrs. F. D. (Dr.) Force and O. H. Gledhill, Miss Gertrude Maynard acting as accompanist.

Church Service Needed.

Mr. Belford said that Mr. Clarke's removal to Belleville was for the good of that city where he was more needed than he is in Campbellford, as the people of this town are good enough to get along without a pastor. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke, he said, had done a good work in the town and district and the benefit of this work would be enjoyed by the people and by their children after them. Mr. Clarke had taken over the duties of rural dean and discharged them ably.

Mr. Clarke's succession, the speaker said, was sure to be different in many respects and he urged the people to give the stranger a fair show until be became familiar with the surroundings.

Referring to the recent hold-up of bank messengers in Toronto, Mr. Belford declared that the country today needs the influence of the church and of good men and women more than it ever did before.

After A. J. Jenkins, one of the leaders in the work of the parish had spoken in complimentary terms of Mr. and Mrs. Clarke the meeting broke up with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and The National Anthem.

Open New Store.

Lofchy & Wise, dealers in ladies' ready-to-wear garments of all kinds, who have been in business in Campbellford for a number of years, have moved into the Kerr Block, one of the most desirable business locations in town. The formal opening was planned for to-day (August 1st), but the firm found it impossible to keep out their old customers so that many sales were made on Saturday last and every day since.

The new store is well arranged, and is filled with a full line of the goods in which the firm specializes. All patrons will find prices reasonable and everything placed on sale just as represented.

BILL BECOMES LAW.

LONDON, Aug. 1.— (Canadian Press.)— Royal assent was given yesterday to Lady Astor's liquor bill, thus formally placing it upon the statute books.

The bill, which prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquors to any person under 18 years of age, was passed by the House of Lords last Tuesday.

NEWS OF BURNBRAE AND THE DISTRICT

Pleasant Meeting of St. Andrew's Guild—Social and Personal Activities.

BURNBRAE, Aug. 1.—St. Andrew's W. P. Guild met on Tuesday evening. Mr. Andrew Miller conducted the devotional exercises. A reading was given by Miss Gertrude Nelson. The topic was given by Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn. The leader of the evening was Mr. Mitchell Rannie, one of the younger Guild members, who is to be congratulated on his planning and conduct of the meeting. It was decided to forego the Guild meeting next Tuesday, that the Ladies' Aid might have their monthly lawn social, the reason being that Thursday, their usual night, would conflict with the entertainment of Methodist friends at Zion.

On Fishing Tour.

Rev. C. F. MacIntosh of Campbellford, Mr. Louis Hay and Fred. Wigglesworth and Rev. J. J. Black of Burnbrae left Monday afternoon for a fishing tour in the north Hastings district. They expect to be away the greater part of the week.

An Enjoyable Day.

A number of people from Seymour East spent a very enjoyable day last Wednesday visiting the sand-banks in Prince Edward County, near Picton. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Donald, the Misses Mabel and Annie Coutts of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. John Rannie and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson and family and the Rev. J. J. and Mrs. Black and family.

Lawn Social.

The social at Bulstone is to be held this Thursday evening on Mr. Herbert Spencer's lawn. Music by the Campbellford Band. A good time is assured to all.

Ladies' Aid Social.

The Ladies' Aid social on the manse grounds, beside the Burnbrae church, in Seymour East, will be held on Tuesday, August 7. A baseball match in the school grounds will precede the programme.

Anniversary Sunday.

Dr. Dyde, Principal of Queen's Divinity Hall, will preach the anniversary services at Burnbrae Church, Seymour East, this year, on Sunday, August 19, at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

Personals.

Rev. Robert and Mrs. Simpson and daughters spent Sunday at Burnbrae manse.

Miss McGee of Stirling spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Matthews.

Mrs. Thompson, Sr., of Merrie is with Mrs. Thomas Hay in Campbellford this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. W. Rannie were in Belleville on Saturday.

Miss Eloise Watson, who has been teaching in Calgary for the past year, is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Watson.

Mr. John Hume, M.A., and son, Alex., of Goderich, Ont., is visiting at the home of his brother, Mr. Alex. Hume.

Mr. and Mrs. McFarlane of Toronto are spending a few days with Mr. A. T. Donald.

Mr. White and family of Roston spent the week-end with Mr. Norman Masson.

Mrs. John Fry has returned from Foxboro and is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Watson.

If you feel "out of sorts," sluggish and weary

If you feel "out of sorts," sluggish, weary and irritable; if you lack the spirit and sparkle and the ability to do your work with the same briskness and cheerfulness that you see in others, it is probably because your organs are not generating enough vital energy.

If your blood lacks the normal amount of the elements that are necessary in the production of vital energy, it is not possible for you to feel strong, industrious and sprightly; you are bound to tire quickly, feel downcast and find it difficult to take proper interest in your work or your favorite recreations.

If you are not feeling as "fit" as you would like to; if you are in need of reinvigoration, you should take Wincarnis for a week or so. You will probably be surprised and delighted at the promptness with which this general tonic and restorative will enrich your blood, strengthen your nervous system and relieve your feeling of general debility and exhaustion. Physicians are prescribing Wincarnis because of its great virtue as a tonic and reconstructive.

YOURS FOR A DAY.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The idea of [illegible] and driving it yourself, which started in America, at last has hit England. Several dealers now advertise in that wise and people seem to be taking to it like a mosquito takes to a red neck.

AUSTRIANS MOVING TO BERLIN

BERLIN, August 1 (Associated Press).—Living is so much cheaper here today than in Vienna, due to the fact that the German mark is worth so much less than the Austrian crown that many Austrians are said to be moving to the German capital.

Reports from Vienna describe long lines of people waiting day and night in front of the German consulate, seeking the proper endorsement on their passports to cross the frontier.

SUGAR IS ON THE TOBOGGAN

Price Drops 70 Cents Per Hundredweight in the Past Fortnight — Further Reduction Expected.

TORONTO, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press.)— Canadian sugar has dropped seventy cents in price per hundred weight in the past fortnight, and some wholesale grocers of Toronto expect a further decline of twenty-five cents within a week. This reduction will benefit the housewife as well as the grocers, they agree. Indeed, the manager of a large chain of Toronto grocery stores stated last night that to-morrow his firm would sell sugar at the rate of ten pounds for 99 cents.

Two reasons are assigned by those in a position to know, for the unexpected reduction in sugar prices at a time when the commodity is in big demand for canning purposes. The first, and perhaps the more immediate, reason advanced is the placing upon the Canadain market of American sugar at a price lower, duty included, than that asked by the Canadain refiners. In the second place, it is attributed to a weakness in the New York market. Buyers of sugar are not forthcoming, they say, and the holders are becoming nervous.

COMMEND HEADS STANDARD BANK.

A Plan For Readjustment of Assets Decided Upon By Directors.

TORONTO, August 1 (Canadian Press). — The board of directors of the Standard Bank of Canada announced yesterday that a plan for the readjustment of the assets had been decided upon notification of which is being sent to the shareholders.

The directors propose to draw on the large reserves of the bank to the amount of $1,250,000 and to create a contingent fund of $1,000,000.

It is emphasised in a statement authorised by President W. Francis, that the withdrawal of the $1,250,000 mentioned will provide for all known and expected losses ,and that setting aside of the amount for a contingent fund is merely as a protection to the business of the bank.

The Standard Bank will then have a substantial reserve of $2,750,000, a contingent fund of $1,000,000, and paid-up capital of $4,000,000.

In explanation of the losses incurred, it is stated that the operations and standing of some of the bank's customers have been severely affected by the continuation of business and agricultural depression. The bank has been paying dividends to its shareholders at the rate of 14 per cent. per annum, but the board suggests that future distributions should be on the more conservative basis of 12 per cent. and that any additional distribution should take the form of bonuses from time to time.

In banking circles yesterday the opinion was benerally expressed that the directors of the Standard Bank were to be strongly commended for taking the action designed to place the bank in an absolutely stable position, and that the course adopted would tend to ensure confidence in the Canadian banking system.

POPE FROWNS ON LAVISH COSTUMES

Women Must Be Quietly Dressed to Obain an Audience.

ROME, Aug. 1.—(United Press).—Mousignor Marmaggi of the Papal retinue stepped into the ante-room of the vatican library Tuesday, to where a party of women from Sacrotheas Parish were awaiting an audience with Pope Pius XI.

Moving swiftly among the cluster of richly dressed women, he separated them into two groups on opposite sides of the room. Instructing them to remain as they were, he disappeared into the inner room again.

None realized the meaning of the order until he returned a few minutes later telling the women of one group they might enter, being decently dressed but that the other group, whose members had appeared with bare arms, bare necks and lavish costumes, would not be received by Pope Pius. A tumult of please and tear, arose, but Mousignor Marmaggi announced that he was acting on the Popes instructions and that henceforth, to avoid scenes attendant on refusing women admission all ladies not dressed in black and without black veils would be stopped at the Vatican doors.

The order results from a growing tendency of women of all nationalities to appear for audiences in brilliant and often shameless, costumes, it was stated.

CHANGE BASIS SCHOOL GRANTS

Rural School Situation Must Be Taken Better Care of, Says Premier Ferguson.

TORONTO, August 1 (Canadian Press). — Premier Ferguson has no thought of relinquishing the portfolio of Education to another Minister. Contrary to the former understandings, the Premier will continue to conduct the Department from the Premier's office.

In furtherance of a general scheme of co-ordination of various educational branches which the Hon. Mr. Ferguson has in mind, Dr. P. W. Merchant, latterly appointed by the Drury Government to be Education Supervisor, will be given definite and clear cut authority under the new regime to direct all various types of education with which the Department has to deal.

The present Premier has always been more or less keenly interested in educational matters, and his sojourn in the Department during the Hearst Government gave him a fairly intimate knowledge of conditions.

Yesterday, he said that there were many changes and innovations he desired to work out in the interests of a co-ordinated system of education, which would deal fairly as between rural and urban Ontario.

The basis of school grants, he said, for one thing "has got to be amended to take better care of the rural school situation. One effect of the present situation is that we have eliminated entirely from conideration, in awarding grants, the factor of school attendance in individual schools. Schools or three or four pupils are getting their expenses paid, while schools alongside, with three or four times their school population, are getting the same grant. We much encouraged the maintenance of these little schools, where there should be co-ordination."

The Premier intimated that he had also some ideas about agricultural education, which would be worked out from the Premier's office.

ADMIT IRELAND TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS

GENEVA, Aug. 1. — (United Press). — Ireland has entered the back door of the League of Nations, taking her place as a world entity separate from Britain.

Although the Irish Fre State will not be admitted to the League until September, the League Secretariat Tuesday accepted the credentials of Michael McWhite, the Free State official representative at Geneva. All League communications to the Free State will hereafter be addressed direct to Dublin through him instead of through the British Foreign Office.

Ireland's election to the League is expected the first week in September, when the Irish President is scheduled to visit Geneva, marking Ireland's first independent step among the world nations.

GERMAN OFFICERS TO TAKE RISK OF BOMBS

COLOGNE, Aug. 1. — (United Press).—The next unexploded bomb that is found in the occupied areas will be examined in the immediate presence of local German officials, who will be required to personally handle the explosive and stand by until the fuse has been removed, according to orders issued from the French headquarters at Dusseldorf.

Young Man Drowned in Goderich Harbor.

GODERICH, August 1 (Canadian Press). — Chester McDonald, the seven-year-old so nof Malcolm McDonald, was drowned in Goderich Harbour yesterday afternoon, right in front of his father's house. The boy was left alone in a fishing boat which was lying alongside the pier, and when the father returned the boy was missing, and in searching, the body was found in the water.

The records of the industry show no parallel to the remarkable success of the good Maxwell because it gives so much more than people have been accustomed to buy at anywhere near the price.

SAYS U.S. SHOULD ASSIST BALDWIN

Carry Out Secretary Hughes' Suggested International Conference

LONDON, August 1 (Canadian Press). — Despite the unyielding French stand on the Ruhr occupation and reparations, as contained in the French note submitted to the British Cabinet to-day, the United States should assist Premier Baldwin in carrying out Secretary Hughes' suggested international conference to determine Germany's ability to pay, Irving T. Bush, president of the Bush Terminal Company, of New York asserted to-day.

Mr. Bush arrived in London on Sunday on the last stage of a three-months investigation, which took him to the principal countries of Europe, including three weeks spent in Russia.

He had conferences with nearly all the Prime Ministers of Europe, and other leaders in economic, political and business life.

MUSSOLINI CUTS DOWN GOVERNING EXPENSES

ROME, Aug. 1.—(United Press). —Premier Mussolini, continuing his campaign of weeding out superflous government departments Tuesday replaced the Ministry of Agriculture and Ministry of Industry by a single "Ministry of National Economy." Signor Corbino was given the portfolio with Prof Arrigo Serpieri as under secretary.

PIF PAF DID IT.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Albert Peter de Courville, prominent theatrical producer, who was adjudged bankrupt a few months ago, owes 72,055 pounds, it was disclosed here in a hearing. He said his financial troubles started when he leased a Parisian theatre for a revue, called Pif Paf.

SINGING FROGS ON SALE

TOKIO, August 1 (Associated Press.)—The shops of Japan are this month offering for sale the Kajika, or "singing frog," the harbinger of the rainy season. The animals are selling readily, although the prices range from one to ten yen whereas a few years ago they could be bought for a few sen. But like everything else it is a question of supply and demand, and while the gatherers find the frogs harder to get, the number of purchasers has increased.

The frog will sing for hours at a time and a couple of flies a day is all he wants in the way of nourishment.

SHIP FISH 125 MILES.

MEXIGALI, Lower California, Aug. 1.—(Associated Press)—Mullet, of which fish there are great schools in the waters of the Gulf of California below the Colorado river delta, are now being transported alive in tank trucks over the intervening 125 miles of arid desert, and reshipped from here by express to the various fish marts of the country. Sea bass, weighing from 125 to 300 pounds, and turtle tipping the scales at from 300 to 500 pounds, are to follow in their season.

Fishermen of wide experience pronounce the Gulf of California on the Lower California side the most prolific in all kinds of fish and shell fish on the entire west coast of the Pacific Ocean.

Disease Germs Doomed

Many have lost terrors for the Scientist

The progress of recent years in medical research is little short of marvellous. Daily, science kills germs by the million. Daily, new ones are being discovered, isolated and exterminated by the march of medicine.

Science is winning. What were once regarded as serious diseases are now laughed out of countenance by the doctors. Fearlessly they plunge naked hands into swarms of them, their only precaution being to rinse their hands afterwards with a reliable germicidal preparation. We are witnessing the birth of an era when the world will have little to fear from microbes.

Absorbine Jr., besides being the all-purpose liniment that removes pain and soreness, and hastens healing, is a powerful antiseptic that is death to the microbe world.

Absorbine Jr., is just what is needed in the house in case of accidents and to correct the many little household hurts that constantly occur. $1.25, at your druggist.

"CALL ME MAGNUS," BEGS WESTERN DIRT FARMER, ELECTED SENATOR

By GEORGE BRITT.

That is the comment of the neighbors in this village, 10 miles from the railroad, when an interviewer asks the road to the farm of Magnus Johnson.

And when the visitors arrive at the old white six-room house overshadowed by a huge barn, it is a perspiring, overall-clad farmer, with two dogs bounding beside him, who comes out to give them welcome. His impressive sincerity and zest for combat don't appear until later.

The neighbors' phrase of "ordinary" fits Magnus Johnson so far as his appearance on the farm is concerned. He is slightly below average height, but broad of frame. His hair is brown with a bald spot on top, and his bushy mustache is reddish brown. Small, light-blue eyes snap behind heavy-rimmed, over-thick glasses. It is a square-cut, cheerful, alert face.

His picturesque crudity externally will make him anything but ordinary in the Senate. Aside from the ordinary is a striking similarity in appearance to Theodore Roosevelt which this rustic radical is delighted to hear referred to.

"Call Me Magnus."

First greetings include the new title of "senator."

"Call me Magnus," says the senator, and the manner is anything but a pose.

A rich Swedish accept shows as he bellows his words in the conversational tone which can be heard on the next farm. The accent will be found to include "yentlemen" for "gentlemen," "wery" for "very" and "shores" for "chores."

"This is Magnus Johnson Junior," he says, as he seizes his stage-frightened 14-year-old namesake and drags him forward for introduction.

"Magnus is a very good boy," says the father, his blue eyes shining through over-thick spectacles and his teeth showing in a broad smile under the bushy reddish mustache. "Magnus has to work hard on the farm. He was born on the Fourth of July. Who says I am not patriotic?"

Then are introduced the others of the family—"Ma" Johnson, a large, pleasant-smiling, unaffected countrywoman; Lillian, 23; Victor, 21; Francis, 19; Agnes, 10, and Florence, 9.

Family of Workers.

They bore the burden of farm work during the campaign. On election day Mrs. Johnson herself milked seven of the family's 24 cows before going to Minneapolis to receive election returns. "Ma" and Magnus will take the younger three children to Washington when they go.

By a back door the senator leads his visitors through the dining-room to the "sitting-room." The kitchen is in the rear, but in the dining-room is a sink with a pump at the end instead of water faucets. On the sideboard stand freshly filled kerosene lamps.

As Magnus talks he opens letters at a small roll-top desk in the sitting room. There are two sections of bookcases over the desk, but the books consist almost entirely of volumes of Minnesota legislative proceedings. Most conspicuous on the walls are old-time enlarged portraits in tarnished gilt frames, showing Magnus and his first wife. Some of the children sleep in couches in the sitting-room.

Magnus tells his visitors that he was born in Sweden 52 years ago. He got good marks at school but left when he was 12. He worked on coast sailing vessels, developed his lungs in a glass factory and came to America at 20. After a few years as a lumberjack he moved to the farm which is home to-day, paying $15 an acre for the first 40 acres.

He's An Organizer.

"I chopped over all this land myself," he tells you. "For 16 years I hauled cordwood to town, and the first organizing I ever did was to get farmers a fair price for wood."

Organizing has been his hobby instead of golf. He "had 10 jobs at once," he tells you. He has held various township offices and was an effective representative and state senator.

"I'll always keep the farm," he explains, and, incidentally, he shows more pride in his registered shorthorn bull than in his election.

"I like to do the chores around the farm. We're going to build a good house some day. That's a fine barn. Now we want a house to match the barn. But we'll have to pay the mortgage first."

It is suggested that Washington will be different from the serenity of the farm.

"Those fellows there ain't going to learn me anything," says Magnus. "I've been going to school in politics since I was a boy in the old country. I've been to Washington a couple of times, and they're not going to slip anything over on me."

Again it wasn't a pose. Magnus is convincing.

QUIET TALKS

THE GOD-MAN

The blacksmith was right. Ignorant, blasphemous, he railed on the man trying to sell him a Bible. The man deftly left a copy behind as he slipped out. The blacksmith began reading. Caught, surprised, startled, he sprang up crying, "There's a man in the book."

Yes, there is a Man in the Book. That's the outstanding thing. Look at him. Born in obscure poverty, cradled among cattle, his home in an unsavory village, among people intensely clannish, he had no touch with schools, never traveled far, had no book, except one, and wrote none, left no organization, and died a death of peculiar shame. Yet within three days after, he was seen alive, and within three centuries he changed the calendar of imperial Rome.

It is fascinating in these older leaves to get fleeting glimpses of an Unusual Man. He talks with childless Abraham under the blue, and used the twinkling stars to number Abraham's unborn heirs. He wrestled one dark night with crafty Jacob, and gives the strange soft touch which bends that rugged chieftain's will. He meets intrepid Joshua at Canaan's gateway, calmly gives orders, and is obeyed.

He talks with cautious Gideon and the nation's long captivity becomes overwhelming victory. Strong Samson's father is overawed to find the Man talking with him strangely no mere man. The Jewish statesman administering the world's empire of the Euphrates is dazed by a Man of Fire in a blinding blaze of light.

At first it is simply a man, in outer appearance, in tone of voice, in garb, in the interest shown. Then, quietly, unmistakably, comes indescribable overpowering evidence that he is not simply a man.

And there is something more that runs along with these fleeting glimpses. There is an Unusual Man Coming. These glimpses merely illustrate the meaning of that. That same childless exile of Ur is told that through his unborn son will come a man who will bless the race.

Sightless old Israel, on the Nile, sees a Man coming to lead the race. The foremost racial lawyer speaks of a Man coming to do for all what he does for the Hebrews. The royal poet sings sweetly of a Man coming to rule, and do it right, and be as a benediction to the earth, fragrant of the dew of the new morning.

Then—then, The Man is here. He is born in a way unknown before, and unrepeated since. He grows up in the simple Nazareth home. Thirty out of thirty-three years, ten-eleventh of his life, is spent in a whitewashed stone cottage and a carpenter shop.

Nazareth means a commonplace life, in its outer circumstance, lived truly for God. Look a moment: rising in the morning, the kindling, milking the cow likely, hanging the kettle over the fire maybe, down the street with a cheery "Good morning" to his fellow-craftsmen.

Then the carpenter shop, amid the odor of the pine shavings, hammering nails, gouging with a chisel, pushing a saw, polishing off the leg of a table for a crusty customer. Back at night, stretching weary muscles, the evening meal, talking over with the mother of the home the small, big, home problems, rest-day maybe, making both ends meet.

And then off sharing sleeping space on a pallet in a corner with a brother. And that not for a year, thirty of them. The Father's plan for the God-Man's life down here meant just that, living, simply living a truly human life, commonplace in its outer round.

Then there was the smaller parts measured in years. Feeding men's hunger, healing the maimed and lamed and diseased, robbing the grave of its victims, comforting sore hearts, talking over personal problems in the doorway, teaching by the roadside.

Is it any wonder the Galilean hills rang with praise of this Man, faces brightened at the mention of him, homes echoed glad songs, little children came a-running, strong men and women came and listened and went with a peace within.

Then the opposition. Of course. The enmities aroused, the selfish ambitions blocked, old prejudices rudely jolted, cherished plans threatened. And then the climax. Ten times the leaders tried to do him to death, and are held off with an unseen power they can't understand and can't resist. Then he allowed them to take him, and do their worst.

And he did it, he said, for us. There was some terrible need that it be done, that dying. So he died. And when the tomb had quite done its work, he quietly let himself up, up towards his true centre of gravity. No tombs for him when that one had done its work.

Truly he was the God-Man, and is as human as though only human and nothing more; as really God as though only God and nothing else. Jesus was the Face of God looking into men's faces. He was the Voice of God talking into men's ears. He was God talking into men's ears. He was God himself in human shoes, hand-pegged, and in human clothes, home-spun-hand-stitched.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The government is prosecuting heavily all those accused of evading income tax laws. So far hundreds have been caught in the dragnet. Many cases reveal that false tax returns were filed.

Eskimos May Listen In

CHICAGO, August 1.-If an Eskimo has a receiving set, radio broadcasting station WJAZ boasts it will reach him.

WJAZ is the call signal for the two-months-old station at the Edgewater Beach Hotel here, equipped to the last minute with everything in radio that should make it one of the most efficient broadcasting stations in the country.

The boast of WJAZ springs from the fact that it has established a broadcasting service to reach Donald B. MacMillan, the famous explorer, while on his arctic expedition. Of all broadcasters, the designers and operators of WJAZ claim, this is the most powerful and elaborate in the world, and because of its equipment can easily flash the news of the day to WNP, "Wireless North Pole," the station on MacMillan's ship, the Bowdoin.

Boosted Features

The completeness of the station, opened only in May, led to its being selected as the home base for the MacMillan expedition. It has three distinctive features, according to M. B. West, manager of the Chicago Radio Laboratory, where the set was designed and built. These are the studio itself where the programmes are rendered; the studio is a glass inclosed, soundproof room just off the hotel dining room. It has elaborate draperies and lavish furniture, and each article is placed to aid the reflection of sound and the elimination of echoes.

The transmitter already has actually used as high as 16 tubes. The tubes are arranged in a circle to provide absolutely equal distance of connection with the rest of the transmitter.

Singular Aerial

Contrary to the usual practice, the station has a large, low resistance aerial of the fan-shaped variety and with cage lead-in, not working close to the fundamental period. The natural period of the antenna is about 230 meters, whil it works at an assigned wave length of 447 meters. The result is that it is difficult to control the modulations, but the transmission is much more effective in so far as power actually radiated is concerned, when the modulations can be controlled.

The station's generator has a capacity of 10 kilowatts at 4,000 volts. The set throughout is built oversize. Every part is capable of carrying a load of at least twice the expected requirement, even for north pole broadcasting That insures freedom from strain.

"The arctic night is but a moment removed from the music of the red-draped Chicago studio when WJAZ gets to calling up WNP.

JUDGE ADVISES MUSIC TO CHEER HIS SAD FACE

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Magistrate Levine, in West Side Court, advised a complainant to buy "Barney Google" and "Yes, We Have No Bananas" to cheer up his sad face, while the owner of the face retorted that it was sad because he had to listen all night to marathon music.

Mrs. Mae McMahon had been summoned to court by Alexander Andrews, who complained of her parties in which player-piano, a phonograph and a dog figured in the musical renditions.

Magistrate Levine dismissed the charge, saying he was a firm believer in music.

GOOD HEALTH SECRET OF BEAUTY

Beauty lies in the care a woman bestows upon herself and in keeping at bay those dread ailments peculiar to her sex, which drag her down and leave telltale traces upon her countenance. Sparkling eyes, the elastic step and a clear complexion never accompany organic troubles. Distressed expressions, a sallow complexion, dark circles under the eyes, lassitude, headaches, and mental depression are the telltale symptoms of women's ailments. Women so troubled should not lose a day in taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, the most successful remedy known to overcome woman's ills and restore health and beauty.

Safety Lessons

THE AUTOMOBILE BRAKE.

Brakes should be tested each day. Before going half a block from the garage make a service test on a dry spot by throwing out the clutch and applying the brakes. Under no circumstances should the car be taken farther if the brakes are not operating properly. Drive back to the garage and see that the faults are corrected.

Automobile brakes have a definite relation to safety. Important points are:

"See that a good type of brake lining is used.

"Make sure that the brake lining is properly installed.

"Keep the brakes in good operating condition.

"Make frequent tests for proper brake adjustment."

Only an experienced mechanic should install brake linings. He should make certain that the lining is properly stretched to avoid buckling. The rivets should be properly countersunk; otherwise the metal of the rivets will score the brake drum and the brakes may not hold in an emergency.

Once a month, remove the rear wheels and wash the brake lining in kerosene. This removes all oil and grease which, if present, take the "bite" out of the brakes. Never oil brake lining.

Brakes squeal when they are glazed or when improperly adjusted. Squealing can often be stopped by removing wheels and roughening the brake lining with a file.

If the brake lining is worn down to the rivets, sink the rivets still farther or have the brakes re-lined.

Wipe off and oil brake mechanism every 500 miles or oftener.

Make a regular systematic brake inspection a habit. The loss of a cotter pin might lead to a serious accident. When a lock washer is removed, don't put it back; use a new one.

Keep the brakes adjusted properly. Brakes should not drag; if they do, they will heat up and be worn down unnecessarily. Brakes should not be too loose; loose brakes do not act quickly enough. Different adjustments are made for different types of brakes.

After the brakes are adjusted so that they are neither too tight nor too loose, they should be tested every 500 miles, or at least once a month, to make certain that the braking power is equally divided between the two rear wheels. Many cars skid, not only because of slippery streets, but also because of unequal division of braking power. Jack up rear wheels and apply brake far enough so that it is just possible to turn one wheel by hand. Adjust brake on other wheel so the same amount of energy is required to turn that wheel by hand.

The Human Side

THE FAMILIAR

Haven't you seen people who complained of life because it was drab? Such people never are refreshed by new visions or striking experiences, for they drudge along uninterestingly among the same familiar objects day after day. They blame their "drab" existence on the commonplaceness of their surroundings. But they are wrong.

The things that most interest us are the familiar things. They cease to be "drab" when we can find a variety of combinations among them. A persons' interest in life depends on the reactions he can get from the commonplace things about him.

When a large manufacturing firm wished to advertise a new brand of smoking tobacco, they sent a man walking up Broadway, followed by a bull-dog with a pipe in his mouth. The crowds became so congested that the dog had to be taken from the sidewalk to make room for the rest of the pedestrians. What is more familiar than a pipe or a bulldog? Had they chosen an armadillo instead of a dog, it would not have been so popular.

A young lady, after hearing Coue, remarked: "How simple it is. There is nothing to add to it. He seems inspired."

Have you not observed that the speaker who captures the crowd is the one who says what his hearers are familiar with, believe, and heartily endorse? Why? Simply because he says what his hearer feels, wants to say, and can't; and says it better than the hearer could express it. There's the secret of popularity, either on the platform or in the press.

Didn't "Tom Sawyer" pass over the country like a tidal wave, simply because it was a picture of familiar scenes and conduct which the average American had experienced in his own boyhood?

Richard Harding Davis used this familiar bit of psychology in all his writing. If he were describing the height of a mountain, he would not say as high as Mt. Everest or some mountain peak in Mexico—he would say as high as the Woolworth Building or the Metropolitan Tower. Why? Because the reader of his story on New York was familiar with those objects. Many of his readers had crossed continents only with their fingers and not with their feet, and height can not be seen on a map.

If you wish to make anything popular, dress it not in strange phrases, but in pictures, words, and thoughts familiar to your audience.

LITTLE WANT ADS.

At this time of the year, there are any number of things that are badly needed, either by the man or woman.

These things can be done without, but the Summer is going to be not quite so happy without them, and they need not cost you nearly as much as you think, if you only use the Want Ads. to get them.

So many people lose a vast amount of pleasure simply because they have never learned the value of a simple little appeal to the Examiner Want Ad Column. Don't let this bright month of June go by without satisfying a little extra Summer wants through the Want Ads.

Europe on Road to War France Enemy of England

Great Increase In Air Force to Lead to Conflict, Says British Editor and Politician.

LONDON, August 1 (United Press). — For the last four and a half years our notion, as such, has been paying the price of the error it allowed its statement to perpetrate at the end of the war by imposing, in association with their Allies, upon the vanquished such terms as would not merely make a real peace impossible, but lead to an eventual breach between them and their Allies. It has just received further and dramatic proof of the magnitude of that error in the shape of evidence —henceforth impossible to set aside —that we are being committed to large scale preparations for further war.

For the great increase in the air force means that and nothing else but that. And as the only power from which we have anything to fear in the matter of air-armament is France, the new provisions mean that we are now definitely building against France.

To shut our eyes to the truth because it is damnable would be not only foolish, but criminal. An exact replica of the situation which obtained in the years preceding the war is being produced.

Substitute France for Germany as the potential enemy, and aircraft for battleships, and there you have it. And the nation is faced with this tragic development at a time when a million and a quarter of our population are unemployed; when the housing problem cannot be adequately handled because of an alleged lack of funds, when the social services are starved: when we are spending about one million and a half sterling a week in preventing masses of our population from actually starving, and more vast sums in pensions; when hundreds of thousands of our miners are living below subsistence level; when an unparalleled load of debt bows down the national shoulders.

And members of the Labour Party —happily few in number—have been known to declare that foreign policy does not matter!

Four and a half years after the close of the most annihilatingly successful struggle in our history, which was to bring us peace, security, and prosperity, we embark once more upon the road to intensive armaments and war.

Whatever be the result of the Baldwin-Poincare conversations that is the dominating fact before which all else pales into insignificance.

Surely, if experience teaches a nation anything at all, our people have had their fill. Four years of gigantic effort during which they subsidised half Europe, endured a million casualties, and piled up a mountain of liabilities; four more years of bad trade, high taxation, unemployment, and growing social unrest. And, at the end of it all—a new rivalry in the latest type of killing machines with our former associates.

If our people are not convinced by this experience that there must have been a radical error permeating the national policy and conduct during the past four years, they are unteachable.

What is the fundamental explanation? Where does the great error lie?

The Peril Hidden.

To realise it, is to apprehend the remedy, a remedy obviously far more difficult of application to-day that at any period during the past four years—but still the only one. The great error would have been patent to everyone of us long ago, but for the fact that successive governments, the vast majority of our public men, nearly the whole of the press and substantially the entire force of organised official Christianity represented by the Churches have tacitly conspired either to hide it from the nation with deliberate intent or, with equal deliberation, to dissuade the nation from comprehending it.

The great error has consisted in the supposition that a nation occupying the heart of Europe, vital to the economy and intellect of Europe, could be handled year in, year out, as though the sixty odd million of men, women, and children composing law of retribution to which I have referred coming into operation.

The great error has been to imagine that the abominable treatment meted out since the armistice to the German people could persist, without setting up reactions from which all concerned must suffer.

The great error has been in the assumption that nations like Britain and France could, through their Governments, consent to this most infamous international story being written, chapter by chapter, without inviting the inevitable consequences.

The great error has been the belief that national policy could be responsible, directly or indirectly, consciously or unconsciously, for oppression, cruelty, and injustice (while claiming to be inspired by motives of equity and morality) without instilling into the whole international body a virulent poison bound to percolate throughout all its organs.

MRS. SCHWAB FIRST WOMAN ASSISTANT CITY ATTORNEY

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—The ladder of success, to Mrs. Mary Rantz Schwab, has been a series of struggles and discouragements all the way up from poverty.

Now, well on the way in her upward climb to a set goal, Mrs. Schwab sits at her desk as the first woman assistant city attorney of San Francisco and expounds this lesson from her experience:

It's an even fight, she concludes, with man and woman on equal terms.

"It is not a 'man's world.'" she explains. "If a woman has equal determination, she has as good a chance to win as has a man.

"But she must have patience and the ability to keep the one goal in view. Neither man nor woman has the right to expect success without effort, which may extend through years."

Feminine Throughout.

The forceful personality of San Francisco's assistant city attorney confirms this opinion. Mrs. Schwab's attire is essentially feminine. Her brown hair is bobbed Yet her features display that enviable characteristic of aggressiveness that has brought her up to her present height.

From childhood, she hoped for success as an attorney. Now that she has tasted of it, she intends to continue her way upward in the law, with the hope ultimately to perform some big social service.

Mrs. Schwab's yearning to become of real social service to humanity springs from her own bitter experiences since she was a tot of 4.

At that age she recalls fleeing Russian persecution, under her father's care, abandoning wealth and property. America, the promised land, opened to them after months of privation and hardship, and the Rantz family settled in Philadelphia.

Family Support.

But the promise of America was far from becoming a realization. Mary had to go out selling papers to add to her father's meager income. As she grew older, and moved to Peoria, Ill., she was destined to help support a large family, even before she could enter upon higher education.

At 15, Mary left business school as a boookkeeper and obtained work in a grocery for $5 a week. That hardly helped keep the wolf from the door. But, after a night course in stenography, she was able to find a better position at $10 a week.

Thus she climbed slowly, courageously and by sheer grit to the point at which she was able to struggle through a night law course, while she worked by day.

But this was not until she had come to San Francisco as a stenographer, had married Rudolph Schwab in 1911 and had lost her husband by death six years later.

Now, as first woman ever to hold the position she is in, Mrs. Schwab considers herself at last started on her way to success.

Britain's only diamond cutting factory was established at Brighton in 1917.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Teresa Desmond ("Terry"), seven years old, left much to herself, believes in fairies and worships

Juliet Divine, the stage name of her beautiful half-sister. She rides in a gorgeous car and talks of a millionaire.

Terrence Desmond, their father, is caretaker of an estate on Long Island and had such-and-such taken place in Ireland years ago (he claimed) he would have been a Lord. Julia's flippant talk about millionaires angers him—he is prone to rages.

Mrs. Peter Parmalee, owner of the house, wires that she is coming out to spend a few days.

Betty Sheen, her 17-year granddaughter is coming with her.

Miles Sheridan is Betty's fiance.

Terry, fearing that an elegant teddy bear is to be taken from the house is discovered in the act of raking it out of Betty's room.

This escapade results in the Desmond's leaving Silverwood, the Paramalee place.

CHAPTER IV.

"Once in the Blue Moon."

Terry had to travel far, however, before the third milestone was in sight.

Of course there was much of interest along the way, yet she missed Silverwood, its silences, and the garden where she had "played fairies."

There was no "playing fairies" at the new home. But it was their very own, and Father lost no chance to impress upon his family what a fine chance they had got—all through Julia!

At Silverwood Terry had heard her parents talk of two small, adjoining houses by the shore, not far from Oldport. Terrence's dream was to buy the dilapidated "shacks," which had stood empty for years, repair them, throw the two into one, and open a "road house."

But there had been no hope of the dream being realized until Julia's friend, Tom Perrin, made it possible. She did not tell Perrin what her father had been: gave him vaguely to understand that "Dad's investments had gone to smash," and that, after years of retirement, the poor man must go into business again.

Perrin motored to Oldport with Julia (there was little he wouldn't have done to please her), saw the "shacks," met Desmond, and heard the scheme.

It was not a bad scheme Perrin thought; and with a good-looking, well-mannered fellow like Desmond there might be money in it.

The shacks had a bad reputation: a woman had been murdered in one about ten years before, by the man next door. Neither house had ever been occupied again.

Desmond believed that with three thousand dollars he could repair the buildings and, with interior changes to suit his plan, could add a broad verandah.

Then, with a thousand dollars more as capital, he'd open a restaurant for "sea food," a few small private dining-rooms, and a big room for dancing, with a band consisting of colored musicians.

Perrin agreed to lend the money, at nominal interest; Terrence more than forgave Julia; and when the Desmonds moved from Silverwood they moved into two hastily furnished rooms of the new habitation.

It was fun to live by the sea. When the workmen came they gave Terry bits of bright glass, and long golden curls made of wood shavings. But there was no garden, only a stretch of grass with a few trees in front of the house, and enough room at the back for a garage.

Terry feared that no fairies would care to come here; still she was happy enough, and Father was good-humored.

Time went on, and by autumn his dream of success had taken shape and color; the color of summer seas and sky: for Desmond decided to call his road-house "The Blue Moon Inn."

His "ad" was to be "Once in a Blue Moon You Find Perfection. Here it is!"

The wording was supplied by Tom Perrin, who had made his fortune as head of an advertising agency. The carrying out of the idea in color was Julia's.

The low wooden roofs of the wide, glassed in verandahs, which formed the restaurant, were turquoise blue, outside and in. So were the old wooden shutters, left just as they had been, on the white clapboarded fronts of the transformed houses.

These windows, on the lower floor, now opened upon the verandah restaurant and a large blue dancing saloon, their bright, small panes giving a quaint effect under the blue roof hung with Chinese lanterns.

Upstairs the little windows gazed as of old, upon the calm of the ancient harbor; but within all was changed.

The bare bedchambers had been turned into coquettish pink and blue dining-rooms for two: and as these were to be a popular feature of the Blue Moon Inn, only two bedrooms were reserved for the family.

The place was ready to open at Christmas. There were no servants living in the house, but Mary undertook the cooking, helped by black Nancibell who washed dishes.

Nancibell's husband and son were the waiters, and two cousins, with the aid of a gramophone, became the band. Terrence Desmond sat at a desk, or walked about looking impressive.

Julia, whose relationship to the Desmonds was unknown except to Perrin, brought motor-loads of friends to dance and enjoy fresh fish and oysters taken from the inn's private sea-water "reserve."

Mrs. Desmond's lobster a la Newburg, her pureed oysters, broiled shad, chicken fried in cream, and waffles or griddle cakes became famous.

The Blue Moon soon rose to the zenith of success, and Desmond was repaying the debt to Perrin.

By this time, however, Julia no longer came to Oldport with Tom. Indeed, she herself came less often than when the inn was new.

Life was crowded, huddled and confused at the Blue Moon. There was coming and going all day, after noon, and most of the night too.

The child never saw her sister alone. She could not ask what had become of the big, red-faced man whom she had disliked because he wanted to kiss her. She was glad not to see him any more; and she supposed that "being on the stage" again kept Julia busy.

When Jule did come, however, she looked more beautiful each time, it seemed. Also her clothes were handsomer. She never forgot to bring a toy, or a book, or a box of chocolates, and to Terry she still remained a princess, who lived in the mysterious splendor of New York.

By and by three years had passed, since the rising of the Blue Moon. Terry was ten, and had never been to school. Mother found time to give her an hour's lessons each morning; and Mother had not forgotten her accomplishments as a teacher of children.

Though life was full of bustle, yet it was monotonous, until suddenly a milestone loomed through the sea-mists: the greatest milestone of all.

One December night Terry was asleep in her tiny room which adjoined the larger quarters where Father and Mother slept. It was a long time since she had dreamed of Silverwood: but, half waking, she became conscious of a dream about the terrible Josephine, Betty Sheen's maid.

Josephine was shrieking at her! She had dragged the Teddy-bear away, and seemed to have gone insane, because she was pounding its head against the wall! There must be iron under the brown plush, because the head made a loud, thudding noise every time it struck.

The screaming had stopped, but the thudding went on, and in the midst of it Terry could hear voices. There were several voices, among them Father's and —yes, Betty Sheen's!

It was queer, they did not sound cross! Now Mother was talking, and a man, not Father.

Oh, but he had a beautiful voice, not like the voices of those men who came to eat and drink and dance at the Blue Moon.

These voices seemed so real that it was hard to believe they were in a dream. Still, they must be:—no, they were not; somebody was waking her up. Her eyes were open. The room was flooded with light.

"Get a move on, kid," Father was saying. "Your bed's wanted. There's been an accident!"

Comparison of Bonds Sales in 1922-3

The total of Canadian bond sales for 1922 was $501,000,000. This was at a monthly rate of over $41,000,000. The total, however, included two items of special financing by the Dominion Government these being, first, an issue of $100,000,000 5% thirty-year bonds in New York in April, 1924, and, second, the Renewal Loan issued to holders of bonds maturing on December 1st, 1922, and amounting to approximately $110,000,000 which consisted of 5½% five and ten-year bonds. As both of these items were special financing and were for refunding and did not involve new money, they might properly be deducted leaving a balance for ordinary financing of $291,003,000 for the year which was thus at the average rate of $24,000,000 per month.

To the close of the current half-yearly period, June 30th, 1923, the total had reached $179,000,000. This is at the rate of $20,000,000 per month or at an average of $5,000,000 per month more than in 1922 in connection with normal or ordinary financing.

The 1923 figures to date, of course, do not include Dominion Government financing which will be carried out later in the year. The first item in this financing will be the disposal of $22,500,000 of fifteen year serial equipment 5% bonds for which tenders have been called for July 25th.

The chart above indicates the record to date and the present position as compared with 1922 and should be viewed with the facts above in mind.

FACTS GIVEN BY CITY EMPLOYE

"Tanlac has put me in such fine shape I feel fully twenty-five years younger, just like a new man," said F. Coombs, 553 Janette Ave., Windsor, Ont., well known city employe.

"I never thought any medicine could be as good as Tanlac has been in my case. I suffered from stomach trouble until my appetite was so poor many days I didn't touch a mouthful of dinner, and I could hardly get home from work at night. I couldn't rest, and mornings when I got up it seemed like my eyes were about to drop out of my head for want of sleep.

"But I sleep like a farm hand now and get up feeling like a two-year-old. I eat three hearty meals every day, everything agrees with me, and I'm so strong I finish a day's work feeling so good I go home in jig time. Tanlac is the best medicine I ever heard of."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

MODERN SVENGALI?

Is Someone, Like De Maurier's Fiction Character, Holding This Cincinnati Woman a Prisoner? — Sleuths Are Baffled By Her Mysterious Disappearance After 'Phone Call.

MRS. ANNA MARIE BEDINGER

CINCINNATI, July 31.—Is Mrs. Anna Marie Bedinger, missing from her home here for a month, a helpless "Trilby" in the power of a modern "Svengali"?

Private and city detectives, investigating the mysterious disappearance, believe that to be the case. They think she is under the domination of some person and is unable to escape or let her husband know her whereabouts.

Mrs. Bedinger was seated with her mother on the porch of their home in a fashionable residential section here. The phone rang. An unknown voice said her husband, Louis E. Bedinger, traveling salesman, had been hurt and was in a hospital.

"I'll come right over," she was heard to say.

She put a black sweater over her house clothes and left—and never was heard from again. Numerous reports had he in various cities, but all the tips proved baseless.

Her husband is frantically combing the country with the aid of the best detectives, for his wife at the time she left was in delicate health.

"She is a prisoner somewhere," the detectives insist, and continue their search.

LONDON IS INVADED BY AN ARMY OF AMERICANS

Startle the Natives When They Meet Friends and Bootleggers From Across The Atlantic.

By CHAS. McCANN

LONDON, Aug 1 (United Press).—This is American summer in London. The trans-Atlantic tourist movement has passed the proportions of an invasion and become an occupation.

Hotels are filled, boarding houses are overflowing. Horn-rimmed men and flat-heeled girls crowd the streets. Soda fountains and peanut merchants are enjoying a prosperous season—their first.

Prohibition restrictions in the States have caused a lot of comment and some knocking; Englishmen cannot understand a free people letting anything come between the cup and the lip without a struggle.

But while British sailors were marching in the Portland Fourth of July parade, London hotels, newspaper offices and private homes were flying the Stars and Stripes; and at the hotels Britons helped to celebrate the anniversary of American independence from British rule.

The London county council gave hotels and restaurants an extra two hours of drinking and dancing for the occasion.

All Kinds of Americans

Every sort of American is here. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Secretary of Labor Davis represent the government. Senator Brookhart is here in the interest of the common people. There are scores of other senators and representatives, and it would probably be as nearly possible to raise a quorum of either House here as it would be in any quarter of the United States.

There are thousands of ordinary citizens, and they run into their neighbors and their bootleggers with shouts of delight that still strale the natives, who disapprove of neighbors as a matter of principle, and don't know what a pal an honest bootlegger can be.

American can—and do—go to American shows and see American companies. They dance to the music of Paul Whiteman's and Pau Specht's bands. They occupy whole sections of the stands at any sporting event, to watch Americans frequently bring home the bacon.

Johnson and Hunter fought on the final in the all-England tennis champion ship; Americans were runners-up in the open golf; Hoover and a half dozen brother oarsmen were competitors in the Diamond sculls at Henley.

Pay Same Prices

Americans pay the same prices at hotels as do Englishmen. There are Anglo-American unveilings, Anglo-American speeches, Anglo-American dinners, informa Anglo-American reun ons at "pubs" and cocktail bars, and, at the rougher and wetter cafes, occasional Anglo-American fights.

There is baseball at the Fulham football grounds, and Englishmen who wonderingly recogn z: baseball as what their children play just after they have learned to walk and forget before they have learned to run, go out to the games just to hear the boys yell. It doesn't mean anything to them; they like the strange noises. They listen and go back home and start discussions in the newspapers about it.

This week's discussion is as to the meaning of "attaboy." The nearest a contraction of "At 'em boys."

NOTICE.

There may never be another such opportunity for the public to see and hear the Prime Minister and the members of his Government as will be afforded at the "Lennox Picnic" on August 6th.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of Examiner:

Sir: I would be pleased if you would allow me a small space in your paper in regard to the behaviour at the band concerts in Victoria Parks on Sunday nights. is time that something was done to put a stop to the terrible yells and bawls, and the chasing about of the children. On Sunday night the band was playing the Village Blacksmith but it was impossible to hear it properly. There was a policeman on duty when the concert started but he decamped—and then the fun started. I think it would be better if there were two policemen; then when one decamps there is one left. I hope something will be done to give us a little better order on Friday night, as we are to have some real good music. Trusting that the good gentlemen of hte city will do their best to give us a little bi of pleasure during the concerts I remain yours,

TRIES TO LISTEN.

THE HEADLIGHT PERIL

A problem which has engaged the attention of inventors since the earliest days of motoring is that of lighting the road ahead of the car without dazzling drivers who are coming in the opposite direction. The beam of light from powerful head-lamps, suddenly encountered on a dark night, is distressing to pedestrians and a positive source of danger to an oncoming driver which has necessarily to travel almost straight into the glare. Many special types of headlamps have been devised and considerable success has been achieved in keeping the light down on to the strip of road immediately in front of the car These improved lamps are not, however, used by every motorist and in order to meet all emergencies a British firm of opticians has perfected a new type of anti-glare glasses. These consist of plain glass spectacles (or lenses if required) dimensioned to suit the wearer's requirements. On each glass there is placed a small piece of tinted film of such a shape and in such a position that it is normally invisible to the wearer. A slight inclination of the head is, however, sufficient to bring the tinted film into the line of vision and this prevents dazzle even when in front of the most powerful lamps. The success of the device depends, of course, on the composition and mounting of the special film, both of which matters have been the subject of prolonged research.

"JIM CROW" COACHES ARE CALLED INTO QUESTION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(United Press)—The validity of "Jim Crow" rules on certain southern railroads has been called into question before the Interstate Commerce Commission and that body will shortly rule whether they are legal.

One Joseph P. Evans, describing himself as "a citizen of the United States and a gentleman of color," in March, 1922, bought a ticket in Charleston, W. Va., for Cincinnati.

Boarding a C. & O. train, he rode as a regular passenger coach with whites until the train reached the Kentucky line, where he was asked to move forward into another coach that was divided, half and half, between baggage and negroes.

Evans refused, saying that he knew of no law or rule requiring him to move. The conductor informed him that the road had a rule, though it was secret and unpublished, requiring the segregating of negroes from whites in trains travelling through Kentucky.

Won in Iowa Court.

Evans still refused and later was taken into custody by a railroad policeman, removed from the train and brought before a court the following day. The court upheld Evans, declaring he had committed no offense. Evans thereupon commenced action before the Interstate Commerce Commission for refund of $8.52 fare he had paid, and brought before the commission the whole question of the rights of railroads to compel segregation of passengers by color, without the authority of law.

Hearings have been held before the commission in which Evans and the railroad submitted voluminous evidence in their own behalf. Evans was represented by an array of negro counsel. His attorneys contended that the road's rule has no validity because it has never been filed with the commission, while it decreed that all railroad rules must be in its files, approved by it, before they are valid.

Additional arguments presented in a brief just filed with the commission by Evans' attorneys, subsequent to the hearings, contend that in addition to being legally invalid, the rule is unreasonable, preventing it forever from being valid. Without apparent reason, Evans' attorneys contend, the rule is enforced only in Virginia and Kentucky and not in West Virginia or Ohio.

Say Rule is Unfair.

The brief further states that insofar as accommodations provided for negroes are unequal to those for whites, such a rule is unfair. Evans contends that where whites are permitted whole cars, negroes should be allowed the same accommodations and not be cramped in half-and-half cars.

It is regarded as extremely probable that the commission, as a result of the Evans' proceeding, will formulate a program for "Jim Crow" regulations for the guidance of roads required or desiring to put them into effect.

TORONTO WON FREE BATTING CONTEST

Knocked Pierotti Out of the Box in the First Frame — Rochester Defeated Buffalo.

SYRACUSE, August 1. Canadian Press. — Toronto won a free hitting contest from Syracuse yesterday 9 to 4. The visitors gathered in 17 hits for a total of 29 bases off the combined deliveries of Pierotti and Ward. Pierotti was knocked out of the box in the first innings when O'Rourke lifted one over the centre field fence, with Wings, who had previously tripled, on third. The score:

Syracuse .. .. .. ..000300001—4 8 3

Reynolds and Vincent; Pierotti Ward and Niebergall.

Rochester 9, Buffalo 7.

BUFFALO, N. Y., August 1, Canadian Pres. — Rochester won another game from Buffalo but the Tribe had to fight for it, the score being 9 to 7, against the Bisons. Rochester secured its start off Fisher, six hits giving Stallings team 4 runs in the second, a lead that they they never let go. Score:

Rochester .. .. .. ..040101021—9 16 1
Buffalo .. .. .. ..002011102—7 9 2

Baltimore 10, Jersey City 6.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 1. Canadian Press. — Timely hitting, coupled with the wildness of three visiting pitchers, enabled the Orioles to defeat Jersey City here yesterday afternoon 10 to 6. Hanson, Lynch and Musante gave a total of 10 bases on balls. Parnham who started for the locals, was taken out when the losers rallied in the eighth. Frank suceeded him and checked the invaders. Score:

Jersey City.. .. ..000100140— 6 11 3
Baltimore .. .. ..0103003x—10 11 3

A TOUGH SEASON FOR MOUND IDOLS

Shocker One of the Few of Last Year's Stars Who Have Been Doing Well This Season.

Four of the leading twirlers in the American League in 1922 were Urban Faber, of the White Sox; Urban Shocker, Browns; Herman Pillette, Tigers, and Eddie Rommel, Athletics.

Combined, this quartet turned in something like 92 victories or an average of 23 each. Which wasn't bad for a season's effort.

Only Shocker Doing Well.

But thus far this season, only one of them, Shocker, has displayed any of the clever ability exhibited last year. He has performed nicely.

But how about the other three, Faber, Pilette and Rommel? They are far behind their regular stride, apparently. And their clubs obviously have suffered to an appreciable extent.

Faber, to date, has lost more games than he has won. In fact, Detroit appears to be the only team he has on his hip. Game after game he has been pounded hard by the enemy batters.

Others Show Up Poorly.

The same holds true for Pillette, who after a brilliant season in his first year in the majors, was looked upon as a future great. But, so far, Pillette has dropped almost twice as many tilts as he has won.

And Rommel! The fellow who astonished the entire baseball world by winning 27 games with the seventh place Athletics in 1922—what's the matter with Eddie? Was his wonderful performance a year ago only a flash in the bucket? It would seem that way. For Rommel still is below the .500 mark in the percentages.

Thus have three of the four star pitchers of 1922 got off on anything but the right foot. Counted upon as certain winners, they have so far failed to show their reputed stuff.

All of which shows that this is a tough season for pitching aces.

GIANTS PURCHASED PITCHER

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 1.— (Canadian Press.)—The New York Giants last night announced the outright purchase of Dennis Gearin, a southpaw pitcher, from the Milwaukee team of the American Association. Gearin will report to the New York team at Cincinnati on Friday, it was announced. The purchase price was not disclosed.

Washington Walloped All Over the Park.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press.)— Detroit trounced Washington 12 to 5 yesterday, scoring six runs in the ninth inning on two hits off Zachary and five off Sedgwick, who relieved him. Washington got five hits, Gharrity's triple off Holloway scoring three men who had received passes in the second inning.

The second game of the scheduled double-header was called in the second inning on account of rain. Score:

First Game:
Detroit.. .. .. ..130 000 206—12 19 1
Washington .. ..032 000 000— 5 5 0

COBB LOOSER IN BASEBALL TRADE

Cobb the Greatest Player and Wonderful Manager But Poor Trader.

DETROIT, Aug. 1.—Ty Cobb is unquestionably the greatest ball player the game has ever produced.

Likewise Cobb has been quite successful as a manager. He probably has done well with the Tigers as any one could.

But as a trade of baseball material, Cobb is far from the David Harum class. Cobb's big deal, Ehmke and a lot of money for Collins and Pratt, which he figured would make the Tigers a pennant contender has proved a "flivver."

Pitchers Collins, on whom Cobb banked for 20 ball games, has been a false alarm. With the season more than half over, Collins has won only three games. For nearly a month he has been out with a bad arm.

Last year Ehmke won 17 games for Detroit. This year with the tail-end Boston club he has won 13 of his first 21 starts. He has been worth nearly five times as much as Collins.

If Ehmke was placed on the open market he would bring at least $50,000. The New York club probably would be willing to pay twice that sum for him right now, were it not for the fact that such sales are no longer permitted late in the season.

Pratt, figured on to play second for Detroit, has slowed up so badly that instead of being a regular, he merely fills the role of substitute. He is also hitting far below his customary gait.

Swapping of Pitcher Ehmke for Pratt and Pitcher Collins, supposed to make the Tigers, really blasted Detroit's hopes.

Cleveland Won An Eleven-Inning Game.

BOSTON, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—Cleveland won from Boston yesterday by batting Ehmke hard in the eighth and ninth innings and scoring the winning run in the eleventh on a pass to Lutzke, a sacrifice by Knode, and a single to left centre by Myatt. Score:

Boston.. . . .000 400 000 00—4 9 2

Edwards, Shaute, Morton and O'Neill, Myatt; Ehmke and Picinich.

SUZANNE'S ADVICE.

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, greatest of all women tennis players, has written advice to girls. "To become a champion tennis player," says the Lenglen, " a girl must start young. She must start well—that is, with good instruction. When you start badly you have to begin again. Your grip is wrong and your stance is wrong. And it is difficult to learn all over."

Mlle. Lenglen's advice holds good in any sport. Talk to the instructor and he tells you that nothing is so difficult as to "unlearn" a pupil, that is, drill bad playing habits out of the player. The man, or woman, who started wrong and later on wants to learn the proper way to play, finds it extremely difficult. The pupil, who never tried the game, learns much easier quicker and better than the one that got away to a wrong start.

Continuing in her advice, Mlle. Lenglen remarks:

"I think the very best practice a girl can get is to use a wall for an opponent. A wall always returns the ball and an opponent not unfrequently misses it.

"Don't play silly little games of 'pat ball.' Try hard always.

"Learn to volley as soon as possible. Footwork is the great thing."

"Young American players must realize that the brain and the feet must work together. Learn to play before a crowd and learn to watch your opponent.

"When I miss a stroke I glance at my feet and, if necessary, change my position. It is generally faulty footwork that makes one miss."

GAME OF YEAR WILL BE THAT WITH TRUNKS

Belleville Fixture Here Will Practically Decide Second Half Honors.

The big game of the year is on the cards at Riverside Park on Saturday, when Belleville and Peies meet in the fixture that will likely settle the championship of the second half of the Big Four race. The winner on Saturday is not likely to be headed off and with so much depending upon the result, the old rivalry between the two clubs is likely to be intensified.

The Trunks are still smarting under the sting of two consecutive defeats on their own grounds by the Solomon crew and have shaken up their team by sending Weir out to left field and moving Brownscombe to short stop, a position he filled acceptably for the Lindsay team last season. There is a possibility that Peeny Mills who has been out of the game for weeks with a broken finger may be behind the bat on Saturday as he has almost completely recovered from his injury. The Belleville crew are fighting tooth and nail to win the second half, preferring a sure entrance into the O.B.A.A. play off with the Petes. They have Oulette and Williams both in good shape but have given on intimation as to which they will start here. The game is called for 3 o'clock sharp and promises to attract the season's largest crowd.

FIRPO SUSPICIOUS OF U.S. FIGHT FANS

His Fears, However, Are Groundless As He Will Be More Popular Than Dempsey.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Some doubts about what the results of another "mixed bout" would be have blocked a Dempsey-Wills heavyweight championship bout for two years. Considering, as political bodies always do, what effect such a match would have on the political parties the New York boxing commission through a Republican and Democratic administration has carefully refrained from giving the slightest indication of its attitude on mixed bouts for the heavyweight championship.

Up until recently, the perplexing color angle has been confined to the black and white races, but a new color has been injected now with the complaint of some Spanish language papers in New York that Luis Angel Firpo, the South American giant, is being discriminated against on account of his color.

Evidence to prove their point was taken from the recent Firpo-Willard fight in the fifth round of which the huge crowd in the Rickard arena rose to its feet and shouted in real college style—Come on, Jess, come on!

As his fellow countrymen construed this to be an act of hostility against the big Latin, so also did Firpo interpret it as being an indication that he might not get a square deal in a match with Jack Dempsey in this country.

For this reason, Firpo insisted that the match be staged in Buenos Aires, when Rickard and Jack Kearns were trying to make the match with him.

Firpo is too willing to be advised and he is too suspicious. His advice is not always of the best and his doubts about the sportsmanship of fans in this country are absolutely without foundation.

Some wise old follower of fistiana could have told him that crowds practically always lean toward the "under dog" and it could have been explained that the shouts for Willard to "Come on" were inspired more by a loser making a rally than by a spirit of animosity toward a "brown man."

In insisting that the bout be staged in South America, Firpo was losing sight of the fact that the champion would be in much more unfavorable surrounding there than Firpo would ever be in this country.

The South American champion apparently is under the impression that Dempsey is a great national hero and that the crowd would call out troops if Firpo started to win from him.

It would have done Firpo some good and would have given him a better understanding of the sportsmanship of fans in the United States if he had heard the ovation that George Carpentier drew in Jersey City and the demonstration that was staged in Shelby when Tom Gibbons was introduced from the ringside.

Dempsey, largely because the public does not and has not tried to understand or know him, is perhaps the most unpopular heavyweight champion that has ever held the title and if Firpo and Dempsey should meet it is very likely that Firpo would get the better hand and that in a pinch, the crowd would be up yelling—"Come on, Firpo, come on!"

VICTORY FOR THE C.G.E.

The C.G.E. Intermediate champions won their game last evening with the Mercantile All Stars by a wide margin. The Electricians piled up a big lead in the early stages of the game and the Mercantiles were hopelessly outclassed throughout.

New Management For Boston To-Day.

BOSTON, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press).—The formal taking over of the Boston American League Club franchise by the new owners probably will occur to-day.

J. A. Robert Quinn, of Columbus, Ohio, and his associates spent yesterday looking over the paper, of the present management preparatory to taking possession of the club.

Quinn, who will become president of the Red Sox, said that there would not be much chance of acquiring new material for his tail-end team until Fall, when the minor leagues would be ready to sell their stars.

SEVERE SETBACK FOR CINCINNATI

Lost Two to Philadelphia and Went Back to Third Place — New York Beat Pittsburgh.

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—The Reds were forced back to third place and their pennant aspirations suffered a severe jolt when the Phillies defeated them in both games of a double-header, 2 to 1, and 5 to 1, yesterday. The first game was a close pitchers' battle between Rixey and Ring, with honors practically even. The Phillies scored one run on an error by Rohne and another on a misjudged fly by Roush, while the Reds earned their one tally on an out and a double by Pinelli.

Couch was hit hard in the second game and was taken out in the fifth. Mitchell and Holke collided forcibly in going after a foul fly near the first base line in the fourth inning. Mitchell was stunned and had to be carried off the field, Betts finishing the game in good style. Holke also left the game in the sixth. It was the first time this year that the Phillies have defeated the Reds, who had won eleven straight games from them up to yesterday. Score:

First Game:
Philadelphia . .001 000 001—2 8 0
Cincinnati . . .000 001 000—1 5 2

Ring and Wilson; Rixey and Wingo.

Second Game:
Philadelphia . .110 120 000—5 9 0
Cincinnati . . .001 000 000—1 9 1

New York 5, Pittsburgh 4.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 1.— (Canadian Press.)— New York made it two out of three in the present series with Pittsburgh by winning yesterday's game, 5 to 4. The Giants drove Hamilton from the box in the first inning when two runs were scored on four singles. They added three more runs in the third inning by bunching hits off Morrison.

McQuillan was effective until the seventh when the Pirates scored four runs on as many hits and he was replaced by Ryan, who stopped further scoring. Score:

New York.. . .203 000 000—5 12 1
Pittsburgh. . . .000 000 400—4 9 1

Boston 6, Chicago 3.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—Boston went on a batting rampage, cracking out sixteen hits for twenty-five bases and made it two straight from Chicago yesterday, 6 to 3. The visitors won the game in the first inning by pounding Victor Keen all over the lot. Dumovich pitched good ball from the second inning. Jess Barnes pitched a steady game and was backed up by four double plays, which broke up Chicago rallies. Score:

Boston .. .. .. ..400 011 000—6 16 3
Chicago.. .. .. ..000 001 110—3 9 0

Divided Double Bill.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 1.— (Canadian Press.)—St. Louis divided a double-header with Brooklyn, winning the first game, 11 to 3, and losing the second 4 to 7. In the first contest Hornsby polled out his thirteenth home run of the season, driving in two other men.

Sherdel was batted off the mound in the second game, after holding the visitors hitless for four innings. In the last inning and two thirds, however, Brooklyn made eight hits, including home runs on two successive pitched balls. The drives were made by Fournier and B. Griffith. It was Fournier's thirteenth four-bagger of the season. Scores:

First Game:
Brooklyn .. .. .120 000 000— 3 12 3
St. Louis. .. .. .203 020 04x—11 11 4

Grimes, Henry and Taylor; Toney and McCurdy.

Second Game:
Brooklyn.. .. .. .000 023 002—7 1 4
St. Louis.. .. .. .200 010 001—4 7 3

Dickerman and Deberry; Sherdel, Barfoot, North and Ainsmith.

Golf's most urgent need at present is instructors to replace the professional. Unless there comes into golf a group of capable tutors the game will lack the development it is entitled to.

The condition in golf is peculiar. Here is a game that claims more active players than any other in the world and it has less coaches. Every club, or practically every club on the United States Golf Association list, has a professional whose duty it is to instruct members how to play golf. There are many professionals, but few of them ever instruct.

The golf professional has lost sight of his duties. He believes, apparently, that he is engaged to mend clubs, sell balls, and play well in all professional tournaments. The better he plays the more salary he can demand. By gaining a reputation in tournament play he becomes a desirable man.

Rather than serve as instructor the golf professional is an advertisement for the club that engages him. He does little more than represent that club in open tournaments.

The clubs, of course, are responsible for the condition now existing. Let a professional win an important tournament and clubs immediately begin bidding for his contract. The better the golfer, the more desirable he becomes as a professional.

Besides the questionable honour of telling people that so and so, winner of such and such a tournament, belongs to his club or as the professional of his club, what possible good can be gotten out of engaging the professional? He does not teach golf. He would not engage in practice with a novice or just beyond the novice stage, for fear of spoiling his stroke. The duffer bores him, and he will have none of him. He depends upon the duffer to pay the freight; that is his share of the arrangement.

You cannot blame the professional golfer so much. It is only human to take advantage of a condition so highly advantageous to him. If he can get away with it, why shouldn't he? Well he does.

The majority of professionals today merely sell a club the privilege of claiming him as the club pro. He spends his time minding his own personal interests, improving his own game, and winning as much money as he possibly can in purses and wagers. Incidentally, he receives a large salary.

Under this condition the professional golfer has developed into a hireling in a plutocratic and, quite often, also an autocratic position. The men that place him in this position and make the ridiculous condition possible are, for the most, business men and employers of men. If their sense of humour does not desert them around the golf links they must find immeasurable merriment in the position of the club professional.

Eddie Onslow Has Lots of Trouble.

Eddie Onslow is due to be back on the job tomorrow, but whether he will be or not is largely conjectural. The captain and ex-manager is reported as having said that he is through with the International league, and if President J. Conway Toole persists in his determination to make an example of him by following up the suspension with a fine of $500, Onslow will have 500 more reasons for disliking the organization with which he has been connected for practically all his baseball career. Jack Dunn, of Baltimore, according to accounts, would like nothing better than to take the crack first-sacker off the hands of the Leafs. He has had designs in this direction all season. There is a rumor going the rounds that he has again renewed negotiations with the Toronto club, but in the absence of President Solman, who is is New York interceding with the league executive on behalf of Onslow and Knotty Lee, wso is scouting in far-off Georgia, the story cannot be confirmed.

LOWER TAX RATE SEYMOUR TOWNSHIP

Half a Mill Reduction From Last Year Decided On.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 1.—The tax rate in Seymour township for the coming year will be 23.3 this year, or half a mill less than the rate levied by the township council in 1922. Of this the levy from municipal purposes is 11.5 mills as against 10 mills last year. The county roll as set at the June session of the County Council is 11.3 mills, two mills less than in 1922. The assessed value of Seymour township is $1,136,733 and the total taxes collected last year amounted to $13,388.30.

The rate was set at the meeting of the Seymour Council Monday afternoon on motion of Deputy Reeve Wilson, seconded by Councillor Milne, all the members being present and the vote being unanimous.

Accounts Paid.

The following bills were ordered paid:

J. G. Milne, fixing culvert, $5.60; Charles Baker, work ond roads, $12; George Wilson, work on roads, $4; E. Quinn, work on roads, $4; Thomas Watters, work on roads, $22; William Watters, work on roads, $24; William Anderson, work on roads, $10; J. Fairman, work on roads, $4; James Watters, work on roads, $8; John Brown, work on roads, $34; Joe Lindsay, ditching, $18.50; A. W. Robertson, repairing grader, $38.40; Harris Flour and Feed Company, tile, $14.40; McKelvie and McCook, lumber, $83.88; Garnet Craighead, hauling bridge material, $2; T. W. Bennett, work on roads, $1.50; Charles Saugmuir, error in former account, $6.00; Garnet Curle, work on roads, $2.

Thanks From Navy League.

At the Orange celebration here on the Twelfth of July, Rev. Charles Adams, representing the Navy League, was permitted to address the gathering on behalf of that organization and a collection amounting to $16.75 was taken up. Reeve Van Vulkenbery has received from the president of the League a receipt and a letter of thanks for this money which he says will be used in the relief of sailors who are in indigent circumstances.

Former Boxer Is Now An Army Officer.

BOSTON, August 1. — (Canadian Press). — Freddie Welsh, former light-weight boxing champion, recently commissioned in the United States reserve corps as Captain John Thomas, has been called into active serivce, it was announced at Army Head-quarters here yesterday Captain Thoma, arrived in Boston yesterday and will be detailed to-day as a member of the athletic staff at Camp Devens where approximately 2,000 young New Englanders will begin courses of training in citizens' military training camps to-day.

HARRY WILLS ASKS FOR FIRST CHANCE

N. Y. State Boxing Commission Continues to Say Nothing About Championship Bout.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—The New York State Athletic Commission yesterday discussed the scheduled Dempsey-Firpo championship match and heard Harry Wills, negro heavyweight and his manager, Harry Mullins, plead for the first chance at the title. It refused to declare its attitude in either case.

The Commissioners announced that Tex Rickard, promoter, had not made application for a license to hold the Dempsey-Firpo encounter and that until he did they had no specified interest in the matter.

It was understood, they said, in the papers Dempsey and Wills signed before the Commission some months ago, that the two would meet for the title, but they had seen nothing in the agreement that would prevent Dempsey from meeting another boxer first. They intimated, however, that when the Wills case was placed before them officially they would vote on it.

Until the application for the Dempsey-Firpo license is received by the Commissioners, Wills' claim, it is believed, will be held in reserve.

JOCKEYS WORE CREPE.

ROUNDHAY, Leeds, Aug. 1.—Following the funeral of Arthur Willey, M.P., many jockeys, who had attended the ceremonies, wore crepe on their sleeves at race meets in which they participated. It was an unusual sight for a race meet.

SACRED HEART STOP CURLERS

Contest of Short and Long Hits Won in Seventh by 8 to 6.

22 STRIKEOUTS

Sacred Heart and Curlers turned out everything from a scratch hit to a home run in their Midget game last evening, and Sacred Heart won the contest in the seventh by the score of 8 to 6. The Southenders meet Maple Leafs on Thursday evening and another win will send them into a play-off with Curlers for the championship of the first half of the series.

It was interesting baseball throughout the seven innings last evening. Sacred Heart had it 3 to 0 at the end of the 4th. Curlers pounded the ball hard in the fifth for six runs only to be overtaken by Sacred Heart who tied the count in the sixth. Sacred Heart took a two-run lead in the seventh and refused to let go, in spite of the fact that Curlers had three runners on bases with one out, in their half.

The work of the pitchers, always an interesting feature of a Midget game, made the fans sit up and take notice. Masterson had the Curlers tied up until the fifth. Following a disastrous session he came back strong in the sixth, and worked himself out of a bad situation in the 7th. Wood twirled a steady game until the sixth when he was hit in a row for runs. The two heavers fanned 22 batsmen and issued only two passes. Masterson got good fielding support, but Curlers dumped in five errors, all of which were costly to Wood.

Started it Right.

Kenneally leading off for Sacred Herat, hit to right, Fraser letting the ball go over his head, allowing the runner to make third base. Richea fanned and when Ecobichon threw out Archambault at first, Kenneally scored. MacDougall fanned.

Ecobichon for Curlers, scratched a hit, the ball bounding over the pitcher's head. McLeish popped back of second, MacDougall making a nice catch, and doubling Ecobichon who had stolen second. Wood skied to O'Brien.

The teams were retired in order in the second, Sacred Heart going out at first and two Curlers fanning.

After two were out in the third, Kenneally drove a hot one at Gray, and he muffed the ball. Kenneally stole and scored when Richea shot a clean single between short and third. Richea stole second. Archambault fanned.

The Curlers were easily disposed off in their half. Vincent fanned; Fraser went out when he dumped the ball in front of the plate, and Baird was retired at first after mising three.

MacDougall fanned in the fourth. Masterson and O'Brien went out, Baird to McLeish.

In the fifth Grady fanned. Holland was safe when Ecobichon erred on a grounder, the runner making second. After LeBarr fanned Baker pegged to third to get Holland stealing but Gray dropped the ball. Kenealley drew McLeish away from the bag with a grass cutter, making the base and scoring Holland. Rishea missed three.

Curlers Hit Hard.

Baker was struck out. Macdonald opened an attack on Masterson with a double. Gray followed with a three bagger, scoring Macdonald. Vincent hit over short, scoring Gray and Fraser fanned. Vincent stole second and third, and on an attempted steal home, scored, when he drew a throw from Kenneally that Holland dropped. Baird was safe on the pitcher's error, and Ecobichon hit him home with a double. McLeish hit a homer to deep centre. Wood hit and stole. Baker ended it by going out at first, after Kenneally had dropped the third strike. The rally gave Curlers a three-run lead.

Gray started Sacred Heart on a scoring bee that tied the teams, when he allowed Archambault's easy grounder to go through. The runner stole second. MacDougal fanned for the third time. Masterson tripled to left centre, scoring Archambault, and going in himself when Baird in relaying the throw home, threw over the catcher's head. O'Brien gave the pitcher a hard chance and made the bag on a close play, Wood trying alone for the out at first. Grady walked. Holland singled, scoring O'Brien. LeBarr fouled out to Baker and Kenneally grounded out.

Macdonald popped out to MacDougal. Gray doubled to right and stole third. Vincent grounded out. Trying to make the plate, Gray was sandwiched on the runway, and when O'Brien took the throw from the catcher, Gray and the third baseman collided, both going down in a heap. The runner was touched with the ball by O'Brien, and when the third baseman went to the ground the ball fell from his hand. Umpire Collins called the runner out. It was found that O'Brien was badly shaken up and the player was unable to finish the game.

Sacred Heart won out in the seventh. After Rishea fanned, Archambault hit through short, stole second, and went home on McDougal's timely double. McDougal made third and scored when Masterson lined out to first. Solmes, batting for O'Brien, fanned, after lacing the ball, only inches foul, to right.

Fraser's bingle and a pass to Baird opened the way for some Curlers' runs in their last effort. Ecobichon failed to connect. Masterson hit McLeish, filling the bases. Wood tried hard, only to waft fouls, and then got out, when hit by the ball on his third strike. Baker put an end to the excitement by striking out. The box score:

LAKEFIELD FORFEITS GAME.

George Street won an East Peterborough League game Tuesday evening by 9 to 0, when Lakefield left the field in the fourth innings. The visitors objected to umpirial decisions, and refused to continue the game. The contest was played at Prince of Wales' grounds, and it was after seven o'clock when the Lakefielders were ready to play. Tommy Holyman was umpire and he did good work.

SWIMMING ACROSS LAKE ERIE TODAY

Carbis Walker of Cleveland Attempting Difficult Aquatic Feat.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Somewhere between Point Pelee, Ontario, and Lorain, Ohio, Carbis Walker, a Cleveland swimmer and former member of the Outrigger Canoe Club of Honolulu, early to-day was attempting to swim across Lake Erie, 39 miles, a feat never before accomplished.

Trained to the minute and confident of success, Walker dived into the water off Point Pelee Lightship at seven o'clock last night, according to advices received here from Leamington, Ontario, the nearest point of communication. Walker is accompanied by the power boat Argus, and a canoe, and expects to complete his marathon aquatic feat within twenty-eight or thirty hours. Neither craft is equipped with wireless, and it is doubtful whether any word as to Walker's progress will be received, although four newspapermen are aboard the Argus.

RED MEN

The American Indians have stopped "becoming extinct." There are about 341000 of them in the United States now, an increase of 13,500 in ten years. And their death rate has been declining in the last decade.

Now and then you read about Indians who have become extremely rich by oil royalties. Others are plodding along like the rest of us, the business system gradually getting them in its clutches Indians own 35 million dollars worth of livestock, including over a million sheep a quarter of a million head of cattle and aobut the same number of horses and mules.

Forty-four thousand Indian families live in permanetn houses. Indian farmers number 41,000. Uncle Sam estimates that Indian property is worth a billion dollars, or around $3000 apiece.

you'll reflect as you read these figures about the condition of the Indians. A Red Man tilling irrigated soil, dickerring in oil leases, shipping steers to the Chicago market or enngaged in the wool industry seems rather out of place in popular imagination.

Most of us prefer the open-country life of the Indians in the old days before the white men hunted down the majority of them and cooped the rest in reservations.

In a great many ways the old-time Indians lived an ideal existence, close to nature. Would you trade places with them?

Well, it's too late. They are rapidly becoming "civilized," and are even adopting our religion—48,000 Indians are Protestants and 59,000 Catholics

MAJOR LEAGUE BATTERS HAVE HIT 672 HOMERS

CHICAGO, August 1 (Canadian Press). — Major League baseball players have driven out 672 home runs this season, including the games of 31st July, 382 fewer than the total of 1,054 for the entire season last year. The season has just little more than two months to go.

The senior Major League has gathered 377 four-ply blows, which is the work of 93 players, while 80 players in the junior circuit have smashed out 295 circuit drives, giving the National League a lead of 82 to date. Last season the National Leaguers led their rivals by 6 at the close of the season.

"Cy" Williams, of the Phillies, is leading the National Leaguers with 27 circuit drives, while Babe Ruth is out in front among the American sluggers with 24.

WORKERS' GOLF COURSE.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 1.—(Associated Press)—A modern golf course for workmen in the mills at Ambridge, where structural steel is manufactured in great quantities, is the latest development of the game in the Pittsburg district.

The plan is fathered by W. C. Fownes, Jr., the veteran golfer, who is financially interested in one of the mills, and construction of the course has been placed in the hands of Emil Loeffler, professional at the Oakmont Country Club.

Ground on the hills bordering the mill village and near enough to be reached by a few minutes' walk, has been purchased, and the work will be started in a short time.

Present plans are not to make the course free to workmen who may want to play, but to keep cost so low as to make it available for any of them. It is designed for men and women of the mill community who do not go in for other sport, and will provide them with recreation at a cost which hitherto has been looked upon as beyond their means.

SOFT BALL TO-NIGHT

At 6.30 this evening the teams of the Quaker Oats and the Canadian Woollens will meet at the Central Park for a game in the Soft Ball League.

There will be a meeting of the executive of the Soft Ball League on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, at the Chamber of Commerce

FARM WATER SUPPLY

In locating the farm home the first essential is a sufficient supply of pure water easily accessible. The origin of fresh water in the earth is usually traceable to the rainfall upon the surface. The earth's crust consists of many layers of varying thickness. These, when considered in connection with water supply, are divided into two classes: porous, or those that will allow water to percolate or flow; and impervious, or those that prevent the movement of water.

When a porous stratum overlies an impervious one there is the collection of the local rainfall from the immediate surrounding drainage basin. When a porous stratum underlies an impervious formation the water will be collected at the outcrop of the former, which may be at a great distance from the well. Should that point be at a higher elevation than the location of well, artesian or flowing water would be secured. This overflow might have sufficient head to elevate the water into homes and barns. In the course of time underground streamlets and streams have formed, and fortunate is the person that locates one of these when digging for water. These streams usually flow along the surface of an impervious earth layer and frequently terminate in a spring on a hillside.

The source of our farm water supply is usually a well that penetrates the ordinary ground-water level or that taps an underground stream. Some are fortunate in locating near a spring, and others get their supply from a stream that flows through the farm. These sources are all good, provided that they are free from contamination. There are three types of wells in common use: the dug well for shallow depths; the driven well for earth formation; and the drilled well where the water bearing stratum is overlaid by rock or hardpan.

These wells should be protected from polluted surface water. For this reason the well should be located on rising ground, so that the surface water will flow away from it. Dug wells should be walled with water-tight material. If stone or brick is used, cement mortar should be used to seal the interspaces. Concrete makes a good, tight wall. Wells driven through clay are usually safe. Drilled wells should be lined with wrought-iron casing extending to the rock and driven into it to form a water tight joint.

There are three methods in common use in conveying the water from the source of supply to the farm buildings. First, by gravity, when the source is higher than the buildings; second, by the use of an hydraulic ram, when there is an abundant supply of running water to operate it; third, by the use of a pump. In installing these last mentioned, galvanized iron pipe of sufficient size to meet the farm requirements should be used.

There are many types of pump on the market. For shallow wells the cistern pump with cylinder in the barrel may be used. For deeper wells the suction pump may be used if the cylnder is placed within 25 feet of the low water mark in the well. The single and double action pumps, with or without power, can be used to elevate water to the desired height.

When water has to be elevated the wind-mill is a cheap source of power. A gasoline engine will do the work at a very low cost, and pumping can be done while the engine is at other work.

Water from limestone formations is hard, and not satisfactory for washing. Rainwater, which is always soft, can be collected from the roofs and stored in cisterns for washing purposes.

The home and barns on every farm need water on tap wherever required, much more than does the city home; because the farm requires more water per capita and the people on the farm have less time to carry water. It is estimated that the average farm family of 5, with 4 horses, 33 head of cattle, 50 sheep and 10 pigs, requires over 600 gallons of water per day.

In conclusion, then, the farm water supply should be adequate to meet the maximum requirements every day; it should be reasonable in cost, simple in construction, durable and easy to operate; it should be fresh, pure and cold at the taps, and it should be available for fire protection.

ANOTHER SLICE OF BREAD, PLEASE

The magician's wand never produced anything so marvelous as the mathematician's pencil. Just read the startling figures that have been inspired by three mandatory words, "Eat More Wheat," the new and revolutionary slogan of the American Baking Institute that has been adopted by the big flour mills to take the place of "Eventually, Why Not Now." H. E. Barnard, of Chicago, director of the institute that has influenced co-operative advertising by the manufacturers of wheat products says that if another slice of bread could be added to each meal of everybody in America, 170,000,000 additional bushels of wheat, to make 35,000,000 barrels of flour would be sold. This would mean to the cotton grower and spinner a market for 40,000,000 more yards of cotton cloth. It would mean a market for 162,500,000 bushels of corn required to fatten 4,375,000 hogs weighing 200 pounds each to furnish the 140,000,000 pounds of lard needed as shortening for the additional flour. It would mean a billion pounds of butter to spread the bread, and would create a need for 140,000,000 pounds of yeast made from millions of bushels of rye and barley. It would mean prosperity for the railroads which haul wheat from the farm and goods back to it; for implement manufacturers waiting to sell tools; for clothiers, shoemakers and for manufacturers and retailers of many commodities tending to make life more comfortable and happy.

Now there's something to think about and if it doesn't make your head dizzy you have a better noodle than nature blessed us with.—Newspaperdom.

Noted Impersonator to Appear at Coming Dominion Chautauqua

John B. Ratto, famous impersonator, will be one of the outstanding attractions at the coming Dominion Chautauqua.

Mr. Ratto presents programmes full of life and action and with not a dull moment, consisting of types and characters one meets in the average community and of noted men, past and present.

He presents these characters in "make-up," pencilling in full view of the audience, telling an appropriate story the while. Pencilling finished, he turns to a table mirror, adjusts his wig, and faces about to surprise his audience with the accuracy of a character distinct in appearance, speech, and manner, and with a personality all its own.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(Special.)—Activity and strength was displayed at the opening of the stock market to-day. Leading stocks showing overnight gains of 1 to a 1-2 points.. The first double opening in a long time took place in Studebaker at 103 and 102 3-4, up 2 3-8 to 2 1-8 points. Overnight news was generally good, including improvement in President Harding's health, and good industrial earning statements. Improvement came in Cosden Oil, co-incident with the announcement of the declaration of the regular quarterly $1.75 preferred dividend. Activity continued but stocks softened when selling occurred in the rubber issues and weakness developed in the Sugars. The latter were influenced by a decline of 25 points in refining sugar to 6 cents a pound. The price went down later. American Sugar was off 1 at 57, a new 1923 low on a relatively small turnover. Rubbers were more active, both United States Rubber and Kelly selling at new 1923 lows, the former off 2 at 38 1-4, and the latter 1 3-4 at 29. Rumor of another cut in tire prices was the vehicle which brought the offerings. However there are some in trade who do not confirm talk of impending price reductions and at least one large manufacturer flatly denied he has any intention of making a cut. Strength developed towards the end of the first hour, with no decrease in activity. All the leading stocks rallied sharply with gains of 1 to 2 points from the prices made on the early reaction and the general level of prices was better than the opening figures. The opening strength apparently caused some uneasiness among those holding a short position and such leaders as Can. Baldwin, Studebaker. American Loco rallied easily.

Studebaker sold at 102 3-4, up 1 1-4 from its price around 10.30. Can recovered 1 1-4 to 8 5-8. Baldwin better than a point and a half, while all the Steel stocks showed a much better tone.

The latter displayed more confidence when Steel Common touched 87, up 1 1-2 from the previous close.

THE HUNCH IS SOLID FACTS, NOW

Paul T. Cherrington, of New York, in addressing the members of American Association of Advertising Agencies at Atlantic City, declared the day gone when the business man had a hunch and acted upon it in determining his business policy. Now he seeks solid facts upon which to build his plans.

"One factor which has made difficult, while at the same time it has made more urgent, the development of facts as the basis for marketing operations in this country," said Mr. Cherrington, "is the immense scale on which American marketing is obliged to operate. There is no other area in the world occupied by a hundred million people with relatively high purchasing power, tied together by language, commercial customs, a single financial system and facilities for transportation and communication, and without internal tariff barriers or other artificial hindrances to trade.

"According to a recent compilation there are more than 1,800 daily morning papers published in the States, more than 600 daily evening papers, nearly 23,000 other newspapers, 150 magazines, 2,500 business papers, 29 women's papers of national scope, 860 religious papers, 570 agricultural papers, and a host of others. With such an array as this, how is the advertising agency to choose wisely without solid facts as a basis for action?

"The progress made in the quantitative measurement of circulations by inflexible scientific standards has been one of the most valuable and most creditable achievements of the American advertising business. Other phases of the work of space buying are now in process of being worked out by some of the more progressive agencies, and a few years ought to show real progress in the advisability of facts about the quality of what the buyer of space gets for his money as well as its quantity.

"Similarly the use made of space is showing the effects of the application of scientific methods. A comparison of the advertising messages, and the forms of their presentation, in almost any American publication compared with most of those in the publication of a few years ago, shows not only great advance in artistic standards, but a fuller understanding of the principles which underlie the construction and presentation of advertising messages for the accomplishment of specific ends in the way of human action."

Mr. Cherrington is a real authority upon advertising—one of the most progressive in the country—and it is cheering to get from him an expression upon this particular point. The more facts the advertiser demands in distributing his advertising appropriation the better it will be for the newspapers.

In Hull, Eng., 60,000 people are dependent upon the fishing industry.

WHY STAR LOVES LONESOME PINE.

A strong reason has been found for Mary Miles Minter having chosen "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" as her new Paramount star picture, which comes to the Capitol Theatre on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

It has been known that Miss Minter is partial to the Cumberlands and the sweeping country south of the Mason-Dixon line. However, she had a secret reason for desiring to start in her present picture.

A newspaper reporter, a long time friend of the Minter family, recently interviewed the star in her new home. It is located on the highest hill overlooking Hollywood. A cosy delightful little bungalow, its view is magnificent on the hill, spread out the city to the east, the dozens of motion picture studios of Hollywood to the south, the ocean to the west, and the great and beautiful stretch of mountain valley to the north.

An unusually steep road ascends to Miss Minter's new home. Directly at the top of the hill, its close-cropped shrubbery casting little shade, a tall sentinel pine tree stands guard —the only pine tree, it is believed, in Southern California.

"It is 'the lonesome pine' in reincarnation," declared Miss Minter to the reporter. "It takes my heart right back to the land of cotton. I call the little road leading up to my home 'the trail of the lonesome pine.'"

Putting two and two together, the quick thinking reporter laughingly accused Miss Minter of sentiment.

"Perhaps," she replied, dreamily. "My new Paramount starring picture, you know, is 'The Trail of the Lonesome Pine.'"

BIG SHOWS UNDER A HEAVY EXPENSE

Pay License Fee of $375 to the Provincial Government Daily.

During its stay at the Exhibition Grounds the Billie Clark's Exporition Show will pay in license fees to the Provincial Government about $375. Every day the show remains there License Inspector Stewart collects $75, which he lodges in a bank to the credit of the Provincial treasurer.

In addition to this the show must pay to the Municipality of Monaghan $30 for the first day and $15 every day thereafter. Then, too, a percentage of the takings is paid to the Exhibition Board.

WEDDING BELLS

HENNINGER—MORRISON.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place on July 26th, at the home of Mr M. Lymburner in Hamilton, when his niece, Jean Victoria Morrison, R. N., of Buffalo, N. Y., formerly of Parkdale, daughter of Mrs. E. Morrison of this city and the late W. A. Morrison, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Charles Kent Henninger E. E., of Bradford, Pa., son of Mrs. Henninger of Vincennes, Indiana, and the late Dr. Charles G. Henninger.

Rev. Mr. McIlroy of Main Street Presbyterian Church Hamilton, performed the ceremony The wedding march was played by the bride's cousin, Miss Marion Lymburner, and another cousin, Miss Doris Bews of Waterdown, sang "Because" very sweetly during the singing of the register.

The bride, who entered the prettily decorated drawing-room on the arm of her uncle was dressed in cocoa colored flat canton crepe, with hat, shoes and stockings to match, and bouquets of sweetheart roses.

The young people, who were unattended, left later for a honeymoon in Muskoka and Parry Sound, the bride travelling in suit of navy tricotine, with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Henninger will reside in Bradford, Pa.

Miss Morrison, whose mother, Mrs. E. Morrison is the well-known superintendent of the Y. W. C. A. here, was one of the staff of nurses in charge of the City Hospital in Buffalo. The bridegroom attained to the rank of captain in the American Expeditionary Force during the late war, receiving five decorations for bravery, among which was the Croix de Guerre, with gold star.

SHIRLEY—RAE.

At 1.30 o'clock in St. Andrew's Church today the marriage took place of Eva Anna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rae, to Ernest R. Shirley of Peterborough. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. James Rollins.

OBITUARY

MRS. FRANK PETHICK.

Survivors of the late Mrs. Frank Pethick, whose death took place in Rochester, N. Y., on Saturday last, are: Her husband and one son, Francis, of Rochester; three sisters, Mrs. R. J. McWilliams of Peterborough, Mrs. W. F. Trude of Smith and Mrs. Secord of Vancouver, B. C., and one brother, Will. Nelson, of Toronto.

PETER FORSYTHE.

The death took place Tuesday evening, at Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, of Peter Forsythe, 34 Geneva Street, St. Catharines.

The late Mr. Forsythe came to Peterborough about three months ago as a millwright, and has been working on the new installation in the Quaker Oats Co. plant. He took sick about twelve days ago with typhoid fever, turning to pneumonia, which resulted in his death. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, a son overseas, and a daughter at home.

Mr. McLean, a fellow-workman, accompanied the remains to St. Catharines, where interment will be made from the family residence.

ALEXANDER MACKENZIE.

Q—Who was Alexander MacKenzie?

A—On July 22, 1793 a white man, with a few Indians, in standing on the Pacific shore, in what is now British Columbia, and painting in big scarlet letters on a rock, "Alexander MacKenzie, from Canada, by land July 22, 1793!" The great feat had been accomplished; the first white man had crossed the Rockies! And he was a Canadian—a fur trader of Montreal.

THE WHALING INDUSTRY.

Q—What is the extent of the whaling industry in Canada?

A—Canada's whaling industry is on the Pacific coast; with four stations. 187 were captured in 1922. Most of the whales caught run from 20 to 90 feet in length and weigh, on the average, a ton to each foot. Different parts of the carcass produce oil guano and glue, fertilizer and the bone is utilized in corset and comb factories. An average whale is worth about $1,000.

VOTED $25,000 RELIEF DISTRESSED FARMERS

QUEBEC, Aug. 1. —(Canadian Press.)—The Provincial cabinet, at a meeting yesterday, voted the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars for the relief of several parishes in Charlevoix county, on the north shore of the St. Lawrence, below Quebec, where drought has resulted in complete failure of crops. The money will be spent to buy hay and other fodder for live stock and also to provide other supplies which are urgently required to tide the farmers over the long winter.

THE ALBERTA COAL CAN COMPETE WITH AMERICAN

"Alberta coal can be sold easily in competition with the American product since the Canadian National Railway has placed a lower freight rate to Ontario," was the statement made this morning by J. E. ## RANGERS BURYING GLASS TO AVERT FOREST FIRES

SNOQUALMIE, Wash., Aug. 1.—All bottles found along highways running through national forest reserves must be gathered up and buried by rangers on the north or shady side of some mountain. These instructions are given out by the forestry service on the theory that the glass bottles absorbing the sun's rays to a heated focus start fires when conditions are just right. Many tests have been made to ignite matter with bottles and failed; yet, despite ridicule, bottles are to be collected and destroyed.

CITY POLICE ON TRAIL OF TORONTO BANDITS

The city police force had a hurry up call to-day from Chemong Park. This arrived at an awkawrd time, when the police car was laid up for repairs. Undeterred, they obtained another car and dashed to the spot where the bandits were reported in camp.

It was found that the "bandits" were innocent Torontonians and the policemen came back empty-handed.

BUFFALO HAS ANOTHER SHAKE-UP OF POLICE

BUFFALO, N.Y., August 1 (Canadian Press). — The most far-reaching police shake-up in the history of the Buffalo Department was announced by Mayor Frank X. Schwab at noon to-day, to become effective at six o'clock to-night.

Two hundred and fifty-eight patrolmen and every precinct in the city will be affected.

To-day's shift grew out of the evidence secured during the hearing in the Mayor's vice and narcotic investigation, which still is under way. Several police-lieutenants and detectives had been accused of graft, a number suspended, and drastic changes in the make-up of the Department had been made before to-day's order went out.

IN MEMORIAM.

Dear mother, you have gone from here,
The Saviour thought it best
To take you to His heavenly home
To dwell among the blest.
Just three years ago to-day,
Your loving Lord called you away
Where you always longed to go.
From a world of sin and woe.
She was a mother kind and true,
A patient, loving mother, too;
She always was so kind to all,
Ready to answer any call.

DARK HAND OF RUHR TRAGEDY AT THROATS OF BRITISH INDUSTRY

Lord Curzon Talks Quite Plainly This Afternoon in the House of Lords on Situation in Ruhr—No Settlement Seen.

ADVISES GERMANY

LONDON, August 2.—(Canadian Press).—Goaded by criticisms of Lord Birkenhead, Lord Curzon declared in the House this afternoon, that the situation in Rhur was "telling upon almost every industry in this country. After a few brief weeks of activity, he said, due to the purchase of coal in Great Britain when the situation in the Ruhr first began, we saw the dark hand of this tragedy crouching at the throat of almost every industry in this country.

Lord Curzons plain talking this afternoon was quite different from the calm of his prepared formal address delivered this morning.

Replies Hopeless.

Prime Minister Baldwin joined with Lord Curzon foreign secretary, in informing parliament to-day that the replies by France and Belgium to British reparation note seemed to hold out no prospect of a settlement of the Rhur situation in the near future nor the opening of discussion regarding reparations

Lord Curzon, foreign secretary, informed the house of Lords today that Italy had not sent a written reply to recent British reparations note but had nevertheless expressed herself as approving in general Great Britain's views and proposals.

Lord Curzon said that French and Belgian replies to the British note appeared to hold out no prospect of an early settlement of the situation in Rhur nor commencement of discussion on reparations. The British draft reply to Germany was not mentioned in the communications from Paris and Bussels, the foreign secretary added.

Versailles Treaty.

Mr. Baldwin, making his eagerly awaited statement in the House of Commons said that in its draft reply to Germany's last note, the British government had expressed the opinion that while nothing should be done which would be inconsistent with stipulations of the Versailles Treaty, advantage could be derived if impartial experts, co-operating with the repartion commission should examine Germanys' capacity to pay. The reply also pointed out, Mr. Baldwin said, that the economic value of such a step must largely depend upon factors not mentioned in the German memorandum such as stabilizing market and balance the budget, and that no guarantee could be effective unless provision was made for some form of international control over German financial administration.

Advice to Germany.

"The reply ended," continued the Prime Minister, "by advising the German Government that if it desired resumption of inquiry to withdraw without further delay ordances and decrees which organized and fomented the policy of passive resistance, and to unequivocally disavow acts of violence and sabotage which in some cases had accompanied it.

"The reply expressed belief that such action on the part of Germany would involve reconsideration by occupying powers of conditions of their occupation and gradual return to normal features of industrial life in the Rhur.

Charge That Goods of Canteens Board Stolen Wholesale

LONDON, Aug. 2. — (United Press).—Colonel V. Spencer, of Vancouver, figures in the report of the Select Committee which has been enquiring into the charges that the goods of the Army and Navy Canteens Board were stolen wholesale and the profits wrongly applied.

The report states that Spencer received about thirty thousand dollars commission in respect of goods valued at three million dollars purchased between August, 1919, and January, 1920, and that he was first appointed at a minimum commission of about $15,000 a year.

BANK TELLER TO FACE TRIAL

WHITBY Ont. Aug 2.—The preliminary hearing in the case of embezzlement of $16,734.44 of the fundr by Fred D. Ward, a former teller of the Standard Bank of Canada at Whitby was held Tuesday night. After the hearing, which lasted over three hours, Ward was committed for trial by Police Magistrate A. F. Hind and will come up in the next court of common jurisdiction to be tried by judge and jury at an early date. Bail was again renewed to the extent of $25,000.

Shortly before seven o'clock, the hour set for the hearing a curious crowd had entered the large court room. Ward, who was accompanied by Louis Bandler, of Whitby, the chief bondsman and several other friends followed the magistrate into the court.

The enquiry was conducted by Crown Attorney J. E. Farewell K.C., of Whitby, for the Crown and Ward was defended by H. H Dewart, K.C. assisted by Cecil C. Richardson of Toronto..

Manager a Witness.

The only witness called upon to give evidence was E. C. Hodgins, manager of the Oshawa branch of the Standard Bank. It was from this office that it is alleged Ward was short the large amount, Mr. Hodgins told that he had been the manager of the Oshawa branch for the past two years during which time Ward the accused, had worked for him as senior teller. Ward worked for $1,500 per annum, having been there for four years. Mr. Hodgins also stated that Ward was very capable, ambitious and well liked.

Witness told that on the morning of April 12 last he discovered certain branch clearings had been received at the branch and the necessary corresponding credits had not been made After closing hours he counted Ward's cash and found a shortage of $16,734.44.

Items Not Credited.

Mr. Hodgins then told of certain items received by Ward and not credited. Among these were $758.30 received on April 4th; $1,419.61, $249.44 and $749.63 on April 7th, and four deposits on the same date of $426.30, $500, $536.11 and $275. Mr Hodgins stated that under the present system of the bank that they had no knowledge as to what date these deposits were received.

After closing hours on April 12 Mr Hodgins stated that Ward came into his office. The teller had been questioned earlier in the day as to why he had delayed making his branch credits. "When Ward came into my office he stated that he was glad it was all over," stated Mr. Hodgins "I asked him what he meant and he said he was short. I then asked him how much and he stated about $16,000. I had no knowledge that anything was wrong or where the money had gone. I checked Ward's books for the day and found him between $3,500 and $4,000 short.

"Ward asked me to go into the vault with him, which I did," continued witness. "He was white and trembling, and said that he as sure that I must have known he was short in his cash. I then asked him if he

FURTHER PROGRESS IN A SANITARY MEASURE

Further progress in ridding Peterboro of the antiquated out-door closets is indicated in the monthly report of the plumbing inspector, A. G. Metheral, which shows that ten have been done away with during July. This makes a total of 71 this year.

Permits issued during the month numbered 27, covering 17 water closets; 11 baths; 13 basins; 17 sinks; 1 laundry tub.

Water tests made by the inspector numbered 38 and smoke tests 43 Six layouts were drawn and 41 miscellaneous inspections made. Certificates were issued to 37 on completion of plumbing work.

The baby show, as usual, will draw a great number of entries at the Herb. Lennox Picnic. It is open to babies one year old and younger Special prizes are being offered in this interesting contest.

LLOYD GEORGE IS COMING TO THANK CANADA

Only Mission is to Express Verbal Appreciation of Dominion's Part in the War.

SAILS NEXT MONTH

LONDON, Aug. 2.— (United Press.)— David Lloyd George will sail for New York late in September on a tour which will take him into many of the cities of the United States and Canada. His purpose, as he expressed it, in making his plans known to the United Press, is to thank Canada for its magnificent services to the Empire during the war, and to become personally acquainted with the United States—its cities, its people and its political system.

Britain's war-time Premier—the outstanding figure in Europe during the world conflict—will make a number of speeches during the trip and will visit America's national shrines. His first address will be delivered in Montreal the night of the day of his arrival.

First in Montreal.

In Montreal the first speech of his tour will be made. Thence Lloyd George will go to Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Chicago, Springfield, Ills., Indianapolis, possibly St. Louis and Cleveland, and then to Pittsburg, Washington and Richmond, Va. From Richmond he will go on a motor trip through the Virginia battle fields, Philadelphia, Gettysburg and New York, whence he will make a side trip to Scranton, Pa., before his departure for home. The former Premier, discussing his tour, said to the United Press:

Only One Mission.

"I desire to make it clear that I have only one mission in America, namely, to express my appreciation as Prime Minister during the war, for Canada's magnificent services and sacrifices in behalf of the Empire. My only other purpose is a trip of self-education with regard to America."

PREVENT COLLISION ON THE RAILWAY

Automatic Control System May Provide a Successful Solution of Problem.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press)—Tests of an automatic train control system under practical operation conditions on the Pennsylvania railroad between Lewiston Junction and Sunbury, Pa., justify the hopes that this system will provide a successful solution of the problem of preventing train collisions automatically, regardless of human failures, the company announced last night.

The control system is a combination of electrical pneumatic and mechanical devices applied both to the track and to the locomotives. These devices automatically slow down or, when required, bring to a complete stop, any train which approaches too closely to another on the same track, whether going in the same or opposite directions, or when switches are improperly left open. Protective track sections of any length suited to local operating conditions may be established.

THIS CRUISER IS ONE OF THE FINEST

Attracted Attention at George Street Wharf This Morning.

One of the finest cruisers to pass through Peterborough this season was at the George Street wharf yesterday and this morning. It is a 48 foot boat, the "Adair," owned by A. E. Wiest of New York City. Mr. Wiest is on his way to Georgian Bay, and expressed himself as being very well pleased with the trip so far. The service along the waterway he said, is good and altogether it is a worth-while trip.

The visitors book in the Chamber of Commerce shows visitors this year from the following points: Rochester, Montreal, Toronto, Albany, Chicago, Ohio, Clinton, Buffalo, Girard, Canton, Louisville, Philadelphia Cleveland, Oak Park, Detroit, Akron, Warren, Youngstown, Oil City, Hackensack, Indianapolis, and Los Angeles.

Aldermen Have Learned Lesson From the Police and Coal Men

Lessons learned in adversity by the City Fathers were indicated by little significant and expressive gestures during several committee meetings last night.

One was the Council's oriented attitude toward the police department. Ald. Maher referred to the distracting and unnecessary noise at band concerts in Victoria Park, and enquired whether this condition might be corrected.

Some one suggested that the police be notified to maintain order more strictly in future, but this phrasing was changed to the less peremptory word "request," conveying more of the idea of appeal and less of the color of command.

The other incident emphasized a lesson learned in negotiations with the coal dealers of the city. Ald. Fife's fuel committee last night decided to go out and interview the dealers with respect to the prospects for the coming winter and the ability of the dealers to supply the domestic demand. Heretofore the dealers were invited to confer with the committee at the City Hall, but the experience of recent years had proved that nothing much had been gained by those sessions.

"They'd just sit like clams and say nothing," remarked Ald. Stocker, and after some further discussion Mayor Taylor and Aldermen Morrison and Fife were deputed to interview the dealers and report back.

"If we bring in any coal it is going to be a losing proposition to the Council and the taxpayers," said Ald. Morrison.

"The dealers can get it as easy as we can and sell it for less," was Ald. Phelan's opinion, and Ald. Fife was inclined to the view that the Council's co-operation with the dealers might be the best course, and that all the coal needed in Peterboro might be obtained in that way.

For the present, therefore, the committee will busy itself with securing the views of the dealers, who, it was assumed, were anxious to supply theire customers with the winter's fuel.

GRAVEL PIT IS A RICH STRIKE FOR PETERBORO

Now Producing 350 Cubic Yards a Week at a Depth of Twenty Feet.

WORKS BOARD MET

The council has "struck it rich," in the new gravel pit that was purchased in Ashburnham this year and has been in use about two months. It has proved to be a veritable bonanza Ald. Walter Stocker intimated to the Board of Works last night, when he said that the expected vein of seven feet is now down to twenty feet, and about 350 yards of gravel a week are being drawn from the pit to the streets which City Engineer Parsons' department are repairing.

The richness of this "mine' is evidently bearing out the predictions that the investment would prove profitable to the city.

Mayor Taylor suggested to the Board last night that they watch their appropriations carefully to make sure that a sufficient balance was being carried to provide for patching work on the streets where ruts developed.

Mr. Parsons replied that the expenditure of the Board of Works was now within the estimate for this time of the year.

In preparing for the paving of Hunter street east, opposite the Westclox factory, the city is about to cut down the hill top somewhat.

Ald. Stocker reported that the Westclox Company had suggested that some of the material might be dumped on their property if the Council was willing to dispose of it in that way.

Ald. Stocker remarked that the haul would be only a hundred yards, affording an economy for the city, and the material being hardpan was good only for filling. Some of it will be used to fill up the Carpenter ditch at the corner of Douro Street and Armour Road.

Ald. Fife moved, seconded by Ald. Phelan, that the surplus "top six inches' or more of the road material removed from Hunter Street be dumped on the Westclox property after the city's requirements of filler have been supplied.

Internal Troubles in Montreal City Council.

MONTREAL, Aug. 2.— (Canadian Press.)— Following an action for $10,000 damages which is to be instituted against Mayor Martin by Alderman Allan Bray, it was declared here yesterday by J. C. Rancourt that he would enter suit for $10,000 against Alderman Bray. The two actions are the outcome of a session of the city council Tuesday when Mayor Martin accused the alderman of having obtained payment of a claim for automobile damages through the instrumentality of Rancourt, reading an affidavit by the latter in support of the charge. Rancourt is aggrieved at certain statements of the alderman in reply to the mayor's charge.

Jules Brazil, Toronto's most favorite comedian, will be present at the "Herb' Lennox" Picnic to entertain the thousands who will be there.

PLAYED SPOOK CHEMONG PARK MUSICIAN FLED

ould-Be Fun Maker Dresses in White and Emerges From Burying Ground.

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Chemong Park is rather quiet just now. The carnival show in Peterboro is attracting some of the Park frequenters from town, and residents of the summer colony have also been patronizing the travelling midway. However the park has not been without its exciting intervals during the past two or three days. Dr. Harold Long's catch of a 23-poung lunge brings Chemong's fishing record up to par for this year. A group of effervescent youths broke loose the night before last in an attempt to add a little pep to the early morning hours. They spent a pleasant half hour in stoning the three placid-faced young men who adorn Grafton's large sign near the Pavilion, but the well dressed trio did not suffer much harm at their hands, evidently.

Donned a Sheet.

A would-be fun-maker donned a sheet on Monday night and emerged from the old burying ground in time to send a member of the Pavilion orchestra, homeward bound, scurrying down the road at a swift pace. Billy, the playful white goat, whose nerves were beginning to show the wear and tear of so much excitement, has been despatched to a quiet refuge at Burleigh, where he has the companionship of some decorous sheep.

After Bandits.

On Wednesday, the city police visited the Park in vain hopes of securing the Toronto bandits, who were reported to be summer visitors at this popular resort. Then the police motor cycle broke down, and two husky guardians of the law spent an hour and a half in aimless tinkering, to finally resign themselves to being towed in from a point about half way out on the Chemong Road.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Chemong Park Association took place at the Rendezvous Pavilion on Monday evening, with the vice-president, G. H. Roper, in the chair.

Elections for the coming year resulted as follows:

Hon. Pres., Alex. Elliott; Pres., W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., Vice-Pres. J. Patte; Sec.-Treas., A. E. Dixon.

A Park Committee was formed, composed of Messrs. Hungerford and W. J. Hopwood. Reg. M. Dixon was appointed chairman of the Regatta Committee, with power to name his committee, and to make all arrangements for the annual event which will take place on the 16th of August.

Two extra cups for the regatta have been promised this year, one by Jack Patte for the paddling event and one by Pete Gettas of the Rendezvous Pavilion, for the greatest number of points attained by any Chemong youth.

Masquerade Surprise.

Master Ted Wayte, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Wayte, are in F. L. Roy's cottage, at the Park this summer, was host at a masquerade surprise party yesterday afternoon, when twelve of his small

LAW PROHIBITS CONVICTS FROM STAYING HERE

Immigration Department at Ottawa Considering Case of Ohio Governor and Trusties.

DONAHEY TALKS

OTTAWA, August 2 (Canadain Press). — The case of Governor Donahey, of Ohio, and the two trusties in his party is still engaging the close attention of the Department of Immigration and Colonisation. Steps are being taken by the authorities to see that the immigration law bearing on the matter is carried out.

The immigration law, it is pointed out, not only prohibits the entry of those who have been convicted of crime, but provides that if any such has obtained entrance to Canada, they shall not be permitted to remain.

COCOCONK, August 2. — Vic Donahey, Governor of the State of Ohio, his children, Warden P. E. Thomas, of the State Penitentiary, the latter's son Don, and two convicts under sentence for murder in the second degree, are all busy getting settled in their cosy summer cottage, a few minutes' ride up the Gull River, preparatory to spending a restful two weeks' fishing and boating at this quiet summer resort.

If They Go, He Goes.

"I cannot conceive of any law which would require the deportation of these men," said Governor Donahey. "But if they go, I go."

And last night at this little milltown, a few yards away from where the Governor, in flannel shirt and khaki pants, is working shoulder to shoulder with the two convicts, groups of residents and summer visitors are gathered around discussing the advent of the Ohio official and his trusted but murder-convicted servant.

The Governor's action in bringing the two convicts with him to his summer camp is just an incident in a broad movement for the reclamation of criminals, in which the Governor is interested, and in which Warden Thomas, by reason of his administration of the Ohio State Penitentiary, has long stood out as a national figure.

A daughter of the Governor, Margaret, aged 25, is at present living in the State House, Columbus, with only a housekeeper, a houseman, and a gardener to keep her company, and the latter two are both "lifers," convicted of murder in the second degree.

Politicians More Dangerous?

Referring to the two convicts in his party, Earl Jennings and C. Zipriani, the Governor declared at one point: "I have seen some men over my desk at the Executive Mansion more dangerous to society than these two lifers."

Memories of Hugo's immortal story of Jean Val Jean and the Bishop are conjured up by the freedom with which these two convicted murderers travel about this village purchasing supplies for the camp without a suggestion of surveillance.

Guessing at Murderers.

One interesting occurrence shortly after the arrival of the party here arose out of Warden Thomas' challenge to Harry Jackson, proprietor of the local hotel, to select the two murderers out of the rest of the travellers.

Jackson first guessed the Warden's son Don, a graduate of the State University, and at present taking a course at the law school. The second guess was no better, as Jackson selected Homer Price, mechanical superintendent of the Penitentiary.

The presence of the party in Canada brings graphically before the public a phase of Ohio's treatment of her public charges.

Warden Thomas recited a long list of incidents to The Globe illustrative of the humanitarian attitude of the Penitentiary during his ten years' administration. For instance, every day for ten years he has allowed a lifer convicted of murder in the second degree to draw a razor over his throat. He has permitted 400 similar prisoners to go to their homes unescorted in case of sickness or death, and every prisoner so trusted has returned. As soon as he has set Jennings and Zipriani on the road to becoming useful citizens, he will sign their pardon, the Governor said.

During the first year of the war, nearly 1,000 French guns were blown up by imperfect fuses.

LOCAL POLICE MAKE RAID ON OPERATORS OF GAMES OF CHANCE

Nine Showmen With Billie Clark's Exposition Attractions Appear Before Magistrate Langley on the Charge of Conducting Common Gaming Houses.

EACH FINED $25

Nine of the showmen with the Billie Clark's Exposition Shows brought to the Exhibition Grounds by the Exhibition Board as a midsummer midway were fined $25 and costs each in Police Court this morning on charges of conducting common gaming houses. The fines amounted to $225, and costs were $115.90, a total of $340.90. In addition, all the apparatus connected directly with gambling was confiscated. Two men succeeded in making a get-away.

About 10.30 the policemen took up their positions near the booths where the alleged gambling was being conducted, and on a signal from a central point they stepped forward and stopped business. The men who conducted the booths, their money and equipment were transported to the Police Station. The entire movement was witnessed by hundreds of citizens, and sides were quickly taken in arguments in which the showmen seemed to have the largest number of supporters.

Charged This Morning.

In this morning's court, which was delayed over an hour by technicalities, the nine accused men were arraigned in the midst of their merchandise and apparatus which covered the table and overflowed on chairs and on the floor. Blankets, kewpies, aluminum ware, lamps, wheels of fortune and all the paraphernalia that goes with such business littered the court-room from door to door.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., appearing for the accused men, entered a general plea of "guilty," and made a request for leniency. The outfit, he said, had operated in Hull and Ottawa before coming to Peterborough, and in those two centres they had the misfortune to have meagre success. Having had to meet amusemen taxes, municipal license taxes and having a $600 move out of Peterborough to London, if given a substantial penalty they could not meet the fine. The police, the counsel said, are anxious only to break up the gambling ring, and does not desire that a heavy penalty be inflicted on the men. The confiscation of the gambling apparatus would be a severe loss to the men. The merchandise is not subject to confiscation.

Magistrate Langley—"It seems the London show will be short of attractions."

Continuing, the Magistrate said the law is very strict regarding the enforcement of the anti-gambling regulations.

Mr. Gordon—"Because one party of men gets into Parliament and enforces a law strongly it does not necessarily follow that the next party will do likewise."

Individual Shows.

Mr. Gordon explained that this midway is not a unit. The showmen come together individually and make what money they can. They pay a certain amount for the privilege of running in the combination of shows. He pointed out that the individual loss will be consider-

HEART FAILED MAN DROWNED

Franklin Fronz, 21, of Buffalo, New York, was drowned in Cathacoma Lake yesterday afternoon while bathing.

Fronz was holidaying with his fiancee's family, and yesterday afternoon he waded into the lake to swim. He disappeared below the surface, and Miss Hunter, his fiancee, became alarmed when he failed to appear. It was found that he had apparently been overcome by heart failure.

The coroner, Dr. Smith, of Lakefield, after viewing the body, decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

The remains were forwarded to Buffalo this afternoon.

WILL RE-ORGANIZE THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT

TORONTO, Aug. 2.— (Canadian Press.)—In addition to the appointment of a financial controller, there will be re-organization of the treasury department, Premier Ferguson intimated to-day. The department had so grown and there were so many different features and branches that a system of co-ordination was advisable.

The new controller would not just be a bond expert, but his activities would embrace every branch of the department, and he would act in an advisory capacity to the treasurer.

RE-ARREST PRISONERS AFTER THEIR RELEASE

LONDON, Aug. 2. — (Canadian Press.)—Dublin despatches to some of the morning newspapers assert that the Irish Free State will release all prisoners in accordance with yesterday's ruling of the Court of Appeals and will then re-arrest them under the new Public Safety Act, which the Dail Eireann passed last evening. This measure provides that the government may continue to hold prisoners charged with active opposition to the Free State.

Quadruplet Story A Little Previous

WINDSOR, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—It was news to everybody in Sandwich to-day, when an announcement was made in a Detroit morning paper that Mrs. Napoleon Fortin, of that town, had given birth to quadruplets, Wednesday. It was even news to Mr. and Mrs. Fortin.

The report in the Detroit paper gave the weights of the four children and the name given one of them, "the only one yet named."

Mr. Fortin said this morning, however, that the story is just a little previous. No babies have arrived at his home yet.

GREYBEARDS CRYOUT AGAINST THE NEWSPAPERS OF TODAY

Frank A. Vanderlip, a newspaper man before he entered the fold of the multi-millionaires, and Willis J. Abbott, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, have agreed without consultation that newspapers of the United States have become so much alike that individuality is an attribute of the past, and that we ought to be on the verge of a great change.

Mr. Vanderlip stresses opportunity for publication of small daily papers vigorously edited but dignified and clean, and Mr. Abbott deplores sensationalism and the loss of that editorial authority with which newspapers spoke twenty-five years ago.

These old-timers, whenever they get a chance to talk, harp upon a chord in the strain of their predecessors who thought journalism had gone to the dogs because it had grown too big and too fast for them.

Twenty-five years ago we were just breaking into the game as a reporter on the Detroit Evening News and on the staff of that paper, great then and great today, there were a number of grizzled veterans who boasted of achievements such as holding the telegraph wire and giving their papers exclusive reports of a dog fight, the trick that made them pre-eminent being to file with the lone operator a few chapters of the Bible so as to hold the key.

It was the safety bicycle that put these old boys on the shelf. They couldn't or wouldn't learn to ride, and when the young reporter mounted his wheel, speeded to a fire or the scene of a murder, got the facts, returned to the office, wrote his story on a typewriter and had it in the hands of the city editor in a fraction of the time required before these innovations were introduced, these has-beens howled about the rapid decline of journalism. They gazed upon the bicycle with contempt and the typewriter with scorn, insisting that these implements were sure to breed a race of mechanical reporters that would develop into mechanical editors.

And one by one they passed to their reward beyond, bewailing a degeneracy which they visualized as having settled upon and engulfed the profession of journalism.

In every age since the dawn of journalism it has been the same. William Cullen Bryant, the poet-editor of the New York Evening Post, was shocked when the Herald, the Sun, the World and the Tribune began to timidly print small items of news, and it was not until a number of years had fled that and made his first trip to Albany there was not a line of news in any newspaper about it, but a reader did send in a letter to the Post giving his impressions as he saw the queer monster belching smoke and cutting its way through the waters of the Hudson. The fact that this particular trip was not made because there was something the matter with the machinery and the boat had to turn back, never found its way into print.

In those mellow days success or failure depended upon what the editor wrote. Horace Greeley couldn't write a story, nor could Raymond of the Times or Marble of the World, but James Gordon Bennett, of the Herald, had been a Washington correspondent and he came nearest to it, or as near as anybody could who relied upon rumor and gossip and never thought it worth while to go after the details.

Now we have newspapers that combine to cover the news of the world, their own country, their own State, and their own city. Nothing of a routine nature is overlooked. Nothing that happens suddenly escapes them. Their readers each day are confident that they know everything that is worth knowing. In this respect all newspapers are very much the same in their intelligent comprehensiveness.

They differ in their editorial policies. They differ in their informative departments. They differ in their pictorial, in their comics and in their special contributions, and they maintain individual independence in their crusades. Who will dispute the statement that the New York Morning World displayed its daring and its wide influence when it went after the State of Florida and punished the death of Tabert, the young tramp who was flogged to death in a turpentine camp? Who will say that the World has lost its punch when it can show upon the wall of its editorial room the pelt of the peonage wolf that devoured so many victims in the swamps of a commonwealth that had civilization before it was credited to New England?

Typography makes newspapers appear the same, but the man who reads them from day to day, whether it be Mr. Vanderlip or Mr. Abbott, can not continue to charge that they are identical.

We get tired combatting this bugaboo which lately seems to have been fed up by a host of antiquated spellbinders who have lost their newspaper perspectives.

In the metropolitan centers where there are many papers a man picks out some one paper that fits his taste and sticks to it. He doesn't know whether it resembles the other papers or not. Usually he will have a favorite for the morning and another for the evening, each selected because there is something in it written by somebody with whom he agrees, and this is why the different publications have their respective followings.

If newspapers didn't go ahead in circulation and business under this plan it is quite certain there would be a change, but it is our opinion that the newspapers of the present are better in every respect than they have ever been before.—Newspaperdom.

Some call it a "prolonged jovial laugh," others a "wick wick wick wick"; another hears in it a resemblance to the cackling hen; but even though it is strongly usual and is uniquely from the viewpoint and execution it signifies the presence of a most interesting character with sylvan preferences. Every character with sylvan preferences. Everybody knows the flicker and loves him. As proof of his friends witness 36 aliases all descriptive of some act habit coloring or marking.

He is larger than the robin 12 or 13 inches long; his general color scheme is golden brown hence the name golden woodpecker. Both male and female have a red crescent across the back of the head. Like all woodpeckers they build their nests in a hollow excavated in a dead tree or limb three feet or 40 inches above the ground. If one is on the lookout the round three-inch hole in the dead wood of a tree will betray the present or former home of one of these birds.

Flickers generally are unafraid so that one may approach quite near and study them at the nest. Because of a certain trustfulness the suitable site is chosen even though close to the ground and danger. The matter of danger evidently has not entered their heads. I found one such nest not over three feet from the ground the entrance to which was made possible by the breaking of a limb. Here where decay had set in and excavated a capacious retreat I found six noisy youngsters and photographed them a number of times much to their displeasure.

MAY COST THE U.S. MANY MILLIONS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2. United Press. — Out of the world war has arisen the biggest patent litigation in the history of the country, which will cost the United States government millions of dollars if patents on mobile heavy artillery are held valid by the federal courts.

Several suits have already been filed, one in this district against the Baldwin Locomotive Works and others are to be started in various parts of the country.

While corporations are named as defendants, the Government, it is stated, will ultimately have to pay any damages that are awarded because it guaranteed manufacturers of war armament against damages and patent claims.

The plaintiff in the suits is Lawrence W. Luellen, who claims that he and Cecil F. Dawson invented improvements on gun mounts and other mobile heavy artillery which were used extensively and successfully in the war. Dawson assigned his rights in the inventions to Luellen.

Asks $18,000,000

In the suit against the Baldwin Locomotive Works alone, $18,000,000 in royalties are involved and if Luellen's patents are sustained, the government would have to pay this sum. The importance of the suits to the government and the magnitude of Luellen's claims were disclosed when counsel for the Baldwin company asked the Federal court here for a ninety day extension in which to file an answer to Luellen's suit. "This is no ordinary suit," the attorney said, "but is one of the biggest and most important litigations in the history of the country." He explained that the company needed the additional time to obtain the results of a world wide investigation being made by the department of justice to ascertain whether the invention of Luellen is an original one or whether he and Dawson gleaned their idea from patents, which were never put in practical use. For months it was learned, department of justice agents have been digging into the archives of patent offices of all the European countries for information relating to mobile heavy artillery and have not yet completed their investigation.

SHORTAGE OF COTTON CROP MAY BE FELT

U. S. Government Report Shows Serious Decline in Prospective Crop.

PRICES JUMP.

NEW YORK, August 2.—(Canadian Press)—The whole cotton trade was thrown into excitement yesterday by the report of the Agricultural Bureau announcing a condition of only 62.7 for the cotton crop, representing a decline of 2.7 points from the previous report.

It was so far under even the lowest of private estimates that the market here immediately jumped skyward, advancing to 22.50 for October and 22.42 for December or about 132 to 140 points above the previous close.

The covering of short accounts was on a big scale, for trade had fully expected a report around 70. While many traders were inclined to be skeptical over the low condition shown in the Bureau statement, the fact that the crop has undoubtedly deteriorated in the past week, as shown by the weekly weather and crop report, attracted a good deal of buying for outside account and the market closed 115 to 131 points above the previous night.

DELAY SALES OF ONTARIO TIMBER

No Likelihood of Further Deals Till General Survey Complete.

TORONTO, August 2. Canadian Press — Until the Ferguson administration completes the general survey of the provincial timber resources, further timber sales in Ontario will be few and far between, acording to the Premier.

Discussing yesterday the likelihood of immediate timber sales, Hon. Mr. Ferguson stated that the general survey which is now complete as regards Mississagua and some of the larger reserves, would have to be brought more clearly up to date before further distribution of timber resources would be countenanced. Only where the needs of a company were very apparent, he said, would the government, for the present at least, release any timber tracts.

As regards the white pine blight, which at one time threatened to wipe out the provinces white pine resources, the premier said that his information was that the disease had been arrested in its course across the timber country.

RUSSIAN NOTES

MOSCOW, (By mail to the United Press)—Moscow, which is often visioned in foreign countries as a small, backward, semi-Asiatic town, is making headway to regain her former position as eighth city in the world. During the world war itself, Moscow jumped to sixth place, but the revolution threw her back to eleventh place. However, her present population of 1,547,000 is increasing rapidly.

* * *

The death-rate in Moscow before the war was 225 per 10,000,000. In 1922, with epidemics raging, it was 244 per 10,000. The rate for the first four months in 1923 indicated that the 1923 rate will be less than the pre-war rate.

On the other hand, the suicide rate is increasing and is expected to be greater in 1923 than in pre-war days or, in fact, than last year, when it was 17 per 10,000.

* * *

Criminality has increased in Moscow since pre-war times. In 1914 there were 4,200 cases and last year 15,000 cases. A large proportion of the cases are of theft and robbery. Therefore the increase is laid to the "requisitioning" system during the war, the revolution, with its disturbances of normal living, and the general poverty since.

The fight against moonshiners goes merrily on. The figures given by the police show that 57 per cent of those involved in bootleg operations in Moscow itself are women. Outside of the city the proportion of men is greater.

BUYS SARAH'S HOUSE.

PARIS, Aug. 2. — (Associated Press)—The late Sarah Bernhardt often tried to sell her country house on Belle-Isle, off the coast of Brittany, but she never found a purchaser. The property includes a farm, an old fort and a rock strewn piece of shore front.

Within a few weeks of her death, however, a buyer was found at 350,000 francs, somewher about 20,000. He intends to turn the house into a summer hotel, and will have a jazz-band and dancing on the first floor before the present season is over.

The mayor of Palais, the port of the little island, had hoped that the municipality would acquire the property and convert it into a Bernhardt museum, but the sale was put through before he could get his plan before the public.

HARVEST WILL DEPEND ON NEXT TWO WEEKS

Damage Has Been Reported in Several Isolated Localities But Nothing General—Cool Weather Will Halt Rust.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—The quality and quantity of the western crop depends to a large extent upon the next two weeks, according to the fourth fortnightly report of the Union Bank of Canada, which is based upon 171 returns. This points out that the promise is still heavy. Actual damage from rust, saw-fly and heat have been more or less localized though enough points have been affected, it would appear, to indicate a lessened total yield. This week's lower temperature over the west will tend to check further rust development. Harvest is expected to become general from August 15 and labor shortage is feared.

Alberta, last week, experienced extreme heat and many hail storms which however, did no extensive damage. All grains are well advanced and, barring further damage will undoubtedly give a heavy yield. Lethbridge district has probably one of the finest crops on record.

In Saskatchewan less apprehension appears to exist regarding rust than in Manitoba. Chiefly red rust has appeared. Where black rust has been noted the cooler weather of the last few days is likely to arrest further development. In southern and central Saskatchewan the wheat is filling out rapidly. Cutting is expected to be in progress from August 20. On the whole the crop continues particularly healthy. In northern districts development has been rapid. There has been ample moisture in so far extreme weather.

Manitoba needs moderately cool weather to check rust which was developing last week at many points, particularly in south-eastern sections. Rust, saw-fly and heat are apparently occasioning greater local alarm than in the other provinces. Unquestionably the result will be a lessened yield from earlier anticipations. This situation, fortunately, is not general. Little rust has been encountered in north-western sections of Mantioba. Except where interfered with by this week's rains, rye cutting is proceeding. The yield is likely to be light. Coarse grains are showing up well otherwise.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Automobile Wrecked by a Train at Centre Street Crossing-Another Child Saved From Drowning

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 2. — Bert Nicholson, John Simmons and Harold Nicholas had a narrow escape from instant death about 6.30 Wednesday evening when the auto in which they were riding was completely wrecked by a Grand Trunk freight train at the Centre street crossing. Of the three, Mr. Simmons sustained the most serious injuries, sustaining a bad cut on the head and being otherwise badly bruised. Dr. E. F. Richardson, who attended the injured man, says that he will be laid up for ten days or two weeks, but the anticipates no serious results unless complications set in. His companions escaped with a few slight bruises, which, however, are painful, and all three were badly shaken up.

The three men are employed on the excavation for the new power house and were returning from their work when they met with the accident. Mr. Nicholson was driving the car and Mr. Simmons sat alone in the back seat.

Chief of Police Duncalfe, who resides on Centre street, near the crossing, was at his home at the time and witnessed the accident. He says that the Nicholson auto was the first of a long string of cars and that when he first saw it it was not going faster than 15 miles an hour. As it neared the crossing it slowed down to about 10 miles. The Chief heard the whistle of the freight which had left the station and remarked that an accident was likely if the autoists did not notice the approaching engine. There is an up-grade at the crossing so that the train was moving slowly. It was this that probably averted a tragedy.

Engine Struck Car.

There is no sign at the Centre street crossing and as it is difficult to see a train approaching from the depot for any distance the place is regarded as one of the most dangerous in town. As the auto drew near to the track Simmons noticed the train and shouted a warning to the driver. In his attempt to avoid a collision, Nicholson applied the brake and turned the auto sharply to one side. He was too close to the track to escape and the engine struck the auto, carrying it over the cattle guard for about 30 feet down the track, where it was thrown against the bank. Only one wheel was left on the auto and the tire was stripped from that, the body being crushed out of all shape.

Simmons was under the wreckage, but he was soon released. Dr. Richardson was called and took the injured man to his office in his own car. Freeman Bailey took the other two victims of the accident to Dr. Richardson's office, where all three received prompt attention.

All three men are married and reside here. Nicholson came from Havelock and Simmons from Marmora. The latter, with his wife, is boarding with Walter Rutherford, whose home is only a short distance from the scene of the accident. Nicholas resides on Margaret street. All are expert workmen and are employed by the Central Construction Company, the Toronto firm who have the contract for the tail race and the excavation for the new power house.

Car Crashes Into Buggy.

What might have been a rather serious accident occurred on Tuesday night near Menie, Seymour East, when Mr. Thomas Chaplin, of town, accompanied by Miss Gladys Meiklejohn, also of town, were driving to the home of the latter's sister Mrs. Charles Milne. Just as they had turned off the road to enter the gate, Mr. Sam Hobbs came behind driving a car at a fast rate, and struck the buggy, throwing out the occupants and badly demolishing the buggy. The car also turned turtle in the ditch. Fortunately none of the occupants were seriously injured.

High School Hero.

Another child has been saved from death by drowning, the hero in this case being Arthur, the 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Wallace of the Grand Road. Harry, aged six, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lloyd, who reside in the same neighborhood, were walking along the cement wall of the canal, near his home, when he stumbled and fell into the water.

Arthur Wallace witnessed the accident and he at once rushed to the rescue. Waiting only to remove his cap, he jumped in, wearing all his clothes, and his shoes, and dived after the drowning boy who was being carried by the current down the stream. Taking him under his left arm he rose to the surface and managde to swim to the wall. Both boys were assisted to the land by a number of residents who had gathered.

Arthur Wallace is one of the brightest students in the High School. This is the second time he has saved a child from drowning, his first rescue having been made about two years ago.

Residents who admire the young fellow's bravery believe he is entitled to and should receive life saving medal, but an impression prevails here that the Royal Humane Society that formerly was so prompt in making such awards has gone out of business.

During the spring freshet Mrs. David McCook made a gallant rescue of a drowning child when she jumped into the creek, swollen by the thaw and rains to the proportions of a river. This case was duly reported to the Humane Society but no reply was ever received.

Long Auto Trip.

Frank Ebroil, a musical composer in Seattle, Wash., accompanied by his wife and young daughter, have just completed an auto trip from his home city to Campbellford, a distance of over 4,500 miles, the car used being a Ford. The party is stopping at the home of Mr and Mrs. Charles Duncalfe, Mrs. Ebroil being a cousin of the later. The trip occupied four weeks and the travellers camped out along the way. All the trouble they had was two sight punctures besides finding it necessary to purchase a new fan belt.

Mrs. Ebroil, before her marriage was Miss Emma Lawdon daughter the late Thomas and Mrs. Lawdon of Campbellford.

She will visit her mother and other relatives while here. The tourists will spend a week in this vicinity, after which they will motor to Montreal and from that city begin their homeward journey.

Visitors from California.

Another party of long distance auto tourists have arrived here, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Ming and daughter Helen of Highland, Cal., and Mrs. and Mrs. Tanger, accompanied by their son, Jimmy, who reside at Hollywood, in the same state, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. I. Gibson, of Inkerman street. They, too, campde out on their journey in which they covered thousands of miles. They were ten days on the way from California to Chicago alone. Before coming to Campbellford, they visited Dr. G. F. Gibson, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. I Gibson, and also stopped at Brighton.

Mr Ming is an orange grower in California and this season the output of his orchard brought him in $15,000.

Caught Fine Bass.

Master Clarence Wallace of Toronto has been visiting his grandmother, Mrs. C. A. Wallace of Campbellford. Clarence recently caught a fine black bass in Crowe Bay.

TWO KINDS OF STATIONS.

Broadcasting stations are resolving themselves down to two kinds—one termed editorial and the other advertising. The editorial stations issue purely entertaining and informative matter without regard for publicity, as opposed to the material sent out by the advertising stations. In many cases, one broadcasting station divides its transmitted material into these two classes.

TWO JAPANESE SHORTLY TO BE MADE BISHOPS

Consecration Services Will Be Held in December—First Orientals to Lead a Christian Church.

Bishops to Be Present.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press). — The consecration of two Japanese as bishops of the Episcopal Church at Tokio and Osaka next December will mark the establishment for the first time of a Christian Church, presided over by natives, in the Orient, it was announced yesterday at the Episcopal Church Mission House.

Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, of Tennessee, president of the National Council of the Episcopal Church, will sail from Seattle for Tokio on November 22 to take part in the ceremonies, which are to be held December 9 and 11. Rev. J. S. Motoda and Rev. Yusutaro Naide will be the consecrated bishops of Tokio and Osaka, respectively.

An international aspect will be lent to the event by the presence of Episcopal and Anglican bishops from various parts of the world. Bishop Gailor will attend as the representative of the presiding bishop of the American Church, a representative of the Archbishop of Canterbury is expected from the Church of England, and Right Rev. Mark A. Trollop, Anglican Bishop of Korea, and one of the bishops of the Church in China also will be in attendance.

Right Rev. John McKim, D.D., Episcopal Bishop of Tokio, will act as consecrator and will be assisted by Bishop Gailor and the other attending prelates. Simultaneously with the consecration of the two native bishops, Bishop McKim, as well as Bishop Heaslett, of the Church of England, will withdraw from those portions of the missionary districts of Tokio and Osaka which have been made into independent dioceses, and the new Japanese bishops will assume jurisdiction.

Hand Injured in Carmel Saw Mill.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 2.—While at work in Janes' saw mill, about a mile from Carmel Station, Mr. Gray, of Millbrook, suffered a serious injury to his hand. The young man was running an edger saw, and while drawing the cable to turn the lumber his hand was caught in the saw and badly cut. He was immediately rushed to the doctor, where it was found necessary to amputate the middle finger and half of the thumb. The first finger was also badly mutilated and it may be necessary to remove it also. This is the sixth accident in this mill this season and it has only been in operation a few weeks.

OTTAWA, Aug. 2. — (Canadian Press).—Application of the City of Montreal to open up Green Street by a level crossing over the main line of the Canadian National Railways is denied by a judgment of the Dominion Railway Commission, issued yesterday.

A GREAT PUZZLE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(Associated Press)—One of the greatest puzzles in the study of prehistoric American Indian is the nature of the people who made a wonderful type of pottery found in the Mimbres Valley in New Mexico.

Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, Chief of the Bureau of American Ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution, recently returned from an investigation in the valley, but reported he had learned absolutely nothing of the lost race whose ceramics, first found by him in 1913, are pronounced to be among the best ever unearthed in North America.

The figures of men and animals, birds, fish, reptiles and insects, as well as geometric designs of unusual excellence, decorate the pots, bowls and other household articles found by Dr. Fewkes. The representations of life are full of action, and it is difficult for scientists to understand how the ancient inhabitants of the valley were able to achieve the accuracy and perfection of the involved designs without the aid of mechanical devices.

The pottery has been found for the most part under the floors of the ruins of ancient buildings, and commercial exploitation of the material has become so widespread that the valley ruins are being rapidly demolished and the instructive archeological objects lost to science. One reason for Dr. Fewkes' visit was to make a collection for the National Museum before the supply was exhausted.

PETERBORO MAN KILLED AT DETROIT

DETROIT, August 2.—(Canadian Press).—Percy Parrington of Peterboro Ontario, was seriously injured in an accident this morning and died a few minutes after being admitted to the hospital. The body will be shipped to Peterboro for burial.

A RECORD STEER.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.)— Weighing 3,170 pounds, a steer, said to be the largest ever received in Winnipeg, arrived at the Union Stock Yards yesterday from Wainwright, Alberta. It was sold for $250, the highest selling price of any steer in the local yards since the war.

A NEW SYSTEM TRAIN CONTROL IS SUCCESSFUL

New Automatic Devices Are Expected to Prevent Collisions, Regardless of Human Failures.

SLOW OR STOP.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Tests of an automatic train control system, under practical operating conditions, on the Pennsylvania Railroad between Lewistown Junction and Sunbury, Pa., justly hopes that the system may provide a successful solution of the problem, of preventing train collisions automatically regardless of human failures, the company announced last night.

Nearly a year was occupied in designing and trying out the necessary apparatus before the actual tests began. The system has been in operation throughout the Lewiston branch since July 11, and the movements of all trains, both freight and passengers have been subject to its control.

The control system is a combination of electrical, pneumatic and mechanical devices applied both to the track and to the locomotives. These devices automatically slow down, or when required, bring to a complete stop, any train which approaches too closely to another on the same track, whether going in the same or opposite directions, or when switches are improperly left open. Protective track sections of any length, suited to local operating conditions may be established.

LARGEST BANKING ROOM.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 2.—(Associated Press) — The Union Trust building, Cleveland's largest, is nearing completion at the corner of Euclid Avenue and East 9th Street, in the heart of the downtown district. The structure technically is 23 stories high and is believed to have the largest banking room in the world.

Marble columns rise to the full five story height of the man banking room, which is "L" shaped, giving the savings department and commercial departments each a wing. Around the room are two balconies, lined with office rooms. The savings rooms is long enough for a 100-yard dash.

Four and one-half floors of the building will be occupied by the bank. Beside the offices there will be a cafeteria and kitchen, a complete hospital with private rooms, and two wards, rest rooms for employes and several private dining and luncheon rooms for conference-dinners.

REPARATIONS REMAIN THE GREAT PROBLEM OF BRITISH LEADERS

Brief Statement Expected From Premier Baldwin To-Day on Attitude of France and Belgium.

UTMOST SECRECY.

LONDON, August 2— (Canadian Press).—Whether the closing sitting Parliament to-day will reveal the next step of the British Government in the difficult European problem is still unknown. The Cabinet's prolonged discussion of the situation yesterday has only brought so far the announcement that Premier Baldwin and Lord Curzon will make simultaneous statements in the Houes of Commons and the Lords respectively today, but not the slightest indication of the nature of the statements.

QUADRUPLETS BORN SANDWICH PARENTS

Problem to Find Names—Whole Town Invited to Attend Christening.

WINDSOR, August 2. Canadian Press. — When four normal, healthy children were born to Mrs. Napoleon Fortin, Huron Line, Sandwich, early yesterday morning, the parents found themselves confronted with a problem in nomenclature upon which they had not counted, also several other problems.

Little Napoleon, his father's namesake, is the only one of the quartet so far named. His sister, the first of the quadruplets to announce her presence with a cry, and two younger brothers, born within a few minutes of one another, are still waiting to be named. But they will not have to wait. The entire town will be invited to attend the christening ceremony within the week at Assumption Parish Church.

All of the four children give every evidence of sturdy vigor. The girl, the smallest of the quartet, tips the scale at better than four pounds, and the largest is more than five pounds.

STEEL STRIKE IN SYDNEY IS OVER

Strikers Complain That Every Man's Hand is Against Them.

SYDNEY, N.S., Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.) — The Sydney steel strike is over. At a mass meeting of workers at union headquarters last night about 65 p.c. of those present voted to end the strike and return to work.

The Union's executive will notify the British Empire Steel Corporation accordingly. In their resolution, which formally ends the strike, the steel workers complain that every man's hand is against them, and they censor people, courts, police, newspapers and Federal and Provincial governments.

The Steel Company stated yesterday that 7,505 men were working at the plant out of approximately 3,500 who were there when the strike began. The strike began on the morning of June 27 for a 20 p.c. wage increase.

Suds all through
Cleansing soap in every drop of water

Put your hand in a tub of Rinso suds. You can feel that the water is actually soapy all through.

A few minutes at night—just the little time you need to put the clothes to soak in these rich suds, and Rinso suds work down into every fold and fibre, loosening the dirt without weakening a single thread.

Just a light rubbing with Rinso on cuff edges, neck bands and the like, gets them clean—the dirt is loosened.

Be sure to use enough Rinso to get the big lasting suds, that give the water a soapy feel all through.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

Complaints are being voiced, and apparently there is considerable ground for them, that the regulations in regard to the passing of standing cars by automobiles are being frequently broken in Peterborough.

All motorists must by this time know that it is an offence to drive by a street car which has stopped for the purpose of letting off or taking on passengers. Yet many drivers are taking a chance in slipping by, and more than one pedestrian has had a narrow escape from being hit.

This is a common-sense rule, and it should be strictly enforced if accidents are to be avoided.

No form of careless driving is more dangerous than to have an automobile pass a street car as passengers are alighting, for the latter have little chance of getting out of the way.

Because of that fact there should be a special effort made to secure the appearance before the Magistrate of some of the most flagrant offenders, and on conviction the extreme penalty prescribed by the act should be inflicted.

There are perils enough on the street under ordinary conditions without allowing motorists to add to the danger by carelessness concerning the safety of people who have been or are about to be passengers on a street car.

A few fines might do much to convince drivers who have been to blame in this respect that it is cheaper, as well as safer, to wait until the street car has moved on than it is to take a chance and ignore the regulations.

NO CONTESTS WANTED.

From present indications the Ontario Cabinet will be returned to office by acclamation, as there are at present no signs of opposition to any of the Ministers.

The people of the ridings affected are showing good sense in avoiding a contest and saving a lot of unnecessary expense.

The new Government is in power with a large majority, and has a mandate from the Province to carry on the business of the Province.

There is no reason, therefore, why the Ministers chosen to preside over the various departments should not be allowed to get down to business unhampered by by-elections.

In fact, the wisdom of the practice making it necessary for Cabinet Ministers to be re-elected after their promotion to Ministerial rank is open to doubt, and the majority of people would be glad to learn of a change in the system that would make it possible for Ministers to commence their duties at once without the annoyance of having to possibly fight another election campaign.

So far as the Examiner can interpret public feeling throughout Ontario, the universal desire seems to be that in none of the constituencies in which Ministers are appealing to the electorate shall there be a contest.

There is a new administration in the saddle at Queen's Park; let it go to work at the job of governing the Province is undoubtedly the feeling of the electors generally.

By-elections in harvest time are, in any case, an unacceptable visitation from which the country may well be spared.

NO PLACE FOR HIM.

A "spotter" who assisted the customs and excise officers in Toronto to secure a conviction against a Humber Bay tinsmith for having a still in his possession was declared by Magistrate Bunton to be a "contemptible scoundrel."

His method was to order a machine manufactured by the tinsmith from a diagram furnished by the "spotter," the unlucky victim not being informed that he was really making a still.

When the apparatus was complete, the man who laid the trap arrived with the authorities.

It was brought out in cross-examination that the procedure in this case was his customary practice, and that he usually received $150 for his assistance.

Further, it was stated, that he had been employed intermittently by the Ontario License Board for over twenty years.

It is to be hoped that the attention of Hon. Mr. Nickle has been called to the case, and that the Attorney-General will take steps to see that there is no place for this man in the employ of the Ontario Government.

Similarly, too, the Department of Customs at Ottawa should lose no time in cutting him adrift.

To lure and trap an innocent citizen into a technical but entirely unintentional violation of the Customs and Excise Act is a despicable piece of business, and the services of gentry of this calibre can be dispensed with by both Provincial and Federal Governments.

Any man of whom a Magistrate will say, "A more snake-like, more bestial piece of evidence has never been offered in the Police Courts of Canada," should be on the black list so far as employment by the State is concerned.

WRANGLING OVER WRANGEL.

Why all this pother over Wrangel? asks the Montreal Star. It seems that a certain Captain Putta, of an American trading schooner, has stated that the Government of Siberia is outfitting a ship at Vladivostok to proceed to Wrangel Island and capture the British expedition headed by Allan Crawford, of Toronto, who took possession of the island in the name of Great Britain three years ago. At the same time Mr. Harold Noice, who is in charge of a Canadian relief expedition, hopes to set sail for Wrangel Island in the stout ship Donaldson at once, to beat the Russians and snatch Crawford from their clutches. Incidentally, nobody knows whether Crawford and his party are still on Wrangel Island or have left, though the supposition is that they hold the land against all comers up to the present.

But why should Canada mix up in the muddle? True, Mr. Allan Crawford raised the British flag on Wrangel. So, for that matter, did the illustrious Vilhjalmur Stefansson, on Canada's behalf. Stefansson and the British authorities are still wrangling as to whether it is or ought to be Canadian or British territory—the difference being explicable only by Stefansson and the authorities aforesaid. Mr. Crawford is a Canadian. Stefansson is also a Canadian. But that fact by no means makes all Canada responsible for their actions or pledged to back them up in their highly laudable if somewhat hazy efforts to increase the area of territory under the British flag. So far as Canada goes, we have no use for Wrangel. That island means no more to Canada than the mud at the bottom of Mount Etna or the snow on the top of Mount Popocatapetl. Our interest is sentimental only. If the British Foreign Office see a need for it, they can be trusted to look after the matter. But we are a business nation, and we never allow—or we ought never to allow—our sentimental interests to bias our business judgment. Let Siberia, Britain, the United States, and the entire Behring Sea seal herd wrangle over Wrangle if they will. But let us keep quiet and attend to our own knitting—most particularly the efficacious business administration of the C. N. R.

THE FUTURE OF HIGHWAYS.

It is a little difficult to see far ahead in the matter of highway construction. Some of the factors are completely hidden or obscured. What we have in immediate evidence is a vast movement looking to better roads, a large volume of work completed, and a still larger volume of construction being planned. This, however, does not give us a strong clue to the future. What we have to think about is the situation two or three decades hence; for highway building should have a sound economic foundation, or we shall not make real progress in the matter.

Very impressive and suggestive is the work that has been done. Available information in relation to the Dominion may be accurate as far as it goes; but it is fragmentary and insufficient. The work is very largely in the hands of the Provinces, and the facts made public relate almost wholly to mileage and Provincial outlay. The situation in the United States is somewhat similar. The Federal Government appropriates a certain amount of money toward highway construction; but the various States are responsible for a still higher percentage of the outlay. For example, the Government at Washington subsidized 5,942 miles of new highway in 1921 at a total cost of $41,238,012; yet contributions by the States amounted to $94,991,953. In 1922, operations under Federal aid applied to 11,374 miles, for which Washington provided $90,643,207 and the States $216,033,582. In those figures we get a glimpse of the proportions of the work in hand.

On May 1 of the current year there was under construction in the United States a total of 14,014 miles, toward which the Federal subvention is placed at $261,483,313. The contributions of the States have not been ascertained. These bald figures, however, tell us little that is really enlightening and helpful. What would be of value would be an accurate statement as to the share of the municipalities, and the relationship of road cost to taxation. That is what concerns the common people of the United States, and is the very essence of the problem so far as popular interest attaches to the matter in Canada. Yet at that point we are in contact with the aspect which carries us into the future. It is all very well to know in dollars and cents what new highways cost in 1921 and 1922; but what will be the cost of these very roads forty years hence? If that question could be answered with any degree of accuracy at this stage we should be able to gauge the drift of this exceedingly important development in our modern community life.

In the final reckoning, highway building is a matter of capital cost, and capital cost is at all times a matter of taxes. We may know the immediate capital cost in taxes; but we are very much in the dark as to what the taxes situation on that account will be in 1948. The answer will turn in large measure on the soundness of the work which has been done and is being done. We have got far enough along in our programme of construction to know that there are good roads and bad roads, and that the figures of cost have very little relation to one or the other. Our experience in street paving tells us that. At the present time Bank street south of the subway is being repaved; and we all know that had the first job been satisfactorily done there would have still been a good pavement on this busy city artery. The human factor holds a vital place in the equation as a whole.

Thus far nothing in the nature of a construction standard has been absolutely developed. Enough is known, however, to make it clear that the finest surface soon breaks down unless supported by a proper foundation, and one of the important elements in a good substructure is now identified as drainage. Unless the water beneath the roadbed is taken care of, our severe winter climate plays havoc with what might otherwise be a durable and excellent highway. A vast amount of engineering skill is being concentrated on the question of a standard road, and there are grounds for the hope that by next year at longest the experience of the past ten years will have pretty clearly established what kinds of foundations and surface dressings are likely to yield the most economical results. In other words, the engineers have been groping a good deal, perhaps unavoidably, and have now come to the point where they should be able to prescribe certain definite specifications. Yet notwithstanding all that has been learned, and the high cost of experimentation, no one could today visualize the highway situation 25 years hence. Invention might very easily give us something totally different from what we now have.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Decorate for the Grand Encampment next week and show our I.O.O.F. visitors that Peterborough is on the map.

The coming around of the annual regattas is a sign that the summer resort season will soon be waning again.

It cost a Toronto Controller $20 to strike an Alderman. Evidently his control of his temper was not of the best.

The worst feature about it is that the officials who keep shouting, "Buy your winter coal now," never tell us how we can do it.

That beating the Japanese gave us in lawn tennis is serious enough to be referred to the League of Nations.

Theorists seem to have no trouble in deciding just how the Toronto bandits acted after their coup. But the trouble is the theories don't seem to work out so far as the apprehension of the gang is concerned.

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, August 2. — There is a good active demand for choice butcher cattle, but outside of these practically no demand at all. Choice butcher selects yesterday ranged from $7.00 to $7.65 or 10c to 15c higher than Monday's market. A good fair medium class of butchers sold steady at from $6.25 to $6.75. Plain medium and common scarcely any demand, and some of immarketable at any price. Too many Western cattle, of very poor quality, are acting as a severe drag on the market. The market to-day looks like a very poor and slow clean-up, with the probability that a lot of the common stuff will perforce have to be carried over the holiday.

Farmers and shippers are again reminded not to ship any cattle for the week-end, as there will be no market next Monday.

In the small meats market, calves were steady to strong at $10.00 to $11.00, tops.

Lambs strong to 50c higher at $13.00 to $13.50.

Hogs steady to firm at $8.25 f.o.b. and $8.25 fed and watered. A few going to outsiders at 25c higher.

Receipts.

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 89 cars, 1,056 cattle and 807 calves, 1,563 hogs, 1,511 sheep and lambs.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, Aug. 2. — (Canadian Press.)—In Ontario dealers are reported to be paying delivered extras 29 to 30, firsts 25, seconds 15 and the market generally is described as quiet and a little draggy.

Toronto unchanged, heavy receipts are reported from some sections.

Montreal firmer, specials 37 to 38, extras 33, seconds 23 to 24. Sales are reported of frozen turkeys 32 to 33, broilers 30 to 31, chickens 25 to 30, ducks 28 to 32, geese 20 to 21.

Western markets unchanged.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Aug. 2. — (Canadian Press.)—The trade in the local market for cash grain continues quiet, but the tone is firm. The flour market was a little more active than of late. The tone of the millfeed was steady under a good demand, but the rolled oats market was quiet. There is no demand in the baled hay market while a fairly active trade is passing in eggs. The potato market was quiet. Volume of business was small and the market quiet in butter. There was only a light demand for cheese.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.)— Receipts 1,180 cattle and calves, 848 hogs and 284 sheep and lambs.

Top grades of killing steers and heifers were in good demand on the cattle market yesterday at prices firm to slightly higher.

The hog market was unchanged at $8.75 for thick smooths and 9.63 1-2 for select bacon.

The lamb market was around 25 cents stronger for tops, good lambs selling from $8 to 9.50. Medium to good sheep sold slow from $3.00 to $5.00.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.— (Canadian Press.)—Estimates that the 1923 domestic yield of wheat would be 13,000,000 bushels less than the Government's July forecast, had a decided bullish influence on the wheat market to-day. Prices closed firm, 7-8 and 1c. to 1 5-8c. net higher, with September 98 to 98 1-4c. and December $1.01 1-4 to $1.01 3-8. Other leading staples also scored gains—corn, 1-4 to 1 1-2c.; oats, 5-8 to 1 and 1 1-8c. and provisions 10c. to 42c.

DROPPED DEAD AT FRIEND'S FUNERAL

Sudden Passing of F. J. Voaden, Formerly of Peterborough.

PORT STANLEY, Ont., Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—F. J. Voaden, principal of the Public school here, dropped dead yesterday afternoon at the funeral of his friend, C. A. B. Cromwell.

Mr. Voaden, who had been chosen as a pall-bearer, expired on the verandah of the Cromwell residence while awaiting the conclusion of the service within. He formerly taught school at Peterborough.

REPARATIONS

The Prime Minister's admission in the Commons yesterday, that in the absence of permission from the French and Belgian Governments for the publication of their notes the debate would be restricted, seems to point to the fact that the Government does not consider the time has arrived to take any new line. Premier Poincare has all along insisted upon the secrecy of the negotiations and until he lifts this embargo or the British Government decides that it is impossible to suffer further delay, it is difficult to see how there can be another publication or revelation of the communications which have passed between the Allied Governments.

Hopeless as the prospect of an agreement with France seems, the probabilities point to another attempt on the part of the Government to achieve such agreement by further negatiation, in which case Premier Baldwin's statement in Parliament is likely to be comparatively brief, dealing with the British position and embodying a renewed warning to France that the negotiations cannot be indefinitely protracted. The Prime Miniser also will probably appeal to the House not to embarass the delicate and difficult negotiations by hard criticisms, he having already undertaken that a special session of Parliament shall be called if a new situation arises requiring the sanction of that body.

How carefully the Government has to proceed before risking an open breach with France was illustrated in the House last night. Though Mr. Baldwin's policy has the support of a large section of the country, there is a considerable body of opinion well represented in the Government against any break with France. The House last night was dicussing the grave unemployment problem, and, in the course of his remarks, Sir Clement Montague Barlow, Minister of Labor outlining the coming winter would be no better than the last in the industrial field, despite the promise of an abundant harvest, and that the ultimate hope depended on the economic and industrial peace of Europe.

Thereupon the former Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Robert S. Horne, exhorted the Government to keep clearly in view the ultimate effect on unemployment of the particular policy it adopted. He proceeded to argue that both Germany and France were likely to be Britain's greatest trade competitors, pointing out that they were both largely in Britain's debt and were making no efforts to pay those debts. He contended that if Germany escaped paying reparations she would become the most powerful country in Europe; Germany had not been idle, but had reconstructed the whole of her great industrial organization. It would be unwise to give her too long a moratorium, which would assist her to become Great Britain's competitor.

Turning to France, Sir Robert pointed out her failure to tax herself adequately; in fact, her capital debt was $1,400,000,000 less than the British debt, and her taxation one half per head of the British while she had not only re-established her trade, but had a greater volume of exports and imports than before the war. On the other hand, Great Britain was struggling along on about seventy per cent. of her pre-war trade.

Sir Robert Horne belongs to the Lloyd George Party, whose business it is to call attention to matters of this kind in relation to the Government, but his views reflect those largely held here, especially his warning not to allow Germany to escape her obligations.

HUMANITY HANGING ON A CROSS

By Alex. McGregor, Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 2. — There has appeared recently in the Examiner and other Canadian daily papers a number of news articles dealing with the barbarous treatment of prisoners in the convict camps of the Southern States. To any one who has first-hand knowledge of conditions in these places it is apparent that in the despatches referred to the half has never been told. I have spent seven years in the South, and in the course of duty and among other things investigated these convict camps in four States—North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. It is in the latter State that the system prevails in all its iniquity. Like the leading character in Bellamy's "Looking Backward," I can truthfully say that "I have been to Golgotha; I have seen humanity hanging on a cross."

Men who are sentenced to offences for a period of six months or longer are farmed out to contractors who are engaged in the production of turpentine in the pine forests, in taking out timber or in the construction of railroads and highways, all work for which it is difficult to secure free labor. The State derives a revenue from this system, and it is up to the contractor to make a profit from the labor of the convicts.

Who Are the Offenders?

The inmates of these prison camps are not all hardened offenders. No attempt is made to separate the confirmed criminal from the youth who is paying his first penalty for some violation of the law. Whites and negroes are herded together, although in private life these races are carefully separated, the colored people not being allowed to mingle with the whites, to ride in the same railway coach, to put up at the same hotel or eat in the same restaurant. This distinction is jealously observed even in the lowest grades of society. Marriage between the races is strictly prohibited. The colored man is not treated in any way as if he were a national being. When he commitits a certain offence he is denied the trial that would be given to the most debased white man in a court of law, but is promptly and barbarously lynched by a mob of howling maniacs.

Whites and blacks are sentenced to the prison camps for the illegal sale of liquor, for carrying pistols and other weapons contrary to the statute in such cases made and provided, and for all other offenses short of the crime of murder. The person who takes the life of another, if he lacks money and influence, is certain to forfeit his own life, to be ignominiously hanged, not by a trained executioner, but by the sheriff, who is prevented by law from hiring a substitute. The hanging, as likely as not, will be in public and the event will be regarded as a holiday for miles around. Any stranger used to different conditions who witnesses one of these executions will probably become an advocate of the abolition of the death penalty for the rest of his days.

In the Camps.

Imagine men and youths working in a temperature that will mark 120 degrees in the shade for days at a time, building a railway or highway through a swamp that reeks with miasmatic vapors and swarms with insects and poisonous reptiles, working, too, as long as there is daylight, which means in the semi-tropics about 18 hours a day in the summer time, shackled so that the longest step which they can take is not over a foot. All this would be bad enough, but conditions for the unfortunate wretches is made ten-fold worse by their taskmasters, men who for a wage of $14 a month, the scale of the time referred to, carried a rifle and lorded it over their fellows. The prisoners are beaten, brutally beaten, on the slightest provocation. They are required to work no matter how ill they may be, to work as so many of them do until they drop dead in their tracks. Is it any wonder that when a prisoner serves out a sentence under such conditions that he returns to civil life ten-fold more a child of evil than he was when he left it, and that he owes society a grudge which he never forgets.

When a Man Escapes.

It is easy to believe that prisoners are always plotting to escape from such environments. The contractor who hires them from the State has a double financial interest in keeping them until the end of their terms. Nothing but the death of a convict terminates the contract. If he escapes the contractor is obligated to pay the State his wages up to the end of the term for which he was sentenced. If he loses his life in the attempt to get away the responsibility of the contractor ceases.

In order to protect himself, the contractor offers a bonus of $5 to $10 to the guard who kills an escaping convict. It is nothing unusual for a guard to connive at a prisoner's escape for the opportunity it gives him of shooting the fugitive to death and so add to his own earnings. Of all features of the system none is more barbarous than this.

The State has no concern in the re-capture of an escaped prisoner, as the revenue from hiring him out to a contractor continues, and will lend no aid in hunting him down.

One case attracted public notice and excited indignation among human people. An negro who got away was captured by two guards in a swamp about 10 miles from the camp. These monsters of cruelty tied the convict's hands behind his back, placed a rope with a running noose around his neck, fastened the other end to the axle of their buggy and drove back to camp at the top speed of their mule, which would be about six or seven miles an hour.

Fighting the System.

It must be said to the credit of Florida that this convict system was frequently attacked by uplifters, and that in 1911 a definite attempt was made to abolish it. The Legislature in that year actually did pass an enactment which provided that all convicts be employed by the State instead of being farmed out.

When this act came before the Governor for his signature he promptly vetoed it. The reason which he gave, that the Legislature had made no provision for the care of convicts, that it had failed to vote money for the building of public institutions in which to house them.

An attempt to carry the act over the gubernational veto failed, as the supporters of the measure were unable to master the required two-thirds majority.

New Form of Slavery.

It is the negro of the South who is the chief sufferer under this system. He is really the victim of a form of slavery that is worse than that which prevailed in the days when he was bought and sold as a chattel. At that time he had a monetory value. It was to the interests of his owner to see that his bodily vigor was preserved. If he fell sick he was given medical attention by the same doctor who treated his proprietor. He was decently fed, lodged and clothed, and it was to the interest of his master to pay some attention to his moral training. At least his treatment when he was a slave did not tend to convert him into a human brute and lynchings were unknown.

Some writer has said that the negro does not understand why his bonds were loosed. Any wonder he may entertain on this problem is likely to be overshadowed by his perplexity as to the reason why he has been placed in the position in which he finds himself in the South today.

SPOOK STORY FROM PORTLAND HEIGHTS.

Unsolved Mystery Which Is Puzzling a Family and Their Neighbors.

PORTLAND, Ore. Aug. 2.—There may be no such things as ghosts. Mrs. Lester Humphries isn't sure though.

The Humphreys home, on Portland Heights, has been the scene recently of "queer doings." On various occasions when the family has been away, members have returned only to find things in an uproar. Furniture, clothing and valuables were strewn everywhere. But save only once, nothing has been taken. Once the house was set afire.

Complete Mystery.

During the past three months, five invisible attacks have been made on the house.

The affair is a complete mystery and gives rise once more to the much-believed haunted house theory.

Some time ago Mr. Humphreys was called to her dining room by the maid. There in the center of the room, a wrinkled old Chinaman with a huge sack on his bent back stood leering. Mrs. Humphreys stopped in amazement.

The Chinaman shuffled forward, grinning. The young wife screamed—and the figure, or apparition, or whatever it was—vanished!

Possible Theories.

Again, when Mrs. Humphreys had been away from the house only a short while, after a time when extra locks had been placed on all possible points of entrance, she found bedding had been tossed to the floor, a flower basket hung on the chandelier, pictures turned in odd ways, silverware strewn about and chairs and carpets put on the dining room table.

Aside from the ghost theory, which most people out here—including Mr. and Mrs. Humphreys—emphatically do not believe, it is the popular impression that some man, sent to prison by Humphreys when he was U.S. district attorney, is nursing an old grudge.

If such is the case, it probably accounts for his having stolen only a diamond ring, a little money and a stick pin.

The case is the strangest in this city's history, and police are bending every energy to trap the spooks, which they believe to be decidedly material.

TEARS IN BUSINESS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(Associated Press)—Women to succeed in business must learn to dress comfortably without losing the charm of their sex, and to take correction from the boss without weeping, according to Mrs. Alice Foote MacDougall, New York business woman.

Mrs. MacDougall, who predicted recently that within a century women will be "doing all the business," said that the observance of a few simple rules would hasten the time when they would take over such control. Other suggestions were:

"Discuss abstract questions without making personal application of everything that is said.

"Stick to agreements without squirming if you are getting the worst of it.

"Say 'no' at the right time."

HOT weather makes a serious drain on the reserve energy of active children. The habit of seeking refreshment from icy beverages does not restore exhausted vitality and often creates serious digestive disturbance.
To maintain your children's health and at the same time satisfy their craving for a refreshing beverage, give them "Ovaltine" when they are thirsty.
"Ovaltine" is concentrated nourishment extracted from malt, milk and eggs, delicately flavored with cocoa. It is also abundantly rich in those wonderful vitamines which scientists affirm are essential for the health and protection of the body.

WEDDING BELLS

SHIRLEY—RAE.

At 1.30 o'clock in St. Andrew's Church today the marriage took place of Eva Anna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rae, to Ernest R. Shirley of Peterborough. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. James Rollins.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a beaded grey georgette dress, with hat and shoes to match, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and lily-of-the-valley. Her only attendant was her sister, Marion, as maid of honor, in blue georgette, with black hat and carrying a bouquet of Columbia roses.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, Aug. 2.—The W.M.S. and Ladies Aid Society of Camborne, met on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Herman Jebb, with almost thirty members and visitors present. At the close of the business Mrs. James Bray, who has been a faithful worker for the past twenty-five years in connection with both the W.M.S. and the Ladies Aid, was honored by being presented with a tea tray and table accompanied by an appreciative address, as follows: Dears Mrs. Bray,—

Having learned with regret of your removal from our midst, we the ladies of the Camborne Methodist church and surrounding vicinity take this opportunity of expressing our sorrow at your departure. Our meeting here this afternoon will remind you of many other pleasant times we have spent together, in such gatherings as this trying to do our part to send the love of our Saviour to foreign lands.

We retain the most pleasant recollections of that unselfish spirit that has made you such a willing worker in our Women's Missionary Society, Ladies Aid and other departments of the church's work.

Wishing to give you some tangible expression of our sentiments towards you, we ask you to accept this table and tray, not for their real worth, but as a slight token of love and esteem.

We know that the making of new friends will have a tendency to crowd out old memories, but are we asking too much that you reserve for us a little corner in your heart in loving memory of your Camborne friends.

We hope and pray that your life may be long, happy and useful, and that we may have the unspeakable happiness of meeting where parting is no more.

Signed by Rev. F. J. Horwood on behalf of the church and Sunday School.

MRS. H. LANDER, W.M.S.
MRS. W. JIBB, Ladies Aid.

Mrs. Bray although taken by surprise made appropriate reply. She said that she did not feel as if she deserved such a gift; that she had only done her duty and would endeavor to continue to do so.

Mr. Melville Sandercock of Camborne has been ill and is receiving treatment at the Cobourg Hospital.

The Camborne Young People's Society visited the Harwood Presbyterian church on Sunday and took charge of the service.

Real Estate Transfers.

The executors of the estate of the late John Ferguson, have sold the residence on King street, to Elizabeth P. Mitchell.

Thomas Marton has sold a house at Warkworth to John Wood.

James A. Pettibone has sold a village lot at Lakeport to J. A. McNeill.

James McKeown, Stanwood, has purchased Mr. George Martin's fine residence in Campbellford. Mr. Martin is removing to Toronto.

Mrs. Robert Sherwin has purchased a residence on Hastings Road from Mr. Robert Holding. The latter with his family is removing to Oshawa.

Death of John Cleary.

Mr. John Cleary of Percy township passed away a few days ago at the home of his sister, Mrs. E. Brisbin, Roseneath. He had been in poor health for several months. Mr. McCleary has been a life-long resident of Percy. He was in his 60th year and was a bachelor.

Port Hope Veterans.

The Port Hope veterans are arranging to hold a celebration on August 6. There will be a baseball tournament and other sports.

Gets Two Months.

Gordon Jones appeared before His Honor Judge Ward in the County Judge's court here on Monday, charged with entering cottages at Brighton and stealing a quantity of household effects. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to two months in the Counties jail.

Enjoying the Fishing.

Messrs. W. E. Davey, Harry Hooper, M. C. Hall and J. R. Cooper, Orono and Mr. Robert Sainsbury, Port Hope, were at Rice Lake one day recently to enjoy the fishing. They landed a number of pickerel, lunge and bass but the sensation of the day came when Mr. Hooper landed a 16-pounder.

Another fishing party from Orono including Mr. W. Armstrong Jr. and Mrs. Percy Rickaby, also had an enjoyable outing at the lake. They took home with them a ten pound lunge as well as pickerel and bass.

AT BAILIEBORO AND DISTRICT

Orangemen to Attend Church Sunday — Good Wheat Crops Reported—Personals.

BAILIEBORO, Aug. 2. — The members of the Bailieboro Orange Lodge will attend divine worship in the Methodist church next Sunday evening, August 5.

On August 12, a union service will be held at the Methodist church, Bensfort, Rev. A. H. McConnachie being in charge. It is expected that these union services will be held once a month.

The farmers are busily engaged in wheat harvesting and a good crop is reported by most farmers.

Personals.

Miss Olive Fisher of Toronto, has been the guest of Miss Rita Pengelley, Rice Lake, for the past week.

Miss Lettie White, night supervisor in the Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, is holidaying at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John White, Bailieboro.

Miss Kathleen Dawson, nurse-in-training, Nicholls Hospital, is spending her holidays at her home in Bailieboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Elliott of Toronto, are visiting friends in South Monaghan.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Dawson, London, Ont., attended the wedding of the former's sister, Miss Ida Dawson.

A number of Toronto men motored down to Rice Lake on Saturday and spent a few days fishing there.

Messrs. Hamilton and Edwards, of the Quaker Oats, were business visitors to Bailieboro this week.

Miss Jones of Peterborough, has been engaged to teach the Bailieboro Public school for the ensuing year.

Miss Charlotte Barnard spent a few days the guest of Mrs. E. Elson, Peterborough, last week.

CROP REPORTS

The following is a summary of returns made by the Agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Farmers are now in the thick of harvesting and in many cases are badly handicapped for lack of help. The shortage was never greater. In some cases as high as $65 a month with board is offered with little response. Leeds says that the border counties find it hard to compete with the prices paid to harvesters by farmers across the river.

Hay has been cut and housed under the most favorable conditions, and the yield is also first class. In many cases the grain harvest has overtaken haying to the detriment of the latter crop. Huron says that at auction sales standing hay is being sold at from $1 to $1.50 per acre.

Fall wheat is very variable in both yield and quality. The yield in some counties is placed from 20 to 30 bushels per acre but the average for the province is likely to be nearer the first named figure. Bruce complains of considerable rust.

Middlesex. — Most of the fall wheat is cut in this county and in Nelson, Trafalgar and Esquesing the crop is excellent. In Nassagaweya, and part of Esquesing, where the wheat was seeded early, from 15 to 20 per cent. is damaged by Hessian fly.

York. — Wheat in some districts has fallen short of early expectations, being slightly more winter-killed than was at one time realized. I believe the rust will considerably lighten the yield. The results of two fields might be interesting. One a mixed hay sod, manured and turned down to wheat; and one field a sweet clover sod which had been cut for ensilage. It did not receive manure. The wheat on the sweet clover unmanured sod is reported to be 20 per cent better in grain and straw.

Huron — As the Hessian fly has been particularly bad this year and owing to the ground being dry the last month or two there is not the usual preparation for new fall wheat.

Barley is being cut in some counties and on the whole regarded as a promising crop both as regards yield and quality.

Oats are turning, and will be more variable in yield and quality.

Alsike is on the whole a most satisfactory crop. Halton reports some yields at seven bushels per acre, and Halton puts the average yield in that county at about five bushels per acre and of excellent quality.

Lennox and Addington says:— The second crop of alfalfa is at present being harvested and farmers report a fair tonnage per acre. The prospects for alfalfa and red clover seed are not very bright.

Tisiskaming: — For the months of June and July, dairying is showing quite an increase, despite the fact that many farmers suffered in the fire. During June, there has been 27,368 lbs. of butter made, 7,000 more than last year. For the first half of July there have been 15 554 lbs made.

Kenora—This will be a record year for bee-keepers. Bee pasture all season has been excellent and owing to the many fires, fire weed is growing abundance which makes excellent bee pasture of first class quality. One apiary has as many as six supers and figures on turning out about eight ton of honey this year.

Lambton:— The farmer's income at this season is principally from his butter and eggs. Many farmers are now starting to get rid of their old hens. The practice was formerly to wait until the late fall.

Bruce:—A number of shipments of heavy cattle weighing around 1300 were shipped from a number of points during the past week. We are informed that the price realized for best cattle was approximately $7.75 f.o.b. shipping point. A large number of export cattle are yet to be shipped form this district.

Wentworth:—A car of hogs was bought by one of the drovers. The car had 45 per cent. selects.

Lennox and Addington: All classes of live stock are in fair condition, although the pastures are badly burned up. Good three year old beef cattle are selling at the farm for from $25 to $35 per head.

Front of Leeds:— A car load of Western horses were brought in recently and they are being sold on Saturday of this week, but it is generally conceded that the prices will be low.

TEA DISPLACING BEER.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—(Associated Press)—Prohibition is responsible for a considerable increase in the quantity of tea consumed through the world, according to Mincing Lane experts.

Britishers now consume tea at the rate of 8½ lbs. a head, compared with 6½ lbs. a few years ago. Some of this increase is due to the high price of beer, which forces the British workman to "let off steam" on pints of tea instead of beer.

HASTINGS COMMUNITY UNITES IN HONORING LEGISLATIVE MEMBER

Politics Found No Place at Flattering Reception For Hon. J. R. Cooke, Recently Appointed Member of Premier Ferguson's Cabinet.

CLOSE TO 10 PEOPLE

HASTINGS COMMUNITY ... ...
(By a Staff Reporter.)

STIRLING, August 2. — All the political lines were wiped out in North Hastings yesterday, and Conservatives, Liberals, Progressives, and Independents joined in a fraternity to do honour to their Legislative representative, J. R. Cooke, whose faithful service to his constituents and to the people of Ontario during his public career of 12 years has been fittingly recognised by his appointment to the Ferguson Cabinet without portfolio, and also to a place on the Hydro Commission.

This is the first time that a member from any of the ridings in Hastings County has been promoted from the ranks to a ministerial position in the Legislature, and Mr. Cooke's friends and supporters naturally feel elated over the distinction that has come to him and to the riding.

No one who attended the picnic here yesterday can doubt the popularity of the new minister. He is close to the people whom he represents, and enjoys the confidence and esteem of all parties, as was evidenced by the majority of 2,700 which he rolled up at the recent election. He is a prominent farmer, and has a national reputation as a platform speaker. His official title now is the Honourable J. R. Cooke, but to the people of North Hastings he is still "Bob", and was so referred to by all the speakers who sounded his praises yesterday.

Non-Partisan Gathering.

The idea of a public gathering to honour the new Cabinet Minister first originated with Mr. Cooke's friends in Stirling. It was decided to have a non-partisan function, and the picnic was held on the Fair Grounds, practically under the auspices of the enterprising Agricultural Society. The terms of the agreement were rigidly observed, and there was not a single political note in all the addresses heard yesterday by a crowd is estimated at 3,000.

All the Hastings ridings joined in the function, and every one of the speakers praised the worth of Mr. Cooke as a private and public citizen. He was congratulated upon his appointment, but the speakers were just as unanimous in felicitating Premier Ferguson upon his judgment in making the selection, and upon his good fortune in securing such a colleague.

Only one other member of the new Cabinet has found it possible, owing to the stress of public business thrust upon a ministry just taking office, to accept the invitation to attend the picnic —the Hon. Charles McCrae, Minister of Mines, whose home is in Sudbury, the centre of Ontario's vast nickel industry. Mr. McCrae has been in the Legislature with Mr. Cooke for the past 12 years, and yesterday he testified to his fidelity to the service of his constituents and to the Provnce at large and to his outstanding ability as a debater in the House.

All of the addresses yesterday were tinged with optimism. The various speakers have confidence in the future, and the temporary eclipse of the party four years ago was regarded as a blessing in disguise. The reverse had chastened the minority and the new administration took office with a keen sense of their responsibility and with a clear realization of the necessity for a truly responsible government.

Reeve McGuire Presides.

Reeve C. B. McGuire of Stirling, called the gathering to order and on the speakers' stand, which was decorated with flags, were W. C. Mikel, K. C., of Belleville, Hon. J. R. Cooke, W. E. Tummon, of Tweed, president of the East Hastings Conservative Association, Hon. Charles McCrae of Sudbury, Minister of Mines; J. F. B. Belford, M.L.A.-elect for Northumberland East; F. H. Thompson, M. P., for East Hastings; W. H. Ireland, M.L.A., Hastings West; Geo Kingston, a native of Rawdon township, but now a member of the Workmen's Compensation Board; James Hill, M.L.A., Hastings East; H. F. Ketcheson of Belleville, J. A. Sexsmith, ex-M.P., East Peterboro, and M. E. Malybee, M.P., for Northumberland. Gus. Porter, M. P., of Belleville, was on the grounds early in the day but was obliged to return home before the speaking began.

Future Premier.

Mr. Nikel, who was the first speaker, predicted a brilliant future for Mr. Cooke. The latter was the first Cabinet Minister from Hastings County, but that county had sent a representative to the Dominion Cabinet, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, who had risen to the Premiership, and it was not too much to hope, Mr. Nikel said, that Mr. Cooke would attain the highest Ministerial place in Ontario.

The Guest of Honor.

The Regimental Band of Belleville struck up "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" when Chairman McGuire called on Mr. Cooke for an address, and the man in whose honor the vast audience had assembled was heartily cheered. Two little girls from Stirling then presented Mr. Cooke with two huge bouquets of roses, one for himself and the other for Mrs. Cooke.

Mr. Cooke said that the Dominion and Province of Ontario are in a serious condition to-day, and wise and economical administration is required to bring them through. He gave a resume of the heavy national and provincial debt and stated that the mineral and forest wealth of New Ontario would contribute much towards the settlement of our liabilities.

"To Premier Ferguson," went on the speaker, "I want to say that my loyalty to him all these years has been based on the conviction that no man in Ontario is better able to administer the affairs of the Province or is more sincere in his efforts to advance the welfare of the people."

Much as he appreciates the honor of a place in the Cabinet, Mr. Cooke said he is especially pleased to be given a place in such a vast enterprise as the Hydro Commission.

A Message From the Premier.

Hon. Charles McCrae brought a message from Premier Ferguson, who sent to the people of North Hastings congratulations on having such a representative as Mr. Cooke. The Premier had chosen him for his Cabinet because he would have him as an anchor post in giving the people of Ontario responsible government.

Mr. McCrae has some sympathy for the complaint of the U.F.O. that the farmers are not getting enough for their products. He believes that the policy of the government should be to increase the profits of the men on the land. The best way to achieve this, Mr. McCrae thinks, is to develop the mining industry in New Ontario. The millions spent for wages in that region will filter back to Old Ontario to pay for food and supplies and this will create a profitable home market for the farmers.

Mr. McCrae said that he was proud to be associated with Bob Cooke in the cabinet and to have the benefit of his sound judgment.

Speaking as a Farmer.

Mr. Belford had two requests to make. He wants the new government to get wider markets for the farmers even though that may be strictly a Dominion affair, and to practice the strictest economy in their administration.

To mend Compensation Act.

Mr. Kingston said that there were more accidents for farmers' sons and hired men than to any other class of workers, and he would like to see the Workmen's Compensation Act so amended as to give farmers permissoin to benefit by that Act if they so desired. He would not favor making such a provision compulsory, but would leave it optional with those interested.

Other speakers were Messrs. Tummon, Ireland, Ketcheson, Hill and Thompson, all of whom congratulated Mr. Cooke upon his appointment.

A dance in the evening concluded the celebration.

Campbellford Represented.

A large number from Campbellford motored to the picnic, the contingent including many ladies. Among those noticed in the audience were Messrs. R. Lowery, J. A. Irwin, J. A. Loucks, Eli Brunelle, Charles H. Davidson, R. J. Allan, W. J. Armstrong, John Saunders and W. S. Russell.

COTTON RAISING

SYDNEY, N.S. W., Aug. 2.—(Associated Press)—Experiments in cotton raising in New South Wales have been so successful as to more than double the cotton acreage in the estimate for next year. This increase in acreage is due to the discovery that cotton grows better under the conditions existing in the northern parts of the Australian continent than in other sections.

The cotton grown experimentally in the North Australian district brings about one cent a pound more than that of other sections. In addition to producing a higher grade of cotton, the plants have been most prolific, and at Bonalbo, as many as 320 bolls have been obtained from a single plant.

The estimated cotton acreage for next year in New South Wales is 35,000 acres, and a ready market already awaits this growth, for the English spinners are eager to buy cotton grown within the Empire.

Although it will be many years before the effect of Australian cotton will be felt in the world's market, the experimental stage has been passed and it is expected that great strides will be made in production during the next decade.

Another important factor, less to the liking of the great English mill owners, is the appearance of a few independent mills in Australia. While the production of these mills is at the present time insignificant they are capable of growing with the increased domestic cotton production.

SATIN-BACKED CREPE.

Satin-backed crepe is to be a staple material for fall and winter. It has the advantage of being lovely on either side, and the reverse is always available for trimming.

LOSES A FAT FEE.

PARIS, Aug. 2. — (Associated Press)—A Paris surgeon is telling a good story against himself. He was called in to operate on an American woman for appendicitis, and when the cure was complete the patient, seeking to show her gratitude in some way that was not too commonplace, embroidered a cigar case and took it to the surgeon.

Unfortunately the surgeon had just had a run of patients who had paid for his services by presents of little intrinsic value, so he could not help saying, "No, really, Madame, take away such rubbish; a thousand franc note would be more acceptable."

"All right," said the American woman, and opening the cigar case she drew a thousand franc bill from it, laid it on the table and said coolly, "There were five others like it in the case."

TO DESTROY MOTHS.

Spray Parke's Mothbane directly on materials which moths destroy—woolens, furs, rugs, draperies, etc. It destroys moths, the worms and the eggs. In cans, with sprayer, $1, at Bond's Drug Store, corner George and Hunter streets.

CASH FOR PROTECTION.

FAIRPORT, O., Aug. 2.—(United Press)—Albert Schriegel, awaiting trial behind the bars of Lake county jail, learned about women from the Fairport mayor and justice of the peace.

Schriegel is charged with offering to "buy" protection for a gambling house from Mayor Amy Kankonen, Justice of the Peace Mabel Walters set his bail at $500 but Schriegel couldn't make the raise.

He came to "Mayor Amy's" office on afternoon, according to the affidavit, and offered her a 50-50 proposition. Six hundred new laborers were coming to Fairport to work in the coke ovens, and he is said to have explained, and a well protected gambling house would bring big returns.

"Mayor Amy" agreed and asked Schriegel to bring the money to her office the next afternoon.

The would-be gambling boss next day unfurled a huge roll of bills on the mayor's desk. Two seconds later a deputy sheriff and the chief of police stepped out from behind a closet door and placed Schriegel under arrest.

DISPELS GERMAN ILLUSIONS

MUNICH, Aug. 2.—(Associated Press)—Much animosity against Germans "still remains to be overcome" in the United States, Michael von Faulhaber, archbishop of Munich, brought back from his recent American trip. He advised the Germans to have no illusions about the attitude toward their country-folk in general in America.

Cardinal von Faulhaber found that in the feeling of Americans toward Germany, much depends upon the moral powers of recuperation shown in future by the Germans themselves.

GHOSTS!

By CANON F. G. SCOTT, C.M.G., D.S.O.

(Copyright United States and Great Britain publication rights reserved.)

VICTOR OR THE WOUNDED HAND

"Will you have your coffee here Sir?" said the waiter. "No we'll take it in the smoking room."

"Come Professor" said Mr. Archer rising. "We'll take our coffee upstairs. I have something to tell you."

"Waiter bring us some cigars."

"Thank you Sir."

Mr. Archer was a heavily built man with heavy black eyebrows overhanging a pair of keen black eyes. He was past middle life but his every movement gave evidence of quiet ordered strength and the self control which coupled with initiation and imagination goes to the making of a successful business man. In fact he was a successful business man and as the head of "The Archer Steel Corporation Ltd." he was a man of immense power. His companion on the present occasion was a thin grey man with a rather sad thoughtful face and the air of one who reads the secrets of his own soul in order that he may be able to understand those of the world outside. He had a decided stoop now as he followed his friend up the broad staircase to the Club smoking room.

There were hardly a dozen people in the place as Mr. Archer and his friend entered. They were scattered in pairs at little tables in the large and somewhat gloomy chamber but there was a comfortable sofa in front of the chimney fire and Mr. Archer led his friend over to it. They sat down and presently the waiter brought coffee and cigars and left the room with the noiseless tread of a club servant who knows his business.

For a while the two men sipped their coffee in silence. Each seemed plunged in thought and the enjoyment of a quiet evening after the anxieties and occupations of the day were over. At last handing the box of cigars to his friend and taking one himself Mr. Archer began.

"Anstey I have asked you to dine with me to-night for two reasons The first is that you are I think my best real friend, almost a lifelong friend for we have known each other since our college days and the second is because your training as a psychologist gives you an insight into the curious things which happen in the human mind. I feel that in this strange story I am going to tell you I have both a kind listener and an intelligent one. Here, take one of these cigars in my case. I know you prefer the mild ones."

Mr. Archer struck a match lit the cigar in his mouth then sank back into the soft leather-covered sofa his eyes gazing fixedly at the fire.

"Anstey" he said "I am not a man who likes to be talked about and I am one who finds it exceedingly hard to unclose his heart's secrets to anyone. My wife very seldom knows my inner thoughts. I bottle them up. But I give this experience to you tonight partly because I think it may help you to help others and partly because I feel I must speak to someone. I can trust you to use and not abuse my confidence."

He paused for a moment as if he saw something in the fire. The professor puffed his cigar in silence awaiting the disclosures. "You see it is like this," continued his host, "ever since I left College when I tasted the delight of being first in my year I have made it the rule of my life to aim at nothing and be satisfied with nothing but success. If I knew an enterprise was likely to prove a failure I would not risk going in for it. Whatever William Archer started or joined had to go ahead. The most trifling set-back would cause me a night of sleepless anxiety. I have no doubt my friend that already you feel that you and I are far apart in our courses over life's ocean. You have no doubt taken the better course but I am telling you the plain simple truth about myself even though it may be incomprehensible to you. Success in everything became my one absorbing desire. And it is astonishing"—here Archer turned away from the fire and looked at his friend's quiet face—"it is astonishing how the compelling force of determination in a man can cut a path through the difficulties of life and give him what he seeks. You know I was one of those who put through the construction of the Transcontinental Railway. We had tremendous difficulties to overcome as you can easily imagine but at every fresh barrier came the revelation of the power and ingenuity of man to overcome it. I have never forgotten the lesson and I have always looked upon my life as the building of a railway. Now and then I come to a steep incline now and then to a torrent in flood now and then to the granite walls of a mountain chain but I kept my head. I say it must be done. There is a way to do it. I must succeed. My thoughts at once became diamond drills and my imagination becomes a steel bridge and my resolution becomes a storehouse of inexhaustible energy and the thing is done. I reach my goal. I have carved out the way to it by my own will. Men's wills bend before mine and so I arrive. Forgive me, Anstey, for talking what must seem to you such egotistic "bunkum." It is that no doubt but I am disclosing the secrets of my heart and after all I have succeeded. Ask the directors of the National Bank what I am worth and what my good will is worth to them.

"But that is all I want to say about that side of my life. I had to tell you that side first in order that you might understand the other for like every man I have another side to my character. The other side came to my knowledge when Victor my boy was born. My business activities had hitherto absorbed all my attention and even my marriage, though I don't wish to dwell upon that gave me little incentive to leave my line of ambition. My wife went her way and I went mine. She was well dressed had all the money she asked for and had nothing in the world to do from morning till night but amuse herself and follow her own sweet will. In fact she stood to one side of my track of life, Victor was different. He was in the line with me; he was myself. He was my continuation. I did not believe in religion and the immortality of the Soul so I said to myself 'my [illegible] and I have one soul.' It is the [illegible] soul which has come down from [illegible] others to me and it passes on to him. The energy that I have he has inherited. He was like me too in features and build. He grew up a reproduction of myself. After his college course was over (I think you remember he took a brilliant degree in "it) he came into the firm with me and my training of him began in earnest.

"He was quick to learn. He saw my point in my discussion at once. I told him how I had made my way in life and now he was to press on in the same path. Success was the keystone of the firm that was now "William Archer & Son, Ltd." I told him that I had called him "Victor" as a pledge of his final winning of the goal. The very name was to be a constant force in his subconscious mind. The boy gave himself to me thoroughly. He had an intelligence and grasp of business far beyond his years. He knew men instinctively and saw their motives at a glance. He was the way to victories and achievements far beyond my wildest dreams. Forgive me, Anstey, for letting you see what a poor miserable thing your old friend's heart is. To say that I loved the boy is not quite true. I did not love him in a way but I loved myself in him. It was as a continuation of myself that he appealed to me. He was an extension of myself and my ambitions of my dreams beyond the three score years and ten of my allotted life. He was to be another fifty years of power to the firm. The name of Archer was to go on. And then the war came."

Mr. Archer threw the stub of his cigar in the fire and lit another. "The war came. The great hideous agony broke upon the peace of the world. Of course Victor had to go. I did not want him to. I did my best to dissuade him but the boy had made up his mind. I told him I would throw over everything and we could do war service at home on a large scale.

"You will think it very unpatriotic in me to have taken this attitude and you are welcome to despise me for it but I must tell you the truth. I scolded the boy for his folly. I tried to dazzle him with the future I had mapped out for him. In a covert way I bribed him and at last I thought he was safe.

"I entered into negotiations with the Government for the manufacture of ammunition and submarine and railway supplies on a large scale. I gave $100 000 to the Red Cross and another $100 000 for machine guns. The war went on and we worked with the energy of "Archer & Son." I saw little of Victor for I feared he might open up the subject of his volunteering. Then one day a great reverse happened at the front and Kitchener was drowned and things looked bad with the Navy. It made me sick to think of it as a Briton but it made me more sick to think of the effect it might have on Victor. We had avoided one another for several weeks except on occasions when business matters came before us. At last one morning, Great God, shall I ever forget it."

Here Archer's face turned an ashey grey even in the rosy firelight and his heavy brow was contracted as with a hardly suppressed agony. "One morning Victor came into my office and stood before me. I say stood before me because there was something in the manner of the action which was to me startling and unusual. I looked up at him with terror for I knew what he was going to say. I felt the crouching fear of a condemned man when he sees the judge put on the black cap before pronouncing sentence.

"Father," said Victor speaking very slowly and with great determination, "Father I am going." There was no use in trying to combat his resolution. I was not going to try and fail.

"Have you told your Mother?" I said with a desperate attempt at appearing calm.

"Yes, and she says I am right."

"Damn it and does she?"

"Yes she says in spite of everything she thinks it is my duty to go."

"You young fool" I said "don't you know what you are giving up? Don't you know what we are already doing for the cause? What will your paltry life amongst thousands of others be worth out there? What is it worth here when you are second in command?"

"Father, you cannot change my resolve. It is all true what you say. We may be doing a great deal for the country we may be giving a great deal to the cause but there is one thing which I have got to give and that is myself."

"The boy stood there before me and said that. God, it was terrible. Mr. Archer passed his hand over his brow.

"You called me Victor," the lad went on and I never knew the real meaning of the name until now. It was your fault Father you called me Victor."

Mr. Archer was silent for a moment his cigar shook in his trembling fingers.

"And so the boy went and I never saw him again. He is buried near Ypres. Here Anstey read these."

Mr. Archer drew an envelope from his pocket and handed it to the Professor.

"Read the one on official paper first."

He opened the official sheet first. It was from the O. C. of Victor's Battalion and was from "Somewhere in Belgium." It read as follows:

Somewhere in Belgium 1917.

Dear Sir: —

Long ere this reaches you you will have heard of the death of your gallant son. His was a peculiarly glorious death because it was voluntary sacrifice of himself for the sake of his men. Your son was going through the trenches yesterday when one of the men standing on the parapet thought he saw a moving object amid the waste of mud and wire in No Man's Land. At once he picked up a Mills bomb pulled the pin out and was in the very act of throwing it when either through the boy's carelessness or nervousness the thing fell on the floor of the trench. In a flash your son saw what had happened. The time of the explosion of a Mills bomb after the pin is drawn is five seconds. In an instant the deed was done. Your son had cast himself upon the bomb in order to prevent as far as possible the fragments of the exploding shell from reaching the men in the trench. The consequence of his brave deed was his own instant death and the saving the lives of the others although several were severely wounded. I feel that but for his prompt action there would have been some other deaths. It was one of the most gallant deeds in the war and your son has been recommended by our Brigadier for the Victoria Cross. We all agreed that it was just the sort of thing Victor Archer would do. His men worshipped him and they were ever as first thought and first care. Now he has laid down his life for them and they know it.

I wonder by what instinct you christened him Victor. You have the sympathy as your son had the admiration of the whole Battalion.

Yours

.....Lt.-Col

The next letter was written on a sheet torn from a soldier's writing pad. It was from Victor and was dated only one week before his death. It was to be sent home in case of his being killed at the Front. It began:

Dear Father:—

You will get this after you hear of my death or you will never get it at all. There are only two things I want to say to you. One is that I have "found myself" out here. There is more in life than money and power. You were angry with me for leaving home and you will be sorry for my death. I know that father but if you could read my heart now you would find something in it something richer and better than was ever there before. I think it is the idea of giving that charms me the idea of giving not merely money that is easy and creates no satisfaction but the idea of giving myself that is the thing which intrigues me. Father, you used to say that I was to be a continuation of your life. Now that cannot be. You must "carry on" without me. Father I don't want you to think me a prig, but couldn't you put something into the life of "Archer & Son" which we have in the life out here? You would be happier and you have a whole battalion of men under your command.

Good bye Father forgive me if this letter sounds cheeky or self-righteous. I do not mean it to be so but when you are looking death in the face every day it makes a man think and gives him the right to speak. The things in life undergo a complete change in value. My life now drops out Father, and you will have to be a continuation of my life as I have learnt it out here.

I have written another letter for Mother.

Good bye.

Victor.

The professor replaced the letters in the envelope and returned to the sofa before the fire. Mr. Archer was gazing at it leaning forward his elbows resting upon his knees. He did not speak or move when his friend rejoined him. Anstey laid his hand on the man's shoulder and handed him the envelope.

"I have read the letters," he said, "They are wonderful. I never knew till now what a glorious death Victor's was. The thought of it grips the heart. You must indeed be very proud of him."

"It isn't that, it isn't that," said Archer, turning his face towards his friend.

"It is a question of psychology. I have read the boy's letter again and again. I have wondered what he meant. My being a continuation of his life—there is something in it. The spirit of the old Archer changed and passing into something new."

"Life as I have learned to live it out here" "the idea of giving myself, that is the thing which intrigues me.

"I may be getting softening of the brain, Anstey, but perhaps you will know how to account for it otherwise. Those phrases and ideas have obsessed me. I cannot get away from them. They don't come up from my own selfish heart. They come in a curious way as the suggestion of Victor's personality. I don't believe in ghosts or spiritualism or any spook games of that sort. But I know that Victor is near me. I understand his life now and I must be a continuation of it as he learnt to live it at the Front.

"And now comes the curious thing—the event which led me to ask you to dine with me in order that I might unburden my heart for the first time in my life."

The other men had left the room by this time so the two friends were alone among the lazy shadows and the fire gleams. "Yesterday morning Anstey a paper was brought to me to sign. I found it on my desk as I entered the office. I was entirely alone in the place and I read the words over. It was the order for a general reduction of wages and the shutting down of one of our mills in the country. Times are bad and we have been pretty heavily hit by the failure of the Northern Trust Co. Only by great economy can we repair our loss. Well I was just going to sign the thing when on my hand something red appeared. It was distinct and yet in a way shadowy. I looked at it and then I saw it was a wound and then another appeared and then I saw that they were not on my hand at all but on another hand which overshadowed mine and overmastered it. And then I saw the wrist and a shadowy arm in khaki. An icy coldness not terror possessed me and I saw my hand which held the pen move under compulsion of that impressed upon it. With one long sweep the pen was drawn across the document.

"Victor had cancelled the order.

"You may laugh at me. You may think I am going crazy but I am not. It may be the outcome it must be the outcome of my own brain but the thing is it is a fact. And now I feel I must be a continuation of Victor's life as he learnt it at the Front. Another and a better personality has taken the place of mine and I am changed. I hope I have found what Victor found Can it be possible at my time of life? Can I change? Can I follow after? Can I attain? Can I, a world-sated selfish keen money-loving business man, can I attain? Something tells me Victor or the Wounded Hand—Coatd. that I may yet see the vision which Victor saw. Something tells me that true prophetic instinct made me give him that name.

"Is it possible Anstey for a son to save his father?"

Mr. Archer's white face was turned to his friend in mute appeal. There was a yearning expression in it which it had not worn before. It was the face of a man in one of those supreme crises which only come once or twice in a man's life.

"Is it possible?"

"My friend" said Anstey giving and speaking with a voice his hand choked with emotion "it is."

TIMELY THOUGHTS

Genius does nothing without reason.

Music may be termed the universal language of mankind.

Music has, like society, its laws of propriety and etiquette.

What is genius else than a priestly power revealing God to the human soul.

Music is never stationary, successive forms and styles are only like so many resting places on the road to the ideal.

A sympathetic recognition is assured to everyone who concentrates his art to the divine service of a conviction of a consciousness.

FILCHED FARMERS BY FILING WEIGH SCALE

Wheat Buyer Unblushingly Confesses Before Commission of Trick to Falsify Weights.

MOOSEJAW, August 2, — "Me and the superintendent just took a file and cut the notches on the scales so that we could take what we wanted out of each load of grain weighed in without the farmers suspecting how we were robbing them."

This was the climax of sensational evidence introduced before the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission yesterday.

It was in support of a charge described as "incitation of theft."

W. M. Rose, counsel for the Grain Buyers' Union handled the case. His star witness was W. P. Rogers a grain buyer of six years' experience, while two score of farmers gasped their amazement. Rogers described glibly how the farmers at his elevator got gipped out of thousands of dollars worth of grain.

Proud of his Trick.

He decorated his story of the theft with minute details of the circumstances, chortling as if skinning the farmers was the finest of indoor sports. If he were aware of the felony involved and the possible consequences he was utterly oblivious of the seriousness of the confession.

The chairman evidently appraising the danger Rogers was incurring stopped him in his sensational recital to suggest that possibly he wanted to take advantage of the Canada Evidence Act.

"Oh, no," grunted the witness — "it's all right!"

As if appreciating another possible development of the case befort the witness concluded his cross examination, Chairman Turgeon, on adjourning the case, warned Rogers not to talk with anyone until he resumes his story in the witness box —he especially cautioned him not to consult his solicitors in the interim. But Stewart the official he involved with himself in the doctoring of the scales, sat in the court room while the evidence was taken.

Rogers Story.

Rogers said he was buying grain for the Searle Grain Company of Winnipeg, in 1912-2 at Star City.

He said one day Supt. Stewart called at the elevator and casually remarked that if Rogers would get him a file he would show him how to fix the elevator scales so as to get the best of it all the time. The witness said that he got the file out of the office. The Superintendent, he said, showed him how to cut the shoulder on the beam so that he could take as much as forty pounds out of each load weighed without the farmer being able to detect anything wrong. They took turns he said in doing the job. It worked fine as Rogers expressed it; "I got about forty pounds too much every time a load came in after that."

The doctored scales had been working about a month when he said that Stewart notified him to slip the beam back as the inspector was coming around to test the scales He did so; as soon as the inspection was over he slipped the beam back and continued the robbery. "Sometimes the farmers complained that they were not getting the correct weights, but they could do nothing as they did not know what I was doing to them."

Marks Still on Scales.

The smiling rascal was stopped by one of the commissioners with the query: "Do the scales still show the mark of the filing you say you and the superintendent did to the beam end?"

"Oh, yes' he replied. "I showed it to a couple of my friends just before I quit the job."

Asked again who did the filling, he explained, "Oh, both of us. I started it and Stewart, he finished off the rough spots."

Asked if he did not realize he was committing a dishonest act, Rogers laughingly replied, "Well, yes, but after you have bought grain for six years you don't mind a little thing like that. Buying grain hardens a man, you know."

The witness admitted frankly that he and Supeintendent Stewart were good friends, but added that Stewart finally discharged him writing him a letter telling him his services were generally unsatisfactory. To the urging of one of the commissioners Rogers took a pencil and paper, drew a diagram of ordinary elevator scales and explained just where the filing had to be done and how.

Buyers on the Blacklist.

A number of other cases tending to establish the existence of a so-called blacklist operated in conjunction with the Northwest Grain Dealers Association at Winnipeg, and so-called faked shortages were dealt with by witnesses for the Grain Buyers' Union. They made the general claim that buyers are kept in a constant state of terror through fear of being charged with a shortage. The companies, they allege keep writing them letters and urge them to protect themselves. These men are all bonded. They can't get employment, they assert without a bond, and if they have a shortage and don't settle it some way, they lose their bond.

Some, however testified to having refused to pay shortages and were still permitted to buy grain. These they claim, are fake shortages trumped up against them to force them to get more and still more overages. Each season's business stands by itself, so if a buyer has a big overage one year and a shortage the next, he is not permitted to offset his losses by the companies' gains. One buyer testified that the year he had 1,400 bushels overages he received a bonus of $186.

Charges Not Proved.

These revelations before the commission under oath have enormously increased the feeling of hostility among farmers toward the elevator monopoly all over the west. The buyers claim that it is obvious that they would not steal unless they were forced to, since they get nothing out of it all overages going to the elevator interests, but no care of this kind has yet developed where proof was brought home to the elevator company involved. The elevator companies assert it is a constant fight to be able to check out at the end of the season as much grain as they paid for.

A CHURCH HOME

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.(Associated Press)—Chicago's silent church congregation, composed of many of the 2,000 deaf of the city, will have a permanent church home when the new City Temple is dedicated, according to Rev. Philip J. Hasenstab, pastor.

The members of the deaf mission have been without a place of meeting of their own since the old First Church, on the site of the new edifice, was pulled down.

"But the deaf congregation still holds its services once a week," says Constance E. Hasenstab, assistant pastor. "Every Sunday afternoon they come together from all parts of the city for their worship service of Scripture reading, sermon and hymns in the sign language.

"There is an illustrated stereopticon lecture, and by watching the signs of the interpreter they enjoy programs of readings, plays and songs. We also have study courses with 35 members of the deaf congregation enrolled."

Twice every month the negro deaf meet at Hartzell Center with a somewhat similar program to that given for the other members of the church.

Chicago's work for the deaf began in 1889. The permanent church was organized in 1893. The Rev. Mr. Hasenstab came here from the state school for the deaft at Jackonsville to organize a congregation. Recently the work has grown to include three state schools for the deaf in 50 cities.

TORONTO MECHANIC PROFITS

Use of Dreco pays Mr. Bell dividends of health after other remedies fail. "I think it is a wonderful medicine," he says.

Mr. John Bell, a mechanic tender, of 164 Bellwoods Ave., Toronto, found his work greatly impeded by severe dizzy spells, rheumatism and general internal disorder, brought about by a weakened digestive system. How Dreco speedily rectified this condition by toning and regulating his stomach so that it properly nourished and strengthened the other organs, is outlined by Mr. Bell in the following statement.

"For many years I have suffered stomach and liver trouble, my case was a serious one and caused me untold suffering. Every time I'd bend over or look up, I'd almost fall from dizziness. Things I ate would never agree with me. Gas would form in my stomach and I would get a sour, bitter taste in my mouth. I often had pains around my heart. My appetite was also very poor and I had pains across my back. My joints and muscles ached with rheumatism.

"Since taking Dreco, however, my appetite has been splendid and the rheumatic pains greatly improved. My bowels act regularly which they haven't done for a long time. I sleep fine and feel 100% better. I have recommended Dreco to many of my friends, as I think it is a wonderful medicine. Dreco did the work for me after other remedies failed."

Mr. Bell's symptoms are common to those whose digestive organs get out of hand. Dreco is prepared especially as a corrective for this condition. Compounded from medicinal herbs, roots, bark and leaves, it restores the whole system to proper working order. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs and is a reliable spring tonic and restorative.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterboro by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold in Lakefield by E. H. Northey, and by a good druggist everywhere.

Ancient Chinese documents have been discovered giving detailed descriptions of the collision of two suns.

The first domestic animals kept by primitive man were giant stags.

A quantity of water kept in a hermetically sealed steel container is transformed in pure ether to gas.

One drop of water contains more living organisms than are visible to the human eye all over the world.

It would require far more power than the whole world contains to set in motion some of the gigantic machines devised in theory by some of our inventors.—Conrad P. Reid, London.

What we need is an eight-hour day for the sun.

Magnetic Crane

The recent order placed by the Clyde Navigation Trust for very large magnetic dock cranes to handle pig iron and steel is a striking sign of the progress being made in this section of mechanical conveying which was first used about 25 years ago writes a contributor to the Manchester Guardian. The unloading for example of waggons of short heavy billets of steel or pig iron is by any other method a very laborious operation. Thus by means of an overhead or travelling crane a chain block tackle is lowered down to the waggon and the billets would then have to be lifted by hand into a container suspended at the end of the chain or a bundle of them tied round by chains or wire ropes operations all involving time and manual labor. In the same way with flat steel plates pipes or steel bars and rails considerable trouble would be required in attaching these to the crane by slings.

The idea of lowering a hug magnet at the end of the chain block tackle has revolutionized the general principle of handling all material such as iron and steel which is attracted by a magnet. The latter is simply lowered into the waggon and immediately attracts a ton or so of billets which are lifted out and swung round into the air hanging on mysteriously just like iron filings on a toy magnet. It plates are being lifted two magnets are used one at each end and for bars and rails three is regarded as the best practice a whole bunch of heavy material being lifted at once and the saving in time and labor is obviously very great.

Of course the use of magnetism in this way has been rendered possible by the device of the electro-magnet—that is roughly the principle that when an electric current is sent round a bar of iron the latter becomes a strong magnet and when the current is shut off the magnetism vanishes except for a trace which is of no practical importance. Naturally a permanent magnet could not be used because although this might pick up the iron or steel there would be no means of releasing the hold again. Consequently the principle consists in lowering the "magnet" until within range of operations switching on electric current from the crane and converting the lifting or "sole" piece into a live magnet then lifting out the charge of material to any desired spot when the current is switched off and the sole piece is no longer active so that the material is released at once.

The sole piece is generally of very hard manganese steel to stand the "kick" when the heavy iron or steel is attracted and the shape depends on the material being for example concave for pig iron and steel scrap and flat for plates and rails whilst the wiring has to be particularly well insulated because of the sudden strain as the current is turned on.

A magnetic crane at work always gives one a very uncomfortable feeling that something might go wrong with the magnet and a ton or so of heavy steel billets be showered about from say 50 or 60 feet up. Certainly if anything happened to the supply of current such as a fault in the wires or the switches or a failure in the supply at the generating station the magnet would cease to function at once and would immediately drop its load with disastrous results. To guard against this some safety device is used generally in the nature of storage batteries carried on the crane which contain sufficient current to keep the magnet active long enough for the load to be deposited in safety and it may be stated that accidents are very rare.

Magnetic cranes are made in a variety of sizes generally to lift anything from one-third to one and a half ton. The capacity of course depends to some extent on the material to be lifted steel billets and ingots for example giving a better load than scrap wire or pig iron. Also the output can be increased by having a certain amount of labor to assist in "arranging" the load in the waggon especially when the latter is partially empty. The average figure can be taken as a capacity of 20-30 tons per hours whilst the consumption of current is not excessive.

NEW REGULATIONS.

OTTAWA, August 2 .—(Canadian Press).— Changes in the Canadian Copyright Act effected by legislation at the last session of parliament will probably come into effect by effluxion of time and not until January 1, next. it was stated at the Copyright Branch of the Department of Trade and Commerce yesterday. New regulations to give effect to the amendments have yet to be completed.

CHOLERA INFANTUM

A FATAL DISEASE OF CHILDREN

Cholera Infantum or summer complaint of children is one of the most dangerous bowel complaints during the summer months.

It begins with a profuse diarrhoea, the stomach becomes irritated, very often accompanied by vomiting and purging and the matter excreted from the stomach has a bilious appearance. The child rapidly loses flesh, is soon reduced to languor and prostration, and in a great many cases death ensues.

Mothers, if any of your children become sick with cholera infantum do not endanger their health, perhaps their life, by experimenting with some new and untried remedy; get one that has stood the test of time; one that will quickly offset the vomiting, purging and the diarrhoea. This you will find in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, a remedy that has been on the market for the past 75 years.

Mrs. W. A. Harrison, 10 Elevator Court, Halifax, N.S., writes:—"Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry saved the lives of three of my children when all other remedies failed. It stopped the vomiting and terrible diarrhoea with which they were troubled. I always keep a bottle of it on hand in case of emergency."

"Dr. Fowler's" is 50c. a bottle; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS IS SEEKING ACTION

Liberal Leaders Now In Control Want It to Take Definite Stand on Big Problems.

By HENRY WOOD

GENEVA, Aug. 2. — (United Press).—The fourth annual assembly of the League of Nations, which will convene at Geneva, September 3, for a month's session will be more pregnant of possibilities than any of the three pceding sessions.

The assembly gives every indication of being punctuated throughout with surprises. Two important changes or developments that have taken place in the League during the past year.

The League has now actually passed into the hands and control of the liberals, with a real leader. The League, during the three years of its existence, has cut its eyeteeth to an extent where it wants something real to chew on.

In other words the League instead of being content with handling more or less routine questions, proposes to butt in of its own intiative on current questions, such as reparations inter-allied debts the Ruhr, the near-east and everything else that is constituting an obstacle to peace.

While none of these questions figure at the present time on the agenda, owing to the fact that the agenda has to be drawn up and circularized to all Leaguers four months in advance, nevertheless the constitution of the League permits all such current questions to be brought up on the floor of the assembly.

Each assembly opens with a presentation by the League Council of its report for the past year. This corresponds to the usual "address from the throne" and a general debate immediately ensues.

Any member has the right to inject into the debate any current question, such as reparations or the Ruhr, by merely demanding why the council did not take up the question of its own initiative and try to solve it.

While the past assemblies have been a trifle shy about getting into deep water by injecting such questions, there is every indication that such a condition can no longer prevail. The League has admittedly received world-wide criticism for failure to tackle some of the more important questions that are mainfestly delaying world-wide adjustment. There is a steadily growing world-wide demand that the League become a more active element in the handling of every great international question.

Finally, heavy pressure is being brought to bear on Switzerland, Holland, Denmark, the Scandinavian countries and others to demand befor the Assembly that the League delve into the problems of reparations, inter-allied debts, the Ruhr and other questions that need immediate solution if Europe is ever to get readjusted.

The assembly will be in the hands of the liberals, with Lord Robert Cecil as leader, something which the assemblies have always lacked in the past.

Although Lord Robert Cecil has been a participant at all of the past assemblies, it has only been as the delegate from South Africa and not of England.

On the other hand the English delegation has always been headed by Lord Balfour. As the bitter political opponent of Lord Robert Cecil and the fact that the latter represented only South Africa, Lord Balfour has not only deprived Cecil of assuming leadership in the assembly, but he himsely never undertook leadership.

This year there is every indication that with Lord Robert Cecil heading the English delegation, he will assume virtual leadership, of the League Assembly. He will be surrounded by a group of other strong liberals such as General Smuts, who will come personally this time to represent South Africa, Branting of Sweden, Dr. Nansen of Norway, and many men who believe that the League and the League Assembly should begin playing the leading hole in international affairs.

Lord Robert Cecil is the arch-believer that the League should get into every current political question that needs settlement.

Another big surprise which the Fourth Assembly may witness is that of the application of Germany for membership. Powerful influences are now being brought to bear on Germany to enter the League at this time. No doubt exists but that she would be elected, but nevertheless that would entail not only a bitter fight but possible some startling consequences afterwards.

Probably the most constructive job which the assembly will tackle will be that of launching an international treaty of mutual guarantee as a basis of disarment.

Another important item on the agenda is the American program to limit the world-wide production of harmful drugs.

The election of Ireland as a member of the League will also take place during the course of the evasion.

WHO'S WHO IN NEWARK

Back in those old sinful wet days two gentlemen both far overtaken in alcoholic stimulant were seen under a lamp-post on a street corner in Newark clinging to each other for support.

As a spectator passed them he overheard the following dialogue carried on in somewhat fuzzy accents.

Said Souse Number One:

"Do you know Bill Talbot?"

Said Souse Number Two after a moment of reflection:

"No; whuzziz name?"

Said Souse Number One:

"Who?"

NEW ALTITUDE RECORD.

VILLA COUBLEY, France, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press). — In a flight yesterday under official control, Sadi Lecointe, the noted aviator, reached an altitude that may go down in the books as a world's record.

On descending after two hours in the air, one of his instruments showed that 10,800 metres had been attained, and another registered 11,000 metres, so that he actually reached a height somewhat close to seven miles. The ascent required eighty minutes. He was forced to descend when an oxygen bottle refused to work.

ROUP AND CHICKEN POX

These Contagious Diseases of Poultry May Be Cured

Prompt Treatment Will Save the Birds—Can be Cured in Ten to Twenty Days—Not Communicable to Men or Other Animals.

In the last few years the treatment of disease among poultry has received much study and many of the older ideas have been revised. Birds respond well to proper medicinal and hygienic treatment; in fact in many cases they show remarkable powers of reserve and resistance, thus comparing very favorably with other domesticated animals.

The idea that it is useless to try and treat a sick fowl is erroneous.

Last winter the Ontario Veterinary College carried out a number of experiments regarding the treatment and cure of roup. These tests established the fact that in many cases the disease could be controlled and the birds returned to usefulness in from 10 to 20 days.

Roup a Contagious Disease

Roup is a contagious disease that attacks the mouth, nasal passages, and eyes of fowl. The causative agent or germ has not yet been certainly demonstrated. The disease spreads rapidly through the flock, being favored by damp, cold, dark quarters, and for this reason roup is most prevalent during the winter months. The lesions in the mouth take the form of masses of yellow cheesy material which has a characteristic offensive odor. The nasal chambers and nostrils become plugged with exudates so that the bird is forced to breathe through the mouth, hence the bill remains open and breathing is often difficult. The eyes become inflamed and filled with a liquid discharge which later becomes thick and cheesy and completely fills the eye cavity. Often the whole side of the head is swollen and when both eyes are involved the bird is blind.

Treatment of the Disease

The sick birds must be removed from the flock and placed in dry, light and moderately warm quarters. It is useless to try and carry out any treatment unless this is done. Give opening medicine such as Epsom salts dissolved in the drinking water, about a quarter of a pound for every twenty-five birds; give for one day and repeat in a week. Catch each bird and proceed as follows: Remove all cheesy material from mouth and throat using a small pair of forceps or tweezers, scrape the sore places well. Don't be afraid of a little blood, but be sure and get down to healthy tissue. Dress mouth with a three per cent. solution of iodine; swab out well. If bird swallows a little of the solution it will do no harm. The nasal lesions should be treated by injecting a warm solution of boracic acid, about one teaspoonful to a teacup of water. Use a small syringe to force solution up nostrils. The eyes should be treated with the boracic solution. Wash out the eyes well and open up the lids if they are stuck together. Sometimes the whole eye cavity is filled with a thick cheesy material; remove this by pressure and the aid of the forceps. In severe eye cases a few drops of iodine solution may be used without ill effects. These eye lesions are often difficult to treat.

The above treatment is somewhat drastic and will take a little time, say three minutes for each bird, but if followed out faithfully and given a trial in suitable quarters it will be found to clear up most cases of roup, in two or three treatments which should be given every other day. It has been found that the average case of roup will clear up in about ten days and that soon thereafter the birds will commence laying again. Birds that have recovered from roup do not take the disease again.

Chicken Pox May Develop

Another condition which may appear along with roup, or as an independent disease, is the so called chicken pox, in which scabs and sores form on the wattles, combs and eye lids. The lesions are often about the size of a five cent piece and commence as small light raised areas that exude a thin discharge and soon become converted into crust-like scabs. This condition is quite contagious and requires prompt treatment to control. Catch the bird, and with a small rather dull knife scrape off the lesions until healthy tissue is reached. Don't be afraid of blood. Scrape well, then dress with iodine solution rubbed in well over entire head and wattles. Three or four treatments every other day will clean up most cases. Give birds opening medicine and remove from flock during treatment. Birds that recover from chicken pox are immune from further attacks. It is most essential to remove any ailing birds from the flock and it should be remembered that the discharges from the lesions carry infection so that all soiled litter and dead birds should be burnt.

These Diseases Spread by Contact

Roup and chicken pox spread from bird to bird by actual contact. Often the first case is introduced into a flock by the purchase of birds from infected premises or by handling of birds by a person who has recently been in contact with affected birds, or on the shoes or clothing. The best way to prevent roup is to preserve cleanliness n poultry runs and houses; to watch the flock carefully and at once remove and treat sick birds. It is advisable that the person who treats the sick fowls should recognize that he is dealing with a very contagious disease and should change outer clothing, clean boots and wash hands thoroughly before going among the flock, especially young chicks. Neither roup or chicken pox are communicable to man or any other animal.

MIND WASN'T ON WORK.

Gus Roloff, Cleveland, can think of many more harmless ways of working up a perspiration than getting into a bear's cage at the Zoo—with the bear inside. But that's what he did, to pick up pieces of a broken bottle someone else had thrown in. The bears looked awfully hungry, Gus testified.

CHICAGO MAKES SUCCESS CIVIC OPERA VENTURE

CHICAGO, Aug. 2 (Associated Press)—Chicago has gone into the Grand Opera business, and after a year's operation, the financial statement shows that the city is making a success of it.

Backed by a regiment of guarantors, who are to be found in all walks of business, commercial, industrial and social life, as well as by the general public, the Chicago Civic Opera Company has become almost as truly civic as a public library or a public park. The admission charged for performances, which is moderate and considered popular, though insufficient as yet to pay the full cost of entertainment, is the sole mark distinguishing the Chicago Civic Opera from other civic institutions with a general appeal.

Ther are 2,200 guarantors who stepped to the front when Harold F. McCormick and Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick contributed their holdings to the then Civic Opera Association.

It is now announced by Samuel Insull, President of the Opera company, that when the deficit for the first civic opera season, that of 1922-1923, was finally determined and made known, the guarantors responded immediately and unhesitatingly and fulfilled their pledges without demur.

Mr. Insull says: "Grand Opera in Chicago thus has passed into a stage of Civic Grand Opera, supported by as representative people as would be met by the tax collector gathering sinews for city government. The method of obtaining support closely approximates the municipal state subsidies provided operas abroad, the sole difference being that in Chicago a preferred list of taxpayers of all professions underwrite opera, while abroad, in many instances, financial losses are liquidated by general taxation."

AFGHANS INSTALL RADIO AND BUILD SCHOOLS

KABUL, Afghanistan, Aug. 2 (Associated Press).—Citizens of Afghanistan, in their effort to become modern, have established a radio station at Kabul. This fellows the opening of the first telegraphic communication between Afghanistan and India. There is now a telephone line from Kabul to Kandahar, and it is possible to travel by automobile between these cities.

Since the abolition of slavery in January of 1921, great strides have been made in education in Afghanistan. There is a new boys' school, caring for 150 youngsters under 12 years of age, and a school for women, both at Kabul, and several primary schools have been set up in the provinces. Compulsory school attendance has been decreed, though at present scarcely one person in a thousand can read and write. For the first time in the history of the country a press has come into existence, and five periodicals already have been established.

The greatest difficulty before the new government is the finding of men competent to carry out its reforms. The old officials were strenuously opposed to these innovations, and it proved necessary, early in 1922, to depose at a single stroke all the provincial governors. The new officials no longer wear national costumes, but dress in amusingly correct European fashion. Their offices are equipped with modern desks and chairs, and government clerks have been forbidden to sit on the floor while performing their duties.

Immediately following the evening prayer and the swift sunset, electric street-lights are flashed on and military bands march through the city, in full uniform, playing for the popular amusement.

THE GAMBLER

Claude Dessines held a modest clerkship in a Paris office. His salary was even more modest. So he frequented a gambling den.

He placed a ten franc note, half of his worldly belongings, on the zero.

The little ball rolled. Claude's eyes rolled. The attendant raked 350 francs in gold and paper over to Claude.

Mechanically he took the money, crumpled it in his hand and placed it again on the zero.

More rolling. Expressions of surprise from the spectators.

Claude stuffed his winnings into the deep pockets of his coat and blankly left the gaming house.

The cool night breeze brought back his thoughts.

He redoubled his steps. Soon he reached the little house in which she lived.

She, to whom he had confessed his love only a few hours before.

She who had nodded her assent and kissed him.

She, the lovely, fair Jeanne!

Through the clefts of the shutter he could see light.

Shyly he stole nearer, to catch a glimpse of her whom he loved.

Claude's eyes speed through the cleft.

There was her room. He saw the piano, which she had so often played for him. He saw the easel at which she painted every day. He saw the large sofa of red plush.

And on it was she—and at her feet Henri, the son of the count, who was just rising to place his lips on hers.

With a hoarse cry Claude receded.—

Two days later the body of Claude Dessines, the clerk, was found in the Seine. The police were puzzled when they discovered a large sum of money in the deep pockets of his coat.—Jules Denier, Bordeaux.

WEDDING CUSTOMS OF OLDEN DAYS

In the Beginning Marriage Was Merely A Social Contract

Marriage among Christians developed from the martial customs of pagan Greece and Italy, and out of like usages of the Jews. At first marriage was merely a social contract, the essence of which was the taking of the woman by the man. As time progressed, the church, in order to prevent abuses, introduced the custom of recognizing only those marriages where the priest gave nuptial blessings.

The ancient Anglo-Saxon bridegroom at the time of the betrothal, gave the bride a number of gifts as a pledge, or "wed," from which has come the word "wedding." A ring included in the gifts, was placed on the right hand. This was changed to the left hand at the marriage ceremony; the bridegroom, putting the ring first on the thumb, then on the first finger and then on the second finger to signify the unity. Finally the ring was placed on the bride's ring finger, as a reminder that, next to God, her duty was to her husband.

Ring Is Of Remote Origin

The use of the ring as a pledge is of remote origin. The Egyptian marriage service included the ring and the wearing of it gave the wife the right to issue orders in her husband's name. Wedding rings in olden times were chased, set with stones and inscribed with emblems, mottoes or the initials or names of the contracting parties.

Many superstitions have been attached to the ring. In Ireland, and in many places in England, it was supposed to cure a sore; and if rubbed on a wart would cause it to gradually disappear. The Romans believed in a peculiar virtue of the ring finger and their physicians stirred medicines with it.

At the marriage of the Anglo-Saxons, the bridegroom was presented one of the bride's shoes, as a token of the transfer of authority; and she was made to feel the change by a blow on her head given with shoe. After one of these ceremonies the wedding guests went to the bridegroom's home with the newly weds where a celebration was staged. Throwing old shoes as the wedded pair left the bride's home appears originally to have implied that her parents surrender all authority over her.

Old English Custom

An old custom in the North of England, was for the young men to strive, immediately after the ceremony, to pluck off the bride's garters. This was done before the altar. Although the bride was often thrown down in such contests, she generally was gartered with ribbons for the occasion.

In Scotland a bride was lifted across the threshold of her new home. It was taken as an unlucky omen if a dog ran between the bridal pair on their wedding day. In Derbyshire prospective brides told the bees of their wedding, and decorated the hives for the event. In many parts of the Highlands there still exists an ancient custom of breaking over the head of the bride a part of the wedding cake; the guests scrambling for the pieces.

Drinking wine at marriages was a custom derived by the English from their Gothic ancestors. The wine was drunk and the sops (cakes or wafers) were eaten after being blessed by the priest.

The Bridal Veil

In Genoa, a girl 15 or 16 years old, was kept strictly at home and a match was negotiated by her parents without her consent. The matchmaker, who was usually a woman, was presented a sum of money for her services on the wedding day.

China today arranges a great many of its weddings the same way. The bride, heavily veiled, preceded by her gift bearers, enters the home of her future mother-in-law, where the bridegroom awaits her. After the ceremony the veil is lifted and the couple see each other for the first time.

The origin of the bridal veil is one of the most peculiar customs that have been handed down from days of old. Originally nuptial ceremonies were performed under a square piece of cloth, held by each corner over the bride and groom in order to conceal the blushes of the former. The lifting or dropping of the veil as soon as the wedding ceremony had been concluded was emblematic of the fact that, being married, the bride might expose her face freely to the world.

The expression, "tying the knot," grew out of a superstition of the Babylonians. In one part of the ceremony a thread from the bride's dress and one from the bridegroom's suit were tied together into a knot.

ANIMALS SLEEP IN CURIOUS POSTURES

Wild horses and horses running at grass spend a good deal of their time in lying down. But of horses kept in stables, especially if they are tied up, two in five entirely refuse to lie down, and live always on their feet.

Yet a horse can sleep quite comfortably in a standing position. If you watch it doing so you will notice that it rests one leg at a time, depending upon the other three to sustain the weight of its body.

In this respect the elephant resembles the horse. An elephant wild in the jungle usually lies down to sleep, but the elephant in captivity sleeps standing up.

In spite of its capacity for hard work, an elephant seems to require very little sleep, for it seldom sleeps for more than four or five hours during the night. Its usual hours for rest are from ten to twelve, and again from about one to three.

The rhinoceros, too, can sleep in a standing position, although in a wild state it generally lies down to do so.

* * *

A wolf or a fox sleeps curled up, its nose tucked in close to the soles of its feet and blanketed by its bushy tail. If you watch your dog you will notice that, when very tired, this is the way in which he sleeps, but on the other hand, if just taking a cat nap, he often lies straight out, with his nose between his fore paws, or sometimes flat on his side, with all four legs stretched out.

All birds sleep standing up, and, not content with this, some, such as storks and cranes and gulls, stand on one leg only. Almost all birds, with the exception of owls, sleep with their head turned over the back, and beak thrust among the feathers between the wings and body. Owls simply drop their heads between their shoulders and seem to shrink up into a great bale of fluff.

The way in which a sleeping bird preserves its balance perched on a slender twig is explained by the curious construction of its legs and feet. Its clutch upon the twig is absolutely automatic.

SWEDISH SPEEDERS TO ESTABLISH OWN GUILT

STOCKHOLM, July 28 (Associated Press).—Unusual measures for preventing automobile accidents, and an excitedly original idea for keeping the appalling nuisance in check are features in the new motor traffic laws which have just been passed by the Swedish Riksdag.

A striking paragraph in the new law is that which provides for the compulsory use of recording speedometers on all motor vehicles. Such a device not only indicates the number of miles the car has run but also the rate of speed during any part of the run. Thus, on the one hand, the innocent driver who may be wrongly accused of exceeding speed limits, has a mechanical record with which to prove his innocence, while officers of the law can use the automatic record as irrefutable evidence against the guilty speeder. Up to the present, no recording speedometer for automobiles has been perfected, but promising experiments with such an instrument are being conducted, and the new law provides that, as soon as the mechanical problem has been solved, the government has the power to require the use of recording speedometers.

Drivers' licenses, under the new Swedish law, shall be issued only to persons who can pass the eye and ear tests prescribed by doctors. Each application must also be accompanied by a testimonial signed by a local motor traffic inspector to the effect that the applicant is known to be of sober habits and of orderly conduct. Each license issued must contain the photograph of the holder.

Inspectors of motor traffic are to be appointed for every province. They must qualify for the position either by graduating from a technical school or otherwise showing that their experience has given them expert knowledge. They must hold drivers' licenses and be familiar with all makes of cars.

The new speed limits in Sweden for passenger cars are 22 miles an hour in the city and 28 miles an hour in the country.

A PREMIER'S WIFE

LONDON, Aug. 2. — (Associated Press).—Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of Britain's new prime minister, was as calm and collected as her husband the day he was called from the serenity of the cool English countryside to the heat of a boiling political cauldron and, in a half hour consultation with the sovereign elevated to the summit of politics. And yet she and her children and her husband all acted in those important hours just as one who hasn't forced himself into an aristocrat's shell usually acts in times of such excitement, such personal thrill, such emotional happiness.

The king had hurried into town from the military manoeuvres at Aldershot to name a new prime minister, and the Baldwins, like the competing Cursons, had also come up from the country about the same hour.

From his outing garb the man who went to America not long ago to settle the debt changed into the long baggy trousers, the silk-faced overcoat and the top hat of diplomacy. From Number 11 Down Street, his official home that day as chancellor of the exchequer, he and Mrs. Baldwin walked outside to an ordinary taxi cab stand, summoned one of the machines, and set off for Buckingham Palace in answer to the important summons from the king. On the way Mrs. Baldwin got out, and her husband went alone to the door of the palace. His own private car did not come for him until later, but his use of an ordinary taxicab caused no surprise, for on several occasions he has gone afoot to see his sovereign.

Mrs. Baldwin, one of her daughters and a son-in-law, were outside the palace gates, unnoticed in the waiting crowd of hundreds, during the time that the chancellor of the exchequer was being transformed into a prime minister. The husband came away smiling, stopped his car, and picked up his family. He smiled easily as he posed for the camera men.

Arrived once more at home, the prime minister and Mrs. Baldwin expressed their high happiness in what had transpired to change their lives. But they were both rather conscious already of the burden that had been placed upon them.

"I want your prayers rather than your congratulations," Mr. Baldwin said to those who stopped him at his door to find out if he had really been made prime minister. A few minutes later Mrs. Baldwin, in speaking to interviewers with the same ease and directness that her husband has, remarked that she thought it was "all too wonderful."

Then she mixed a touch of regret with her happiness, a regret that she and her husband had never really been able to do what they wanted to do, had never in the whole of their married life been able to "live their own lives."

Wished for Farm

"We did not expect it," she said. "We did not hope for it. We just kept on doing the work which lay before us as it came. One must believe in the guidance of a Living Hand." She told of her happy anticipations a few months before, when her husband told her he was going out of politics for good. That was in those furious days before the crash of the coalition and the passing of Lloyd George. And she added that she thought her husband had spoken with true sincerity when he had told her recently he wished nothing better than to spend his days on his Worcestershire farm with his pipes and his pigs.

The night after his appointment, when London's political clubs had no other conversational topic, a story went the rounds that concerned Mr. Baldwin's visit that afternoon to the king.

According to this story His Majesty, after receiving Mr. Baldwin's acceptance of his offer, said "This makes me feel very happy," and Mr. Baldwin replied, "I do not feel happy at all, sir."

DISH WASHING

Simplify your dishwashing by adding a bit of soda to the water in which greasy cooking dishes are to be washed.

A Worth-while Reputation

THE head of one of this country's great manufacturing institutions says:

"The man who builds and the man who buys are both beneficiaries of reputation. To the one it is a continuous spur and incentive —to the other, the strongest of all guarantees that what he buys is worthy".

Patronize the manufacturer or merchant who has a reputation for honesty and fair dealing. Such motives must actuate the consistent advertiser. The man who invests real money in building a reputation for himself and his merchandise cannot afford to risk any of it by taking unfair advantage of his customers He must retain the goodwill of the buying public. Without this, his business cannot succeed.

Every time he advertises he puts his reputation in your hands. His products or the wares he has for sale must make good. His service must be as advertised.

That is why it pays to read the advertisements to deal with advertisers and to buy advertised goods.

Yes, is worth your while to read the advertisements.

QUIET TALKS

THE BAD BREAK

There's a Break everywhere you look, a bad break. It is in nature. The geologist finds it in the earth's crust and the astronomer in the upper blue. The biologist finds it in animal life.

The chemist constantly guards against the death element in the gases. The orchardist fights it by spraying. The farmer must overcome it to get a crop, and the stockbreeder vigorous young. The weather expert never knows when and where a sudden wild storm may bring destruction.

That break is in human life, too. Here it's a moral break. The banker and merchant think of it as they engage clerks, and plan surety bonds against somebody's failure to keep faith. The thoughtful parent and the wise teacher guard against it for the young people. We are all increasingly on our guard in a crowd. Even the mother is conscious of a something serious to be reckoned with in the will of her growing babe.

There's a break lurking everywhere. The break in nature grows out of the break in man. For man is the underlord of creation. He affects it. The two intertwine.

Away back that break began with God. Man was made free. He was like God in being free to think and act as he chose. There was the chance of a break. He could choose right, or wrong. He chose. He made a bad choice. That was the beginning of the break.

Do you remember the old garden story? The garden was full of fruit trees. Man was to eat freely of all he chose. Then God said, "The real things are the heart things. Let us keep in touch, real heart touch. It depends on you, your choosing to have it so."

"So, we'll call this tree here the tree of choice. I ask you not to eat of it, simply because I want you to stay in touch with me by choosing to. You may eat of it, of course, if you choose to.

"But, please, I ask you not to. I want your love because you choose to love, to stay in touch, and this tree is your opportunity." There was the chance for the break, in the man's power to choose as he pleased. And there the break came.

Mark keenly, that the break again with the man. It is what he did that made the break. There was no break on God's part, except the break in his heart as he saw the man break away. The old friendship was broken. It was broken by the man.

And we've all caught the break habit. It's contagious. It's easy to break. It's hard to break away from the break habit. Yet—yet, there is never an actual break with God except as each man makes it.

It's not a matter of that first man's break, even though he started the down-grade. It's each man's own break or not-break that matters. That, only that, but all of that. Every man stands on his own feet.

The old-fashioned word is sin. A new word sharpens the meaning. The break of sin is not merely a misfortune. It's not a thing to be cured by the surgeon's knife, nor the psychologist's formula. Else things could be fixed up by providing surgeons and psychologists enough.

It isn't merely a personal twist this way or that, more or less accidental or incidental. No, at the core, sin is in the choosing power. It's a preferring one's own way to God's. The root of that break is in the will.

There never has been any break on God's part toward man. That should be underscored black. His only break is with man's break. For the thing itself, that breaking choice, that was bad. That hurt man.

A hell of suffering was packed in that. For man's sake that must be fought. The snake in man's bosom must be caught and slain lest it sting the man's life clean out.

God's feeling toward man has never changed, not by as much as half the batting of your eye-lid. But he hates the break bitterly. That's why The Man came to let us know how God feels both about us, and about the break.

That's why the extreme thing of dying was done, to break our hearts with the love of it, and rid us of the results of the break, and to put a new power into us.

So the break is mended up by our new choice. And a new tree of choice will grow in our garden. And he and we will meet in heart touch again under the Tree of Choice, which will become a tree of life, never-ending fruitful fragrant life.

What a prince man is that has such power of choice. What a princely power that choosing power is that can break the plan of God. And—and, can make us friends again with such a God.

What a love it is in that Man's heart, and the Father's, to go to such extremes to mend that break. What a break, a bad break, that was that the Man did such an extreme thing to fix up.

And old Western stage-driver cried out in his delirium, "I'm on the downgrade. And I can't reach the brakes." Things seemed at their worst to him. That bad Break really puts things at their worst.

The Human Side

THE POWER OF SUGGESTION

"Laughter is catching." So are many other things. I was once called on to entertain at the "public" hour during the Chautauqua at Emporia, Kan. I had to start off on a 'cold collar.' The audience would not respond, and without either sympathetic or antagonistic listeners I can never get warmed up to the occasion. Listless, disinterested audiences freeze my brain cells. They will not work.

I told a few jokes without effect. Finally, with disgust I exclaimed: "I knew Kansas had been prohibition for so years, but I had no idea the sobering effect on the second generation would be so great. I am 'agin' such prohibition."

An old, one-galluised farmer in the third row from the rostrum "he-hawed" until he snorted. A ripple of laughter spread from section to section until I had to stop speaking and let them laugh.

Most of those laughing did not see the point of the joke at all. They simply laughed because the laughing of others brought on an emotion of good feeling and amusement. Everyone has seen crowds active in response to some stimulus, though the people generally never knew the cause of their action. Like sheep, 'they followed the leaders.'

This type of conduct among crowds is due to the power of suggestion. Fashions, sense of beauty, are often the result of suggestion. The strength and influence of suggestion depend directly upon the appeal to the unthinking, emotional part of our minds, which is the subconscious.

Most of us are of the "common herd" of humanity. As such, we do not take the trouble to think for ourselves: we let others do our creative thinking. Like children, we follow or imitate.

This response to suggestion is the explanation for many of the successes in advertising, revival meetings, medical cures, and often marvelous trade revivals.

Note the "bandanna" craze—and the tide of popular interest in ancient colors and designs, starting from the tomb of King Tut and spreading like fire in a stubble field.

Hts Own Fiction Character Coaxes Youth to Crime, Police Believe

By A. H. FREDERICK

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2— The story of a modern Frankenstein monster was revealed by arrest here of Carol Wilson, 22, deacon of a Los Angeles church and student of divinity.

But the modern version perhaps will read more happily than the famous classic, for a beautiful girl voluntarily has assumed the role of rescuer. Already she has succeeded in postponing the reckoning.

Police brand Wilson's case as the strangest the "blotter" has seen for many a day, a tangled case mayhap more fitting for the psychologist than for the criminologist.

The story opens in the dimly lit rooms of the student Wilson.

It shows him poring over books and papers far into the morning hours. For he crowded into his busy days theological study and "pot boiling" writing. He achieved some success at the latter, selling several scenarios.

Brain Child Born.

Then came the inspiration for a great criminal story. Dim and hazy at first was the conception of a mastermind that would outwit the best efforts of police, a gentlemanly Raffels who would lead officers a merry chase as he violated society's laws.

Gradually this brain child grew. The characteristics of the master criminal became more sharp. He took human form, became at last a human being—a Frankenstein monster.

Wilson mentally watched his master burglar at work, threw a romantic aura around him in his escapades—as whim grow rich.

Then, the time being ripe, the monster struck.

"Why don't you do as I am doing? It's easy and will bring you much money," it whispered.

Wilson continued his story, mentally living the perils and thrills of his hero-villain.

Wilson continued his story, mentally living the perils and thrills of his hero-villain.

The scheme was the fake sale of an auto. The car would be advertised, the most likely prospects selected and notified to be at a certain house at a certain time.

Image Tempts Maker.

Here the fiction-criminal would bind his victims and rob them of the "purchase price" of the auto, which price they had been told to bring.

But while the fiction-criminal became rich, Wilson stayed comparatively poor. He badly needed money if he were to continue his theological studies.

The story was finished and ready for the mails. Then came the last temptation.

The rest followed rapidly. Wilson came here and tried to put the scheme into effect, say police. But before he had had time one of his "prospects" became suspicious and notified police. Wilson was arrested on charge of conspiring to rob.

His sister, Orlena, heard of his plight. She hurried here, determined to save her brother if it takes every cent of her savings.

But Wilson isn't discouraged. He is firm in his determination to become a minister.

"The personality I had created at length materialized into my own former personality," he declares. "I realized the struggle between them—the good and evil—but I was young and my character not solidified.

"The glamor around my fictitious brain-child won like the boy who runs away to be a pirate.

"But now the metamorphis is past," declare Wilson. "When I am freed I will be a faithful servant—yet the master— of my mental creations."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Her

Kansas City, Mo.—"I was left in a very serious condition after childbirth and no one thought I could ever be any better. Then came the 'Change of Life' and I was not prepared for what I had to suffer. I had to go to bed at times to be perfectly quiet as I could not even stoop down to pick anything from the floor. I did not suffer any pain, but I was decidedly nervous and could not sleep. For nearly two years I was this way, and the doctor was frank enough to tell me that he could do no more for me. Shortly after this I happened to see in a newspaper an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In a few days the medicine was in the house and I had begun its use and I took it regularly until I was well. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to others when I have the opportunity."—Mrs. MAY LINDQUIST, 2814 Independence Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

FROCKS FOR THE SCHOOL MISS

By MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Today the small miss under school age may be quite the most smartly dressed person in the family, for more and more attention is being paid to her sartorial needs by artists and designers.

It is amazing how much style can be put into a small frock that takes scarcely more than a yard of material. And colors and materials once considered appropriate only for grown-ups have been appropriated to advantgae by the youngest members of society.

Yellow, lavender, orange, deep green and even purple are some of the shades you find in the organdies dotted swisses and linens sold for tiny frocks, and these colors are much smarter than the conventional pinks and blues.

The child's outfit today makes a complete costume, just as her mother's does. Her hat or bonnet is frequently made of the same material as her gown and has a cape or wrap to match, while socks and slippers carry out the same color scheme.

Hand embroidery is the most popular trimming. Gay embroideries and cross-stitch patterns copied from peasant costumes are probably the most popular and are seen on all the variations of the smock—also borrowed by our youngest mud-pie artists.

For finer frocks, handkerchief linen or organdie is adorned with embroidery in delicate colors. Pongee frocks and those of natural linen are often embroidered with sketchy designs in very bright floss or in black wool.

Appliqued designs are very popular, particularly in very conventional designs of fauna or flora. Pockets in the form of stiff boquets or perky rabbits are frequently the only notes of frivolity on plain slips.

Hemstitching is effective on voile, linen or light silk, and so is faggoting. Some tiny frocks are completely covered with ruffles of the material or of lace or very fine net.

As for accessories, the small child has practically everything to choose from that her mother has—small parasols of crettone or linen with gay designs, handbags of every possible material and size, necklaces of bright beads and colored sandals of every hue.

QUIZ CORNER

CANADA-UNITED STATES TRADE.

Q—What is the present trade between Canada and the United States?

A—Canad stood third among the countries to which the United States exported good during April. Cuba headed the list and Great Britain came second. During April Canada received from the United States goods valued at $36,248,859 as compared with $21,296,258 during April 1922.

CANADA'S STATUS IN THE EMPIRE.

Q—What is Canada's status in the Empire?

A—Canada is one of the self-governing dominions within the British Empire. In Canada the King is represented by the Governor-General, who receives his appointment at the hands of the Imperial Government. Canada is entirely independent so far as her domestic affairs are concerned, and to all intents and purposes in all other matters, the Imperial Government having the right to interfere in Canadian affairs only in cases where action taken by Canada would clash with the interest of the Empire as a whole.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Teresa Desmond ("Terry"), seven years old, left much to herself, believes in fairies and worships Juliet Divine, the stage name of her beautiful half-sister. She rides in a gorgeous car and talks of a millionaire.

Terrence Desmond, their father, is caretaker of an estate on Lotty Island and had such-and-such taken place in Ireland years ago (he claimed) he would have been a Lord. Julia's flippant talk about millionaires angers him—he is prone to rages.

Mary Desmond, Terry's mother and Julia's stepmother, fears "disgrace" in the latter's career.

Mrs. Peter Parmalee, owner of the house, wires that she is coming out to spend a few days.

Betty Sheen, her 17-year grandaughter is coming with her.

Miles Sheridan is Betty's fiance.

Terry, fearing that an elegant teddy bear is to be taken from the house is discovered in the act of taking it out of Betty's room.

This escapade results in the Desmond's leaving Silverwood, the Parmalee place.

Tom Perrin, a prosperous friend of Julia's advances money by which Desmond open a road house known as the Blue Moon. There Terry dwells three years. One night she is awakened by news of an accident.

CHAPTER V.

Cinderella and the Prince.

Instantly the child was wide awake. "Is anyone killed?" she asked.

"No, nobody killed or hurt," esmond answered. "Come along. Stir your stumps! Your mother'll be here with clean sheets. She'll tell you about it. I've got to see what there is to eat and drink!"

While Terry struggled to fasten her dress, Mary appeared, her arms full of bed linen.

"It's an auto broken down," she explained, "nearly in front of the house. The people roused your father and me, tooting their horn, and the motor was making a horrid noise, too. Nothing will budge the car, and it's come on to rain hard,—a cold, freezing rain. The people want us to take them in. I never was more surprised in my life than to see who one of them is. You'd never guess. Betty Sheen!"

"Oh, Mother, that hateful girl!" the child exclaimed. "I don't want her to be in my bed!"

"She won't be," Mary said. "She and the lady who's with her, a paid companion I guess, will have the big bed in the next room, and the young man Miss Sheen's engaged to will be put in here. You and Father and I must do the best we can in two of the little private dining-rooms, and the chauffeur'll sleep in the car. I'll make up a bed for you on a sofa. It's after twelve now, so the night won't be long; and I expect the car'll be ready for a start in the morning."

"Did you let Miss Sheen in, to pour coals of fire on her head?" Terry gravely enquired.

Mary Desmond laughed. "You funny child! Well, maybe there was some such idea in our heads. Anyhow, Father wouldn't think it was business to refuse people shelter."

"I don't want to see Miss Sheen," Terry said. "I wish she wasn't going to marry that man with the nice voice. I thought she was married long ago."

"We thought so too," said Mother. "But the companion—quite a pleasant woman—was telling me about Mrs. Parmalee. We knew she never came back to Silverwood after she went to New York three years ago. But there was no one to give us news. It seems the pool old lady got sick, and the doctors sent her to some cure place in France. Miss Sheen was with her, of course. But the cure did no good. They went back to Paris, and Mrs. Parmalee lingered on, till a month ago. Mr. Sheridan—that's the young man—travelled over to see the ladies several times, but for some reason he and Miss Sheen didn't marry. It would have been a sad sort of wedding with the old lady so sick: but now it's to be soon; and the three were on their way to Silverwood when the auto went wrong. Miss Sheen has to meet her grandmother's lawyer at Silverwood, and clear up some business. She was quite pleasant, and looks pretty as a picture in her mourning."

"Did she—say anything about me?" Terry stammered, her heart beating.

"Not a word. I expect she's forgotten. She wouldn't have recognized us, if I hadn't blurted out her name."

Terry asked no more questions. But it was queer that she should have dreamed of Josephine and the long-lost Teddy when a car with Miss Sheen in it hooted and thundered before the door.

She was too highly keyed to sleep during what remained of that night, and the sofa was so narrow that she child was glad to get up with the first flicker of daylight.

Nobody else seemed to be stirring, however. The house was still, save for Father's loud, regular breathing in the seat room. He and Mother slept on a mattress laid on the floor. They were not disturbed by constant threats of falling out!

As for the visitors, they were no doubt resting cosily in the clean, fresh beds given to them. Terry was the martyr!

Wrapped in a shawl of her mother's, with her clothes over her arm, she stole out of the pink and blue dining-room. There were not toilet arrangements there, and the child planned to wash and dress in the kitchen before anyone else came down. Then she would be able to run out of doors so that Miss Sheen wouldn't see her.

Terry splashed valiantly in a big tin basin of cold water, slipped into her clothing in haste as the light grew, but felt untidy and wretched because her masses of hair were uncombed, unbrushed.

She was hungry, too, and as Mother might not be down for half an hour, the child began poking at the remains of fire in the range. Close by stood a full scuttle of coal, but it was heavy, and no shovel could be seen.

Difficulties roused Terry's spirit. She tried to lift the scuttle, found that she could not, and began to drag it across the floor. The piled lumps of coal fell with a noise which seemed loud in the sleeping house.

"Oh, bother!" exclaimed the child, and bent her energies to picking up the scattered lumps. "I'm so hungry! I'm so cold!"

It was then that the electric light was switched on and a voice spoke behind her, at the door.

"Hello!" it said. "Are you Cinderella?"

Terry jumped to her feet, and turned. She had never heard any voice like this, until last night, so she knew whose it was; that of "the young man who was going to marry Miss Sheen."

How thankful she was that she'd finished dressing! The thought of this narrow escape brought the blood to her face, and the creature who whirled round to face Miles Sheridan was a childish vision of rose-white and red-gold.

She amazed him even more than he amazed her, for somehow Terry was not surprised that the man of the voice should be black-browed and thin, with a dark, eager face, brown as a gipsy's. She believed now that a true image of him had come into her mind when she heard him speak last night. He was just what she'd expected and she wondered what it was in her that made him stare. Perhaps he was thinking her rude because she hadn't answered his question. She would hate him to think that!

"I've often played I'm Cinderella," she explained.

The young man smiled. He had very white teeth and the smile was like a sudden light in darkness. Before it came, though, he had been looking quite good-natured, there'd been a tardiness about his clean-shaven face.

His nose was rather like the nose of a man in a picture which hung in Father and Mother's bedroom: the picture of some English soldier-duke who had lived in old days.

This man's eyes were light, though his brows and lashes were so black. The thought of pools flashed through Terry's nature-loving mind — pools among dark reeds when the sun is high.

"Then I suppose it was your fairy godmother who routed me out of bed and sent me down at this unearthly hour to help you with that coal, Miss Cinderella," he laughed.

Lifting the heavy scuttle as if it were a basket of flowers, he poured enough coal into the dying fire to renew without choking it.

"There!" he said. "That's right for the moment. Is it Cinderella's job to get breakfast these cold mornings?"

Terry shook her head shyly. She began to explain that she hadn't been able to sleep on a sofa, in a strange room, but remembered that it was because of him she'd been banished to both. She stopped and blushed again.

Easiest Way to Remove Ugly Hairy Growths

(Beauty Culture)

Here is a method for removing hair from arms, neck or face that is unfailing and is quite inexpensive: Mix a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water and spread on hairy surface. After 2 or 3 minutes, rub it off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. No harm or inconvenience results from this treatment, but be careful to get genuine delatone and mix fresh as wanted.

NEW U.S. DEPARTMENT.

"Department of Communications" to take the place of the Postoffice Department is the suggestion made in the report for reorganization of the government administration, recently. This was made in lieu of the great development of radio in past years. In fact, a special bureau for telegraph and telephone service, particularly radio, is recommended.

885 U. S. STATIONS.

Uncle Sam is in charge of 885 radio stations in his territories. Of these the navy has 533 ship stations and 52 land stations and the army has 180 land stations. The rest are divided among the Postoffice, Commerce, Interior and Treasury Departments.

Less time is used in the Dominion, now, for shaving. And the millions of men who save that time, are also saved sore, irritated faces.

Now we offer you the means to join these millions. To find out what they found out about shaving creams. No expense to you. We pay for the test.

And you will discover why we worked for 18 months, making 130 experiments, perfecting Palmolive Shaving Cream. You'll at once appreciate the 5 distinct ways in which it gives better shaves:

By multiplying itself 250 times in richest lather.

By softening any beard in one minute—without "rubbing."

By the lather that lasts 10 minutes, if necessary.

By the way extra strong-walled bubbles hold each hair erect, for easier, cleaner cutting.

By that cool, soothed after-feel—the result of carefully blended palm and olive oils.

Millions of men could tell you. But it's more satisfactory to find out for yourself. If the test should fail—we are the only losers.

NEW YORK LOST PITCHER'S BATTLE

Pittsburgh Won Close Game From the Giants—Cincinnati Topped Philadelphia—St. Louis Took Two.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Pittsburgh evened the count of a five game series with New York by winning the fourth game yesterday, 2 to 1. After the Giants had scored in the first inning on singles by Groh and Meusel, the Pirates took the lead in the sixth by scoring two runs on a base on balls, Rawlings' single and Carey's triple to left centre.

The game was a pitchers' battle between Bentley and Cooper, but Bentley was taken out in the eighth to make way for a pinch hitter after two Giant batsmen had reached base. Score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 100 000 000 | 1 | 5 0 |
| Pittsburgh | 000 002 00x | 2 | 4 1 |

Bentley, Jonnard and Gowdy; Cooper and Schmidt.

Cincinnati 5, Philadelphia 3.

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.)— Cincinnati bunched hits on Ralph Head in two innings yesterday and defeated Philadelphia 5 to 3. Benton was hit hard and was relieved by Luque in the eighth inning, but fast fielding by the home team kept down the score of the visitors. Two lightning double plays cut off the threat of the Phillies in the last two innings. Score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Philadelphia | 000 102 000 | 3 | 11 2 |
| Cincinnati | 200 100 20x | 5 | 10 0 |

Head and Wilson; Benton, Luque and Hargrave.

Chicago 8, Boston 2.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2. — (Canadian Press.)—Great pitching and hitting by Grover Alexander enabled Chicago to defeat Boston yesterday, 8 to 2. Alexander made a home run, his first in two years, which sent two runners in in front of him in the fourth inning and put the Cubs out in front. They continued to bunch hits after that, Miller cracking out his fourteenth homer of the season and Statz, his eighth. Score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Boston | 200 000 000 | 2 | 8 0 |
| Chicago | 000 411 02x | 8 | 15 1 |

Genewich, Fillingham and Smith; Alexander and O'Farrell, Hartnett.

St. Louis Won Two.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—St. Louis went into a tie with Brooklyn for fifth place by capturing a double-header from the Dodgers here yesterday. After winning the first game, 11 to 10, the Cardinals were forced to travel fourteen innings before annexing the second, 7 to 6. A squeeze play gave the Cardinals victory in the second contest. Scores:

First Game:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Brooklyn | 111 102 004 | 10 | 13 3 |
| St. Louis | 000 081 002 | 11 | 13 1 |

O.B.A.A. and T.A.B.A. Have Buried the Hatchet.

The trouble between the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association and the Toronto Amateur Baseball Association has been satisfactorily adjusted.

The O.B.A.A. agreed to let a representative of the T.A.B.A. sit in at meetings of the Ontario body in an advisory capacity, and the local association is extending a similar courtesy. T.A.B.A. officials confirmed the T.A.B.A. action with regard to Frank Breen, and declared him eligible to play in Toronto. The recommendation of Player Sparks is subject to a re hearing. The dates on which the T.A.B.A. intend declaring winners are acceptable. This means the senior date is extended from September 15 to September 22

TO PLAY TONIGHT

Lakeview Juniors and C. G.E. Intermediates will meet in the second game of a series at Riverside Park this evening, with Whitehouse and Frost as the probable twirlers. These teams put up an interesting battle in the first game the Electricians winning by a one run margin.

No admission is charged at the gate but a collection is taken to be used in assisting the league winners in their O.B.A.A. championship games. It should be a great game this evening with a pitching duel that should tickle the fans

OSHAWA LEADS DIVISION 'A'

OSHAWA, Aug. 2.—The games of the Central Ontario Baseball League Saturday had an important bearing on the championship of each division. Oshawa's win at Leaside gives them a stranglehold on Division "A" in the two home games—one each with Lindsay and Bowmanville.

| | Won | Lost | P.C. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Oshawa | 3 | 0 | .1000 |
| Leaside | 2 | 2 | .500 |
| Bowmanville | 0 | 1 | .000 |
| Lindsay | 0 | 2 | .000 |

Quaker Girls Lost to Canadian Woollens.

The Canadian Woollens defeated the Quakers 15 to 5 last evening in the final game of the first half of the schedule. While the Woollens had the edge throughout, they did not have any run-away game, for the Quakers put up a good battle for the honors. Owing to the erection of the Chautauqua tent it was necessary to change the location of the diamond from the Armoury grounds to the area in front of the Collegiate.

The players were:

Woollens: Patterson, p; Mann, c; Sturgeon, 1b; Clarke, 2b; Gregory, 3b; M. Hocks, ss; D. Hocks, ss Drury, lf; Taylor, cf; Bradley rf, Todds and Kent, spares.

Quakers: Nash, p; D. Mortimer, c; Fowler, 1b; Edwards, 2b; Connors, 3b; Follis, ss; M. Mortimer, ss; Foster, lf; McCallum, cf; Miller, rf; Thorn, spare.

ATHLETICS HAVE LOST 7 STRAIGHT

St. Louis Took Double Bill Yesterday — Cleveland Took One From New York.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.)— St. Louis took another double-header from Philadelphia yesterday, winning the first game, 2 to 0, and the second, 8 to 3. The Athletics have now lost ten games in a row, and have dropped to seventh place.

The first game was protested by Manager Mack following the banishment of Pitcher Danforth of St. Louis, who was alleged to have been discoloring the ball. Danforth held the locals to two hits, up to the ninth, when he was removed. Score:

First Game:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| St. Louis | 000 000 110 | 2 | 10 1 |
| Philadelphia | 000 000 000 | 0 | 2 0 |

| Philadelphia | 200 100 000 | 3 | 10 2 |

Kolp and Severeid; Heimach, Rommel and Perkins.

Cleveland 5, New York 3.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Cleveland took the first of a four-game series from the New York Americans here yesterday, 5 to 3. The visitors knocked out Pennock in the first inning, landing on the left-hander for five hits, including a triple by Stephenson and a home run by Lutzke. Smith was hit hard by New York, but was saved by fine support especially by Speaker and Lutzke. Ruth hit his twenty-fifth home run of the season in the ninth inning with Witt on base. Score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cleveland | 400 000 010 | 5 | 8 1 |
| New York | 000 100 002 | 3 | 10 1 |

Smith and O'Neill; Pennock, Bush and Hofmann.

Divided Double Header.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.— (Canadian Press.)—Chicago defeated Boston 4 to 2, in 11 innings, and then the home team won the second game of the double-header yesterday, 7 to 3. Robertson held Boston to six hits in the first game and Chicago scored two runs in the eleventh with the help of a hit. Blankenship was hit hard in the first inning of the second game, Joe Harris' triple accounting for three of Boston's four runs in that inning. Scores:

First Game—

| | | | |

Postponed games—Roseneath at Harwood; Roseneath at Warkworth; Campbellford at Hastings; Orland at Campbellford.

BALL GAMES TO-NIGHT

Sacred Heart Grounds: Juvenile, Lock Works vs. Hillcrests.

King Edward grounds: Midget, Maple Leafs vs. Sacred Heart.

CLASSY BALL BY THE JUVENILES

Sacred Heart Score Only Run in Game With Maple Leafs—Good Pitching.

Good pitching and sparkling fielding plays featured the Juvenile fixture at Riverside Park, last evening, when Sacred Heart scored the only run of the game with Maple Leafs, Rody scored the tally after two were out on the first. The Sacred Heart shortstop hit a long high fly to the right, which sent Baunon back, when he turned to get the range on the ball the fielder couldn't track it, and the spalding dropped to the ground Baunon was still looking for it when Rody was racing for third. "Red" Franks took a hand in the hunt for the ball but Rody was home before the pellet was recovered and sent in to the plate Both teams had some nice chances to score as the game proceeded, but the pitchers were too good.

Sheehy twirled his best game of the season, restricting the Leafs to two single. Bradley was touched for five singles and like Sheehy did his best work in the pinches. The pitchers had to be good as both teams put runners on third.

Sacred Heart after getting a run in the first, put two on in the third when Collins and Jones singled, with one down. Milloy fanned and Rody was thrown out leaving the runners stranded.

Griffin singled in the sixth, only to be forced at second by Rishea. Franks after touching Griffin threw down to first, allowing Rishea to make second. The Sacred Heart catcher stole third and was caught when Jimmy Johnston pulled a hidden ball on him. The pitcher threw out Masterson.

Thirnbeck, for the Leafs, got a pass with two out in the first and stole second. Franks fanned.

A pass to Baunon and Marchen's single started the Leafs off well in the third. Bradley attempting a bunt, dropped the ball in Sheehy's glove and Marchen was doubled off first. Baunon went to third on a wild pitch. Hall was passed, and when a hit meant a run, Sheehy tightened up and fanned Thirnbeck.

Franks hit to left in the fourth and stole second. Johnston fanned. Grant sent a long fly to Griffin and the left fielder came in to make a nice catch on Delahaye's fly.

The Leas tried hard to tie it up in the seventh but a nice double play stopped them. Grant missed three. Delahaye was safe on Milloy's fumble. He stole second and was making third when Baunon dumped the ball in front of the plate.. Rishea returned the ball to first and Collins retunred the ball to the catcher who got Delahaye coming into the plate. It was a great finish to a well-played game.

Rotary Bantams Defeat Kiwanis.

Rotary Bantams defeated Kiwanis Tuesday evening by 7 to 2, in the first game of the second half. The youngsters played good baseball, and Guiry was particularly effective. E. Wolff getting the only hit that scored runners when he singled in the fifth, scoring two. McDuffy worked the hidden ball stunt on Gillespie after the latter had doubled.

SOME FISH STORIES.

Big Peeny, since breaking his finger, has turned into a real fisherman. You ought to hear him tell of some of the fish that he did not land. The ball team are thinking of taking a fishing trip to the home of Jack Williams at Verona.—Belleville Intelligencer.

A CAMPBELLFORD RINK OF BOWLERS.

USUAL BEATING AT KINGSTON FOR PETES ARE DEFEATED 15-2

Solomon Crew Never in the Hunt in Yesterday's Big Four Fixture in the Limestone City.

If the Kingston fans are wondering how the Petes have been up at the top of the heap during the Big Four second half races, they can hardly be blamed, for the Solomon crew seem unable to play ball in Kingston.

Yesterday, for the fourth time this season, they were beaten in the Limestone City, and they made a good job of losing, being walloped 15 to 2 in seven innings.

In four games at home Kingston have scored 50 runs against the Petes, while in the same number of games at Riverside Park the Ponies have made but 4 runs. Write out your own card as to the explanation—it is not readily apparent.

Yesterday's fixture saw the Peterborough crew at their worst. They could not field, most of them could hot hit, and many of their plays started on the wrong foot, with the result that Kingston scored early and often.

Realising that the game with Belleville here on Saturday is the crucial struggle in the second half race, Manager Solomon saved Heckman for that clash, and sent Scott Hutchison in against Kingston. The big left-hander was the victim of poor support by his team-mates, made two errors himself, and the Ponies mixed hits with their opponents' defensive slips to good advantage. After the Ponies had scored five runs with only one out in the fourth, McElroy was sent to the rescue, and got the side out after three more counters had registered. "Lefty" held the Kingston crew in check nicely for the balance of the game.

Gallagher, who has been no mystery to the Petes recently, turned in a good game yesterday, fanning ten and holding the visitors to six hits. Comolli was the only one to get two, the first baseman driving in both of the Petes' runs and running his list of consecutive games in which he has hit safely to nine. In that string he has made 16 hits in 31 times at bat for a .516 percentage.

The Petes lost two-thirds of their outfield in the fourth inning, when Wolfe and Collins, running at top speed for Somerville's drive to right, collided, and both were stunned. The ball dropped safely, and Somerville got a two-base hit, while both outfielders were too dazed to continue. Lefty Turner and Heckman replaced them in the gardens.

The Petes got half of their small total of runs in the first inning. Shaughnessy was hit to start with, and Johnston moved him around to second with a sacrifice. Ansaldo hoisted one to Gallagher, after which Comolli drove in the run with a single to left. Helson's strike-out retired the side.

The Ponies got that one back and added another in their half. Nicholson started it with a single to centre, and Wolfe's wild throw sent him to second. Twigg got a cheap hit on a bounder that hopped away from Helson. Daley grounded to Comolli for the first out. Batstone's roller got away from Ansaldo, Nicholson scoring. Cherry's long single down the left field foul line sent Twigg home. Somerville and Teeple flied to Alsaldo.

In the second, Swanston fanned. Wolfe lined into Galagher's hands, and the pitcher then threw out Collins.

Kingston got a run after two were out. Ansaldo tossed out Rice, and Gallagher flied to Collins. Nicholson singled over second. He then stole second, going on to third when Swanston threw low to the bag. Twigg's Texas Leaguer to right scored Nicholson. Twigg stole second, but Daley was thrown out by Helson.

Hutchinson first up for the Petes in the third got a life when Gallagher threw low to first. Shaughnessy fouled to Rice. Johnston singled to right and Hutchinson was out at third trying to take two bases on the drive. Batstone made a nice catch of Ansaldo's foul fly to wind up the inning.

The Ponies bagged three. Batstone started it with a single to centre and went to second on Hutchinson's wide throw to first on an attempt to catch Batstone off the bag. Cherry flied to Shaughnessy. Somerville singled past the box and stole second, and Teeple drew a walk, filling the bases. Rice hit to Ansaldo, who hesitated and then threw low to second, everybody being safe, while Batstone scored, Gallagher struck out, but Nicholson singled to left, scoring Somerville and Teeple. Twigg lined to Johnston.

The Petes tossed away a great chance in the fourth. Comolli walked, Helson doubled to right, and Swanston singled to centre, Nicholson just missing a shoe-string catch. With the bases full and none out, and Hutchinson in a row, and got out of a bad hole.

The only thing the Ponies did in their half was to score eight runs. After Daley had flied to Collins, Batstone singled past third and went to second on a balk. Cherry's single to centre scored Batstone. Somerville's drive to right, on which Wolfe and Collins collided, went for a double, Cherry going to third. Turner replaced Wolfe in centre field and Heckman went to right in place of Collins. Teeple's single through short scored Cherry and Somerville. Rice hit to Hutchinson, who threw low to second, and everybody was safe. Gallagher's single to left sent in another pair of counters, and McElroy relieved Hutchinson. He walked Nicholson to start with, and then struck out Twigg. Daley, however, up for the second time in the inning, tripled over Shaughnessy's head, Gallagher and Nicholson scoring. Daley cashed in on a wild pitch. Batstone was out by being hit by a batted ball, retiring the side.

Shaughnessy started the Petes' fifth with a single to left and Johnston drew a pass. Ansaldo fanned. Comolli cut a single past second, scoring Shaughnessy. Helson forced Comolli, Teeple to Somerville. Helson stole second, but Swanston struck out.

For Kingston, Cherry rolled to McElroy, and was out. Somerville beat out a hunt and stole second. Helson tossed out Teeple, Somerville going to third. McElroy threw out Rice.

In the sixth Turner lined to centre, Nicholson making a nice catch. Heckman and McElroy struck out.

In the Ponies' half, Gallagher flied to Heckman. Nicholson walked but was forced at second on Twigg's roller to Ansaldo. Twigg stole second and went round to third on Swanston's low throw.

Shaughnessy first up in the seventh struck out. Johnston walked, and Ansaldo was safe when Nicholson dropped his drive. Comolli flied to Cherry in left, and Helson forced Ansaldo.

Helson threw out Batstone, first up in Kingston's half of the frame. Cherry walked and registered when Somerville tripled to right. Somerville remained on third, while McElroy tossed out Teeple. Rice rolled to Johnston.

The game was then called on account of darkness.

THE FEATURE OF THE SEASON

Big Four Second Half Honors Depend Upon Saturday's Game.

Yesterday's events in the Big Four races left Belleville and Peterborough tied for the leadership, and the section honours will, all intents and purposes be decided here on Saturday afternoon when Belleville will clash with Manager Solomon's outfit at Riverside Park. The Kingston Ponies are not yet out of the race, although their chance is an outside one.

The standing is as follows:

| | Won. | Lost. |
|---|---|---|
| Peterborough.... .... | 6 | 3 |
| Belleville .... .... .... | 6 | 3 |
| Kingston .... .... .... | 5 | 4 |
| Cobourg .... .... .... | 1 | 8 |

Kingston's only chance for a tie is to win their three remaining games, two of which are with Belleville and one with Cobourg, and have the Petes lose one of their three fixtures, one with Belleville and two with Cobourg.

If the Petes win the three remaining games they can be headed off, and Saturday's fixture with Belleville here looks like the hardest part of the contract. Peterborough victory in that engagement will practically mean the Petes are winners of the second half title.

Saturday's game promises to be the feature of the season, and should provde more excitement than a dozen ordinary battles.

It will be called up at 3 o'clock, and the attendance outside fans will be unusually large.

Wild-Cat Publity in the Silby Scrap.

Champions of all who arranged facts to suit themselves were the promoters of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight. They broke records.

First they gave the newspapermen false statements that they had the second installment of the Dempsey purse ready before the 15 when the payment was due.

Next they flashed on the press a telegram saying the "one thousand an two" seats had been sold in Omaha. Investigation proved that about fifty had been sold.

On top of that they showed a fake telegram announcing that Louis Hill, the big power of the Great Northern Railroad was coming with "cash and securities to back the fight." The message as delivered by the Western Union was signed Louis W. Till and it was admitted later that the name was changed in the copies handed out to the press.

Also, the promoter when asked to get Gibbons' measurements, turned over to the press column of figures that made Gibbons bigger than Dempsey overnight. Gibbons knew nothing about and neither did Eddie Kane.

Then, after having destroyed all confidence that the newspaper men might have placed in them the promoters turned around after they had made a "bust" of their own fight, and blamed the close of their dream on New York newspapermen who had been hired by Tex Rickard to kill the fight.

INJURED AIN.

In reaching for a well thrown ball at first base last night Chuck Allen fell heaviliy to the ground and wrenched his knee badly. Early in the season Allen twisted this knee when trying out with Millcrests and had just recovered from the accident. The injury this time is very painful and the doctors say that the big fellow will be out of the game for the balance of the season—Port Hope Guide.

The young couple who invented kissing had just been eating crab-apples or green persimmons.

WRESTLER HAS A SHORT MEMORY

Truth and Publicity Do Not Go Hand-in-Hand With Some Mat Men.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—In their desire to get into print professional athletes, especially boxers, wrestlers and their managers have a tendency to twist facts and overlook the truth.

It is apparent in some publicity that has been sent out recently in the interest of Nat Pendleton, "Olympic champion" wrestler, that the memory of either Pendleton or his managers does not extend back as far as 1920 and they apparently have forgotten the last Olympic games in Antwerp.

Claiming that none of the professional wrestlers would give him a chance, Pendleton recently announced that he was going to turn boxer and he quoted a flock of reasons why he felt he could accomplish the switch over.

On a flashy poster, Pendleton is held up as "the world's intercollegiate and Olympic champion wrestler," as "America's representative and winner of the world's wrestling championship at the Olympic games, Antwerp, 1920."

Referring to the official record book of the Olympic games as compiled and certified to by the International Olympic Association, the following can be found under "Wrestling Catch-as-Catch-Can Style."

"Heavyweight class: Roth (Switzerland) won; Pendleton (United States) second; Meyer (United States and Nilsson (Sweden) tied for third."

This is rather conclusive that Pendleton is not the "world's Olympic wrestling champion" and he was not exactly "America's representative" at Antwerp as there were many wrestlers on the American team.

Under a caption—"Challenge!" the advertising matter also says:

"Nat Pendleton guarantees to overpower Jack Dempsey in a bare-hand rough and tumble match in less than ten minutes. Dempsey is invited to step on the mat at any of Pendleton's public appearances. If Pendleton fails he agrees to pay Dempsey the total receipts of the house."

Dempsey, perhaps, will get a kick out of his challenge. The receipts at a wrestling match under the present conditions in New York would not be enough to pay Dempsey for the tape on his hands.

Another entry on the board announces that Pendleton pledges himself "on my honor as an American to fight ever and always against dishonest influences in professional athletes."

An Extra Game For the Kingston Fans.

KINGSTON, Aug. 2.—(Special)—Local baseball fans are in for an extra game of ball in the Big Four series as the Cobourg team has asked to have the game scheduled for that town on Saturday played here on Friday evening owing to the fact that the Cobourg grounds have been taken over by the Horse Show Society and is being prepared for that big event which opens next week. This makes it impossible for the ball team to have the grounds and the Cobourg team has arranged with the locals to play the game here on Friday evening. This will give three games here instead of two and the fans are accordingly elated over the prospects. The game will be played at 6 p.m. as usual.

An almost six-foot New Yorker has married a midget of 40 inches, and we'll bet she's boss.

BARGAIN BAZAAR AT PRIMEAU'S IN FULL SWING NOW

"One of the Cleanest Stocks Ever Offered," Patrons Say.

The carinval of bargains at Jack Primeau's shop of Fashion Craft, is now in full swing, and is one of the biggest events of its kind ever staged there. "One of the cleanest stocks ever offered the public in Peterborough," is the comment that has been made by several patrons.

The store is attractively decorated for the occasion, and the stock is laid out and plainly marked for self-serve buying.

The stock is large and of unusually high quality for a sale, and coupled with the low prices made on it, offers exceptional values.

KEENE LOSE FIRST GAME OF SEASON

Defeated by Cognawagas 6-2 in East Peterborough League.

At King Edawrd school grounds last evening, Keene received their first defeat this year in the East Peterborough League, Cognawagas being responsible. Robertson started for Keene, but was no puzzle to the Cogs and gave way to O'Dette at the end of the third, who fared little better. Vannest pitced steady ball, allowing but one hit and but for the errors of his team mates would have kept Keene of the score sheet. Prest, for the Cognawagas, got a double and two singles in three times at bat. The game was called in the sixth inning with the score 6-2, that also being the score at the end of the fifth.

In the second, after Robinson grounded to D. Davis, Nelson got the only hit for Keene. A. Fletcher was safe on D. Davis' error, and Renwick hit to Shadgett, whose throw pulled A. Davis away from home plate and Nelson scored. Robertson struck out, but McCarthy walked, filling the bases. Allen grabbed O'Dette's fly to right field to end the inning.

In the second for Cognawagas, Prest doubled and after reaching third, scored on MacDonald's single. MacDonald reached second when A. Fletcher missed Hawkins' throw. P. Vannest struck out. Allen singled, putting MacDonald on third, who scored while Allen was being run down between second and third. A. Vannest struck out.

In the third, A. Davis fanned, Grose singled but was out going to second. Three singles in a row by Shadgett, D. Davis and Prest were responsible for two runs, and with Prest on third, I. Fletcher made the feature play of the game by going back aaginst the fence to catch MacDonald's fly with one hand.

With O'Dette pitching in the fourth two men got on bases, but none scored.

ROSS AND GIMBLETT WON DOUBLES FINAL

Defeated J. Sedgwick and Dr. Fulford for the Dr. Hammond Silver Cups.

Andy Ross and Fire Chief Gimblett won the Scotch doubles competition at the bowling green last night for the twin silver cups donated by Dr. Hammond.

In the final game about midnight they defeated J. Sedgwick and Dr. Fulford by the score of 23-22 in eighteen ends. The score was as follows:

Ross. .. ..xx223ixx443xx1ix2x1—23
Sedgwick ..24xxxx32xxx24x2x3x—22

As the score indicates, the game was a see-saw, hard fought contest all the way. Sedgwick opened up with a bang and Ross came back with the next four ends and a lead of 2 shot, which Sedgwick nullified by five on the next two. Ross got the next three ends for 11 shots, and Sedgwick kept hammering away until with a three end he evened it up coming home. Ross and Chief Gimblett finally came through the final for one shot and the game.

Dr. Hammond presented the silver cups to the winners and to Sedgwick and Dr. Fulford, he presented thermos bottles donated by Walter Oke.

In the semi-finals Sedgwick and Dr. Fulford ousted Dr. Allen and J. J. Howden, and George Cairns and V. Carr were the victims of Ross and the Fire Chief.

able in the confiscation of the apparatus, some of which costs $100 to $125.

Before calling on Mr. Hatton, Crown Attorney, Magistrate Langley remarked that this being a razzle-dazzle game, he should impose a razzle-dazzle fine.

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton—The aggregation of men and paraphernalia here is evidence sufficient to show that it is a gambling outfit, and it must be treated as such. Men who have paid for concessions and belong to this organization must put up with the penalties as well as the benefits. Wheels of fortune are absolutely illegal. The public have no chance with them."

Magistrate Langley—"What is this corn game?"

Mr. Hatton—"I never played that game, Your Worship."

Magistrate Langley—"I see that it costs only 10 cents."

Mr. Hatton—"There are some games where the ante costs only 10 cents but it costs more to get out."

Must Stop Gambling.

Mr. Hatton said the desire of the Department is that games of this kind shall be prohibited. It is not the aim of the Department to harass the men, but specific instructions have been given to close out travelling shows of this kind.

Magistrate Langley, in sentencing the men, said he could not make the fine $10 or $15, or requested by Mr. Gordon, as that would make justice a mere laughing-stock. He told the accused men that in Ontario there is a law directly against gambling, and the maximum penalty is 2 years' imprisonment. He would take into consideration all the circumstances of the case, he said, and sentence the nine prisoners to $25 and costs each. In one case the costs amounted to $13.50 and in the others the amount was $12.80.

On Magistrate Langley remarking that it took 14 constables to make the seizure, Mr. Gordon said if there had been a police force twice the size they would have been all there. "I think that's piling it on," he said.

The men who were fined were: Jacob Fuhrman, Frank Delane, William Johnson, Isaac Jaffe, George Harms, Frank Leach, Joseph Corey, Samuel Applebaum, Thomas Palmer. Duffy and Flasher were two whom the police look for in vain.

It was pointed out by Al. Fisher that on the wheels of fortune there were 16 spots. If 16 persons took one spot each at 10 cents that amounted to $1.60. The dolls, according to papers in his possession, cost $1.43 at the Custom House, leaving a profit of 10 cents for the operator. It was pointed out in court, however, that the business was nevertheless gambling, and punishable as such.

Formal Transfer of Boston American Club.

BOSTON, Aug. 2. — (Canadian Press).—President Harry H. Frazee, of the Boston American League Club, announced last night that the formal transfer of the club franchise to J. A. Robert Quinn and his Columbus, Ohio, associates was made yesterday. He said that Quinn would be the new president of the club, as previously had been indicated, and expressed the opinion that he was a good man for the place and would bring success to the Red Sox.

An agreement for the sale of the club was made some time ago, and only the final details remained uncompleted until yesterday. No announcement was made as to the price paid.

Joe McGinnity Still Iron Man of Baseball.

No wonder they call him "Iron Man." Joe McGinnity of New York Giants' fame still takes his regular turn on the mound with the Dubuque (Ia.) team in the Mississippi Valley League. What if he is 54 years old! He knows how to fan 'em, all right. Joe is managing the outfit. He expects to keep on playing ball for years and years yet.

BANK TELLER

had a check on how much he was really short, and he handed me this slip."

A bank deposit slip was produced which contained several ittms of figures alleged to have been written by Ward. Mr. Hodgins said the slip had been prepared in the bank shortly after closing hours on April 12.

"I asked him to give me a statement, and he gave me the deposit slip," stated Mr. Hodgins. "I then immediately phoned the general manager at Toronto as to the findings." Ward stayed until Mr. Brown, supervisor of branches arrived from Toronto. When M. Brown arrived, the accountant, Mr. Brown, Ward and myself discussed the matter. Ward stated that he could not account for te shortage except that it had gone for whiskey

Said He Needed Whiskey.

"He stated to us that he needed three or four bottles of whiskey every night for his nerves before he could get to sleep. He said his nerves were in terrible condition. Ward strongly denied that the money went for gambling or the picture shows he operated in Bowmanville and Whitby."

Mr. Hodgins then stated Ward promised them he would report at head office the next morning at ten o'clock for an investigation before the bonding company officials. He also stated that he would make restitution if given an opportunity. The bank manager had to give head office a debit for $16,734.44 the next morning to cover the branch shortages. No restitution had been made the bank.

In the cross-examination conducted by Mr. Dewart the witness was given a hard gruelling and close scrutiny by the Toronto lawyer. At the time of the alleged finding of the shortages there was one superior in the office to Ward, that was the accountant.

Didn't Supervise Staff.

Witness admitted that as manager he was getting $3,700 salary per year. Ward would have to handle sixty per cent. of $200,000 in payrolls. He also acted as a general teller. The average day's business was about $200,000. The witness stated that although he was manager he did not look after the staff. It was the accountant's job. He, however, admitted that he was responsible for Ward's actions, although Ward was responsible for any shortage.

Mr. Dewart—"Didn't you know Ward was drinking 2 or 3 bottles of whiskey every night? He must have been drunk every morning in his cage. Didn't you notice it at all? This thing has been going on for four or five years, and you didn't see a thing wrong?"

Mr. Hodgins said he was absolutely ignorant of anything irregular with Ward's work.

boy companions were present.

Among those noticed were his brother, little Raymond Wayte, dressed as the Prince of Stars, the two children of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. McLean of Winnipeg, as Farmer Jones and his wife; Jack Patte, as Charlie Chaplin; Sam Patte as Robin Hood, and the small boys of Dr. and Mrs. McPherson, as clowns.

The children, in their bright outfits, made a glowing spot of color on the lake, when they embarked with toy balloons and whistles for an afternoon boat trip.

Ken Wilson of Toronto, leader of the Pavilion orchestra, took three lunge, the largest about eight lbs., and two bass, in a few hours' fishing yesterday afternoon.

Who's Who!

Mr. Harry Wolfe has returned after a ten days' absence in New York city.

Mrs. W. J. Lamb and family are in the Hancock cottage this year.

Mrs. Denoon and family of Chicago, were visitors at Mrs. Harry Hutchinson's cottage this week. Mrs. Denoon, who was a resident at the Park twenty years ago, sees many changes during that period.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Ingall are occupying a cottage at the Park at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Frazer are returning to the city to-day, after a pleasant stay at Chemong.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Jones are occupying their cottage this year

The three Misses Kidd of Toronto are visitors at the Park. Two of the sisters are staying with Mrs. Stearms at the Lakeview Tea Room in the village; the third rooms with Mrs. J. Pope.

Mrs. A. E. Dixon, who is ill, has come into town for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hopwood are occupying Mrs. W. Hartshorn's cottage for a short time.

Mrs. Walter Hartshorn is in Montreal for a brief visit.

Mr. Reg Dixon is competing in the canoe entries at McCracken's Landing regatta to-day. He will enter the dinghy contest at Sturgeon Point regatta next week.

The date of the Chemong Park regatta has been set for the 16th of this month.

Mrs. R. A. Gledhill of Toronto is visiting her city. Mrs. W. J. Thompson, at the latter's cottage.

CARNIVAL SHOWS ARE OPEN TONIGHT

Mr. Al. Fisher Explains Position of the Management Regarding the Games.

The Billie Clark carhival shows will be in full swing at the Exhibition Park to-night, terminating their stay in Peterboro.

To the Examiner this afternoon, Mr Al. Fisher, the manager of the shows, said there had never been any question of their games until yesterday.

"Our concessions are endorsed by the Showmen's Legislation Committee of America. This body has control of all outdoor shows, and Tom Johnston of Chicago has the same amount of authority over the shows as Judge Landis has in baseball and Will Hayes in the motion picture business. There was never any question that our merchandize wheels were against the law. No money is given and take the dolls for instance they cost $1.40 each including duty. In the games where there are sixteen numbers and the players pay ten cents, you can see that the receipts each time amount to $1.60 and some one is sure to win a doll."

Mr Fisher deeply regretted what had happened but said that the shows would wind-up to-night with all the feature attractions doing business as usual, and probably some of the concessions would be operating.

JACKSON BROTHERS LOSE TENNIS FINAL

Scott and Ross Took Two Games in Three in Doubles.

The Jackson brothers, Walter and Bill, were defeated in the finals of the Peterborough Tennis Club's doubles last night by Scott and Ross by the score of 6-3, 3-6 and 6-4.

In the 3rd set the first game went to deuce twice. The second game was deuce. The third and fourth games were love games, one for each team. The fifth game was deuce on Scott's serve, making the score 4-1 for Scott and Ross. The Jackson brothers then pulled up and won the next three games, one of which went deuce four times. This left the score 4 all. The next game, on Scott's serve, went to Scott and Ross, making the score 5-4. Walter Jackson served the last game, and Scott scored the last point after quite a rally between Scott and Walter Jackson, making the final 6-4.

This is the first tournament of the Peterborough Tennis Club, and was well contested all the way.

The Peterborough club entertain Port Hope club here on Saturday, and have invited Cobourg club here for the following week.

At the CAPITOL—To-night, Friday, and Saturday.

BOAT WHICH ESCORTED SWIMMER IS MISSING

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 2. — (Canadian Press).—A search is being made for the missing power boat Argus which left Point Pelee Lightship yesterday morning, acting as a convoy to Walker, who swam across Lake Erie.

It is believed the Argus exhausted its fuel supply searching for the swimmer, and is marooned on the lake. The pilot of an airplane that left Lorain last night to report on Walker's progress did not sight the Argus. Walker had to steer his way from the Point Pelee Lighthouse to the Lorain Lighthouse by the sun and moon and directions given by passing craft, as the compass he had relied upon to guide his course was on the Argus.

Walker was accompanied the entire distance by a row boat manned with five persons.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

A drama of contrasts has been produced by Thomas H. Ince in "What a Wife Learned," his latest picture featuring Marguerite de la Motte, John Bowers and Milton Sills.

There is the elemental contrast of a cultured Eastern woman, fresh from college, and her Arizona rancher husband.

There is the contrast of life along Broadway, New York, and in the arid desert regions of Arizona.

There is the contrast of varying constructive ideals which both husband and wife struggle to make realties. The wife seeks to become a successful dramatist. The practical husband plans to reclaim desert wastes. Almost at the altar diverging ambitions threaten to tear them apart.

Moreover, theer is contrast between the primitive uncontrolled emotions of the rancher husband and the repressed but equally powerful love which a successful New York dramatist has for the rancher's cultured wife.

On the one hand is a man who is not ashamed of the guests of primal hate and love which sweep over him and to which he gives free vent. Confronting him is a personality, equally sympathetic, from whom self-control and city life has shorn the rough edges.

In "What a Wife Learned," Thomas H. Ince brings the rancher to the city, deprives him of the glamour which surrounds the plainsman and then, when the cattleman has become a prosaic truck-driver, thrusts him into the cultured social circle to which his successful wife has been welcomed. The contrast has both its amusing and its heart-rending aspects.

There are other contrasts: The bursting of a great dam in the desert country and a sensational fall among the beams of a skyscraper. The first night of a successful play on Broadway and the stampede of a vast herd of cattle on a western ranch. A poor school teacher, ekeing out an existence in a desert oasis, and, later the same woman, surrounded by every luxury in her New York apartment and enjoying the fame she has won as a successful playwright.

Again, there is the contrast of the woman of to-day and the man of yesterday — of the woman who believes that she can combine both marriage and a career and of the two men, one of whom believe that a wife's place is in the home at his side and the other who encourages the woman to seek the fullest expression of her talents.

Contrasts and conflicts! "What a Woman Learned" is full of them! The picture will be shown at the Royal theatre, starting to-day.

CALEDONIANS GAVE SPLENDID CONCERT

Delighted Big Crowd in Victoria Park Last Night - Audience Appreciative.

The kilties' concert in Victoria Park last night attracted a crowd that was estimated at several thousand, and was said to be the largest of this season. The band of pipers and drummers assumed the bulk of the programme, and they were well supported by Mr. John Smith, whose fine baritone voice found an excellent medium in the open air; by the Scottish dancers, Mary and Emily Hemphill, who were recalled several times; also by Tom Smith, 'cellist, and Bob Hendry and John Smith in a comedy sketch, "A Little Bit of Scotch."

The variety of the programme was a pleasing feature in itself. Tom Smith delighted the audience with his 'cello solo, his instrument reaching out to the edge of the crowd with rich tone. Bob Hendry also contributed a vocal solo that was well received. The Caledonians were gratified with the response to their invitation to the public, and Mr. John Smith particularly mentioned the crowd's attention throughout the concert. This band does not participate in the appropriation made by the Council for park music, and their programme was actually an expense to themselves. They were, however, rewarded by the large attendance and the expressions of appreciation at the close of the concert. Miss Isabell Donnelly was the accompanist at the piano.

THE BRITISHER WHO REFUSED A PEERAGE

Toronto Will Entertain Britain's Sugar Controller During the War

TORONTO, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Toronto is to entertain for a few days the man who has bought more sugar than any other man in the world—the man who was sugar controller in Britain during the days of the war when sugar was rationed very carefully.

That man is R. Just Boyd, and he does not appear in "Who's Who." In a story told of him it is said that after the war the powers-that-be offered him a peerage in recognition of his services, but he told the government to give the title to his stenographer. The authorities took him at his word and made the stenographer a Grand Dame.

Mr. Boyd is chairman of the Amalgamated Board which comprises many manufacturing companies of preserves and confectionery output of these firms in addition to controlling the distribution of sugar in the war years, not only for Britain, but also for some of her European allies.

CONCERTED ACTION BY FOUR CONSULS

HARBIN, China, August 2. (Canadian Press.) — Concerted action has been taken by the British, United States, French and Japanese consuls here, to protest the seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway Land Department by Chang Tso Lin, war lord of Manchuria, who ordered all railway lands ceded to Russia under old treaties, taken over by his provisional government.

Foreign consuls, viewing the seizure of the land department as a direct violation of Washington enactments placed their official seals on the chest containing deeds to the discuss defence of foreign interests, the Consuls telegraphed their diplomatic representatives at Peking.

WEDDING BELLS

GEALE—HAMILTON

Auburn was the scene yesterday of a very pretty wedding, which took place at high noon, when Alice Seabourne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Myles Hamilton, became the bride of Charles Geale of Peterboro son of Mr. Charles Geale of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rt. Rev Monsignor McColl, in the drawing-room, in the presence of the immediate family of the bride, and Miss Florence Barker of Hamilton, Mr. E. A. Peck, Mr. and Mrs. C Geale of Toronto, Mr. Herbert Geale of Whitby, and Miss Faulkner of Peterboro.

The bride wore a charming gown of white georgette, with crystal and pearl trimming, and white hat of tulle and satin. Her bouquet was of ophelia roses, with lily of the valley and long satin streamers. The bride's little sister, Peggy, acted as flower girl in a ruffled frock of white embroidered voile, carrying a basket of yellow marguerites.

After the ceremony, the bride received a few of her intimate friends on the lawn, where refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Geale left later on an extended motor trip, the bride wearing a French suit of white bouclette, Lanvin green wrap, and white felt hat.

OBITUARY

DAVID ARNOTTE.

This morning, Mrs. John McLean, 168½ Charlotte street, received the sad news of the death of her brother, David Arnotte of Carthage, N.Y.

A sister of Mrs. McLean's, Christie Arnotte, passed away on Tuesday morning of this week. Her burial takes place this afternoon from Mrs. McLean's residence.

FREDERICK J. VOADEN.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Aug. 2. — Frederick J. Voaden, principal of the Port Stanley Public School, dropped dead yesterday afternoon while acting as pall-bearer at the funeral of the late C. A. Cromwell, of Port Stanley. Mr. Voaden had just recently recovered from a severe attack of influenza. Acute heart trouble was the cause of death.

Mr. Voaden had been a prominent school teacher, being principal of the Wellington Street School in St. Thomas and of a school in Peterborough prior to going to Port Stanley, where he has resided for the past ten years. His widow, two sons, Norman, of Calgary, Clarence, Detroit, and one daughter, Mrs. Donald Dunsmore, Calgary. Dr. Voaden, principal of the St. Thomas Collegiate, is a brother.

HORSE SWAM TWO MILES

PICTOU, N.S., Aug. 2—(Canadian Press).—A unique but authentic story comes from the Magdalene Islands. Last winter a farmer on Entry Island disposed of a horse to a compatriot on another island of the group. The horse was taken there over the ice, and this summer, after the heavy work was completed, was put out to pasture. He jumped the fence, made a fifty-mile trip of the island, and then swam to his former home two miles away.

SMITH TOWNSHIP OATS WON THE FIRST PRIZE

Hall, this morning as follows: 1st, William Steinkrauss, Smith; 2nd, S. Dickson, Smith; 3rd, R. A. Wilson, Otonshee; 4th, Harry Webber, North Monaghan; 5th, Wm. Whittington, North Monaghan; 6th, F. J. Staples, Cavan; 7th, Ira Robson, North Monaghan.

Canned Salmon Is Placed on Free List.

OTTAWA, August 2 — (Canadian Press). — Canned salmon in one-pound sizes has been placed on the free list from Italy according to a cable received to-day by the Commercial Intelligence Service of the Department of Trade and Commerce from Canadian Trade Commissioner W. McL. Clarke, at Milan. The new ruling provides for the free entry of ruling salmon weighing up to 1 kilogramme, or about 36 ounces, whereas the former limit was one-half kilogramme, which precluded the entry of the standard Canadian one pound can, which with the container, weighs some 20 ounces.

It is stated by the Department that the present reduction in duty is te result of representations made by the Canadian Trade Commissioner to the Italian Government.

POLICE EFFORTS FAIL TO LOCATE BANDITS

TORONTO, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press).—All efforts by the police to locate the gunmen who held up and robbed bank messengers here over a week ago have proved fruitless.

Latest developments have been in response to calls which were received by head-quarters detectives from Leaside and Duncan district. Posses of police investigated bu found that they were groundless.

Newfoundland Had a Deficit Last Year.

ST. JOHN'S, N.F.D., Canadian Press. — The Newfoundland finance minister, in presenting his budget in the assembly yesterday, said that it showed a deficit of $680,000 for the fiscal year ended June last, but that he estimated there would be a surplus of $44,000 for the present fiscal year.

DEFINITE BREAK MAY EFFECT THE MARKETS

PARIS, Aug. 2.—(Special).—In anticipation of a definite break with England over reparations as a result of Premier Baldwin's statement in the Commons, the French franc went tumbling to the lowest leyels it had touched since the war. The British pound, normally 24 francs, opened at 79.70. Quoted in American dollars, the franc, at 17.47, made a new low record. The franc was weak even in comparison with the Italian lire, the opening quotations being 75.50 per one hundred lire.

OTTAWA GROCERS WILL DROP PRICE OF SUGAR

OTTAWA, Aug. 2. — In spite of slight decreases reported from Toronto in the price of sugar, no noticeable decline was registered in Ottawa retail prices yesterday. A number of grocers, however, have announced their intention of making a drop of half a cent per pound in the price of that commodity to-day. Prevailing prices in the retail stores are between 11 and 12 cents.

CORBIS WALKER ENDS SWIM ACROSS LAKE ERIE

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 2. — (United Press.) — Corbis Walker, long distance swimmer, completed his swim across Lake Erie from Point Pelee, Ontario, to Lorain, Ohio, a distance of thirty-three miles, in 21 hours and 15 minutes. He started at 9.15 Wednesday morning, reaching Lorain at 5.30 a.m. Thursday.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — and New York Stock Exchange — and Curb Prices

New York August 2. (Special.) — Stocks opened firmer to-day on a fair amount of activity with the gains ranging from a fraction to 1½ points in American Smelting.

Steel common at 87 5-8 was within an eighth of the high on Wednesday. Reports continued to reflect the improvement in President Harding's condition while another favorable development was the new high record in carloads being made in the week ended July 21. Reports of failures in July showed the smallest total for any month since November 1920. Sterling opened off as did most of the other foreign exchanges except French francs which went up slightly.

The English Parliament was told by Premier Baldwin that the French and Belgian notes on reparations offered no prospect of a joint allied answer to Germany.

Strength and activity developed around 10.30 with al stocks selling above the high on Wednesday and with even one stock getting to a new high. This was American Locomotive at 71 3-8 up 1½ compared with the previous high of 70 7-8.

Foreign development apparently finally gave way to the preponderant pressure of evidence that American industrial activity is on a sound basis.

Ample testimony of this condition has been brought to light in the last few days in the splendid earnings statements of such important units as United States Steel Studebaker, General Motors, Bethlehem Steel for the first half of the year.

Strength continued into the second hour with leading issues bettering their levels made in the rally, which started around 10.30. Large traders who have successfully practised the rule in the last 90 days of going short on every rally on the expectation of new low prices on the reaction, were disappointed when their theory failed to work.

To some extent they joined the covering by commission house traders which helped to accelerate the advance.

Some stocks which showed pronounced weakness but a short time ago, were actively strong. Coaden oil at 33 particularly indicating a rather hurried covering of shorts. All the oils benefitted by the continued strength of the Pan American issues which sold up to 61 and 58 3-4 for the common and B shares respectively.

American Can continued in demand at 89¼. Baldwin was strong at 115 5-8 up over 4 points from Tuesday's low.

DISTRICT FARMERS CALLING FOR HELP

In Midst of Harvesting They Find Labor Shortage Serious.

Farmers in this district are heavily handicapped by lack of help. They are now in the midst of their harvesting operations, and scores of appeals for help are arriving in the local branch of the Government Employment Bureau.

Demands for help from other localities are also arriving, showing that the situation is the same in many parts of Ontario.

There were never fewer men to meet the demand, and it appears that the farmers will necessarily have to blunder through. The grain harvest has to a large extent overtaken the haying operations, making the situation even more difficult for some farmers.

INSULIN TREATMENT FOR THE POOR FREE

TORONTO, August 2.— (Canadian Press).—At a meeting of the Hospital Commission here this morning it was decided to call a meeting of representatives of Hospitals and the city, next Thursday morning to discuss the possibility of poor people receiving insulin treatment for diabetes: It is stated that if hospitals are willing to render assistance in this regard, the city will also help.

Seaweed on the shores of Orkney contains a chemical which, combined with coal dust, makes a successful fuel.

REGARDS DEATH PRES. HARDING AS A DISASTER

May Have Wide Effect on Present Status of the World, Says Premier Poincare,

LOVED IN FRANCE

PARIS, Aug. 3. — (Special). — The death of President Harding at the present time is a world disaster which may have a wide effect on the present status of world affairs, Premier Poincare said. "I am deeply grieved and shocked. France is especially sorrowful owing to President Harding's attitude toward France's problems."

Flags were flown at half - mast throughout Paris, and knots of people gathered on the boulevards discussing the tragedy.

Colonel E. M. House said: "I share the grief of every American who knew Mr. Harding. He was a kindly and lovable character, and held the confidence and affection of our people."

Marshal Foch expressed deep regret, saying: "My whole staff joins me in condolence on such a sad day, when the French and American peoples are closely united as in the days of the war."

Minister Sarraut said that because of his close relations with the late President at the Washington Arms Conference, it was "even more painful to learn of the death of a great friend of France, who did his utmost for lasting peace."

ONE MORE COMPLICATION.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—"The death of President Harding adds one more complication to a world tangled with trouble," former Premier Lloyd George said to-day.

Premier Stanley Baldwin sent a message of sympathy to Mrs. Harding.

The sight of the Amercan flag flown at half mast over the Embassy early to-day was the first intimation many American and Britishers had of the Death of President Harding.

British officals were shocked by the news, especially since last nights bulletin's had been most optimistic.

No Special Congress.

WASHINTON, Aug. 3.—There is no occasion for a special meeting of Congress, Government officials said to-day, unless President Coolidge wishes to form a new cabinet. In that event it would be necessary for Mr. Coolidge to call the Senate into extra session to confirm the nomination of his new cabinet.

Donahey Tribute.

COBOCONK, Aug. 3.—Governor Donahey, of Ohio, who is holidaying here, pays tribute to the late President Harding.

Died a Martyr.

PARIS, August 3. — "President Harding died a martyr to office," American Ambassador Myron T. Herrick declared in a statement to the press to-day.

"He died for his country just as any soldier killed in battle. He was killed by the pressure of the great responsibilities of his office. The American people now must realise that the office of President must be organised. We must take off some of that load of responsibility. No man can live through it."

The news of President Harding's death came as a shock to this country, as we had been led to believe that the crisis was passed. It is regarded by everyone as a great loss, for his genial, simple straightforwardness had won for him a genuine respect and liking in this country. There is everywhere a deep feeling of sympathy for Mrs. Harding, and sincere good wishes for the new President in his task he is called upon to discharge in such tragic circumstances.

DETECTIVE KILLED BY A CONFIDENCE MAN

NIAGARA FALLS, August 3. — Detective John Downs of Niagara Falls, N.Y., was instantly killed this morning at Prospect Point, one of the sight-seeing places of the Falls, by William Ross, an alleged confidence man, whom the officer cornered there. Ross was later arrested and given a preliminary hearing on a first degree murder charge.

A Few Aphorisms of Calvin Coolidge New U S. President

Rejecting the rule of law is accepting the sword of force.

All true Americans are working for each other.

Observance of the law is the greatest solvent of public ills.

Either the people must own the government, or the government will own the people.

There will be, can be, no escape from the obligation to bear the burdens of civilization, but the weak must be aided to become strong.

In a free republic a great government is a product of a great people.

Look well to the hearthstone; therein all hope for America lies.

While the law is observed, the progress of civilization will continue; when such observance ceases, chaos and the ancient night of despotism will come again.

The most obvious place to begin entrenchment is by eliminating the extravagance of government itself.

IS SWORN IN AS PRESIDENT

Formality Which Made Calvin Coolidge Head of U. S. Was Short and Simple.

PLYMOUTH, Vt., August 3 (Special to The Examiner). — Calvin Coolidge, sworn in a few hours before as President of the United States by his father, in Plymouth Notch Farm House in which he spent his boyhood days, left for Washington at 7.30 o'clock this morning.

Less than an hour after Mr. Coolidge had learned of the death of Mr. Harding, a telephone was installed in the house, and the President had learned direct from Washington the form of the oath of office and the fact that his father might have the honour of administering it.

In the meantime Congressman Dale had arrived from Springfield with two Federal employees to act as bodyguards for the President.

Formality Short.

The swearing-in formality was short and simple. In the little sitting-room of the farm house, furnished in homely style like any other Vermont country home, the President stood with his right hand upraised at one side of a little table, with Mrs. Coolidge beside him.

Across the table his father, his face beaming with pride, read the few words of the oath, "to preserve, protect, and defend the constitution of the United States."

The old man's voice trembled as he read.

Mr. Coolidge repeated the words distinctly and calmly, and at the end added the solemn affirmation, "So help me, God."

PREPARATIONS FOR I.O.O.F. CONVENTION

Merchants Will Decorate in Honor of Big Meet in Peterborough.

To-day merchants are preparing to decorate in honor of the Annual Convention of the Oddfellows Encampment, which opens here on Monday.

Grafton's window is depicting a scene of travellers crossing the "Wilderness of Paran, and an old tent to receive them. The backman sitting down at the door of his ground is a scene familiar to all Oddfellows.

Hugh Robertson, chairman of Billeting Committet, has had a busy time arranging billets, and has still much work to do before his task is completed.

The several committees will hold a final meeting on Saturday evening.

Chairman Fred Reid is busy looking up cars in which delegates can visit points of interest in the city. About 50 I. O. O. F. members have come to his assistance.

The committee in charge of prizes for the events will complete their purchasing expedition to-day.

REFER PROBLEM OF REPARATION TO THE LEAGUE

Growing Belief That Such a Course Will Have to Be Pursued for Settlement.

SOCIALISTS AGREE

BERLIN, Aug. 3—(United Press). —England and France, having again failed to reach a common ground for the settling of the reparations problem, there is a growing belief in important political quarters here that some day in some way the League of Nations will be called upon for aid.

The belief has revived the agitation which dropped off early this summer for the German entrance into the League. Coupled with dissatisfaction over the results of passive resistance in the Ruhr, the latest impasse reached by the British and French Governments has given impetus to the discussion.

In seeking a way out, many Germans are now looking toward the League. Newspaper articles are suggesting the advisability of Germany applying for League membership, and the Government has organized a "League of Nations" Department," with Von Jagow at its head, to study League problems.

Socialists Willing.

Herman Mueller, former Chancellor and leader of the Socialist party, openly advocated that Germany appeal for entrance into the League. "It is no wonder," Mueller says, "that England, neutral countries and even Germany are discussing the advisabiiity of Germany attempting to enter the League of Nations before the autumn session in Geneva."

Arguing that the occupation of the Ruhr and the passive resistance of Germany will only lead further away from settlement, Mueller, the Entents and Germany are looking for some means of relieving the situation and ask if the League is really not the remedy.

"Now is the most suitable time for us to attempt entrance," Mueller avers.

"I doubt if France could sufficiently influence the other members to sabotage Germany's chances since France is the great sponsor of the League idea," he says.

"France is not the League of Nations, and to ignore the call of such men as Mottoa, of Switzerland, and other League members, is but to play into the hands of French politicians."

Are Not United.

Pointing out that England and France are not united with regard to the reparations and liquidation of the conflict, Mueller said:

"It is to be assumed that at least a portion of these difficulties eventually will be referred to the League for settlement.

"And who believes," he asked, "that such a settlement will be easier to bear if the German Government co-operates only through notes, interviews and protest."

Strikes at Opponents.

Striking at the opponents of the idea in German, Mueller says: "Advocates of force within Germany would cry in wild protest if Germany sought admission. But it is only through membership that a chance to change the Versailles Treaty will come. If Germany ever attempts by force to change the treaty she will find the entire world against her just as she did in the days of Wilhelm in 1914.

"Complete co-operation of Germany in the League would finally lead to a realization of the whole European atmosphere and thereby gradually root out the advocates of force in Germany."

DANCE ORCHESTRA AT ROYAL THEATRE

Starting to-morrow, the dance orchestra from the Rendezvous Pavilion at Chemong, will play at the Royal Theatre every Saturday afternoon. This is one of the best five-piece dance orchestras in Central Ontario, and they will render an excellent programme at the Royal every Saturday.

Combined with the high-class pictures being shown at the Royal, which is cool and well ventilated, this should prove a strong attraction to people who appreciate good music and pictures.

All roads will lead to Island Grove on Monday, August 6th where "Herb Lennox'" is holding his annual monster picnic. In addition to the Prime Minister and his cabinet, there will be the following other attractions: Six brass bands, boxing tournament, baseball, lacrosse, football baby show, dancing and water sports, all to conclude with a grand display of fireworks.

AN EXCELLING PROGRAM FOR CHAUTAUQUA

Varied Offerings in Peterboro Yesterday Won Appreciation From Enthusiastic Audiences.

MUSICAL REVIEW

The Dominion Redpath Chautauqua opened here yesterday with a splendid programme. John B. Ratto, the character delineator, who formed the main attraction last evening, was a genuine entertainer, who has raised his talent for clever impersonations to a degree that has probably never been equalled in any performance here. Mr. Ratto has a unique method. He makes up while conversing pleasantly with his audience, then turns his back for a few minutes, while still explaining his next role, and turns once more, completely metamorphosed.

Perhaps the most striking part of a programme which received loud applause at every interval, was the historical review, giving impersonations of the chief actors in Allied countries during the war. The lights snapped off momentarily, to switch on again and reveal the different exalted personages. King Peter, of Serbia, in full military outfit; Lloyd George, with shaggy locks and a slight cockney twist to his vowels; Georges Clemenceau, looking very much like his English predecessor; Woodrow Wilson, in tall hat and spectacles; General Pershing, snappy and incisive; and Marshal Foch, in grey military suit and red-topped cap, speaking in broken French, all appeared in turn to give brief addresses.

A Striking Bit.

Another striking bit was the musical review of great composers. As the Metropolitan orchestra played portions of the works of the masters impersonated, Mr. Ratto acted as leader, in the style, make-up and costume of his character. In turn, the audience saw Georges Bizet, the French composer, directing the overture of "Carmen"; Felix Mendelssohn leading the "Spring Song"; Josef Verdi, a fatherly old gentlemen in white beard and side whiskers, conducting the "Anvil Chorus" and the "Miserere," from "Il Trovatore"; Richard Wagner, with the peaked velvet cap, the snuff box, and the stern dignity that characterized the sage of Bayreuth, directing the "Evening Star," and part of the "March" from "Tannhauser"; and Giacomo Rossini, a vigorous conductor of the stirring battle music from "William Tell."

Audience Spellbound.

The first portion of Mr. Ratto's programme was devoted to short readings in character. He held his audience absolutely spellbound with his coster version of Kipling's "Gunga Din," and his character sketch, in costume, with waving goatee, of an old American farmer recalling the good old days, and "calling off" for a country dance, brought down the house. Mr. Ratto captured the attention of his hearers with an inimitable rendition of the time-worn favorite, "The Road to Morrow," and he tickled their fancy with his Irish and Swedish imitations, and his impersonation of an amateur Justice of the Peace, conducting court for the first time.

The Metropolitan Orchestra, a quintette of five clever lady musicians, who gave the entire programme yesterday afternoon and added to the value of last evening's entertainment, is composed of the following players: Leader, Miss Lila Groff, violinist; Miss Frances Beeman, pianiste; Miss Nona Roberts, flautist; Miss Catherine Roberts, violoncellist, and Miss Catherine Forbes, vocalist and drums.

In a varied programme of classical and popular orchestral and solo numbers, the Metropolitans exemplified their versatility and proficiency in instrumental and vocal music. They are talented and skillful musicians, whose selections were rendered with a finished skill and easy charm that made their programmes delightful expositions of good music.

As orchestral numbers during the afternoon they played the charming "Blue Danube" waltz; the "Song of Love" from Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," followed by "Deep River," one of those negro spirituals which are favorites of Chautauqua performers, and also very much so of their audiences; some sparkling music from a late musical comedy success, "Lady Willy"; and different national versions of "Home, Sweet Home." A swinging overture and a bright march, "The Nation's Awakening," were orchestra numbers during the evening.

Velvety Smoothness.

Miss Catherine Forbes, whose soprano voice had a pleasant quality of velvety smoothness, sang "Love Sent a Little Gift of Roses," and a gay march song from "Mademoiselle Modiste" whose drum-tapped refrain

ROTARY CAMP IN FULL SWING

Organization at Stoney Lake Was Effected Without a Hitch.

The Rotary Camp on Clear Lake is in full swing. Fifty-four husky youths from the city arrived on Sunday at Camp Rotary, conveyed thither by interested Rotarians with cars.

Organization was carried out in short order. The camp was divided into seven groups, headed by a leader chosen from among the boys. The following boys are members of the Leaders Corps: Harold Kennedy, Bill Woodcock Milton Lowden, George Weir, Earle Armitage, Harold White and Happy O'Toole

It was remarked that very few of the boys were acquainted with one another— a lack of social relationship which wont hold for very long in a Rotary Camp. The groups are planned to mix boys from one part of the city with boys from another. Each unit contains a cross section of the camp boyhood, from the oldest to the youngest.

Club members and parents are assured of the most vigilant of supervision. Every camp activity is supervised and particularly strict is the supervision of boating and swimming.

It has been said that life in the home is the greatest social test of the individual. The test in a camp is almost as great, and as in the home, the experience of life here is fraught with great possibilitite. On the anvil of the summer camp there can be beaten out a product of better boyhood and better manhood. Rotary is hoping for such a return from the camp spirit of Rotary Camp 1923.

SUGGESTS SAVING FIREMEN'S COATS

Only Four New Ones Needed if Committee's Examination is Accepted.

Only four new overcoats will be required for the Fire Department if the appraisal made by Ald. Maher and Ald. Stocker is accepted by the Fire, Water, and Light Committee.

Ald. Maher applied to this task his knowledge as a clothier, and went over the whole supply of coats, fitting them on different men to get the best appearance, and tacking alteration cards on those which were considered good enough to retain and repair for another winter's use.

Only three coats were discarded, and they were of an earlier issue than the last. Some of the others will be shortened, and with four new ones and alterations to sixteen of last winter's, Ald. Maher and Ald. Stocker believed that a little economy could be practiced in the Department without any depreciation in the appearance of the firemen.

PRINCE OF WALES CABLES SYMPATHY

Late President's Wife Bears Up Bravely in Her Sorrow.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Harding, although greatly shocked by the death of her husband, arose early this morning after a short sleep, directing all the affairs and looking after the welfare of the party. The body of President Harding will be taken at six o'clock this evening from the Palace Hotel here, where he died, and will be borne direct to the train at Third and Townsend Streets Station. The train will leave as soon thereafter as possible.

The route of the funeral train from Chicago to Washington had not been decided up until 10 this morning, such detailed plans being held up pending the arrival of Secretary Christian from Los Angeles. Christian was due to arrive shortly before noon.

The Prince's Sympathy.

The Prince of Wales to-day sent Mrs. Harding a cable message, reading: "Please accept my sincere sympathy in the great loss which you and the people of the United States of America have sustained."

TWO SPLENDID ADDRESSES AT KIWANIS CLUB

John B. Ratto, C. E. Robertson and Miss E. Cummings Were the Star Attractions Today.

SEVERAL GUESTS

Aggressive and inspirtional was the address to-day of Mr. John B. Ratto to the Peterborough Kiwanis Club. Mr. Ratto is here with the Chautauqua entertainers and his services were requisitioned by the club. The speaker referred to the present unrest of the world as the backwash of the war. Wars have always been cleansers and this war will be no exception. It was not a war of four years, but the eternal battle of life which all must fight. In this conflict women have often proved the better fighters. You cannot have anything that amounts to anything, said Mr. Ratto, unless some person or persons get out and work for it. There is no such thing as a self-made man or woman. We are too dependent on each other for that. The man who evades community service is a detriment to the community. Whenever you bring a new citizen into your town you have thrown down another thousand dollars to divide up among the merchants.

Mr. Ratto condemned the action of some merchants in carrying customers on their books who do not pay their way. It is unfair to the man who pays cash and lives within his means. As evidence of what organization will do, Mr. Ratto referred to the revolution accomplished in the distribution of oranges to the markets of the world. In conclusion, Mr. Ratto made an appeal to Kiwanians to continue the good work they have started and enrich the community by public service.

Mr. C. E. Robertson, who is well known in the insurance world, gave an excellent talk on the subject of life insurance in which he stated that each week insurance to the amount of fifteen million dollars is issued by the companies doing business in Canada and of this amount one million dollars is paid out each week in death benefits. Insurance represents thrift and provision for need in many forms. It is not intended for an immediate need, but for a need of the future. If insurance agents were not courageous enough to return seek business it had been refused, many a widow would not be in as good circumstances as she is to-day. Some people were unkind enough to regard the courage possessed by insurance agents as nerve. In conclusion Mr. Robertson said he was optimistic regarding the future of Canada and predicted that the day would come when the Dominion would take its place among the leading nations of the world.

Miss Cummings gave an address on the aims and objects of Chautauqua. It is a community effort of fifty years' standing. Mr. G. A. Gillespie was revealed by Miss Cummings as the chief sponsor of the movement to bring Chautauqua to Peterborough this year. Miss Cummings reviewed the excellent programme that is being presented in Peterborough.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P., in moving a vote of thanks to the speakers, said he believed the call to public service was not lost to the Kiwanians or Peterborough, an opinion that was shared by Kiwanian Jack Marshall, who seconded the motion.

Kiwanian Stewart Gordon presided at to-day's meeting in the absence of President J. A. McKone, who is holidaying at Port Carling, according to a telegram that was received by the club to-day.

A telegram of condolence to the International President of Kiwanis was authorized by the club, also a telegram to the Marion, Ohio, Kiwanis Club, of which the late President Warren G. Harding was a member.

The guests to-day were: Miss E. Cumming, Mr. John B. Ratto, Mr. C. E. Robertson, Mr. C. R. Laidley, Mr. Harvey Hartley, Mr. P. McCarroll, Dr. C. C. Cragg and Dr. A. J. Buchanan.

SECRETARY OF U.F.O. VISITS PREM. FERGUSON

TORONTO, Aug. 3. — (Canadian Press).—J. J. Morrison, fighting secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, with Colonel J. Z. Fraser, one of the directors of the organization, paid a visit to Premier Ferguson's office this morning and were in conference with Mr. Ferguson for some time. None of the parties would state the object of the conference. It was suggested that it was with regard to providing smooth sailing, without opposition at a by-election, for a new leader of the United Farmers in the Legislature.

Where Do All the Newly Weds Live in Peterborough?

"Where do all the newly-married couples live?"

It seems that the "love nest" featured in fiction is disappearing from Peterborough because while there have been 109 marriages in the city this year, there have been only 23 houses built.

More houses are being sub-let in apartments every month, and perhaps this takes care of the growth in families.

STRUCK BY CAR DEATH ENSUED

Late Percy Parrington Was Escorting Lady Across Street When He Sustained Fatal Injuries

Percy Parrington, 27, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Parrington, 339 Aylmer street north, died in Detroit as a result of injuries he received when struck by a speeding automobile.

At the time of the accident, the victim was escorting a young lady across the street. The machine which ran over him at Holbrook and Oakland avenues, at 1. p.m., on Wednesday night, dragged him a full block before he fell clear of the running gear, and then drove away. A motorist witness who pursued the death car was sought to-day by the police.

Mr. Parrington was holding the arm of Miss Evelyn Heuserman, 944 Holbrook avenue, when the automobile struck him.

"I saw the car coming and stepped back out of its path," Miss Henzelman said. "Evidently Mr. Parrington was looking in the other direction. Parrington was taken to the hospital by Lee Barrows and died a few minutes after admission.

First Contingent Man.

Percy Parrington went overseas with the first convoy as a member of the Lord Strathcona Horse. He served three years, suffering shell - shock and gas at the second battle of Ypres. He was invalided home in 1917, and engaged in a lecture tour of the United States.

Since his return he has been prominent in the athletic field, holding a position as director of athletics in a Chicago club. He excelled in swimming, holding medals won in competition in long distance races, diving and life saving.

In Detroit he was employed as salesman for three well known automobiles.

Military Funeral.

The funeral, which will be held tomorrow at 2.30 p.m. from the family residence, will be under military auspices.

Colonel D. Johnston and a party of Dragoons will attend, with the military band. Interment will be in the Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. R. B. Grob officiating.

URGE THORNTON TO INSTAL "GAS" CARS

Railway Committee of Council Also Apply for Extension of Electric Line from Toronto.

Peterborough's request to the management of the C.N.R. for gasoelectric cars on the lines of the National Railway in this district will be renewed by the Railway Committee of the City Council.

Their resolution on Wednesday night specially asks Sir Henry Thornton if the cars proposed for this district may be expected to be in operation this year.

The president of the C.N.R. is also requested to consider the advisability of extending the Toronto Eastern electric line from Bowmanville to Peterborough.

Ald. Turner's committee in pressing for some action or decision on the new railway facilities that have been suggested in this city and district for some time, have simply followed up the initiative with which they presented to Sir Henry Thornton on the occasion of his first visit to this city a number of requested improvements, some of which have already been put into effect.

In Norway a law forbids anyone to cut a tree unless he plants three saplings in its place.

PRESBYTERIANS OF WARKWORTH CALL MINISTER

And Rev. George Hammond Who Graduated Last Spring Was Inducted Into Pastorate Thursday.

IMPORTANT CHARGE

Warkworth, Aug. 3.—Warkworth Presbyterian Church is one of the strongest and most desirable rural charges in Ontario—the best, by common consent, in the Peterboro Presbytery, so that when a vacancy occurred last winter, through the resignation of Rev. R. McGillivray, there was no dearth of candidates for the pastorate. The standard maintained by these was so high that it was a difficult matter for the congregation to make a choice but finally a few weeks ago at a meeting of the members and adherents, a call was unanimously extended to Rev. Geo. Hammond, who graduated in theology last spring after a course in Knox College. Mr. Hammond was ordained a member of the denomination and inducted into the pastorate of the church at a meeting of the Presbytery held Thursday evening.

Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings, who moderated in the call, presided. Rev. J. McIlroy, the new pastor at Havelock, preached the sermon. Rev. R. McGillivray, the former pastor, who is now located in Burlington, addressed the minister, and Rev. J. S. Ferguson, of Baltimore, delivered the charge to the congregation.

Basing his remarks upon the parable of the lost sheep, Mr. McIlroy delivered a practical address on how to build up a church, a topic which he said was specially suitable to an occasion of this kind. His advice was to gather in the wanderers, the lost sheep who have strayed from the fold.

Mr. Thomson told of the steps that had been taken leading up to the call and then put the prescribed questions to Mr. Hammond who answered them to the satisfaction of the members of Presbytery. He was then formally ordained, the ministers and elders laying their hands upon him while Mr. Thomson led in prayer.

"The Cream of Kindness."

Mr. McGillivray, who was pastor of the church for six years certainly knows the people among whom he labored and he congratulated Mr. Hammond upon being called to such a place. The new minister was told that he would not receive the milk but the very cream of human kindness from the congregation. They are Mr. McGillivray said, a loyal and devoted people.

The speaker told the new pastor that the ministry put him in a peculiar position. While he was from the nature of his work required to be a mixer he does not have to go with his hat in his hand to any man but he should at all times preserve his self respect. He should not go among the people seeking their approval. He is not the servant of the congregation but of the living God. The pastor's job is the biggest on earth and he will need all his energy and scholarship to interpret Christ.

The pastor, the speaker, continued, may be discouraged, when the seed which he scatters falls on unproductive ground, but he should be cheered by the assurance that some of it drops into fertile soil and brings in manifold returns. If he has difficulties in his work he should remember that Christ met with all of these.

A Word to the Congregation.

Rev. J. S. Ferguson, who is a personal friend of the new minister, instructed the congregation with regard to the manner in which they should treat Mr. Hammond. They are required to respect him because he has been chosen for a great

Subconscious Mind Made Talk

By JACK JUNGMEYER

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3.—"Truth serum" tests on county jail prisoners here, following those at San Quentin penitentiary, apparently leave the guilty conscience without a hole to hide in, not even the shadowy lairs of the mind.

Clinically, if not legally, the anesthetic "third degree" seems to have been established as potentially the most effective crime detector and deterrent, in these experiments by Dr. Robert E. House of Ferris, Tex., its originator.

Six jail inmates voluntarily subjected themselves to Dr. House's injection of scopolamin, a drug hitherto used extensively in obstetrics and now employed by the Texas physician to elicit the facts in criminal investigations.

Three gave details in connection with their cases not known to authorities. All maintained innocence in the present charges, but several confessed to former offenses. Two, according to officers, changed their previous stories.

Former Officer

The demonstration, in the presence of medical and legal lights, was primarily to further Dr. House's appeal that the scopolamin or "truth test" treatment be legalized as an adjunct to criminology. No effort was made to test the reluctant, and it was assumed that only the innocent volunteered.

A former police officer, under the drug, denied receipt of stolen goods in box-car holdups. He mentioned the names of two men he said were guilty, and the district attorney jotted down the information.

An alleged forger, up for trial, admitted indorsing the questioned check, but denied writing anything "on the front of it."

A Pasadena youth accused of attacking girls repeated at length that he did not know the names of any of his alleged victims, but according to official witnesses admitted having used "dope" until a year ago.

A man, convicted of parole breaking, said he had been arrested "many times."

A man, awaiting appeal on life sentence for murder, and "fighting" the anesthetic, vehemently denied guilt, asserting he didn't even know the name of the slain woman.

As the subjects lay inert on cots, after hypodermic injections of chloroform, whispering their confessions to the sharp queries from Dr. House, the scene took on the drama of scientific pioneering. One had the uncanny sense of peering into the cerebral storehouse of ultimate secrets—of prying a hitherto inviolable citadel of self, while the gateman of the brain snored.

Helpless!

"Under the influence of scopolamin as here administered," said Dr. House as he worked expertly, "a suspected criminal is rendered oblivious to existence. Appreciation of environment is eliminated. The will-power is inoperative.

"In such state, if the individual is questioned the moment he can hear, there is no doubt that his replies will be the truth. He is helpless to protect himself with inventions.

"The principle involved is based on clinical observations that the brain's most powerful center is hearing, and also the last to succumb. It is the first to function under anesthetic. Now the only function of the auditory nerve, when stimulated by a question, is to carry sound waves to the auditory center, and the only function of this center is to evoke 'memory.'

"My method of securing from the mind the stored contents of memory, against the will, under scopolamin anesthesia, is a harmless and humane 'third degree.'

Reduce Expense

"If it proves successful in only 50 per cent. of cases it is far more reliable than any other method of criminal dress. Legalized, and its power popularized, it would go far to eliminate gang crimes, since arrest of one would mean the names of all.

"It would, with corroboration of course, enable reticent suspects to acquit themselves; obviate the necessity of immunity to known criminals; clean prisons of the guiltless; reduce enormously the government expense for controlling crime."

Dr. House has turned over the findings of seven years of research with his discovery to the American Research Anesthetic Association in the hope that they will take the initiative toward eventual legal recognition of the truth drug as a means of ferreting and combating crime.

Others "Talk"

A man facing trial as a "dope" peddler, admitted, said authorities, that he had been arrested four times previously, but was guiltless of the present charge, naming as his partner a man wanted by police.

A man, convicted of parole breaking, said he had been arrested "many times."

A man, awaiting appeal on life sentence for murder, and "fighting" the anesthetic, vehemently denied guilt, asserting he didn't even know the name of the slain woman.

THE UNIONS OF WORLD ARE AMALGAMATING NOW

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

GENEVA, Aug. 3 (United P ress).—A fresh world-wide movement for the amalgamation of industrial unions into strong national organizations is now under way, according to the latest reports to the International Labor Bureau from leading countries of the world.

In the United States this grouping tendency is finding expression in the efforts of the United Cloth Hat and Cap Makers' Union towards bringing together all organized workers in the clothing industry. The total membership of the organizations concerned is estimated at 400,000, and it is hoped to weld them all into one gigantic, national organization.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers have already adhered to the new project and other unions are expected to give their adhesion shortly. As yet it has not been decided whether the big combined organization would take the form of complete fusion or merely of federation of the various organizations.

The same tendency is also being manifested in nearly all of the industrial countries.

The result of this, either for good or for evil, according to the International Labor Bureau, will be a vast increase in strength of organized labor. With all of the various unions engaged in the same line of industry combined into a single organization, a degree of power will be exercised not only in the matter of strikes, but in all matters of policy that will greatly exceed that of the present single national unions.

CHURCH MUSIC BROADENS EXISTENCE

The church musician of the present day is happily much better equipped than his predecessor. The teaching of music in our public schools and the opportunity of hearing it has produced a class of musicians capable of doing big things quickly. Congregational singing is a custom to be encouraged, as a singing people means a live church.

New tunes for our old standard ones is still a mooted question. However, for the more festive occasions one gladly welcomes a brilliant and churchly setting of a hymn. Take for example "The Son of God Goes Forth to War," which appears in several arrangements, the elaborate for special occasions, and the simple for general use.

The instrumental parts of the church service supplied by the organ are much brighter in character than in the past because they have more movement and spirit. Ecclesastical music finds its best outlet on festival occasions, and fortunate it is that these days occur in the church year. It means an eager effort in selecting and preparing the hymns, anhems, etc., although the task of selecting this music is not an easy one, the amount of material at hand being overwhelming.

There seems to be an impression that there is a wide difference between the music of the old church and the music of the Sunday school, when in reality there should be a close association of interests. The combining of the children's exercises with those of the older people is always certain to be productive of good results.

Church choirs have been the training ground for our present organists, vocalists and conductors. Many of our famous men in church music received their first instruction and inspiration in the junior choirs. Ecclesiastical music assuredly has a preeminent place in our lives; it is a very necessary adjunct to the church inasmuch as the singing and playing of the music tends to broaden our existence.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS FROM KAWARTHA PARK

KAWARTHA PARK, Aug. 3.—Mr. and Mrs. Reardon and family of Toronto are summering at Kawartha Park.

Rev. David McKee of Peterborough was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Zimmerman at the park last week.

A goodly contingent from the park took in the regatta at Crowe's Landing on Monday and several were successful in winning prizes, viz., Misses Clara Adams, Isabel Reardon, and Helen Edmison, Dr. Geo. Zimmerman, Jim Reardon and Bob Beal.

On Saturday the annual field day will be held at Kawartha Park at 3 p.m. and the regatta will be held on the Monday following, Aug. 6.

More harvesters than ever will be needed this year in Western Canada on account of the bumper crop. Special trains will be run by the Canadian Pacific Railway, which is advertising the usual low rate of $15 to Winnipeg, plus a half-cent per mile beyond to destination in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Returning the fare will be $20 from Winnipeg, plus a half-cent per mile from starting point. Going dates are August 13, 15, 22 and 24, according to the territory in Ontario. On the lunch cars food and refreshments may be obtained at reasonable prices. Special cars will be provided for ladies, children (full fare) and their escorts. First special train will leave Toronto on each date at 10.00 a.m., and last special at 10.30 p.m. on each date.

Full information may be secured from any Canadian Pacific ticket office.

PRESIDENT OF U. S. A. DIED UNEXPECTEDLY AT 7.30 LAST NIGHT

Grim Reaper Struck Without Warning at San Francisco — Nations' Head Seemed Definitely on the Road to Recovery From Ptomaine Poisoning.

APOPLEXY THE CAUSE

PALACE HOTEL, San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 3.—(Special.)—The President is dead. Death apparently balked by medical science, struck suddenly and with no warning, at 7.30 last night.

The President was definitely on the road to recovery from ptomaine poisoning, acute indigestion and a pneumonic infection, which followed them. But death found a way through the armour—it struck into the brain with apoplexy, and without a struggle or word, and only a shudder of his weakened frame, and the raising of one hand, the nation's head passed beyond.

To-night they will take Warren G Harding's body home—back to the White House where he lived and worked as the chief magistrate of the people, who to-day, shocked beyond expression by his death, mourn for him and with his wife. After the simplest private funeral service in the Presidental suite at the Palace Hotel, where he took to his bed on Sunday morning, the Presidents remains will be placed aboard a special train which will leave San Francisco at seven p.m. for Washington.

He will be laid to rest in his old home town, Marion, Ohio., the country village which he was raised from rural obscurity into national prominence. Before the final obsequies there which will mark his burial the President's body probably will lie in state at Washington.

Calvin Coolidge of Massachussetts the vice--president, to-day wore upon his shoulders the mantle of authority and tremendous responsibility which slipped last night from Mr. Harding when he passed beyond the power of mortal things.

The President passed with the sunset. The last rays of Californias golden sunshine were pouring into his room, where Mrs. Harding, the wife who has been by his side since he was stricken seriously last Saturday, sat reading to him from a magazine, Dr. Sawyer, his old friend and personal physician sat beside.

The President was lying very still, listening to Mrs. Harding read. He seemed to be resting quite comfortably. To the watchful eyes of his two nurses, Miss Ruth Powderly and Miss Suedausser, he seemed just as he had been all day—comfortable and in better physical condition than at any time since he became ill. There was no apprehension of impending tragedy in the minds of any there Mrs. Harding and the nurses had every reason to feel easier about the condtion of the distinguished man than at any moment since illness overtook him. They were looking forward without fear or anxiety to the night—they believed, when the restorative power of sleep would add a little more to the slowly growing strength of the President.

It was a scene of peaceful quiet and contenment. Mrs. Harding read on. She came to the end of a para graph and passed. She turned to look at her husband.

It sounds good; go ahead said Mr. Harding.

Mrs. Harding turned again to the magazine and read. She had not finished a sentence, when, as though some one had struck him a sudden and crushing blow, the President threw up one hand over his head convulsively. It was as though he sought to ward off the blow which death, in that peaceful unguarded moment had aimed with unerring directness at a vital spot.

End Was Sudden.

Then like a man struck by a bolt of lightning, the President stiffened, and as suddenly dropped back limply. In that brief second the drawing of a breath, his spirit winged away from the weakened body.

There was no time for a word of farewell to his wife; no struggle or fight or futile effort to cling to life.

Just in an instant, like the dropping of the sun behind the hills, his life went out. He, who a moment before had been the President of the United tSates, the object of the solicitude and sympathetic concern of 110 million people, became a bit of clay, and the millions who, through the days of his illness, had swung with his wife and his close friends through the cycle of alarm, deepening fear, and back up to hope, relief, and the practical certainty of recovery, became mourners.

Mrs. Harding had sensed rather than seen that something was wrong. She turned quickly, and with a gasp, half rose from her chair, crying "Warren." But he could not hear. She knew it, too, but stumbling and running she went to the door, flung it open, and cried into the corridor, "Send Dr. Boone."

A moment before, Dr. Sawyer, noting with practiced eye that his pa-

Warren G. Harding.

WARREN G. HARDING PRESIDENT OF U. S. A. WAS SELF-MADE MAN

Born of Poor Parents, He Put Himself Through College and Fought Uphill Battle to Highest Office in Gift of Nation.

EDITOR OF PAPER.

Warren Gamaliel Harding, 29th President of the United States, was in every respect a self-made man.

Like Abraham Lincoln and many of his other distinguished predecessors, he worked his way up from a little log cabin to the White House.

The story of his success reads indeed, like a Horatio Alger or Oliver Optic novel for boys.

Born of poor parents he put himself through college, fought an uphill battle to become a successful newspaper editor and publisher, gained leadership in politics of his home community and state, and finally attained his boyhood ambition.

For Harding as a lad of 12, had promised his chums he some day would be the nation's chief executive.

Born in Ohio.

Harding was born on his grandfather's farm near Blooming Grove, Morrow County, O., Nov. 2, 1865.

His father, Dr. George Tyron Harding, still living, was a country physician whose practice was so small that he was forced to work in the fields to make ends meet.

Mrs. Phoebe Eliabeth Dickerson Harding, his mother, was a home-loving, industrious woman of deep religious convictions. She professed the Adventist creed. From her Warren inherited many of the traits so characteristic of him in later life.

Both father and mother came of a long line of sturdy pioneers. Dr. Harding was of Scotch descent, while his wife was of Dutch stock.

Warren was the eldest of eight children. When he was 5 the family moved to the neighboring village of Caledonia, O.

At 4 he had learned to read, and was memorizing long poems. He always was anxious to "speak his piece" at neighboring gatherings.

But he was not of the "goody-goody" type. He could swim further and dive deeper than any of his chums at the "ol' swimmin hole" in Whetstone creek. And it seems he could chew tobacco better than any of them.

Worked Through School.

When he was 14, a lanky, ungainly youth, more than six feet tall, he matriculated for an academic course at the Ohio Central College in Iberia. That long since has closed its doors.

Several times when he couldn't find enough odd jobs he was forced to quit school. But always after something turned up he would return to his books. He was graduated with a B.S. degree when he was 17.

For a year he taught school. Then he read law for another year.

His father bought the Marion, (O.) Star, then a struggling little weekly paper, at a sheriff's sale. Warren, in college, edited a school paper. He became editor of the Star which his father presented to him.

Against great financial odds he conducted the paper for some time. But he was forced eventually to sell it. He took a reportorial position on the Marion Mirror, but political differences with the owner resulted in his discharge.

Re-Purchases Paper.

Harding and Jack Warwick, now prominent in Ohio newspaper circles, later scraped together $200 and bought the Star again. Soon after Harding took over Warwick's interest.

With the assistance of his wife, formerly Miss Florence Elizabeth Kling, whom he married in 1891 against her father's wishes Harding transformed it into a powerful small town daily.

Meanwhile he was dabbling in politics. In 1900 he became a state senator. He served two terms. Then he was inducted into the lieutenant-governor's office. In 1910 he ran for governor, but was defeated.

He rose rapidly in Republican councils. In 1914 the people of the natal state sent him to the United Senate.

Six years later saw him put forth as a compromise candidate for the Republican presidential nomination at the convention in Chicago. He won the nomination and rode into the White House in the Republican tidal wave that swept the country six months later. James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio, was his Democratic opponent.

A mighty task confronted Warren G. Harding when he entered the White House.

America had entered upon the period of reconstruction following the greatest war in all history. It still technically was at war with Germany and Austria, although hostilities had ceased more than two years before, for no treaty had been signed between it and these nations.

There were problems of unemployment and national finance that must be attended to immediately.

Harding, with the same indomitable spirit that carried him through the storms of early life put his shoulder to the wheel of state.

Against the advice of his personal physician, Brig. General Charles E. Sawyer, he was at his desk for months from early in the morning until midnight. There were times even when he was still fumbling

NEW PRESIDENT.

Calvin Coolidge.

Vice-president of the United States who automatically succeeds the late President Harding as chief executive.

CALVIN COOLIDGE VICE-PRESIDENT TO SUCCEED HARDING

Man Who Will Fill the Unexpired Term of Dead Chief Executive of the United States Was Born to a Life on the Farm.

FOLLOW PRECEDENT.

Calvin Coolidge, twenty-ninth man elected vice-president of the United States and fourth from the state of Massachusetts, was born in the tiny town of Plymouth, Vt., July 4, 1872.

Running in his veins by direct lineage is the blood of the Mayflower pilgrims. From them he inherited a predominant Puritan respect for law and order such as characterized his conduct as governor of Massachusetts, in refusing to temporize with leaders of the Boston police strike.

Silent, reserved, uncommunicative almost to the point of brusqueness, he rose to national political ascendency in 1919 when he was mentioned for the Republican nomination for president.

When the nomination went to Harding, Coolidge was first and there was no second in the contest for vice-president.

Political Victor.

During his political life, Coolidge ran for various offices, state and municipal, a total of 17 times. He won every race, and only once was the fight close, that occasion being in his second contest for the Massachusetts State Legislature, when he received a plurality of only 63 votes.

Born to a life on the farm, during his boyhood Coolidge occupied himself doing chores and helping out in his father's general store.

He attended the little red schoolhouse at Plymouth. From there he went to the old Black Rock River Academy at Ludlow, Vt., to prepare himself to enter college. He had vague hopes of reaching so high, for the family farm and store were not over-productive and money in the Coolidge family was scarce.

In 1891, however, though considerably older than the average freshman because scanty means had prevented him leaving home, he entered Amherst.

Prize Winner.

There, in his senior year, he won a gold medal offered for the best essay on the principles of the Revolutionary War, the competition being open to the undergraduates of all American colleges. In 1895 he was graduated with high honors.

In 1897 he was admitted to the Massachusetts bar and began the practise of law at Northampton. Following two terms as mayor of that city, two as city solicitor, two in the state legislature, four in the senate, three as lieutenant governor and two as governor, his political star shot into the national constellation.

In person, Coolidge typifies the New England gentleman. He has probably never slapped a man on the back. He is quiet to the point of taciturnity in his speech and possesses a twinkling eye and a mouth and chin that, with all his kindly smile, are as firm and inflexible as Plymouth Rock itself.

In 1906, he married Miss Grace Goodhue, then a teacher in the Clarke School, Northampton. Two sons have been born to them. At the time of his election as vice president, the couple lived in a modest home at Northampton for which they paid $32 a month rental.

He is said to own no real estate, and has never owned an automobile.

Canadians Returning From the United States.

OTTAWA, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press)—The rapid increase in immigration to Canada during the first three months of the present fiscal year, amounting to 63 per cent. more than for the same period a year ago, is accompanied by indications of a return movement from the United States, according to officials of the department of immigration and colonization.

Reports reaching the department indicate that there has already been a considerable movement of returned Canadians who in recent months were attracted to the United States by the industrial prosperity then existing in that country.

The prospect of a record crop in Canada, with improved industrial conditions and the northward movement of the wave of prosperity is already reflected in admissions at United States border points.

TO FORWARD TRADE WITHIN THE EMPIRE

Empire Economic Conference Will Be Urged to Take Steps to Promote Empire Trade.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Representatives of the principal producing associations of the British Empire, meeting in London yesterday for the purpose of considering representations to be made to the Empire economic conference which opens in October, unanimously passed a resolution in favor of substantial inter-Empire preferences. The resolution also urged the necessity for an Imperial agricultural policy, an accurate survey of the actual potential production of the Empire of cereals, meats and dairy products and advocated an adjustment of preferential duties with the object of increasing Empire production.

The meeting passed another resolution that a statement of the case for certain industries of the Empire overseas desiring preferential treatment by way of import duties at the hands of the Imperial government be submitted to the economic conference; that preferences should be accorded in the form of definite money value preference and that the government be asked to give assurance that such preference would not be reduced for a decade except by mutual agreement among all the governments concerned and representatives of the industry affected by the duty.

The meeting also adopted a resolution in favor of asking the conference to recommend to the governments represented that all contracts issued by government departments and public bodies of the Empire should be given to British Empire firms using only Brtish Empire labor and materials and that British Empire industry should be consulted before contracts are awarded when it appears necessary to employ foreign industry or materials.

WHEAT POOL IN THE WEST FOR THE 1923 CROP

Aaron Sapiro Declares That Local Pools Are Not Efficient and Should Be Abolished.

QUESTION OF FINANCE

CALGARY, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press)—Establishment of a wheat pool in Alberta for the purpose of marketing the 1923 crop of wheat is not only feasible and a possibility, but it is essential declared Aaron Sapiro, California Co-operative marketing expert, in addressing a meeting of delegates and farmers from all parts of the province here yesterday.

"Local pools are not efficient and I would suggest the abolition immediately of all those formed, even though there may be farmers who have signed contracts. It is not a question of getting the farmer to sign—they will nearly all do that—but the big question is to market your grain. Keep that before you. That is the vital issue at stake. You want to know how to market your grain and the biggest questions are those of finance. After I have conferred with your official delegates I will offer the plan."

Emphatic repudiation of any attempt to form a pool including both livestock and wheat or other grains, was made by Mr. Sapiro.

Don't forget the "Herb Lennox" picnic to be held at Island Grove near Dickson's Point on Monday, August 6th. It will be greater than ever this year. The Prime Minister and his cabinet will be there—an excellent opportunity to see and meet the new ministers.

PRESIDENT HARDING'S DEATH.

The death last evening of President Harding, following as it did on the heels of optimistic bulletins from the physicians under whose care he was at San Francisco, will come as a shock to the world.

Outside of their natural interest in the affairs of their neighbors and of their feeling of admiration at the manner in which the President had tackled the problems of the reconstruction period, Canadians will feel a personal sense of loss in Mr. Harding's death in view of the fact that the chief executive had only just returned from a trip during which he visited Vancouver and delivered a most friendly and fraternizing address that emphasized the amicable relationships between the two countries, and expressed the hope that they would continue to live beside each other in perpetual peace and harmony.

He was the first President of the United States to set foot in Canada during his term of office, and his visit naturally made a deep impression upon the people of this country, seizing upon their imagination as a neighborly gesture significant of the friendly feeling of the people of the United States towards the Dominion.

To the people of British Columbia, who only a few days ago were delighted to welcome the President, and who saw him in good health and spirits, the intelligence that he has passed on must be a shock.

Canadians from one end of the country to the other will join in sympathizing with the people of the Republic in the loss they have sustained in the death of their leader.

THE GRAND ENCAMPMENT.

Some of the local merchants are already decorating their windows in honour of the Grand Encampment of the I.O.O.F. to be held here on Monday and Tuesday, and it is hoped that the majority of the others will co-operate with the committee in endeavouring to impart a festive appearance to the city as a background for the big gathering.

With hundreds of visitors it is desirable that there impression of Peterborough shall be of a warmly hospitable community, glad to have the opportunity of welcoming the members of the I.O.O.F.

It is recalled that on the last occasion when the Grand Encampment was held here Peterborough received much praise for the lavishness with which the city was decorated.

In late years we seem to have got away from the practice of decorating on a large scale—in fact, it has been noticeable that there is a failure to even fly the flag on national holidays.

It is not a change upon which the community is to be congratulated, and on this occasion perhaps the usual indifference will disappear, in favour of a general effort to recognize the presence of the visiting Oddfellows and to show them that Peterborough is glad to have them as guests even for two days.

The Grand Encampment will bring together people from many centres, and is a notable event that should be appreciated by the citizens.

THEY'RE COMING BACK.

As predicted by the Examiner at the time when the exodus to the United States was at its height, many Canadians who were lured by the stories of the industrial boom and consequent high wages are now finding that the conditions when examined at first hand are not as pleasant as they appeared, and they are coming back to Canada, disillusioned and content to stay in the land of their birth.

Immigration figures show that there is a steadily increasing percentage of Canadians re-entering this country from the United States.

That is splendid news, for the return of men familiar with conditions here and ready to at once take their place in the industrial and social life of the country is a fine thing for Canada.

Looking for immigrants who would have to be Canadianized and taught to adopt themselves to the customs of this country, while at the same time native-born Canadians were leaving by the thousands for the United States, appeared to the Examiner as an illogical proposition, and the intelligence that the tide has turned and that the flow is now towards Canada rather than away from it is most welcome.

Distant fields may look greenest, but a journey often proves that there is nothing but disappointment at the end of the trail.

The men who are coming back to Canada will be all the better Canadians because of their experience.

QUESTIONABLE TASTE.

Governor Victor A. Donahey of Ohio, in bringing with him for a holiday at his camp at Coboconk two "trusties" who are serving life sentences for murder, may be demonstrating his faith in the necessity of a more humanitarian treatment of prisoners, but at the same time he is showing very bad taste in coming into another country with such men in his retinue.

The Governor is a guest in Ontario, and most guests hesitate to inflict upon their hosts anything that may be displeasing.

A man may develop a fondness for rattle-snakes as pets, but as a rule he doesn't take them with him when he goes visiting, realizing that all people do not think alike, and that, peculiarly enough, there may be folks who do not appreciate a rattle-snake.

Governor Donahey may be quite justified in the confidence he puts in men who have gone wrong, and what measure of liberty he allows them is his own business and that of the people of his State, so long as he keeps them at home.

But when he comes into Canada with a pair of convicted murderers and announces that if they are deported he too will accompany them, the answer should be that the country regrets that his lack of judgment makes it necessary for Canada to say good-bye to him.

The Dominion is not used to seeing men convicted of murder playing around at summer resorts—there is different treatment here for persons who take the life of a human being—and Governor Donahey might have taken that fact into consideration in planning his vacation.

WESTERN CANADA.

What is the matter with Western Canada? asks the Hamilton Spectator.

The crops of 1923 will bring a financial yield of hundreds of millions of dollars. A conservative estimate places the total at a half-billion. The present crop outlook is even more optimistic. All the signs by which conditions in the West can be gauged indicate a bumper yield. Yet business is not so good in the three Prairie Provinces.

J. H. Haslam, writing in the Review of Reviews, declares that Western Canada "is suffering from the aftermath of one of the greatest booms which history records." He adds: "From 1900 to 1912 this region had greater development, and more acres were brought under the plow, than any other territory of like area in any period of its growth. People flocked into the country from Europe and the United States. Railways were built at an unprecedented rate. Cities, towns and villages sprang up on the prairies as if by magic. Hundreds of millions of dollars were brought into the country for construction purposes during every one of those years."

The point which this writer attempts to make is "that the morning after and consequent headache" have followed hard on the heels of the spree. The Progressive or Farmers' party has, since 1921, largely controlled the politics of the West. Alberta and Manitoba are under the thumbnail of the agriculturists. Saskatchewan gave the reins of government to the Liberal party, but destroyed the Conservative party as an important factor and elected a Progressive opposition. Does the explanation of the present-day plight of the West lie in the experiment it has made with class government? Ontario found that kind of government to be costly and, at the first opportunity, went back to clear-cut party lines. It may be that Western Canada has also learned her lesson and is biding her time, intent upon rectifying the mistake. She would do well to follow in Ontario's footsteps. "Once bitten, twice shy," is an old axiom which, eventually, will drive the farmer, as a class, out of the seats of Government.

FIELDS OF CLOTH O' GOLD.

The botanists say that the seeds of the Black-eyed Susan have come east in bundles of hay from Western clover fields, and remark that it is only fair that so many weeds having been sent west, that the east should be repaid in its own coin. Many members of the rudbeckia family have become favorites of recent years in European gardens, thus offering them still another chance to overrun the old world. Thrifty farmers may decry the importation into their hay fields of such a troublesome weed, but there is a glory to this lovely yellow flower, that makes the glitter of a gold coin fade into paltry nothingness.

In upland pastures, sown with gold, and sweet
With the keen perfume of the ripening grass,
Where wings of birds and filmy shadows pass,
Spread thick as stars with shining marguerite;
To haunt old fences overgrown with brier,
Muffled in vines, and hawthorns, and wild cherries,
Rank poisonous ivies, red-bunched elder-berries,
And pied blossoms to the heart's desire,
Grey mullein towering into yellow bloom,
Pink-tasseled milkweed, breathing dense perfume,
And swarthy vervain, tipped with violet fire.

An armful of Black-eyed Susans is worth going miles to find. Sometimes farmers with fields that are golden with the blossoms are complaisant enough to allow people to scramble under the fences, if they are modern and built of wire, or climb over them, if they are the old rail fences, but midsummer has a tendency to make an ordinarily good-natured farmer very touchy about trespassers. Perhaps he has good reason to be annoyed, for perhaps his pet raspberry patch that he had planned for his own use has been stripped clean as a whistle, the new growth all trampled and broken, and, to crown all, the remains of a meal or two, papers and dirt of all kinds strewn on his property. Under the circumstances we might be just as rude and unreasonable, and warn people that if they want any of those flowers they can find them somewhere else. The fact that his are the only fields for miles around that boast such an adornment will matter but little to him, and the best course to pursue is to spend your time in finding another field instead of arguing with the owner of the first.

And finding fields that are like cloth o' gold is not difficult except in a district where scientific farming has been adopted by all comers. Nicely-squared off fields of oats and wheat and corn, potato fields on which the most venturesome of bugs is speedily banished by the poison route, and places where the pink and white flowers of the buckwheat make a heaven for bees, are signs of a prosperous farming community and form part of the food supply that we will require during the coming winter. But because man does not live by bread alone, and because all the wide world is not needed for the production of our food supply, fields that only grow golden blossoms instead of golden dollars are far more beautiful than that crop that is listed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

If this long distance swimming stunt becomes popular the navigation companies will be hard hit.

Speaking of games of chance, the man who crosses a city street nowadays without watching his step is certainly taking one.

A Detroit newspaper reported the arrival of quadruplets in a Sandwich family, while, as a matter of fact, the stork had not paid a visit. That was too much or rather too-many.

Peterborough man has caught the biggest fish in the tourists' competition at Meaford. Most local people are good anglers because of the opportunities for practice this district affords.

With Montreal Aldermen resorting to the civil courts and Toronto city fathers appearing in the Police Court, it will be harder than ever to get good men to enter the public service.

First thing you know, the fall fair season will be here. How about that coal supply?

City Council has requested the police to keep order at band concerts in the park. On one night in particular there was every need for such a request.

SAFETY IN PARACHUTES

LONDON, Aug. 3.—(Associated Press)—Gathering his figures from all over the world, E. R. Calthorp declares there were 90 crashes of airplanes during the six months ended June 30. One hundred and six persons were killed in these accidents, and 64 were injured.

Mr. Calthorp says it is only by the introduction of parachutes, and the capable use of them, that fatalities can be materially reduced.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press)—With no export demand of any consequence in sight, and gossip current that Europeans were selling wheat bought in the United States, wheat slipped down in price yesterday after scoring a small advance. The market closed unsettled, ¼ and ¾c to 1c net lower, with September 97¼ to 97¾ and 97¾c, and December $1.00½ to $1.00¾. Corn finished unchanged to ¼ and ¾c off; oats ¾ and ¾c to ¾c down, and provisions at 5 to 20c decline.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—There was an easier feeling in the local spot oats market with only small business passing. The flour market was without developments. The tone of the millfeed market was firm. There is only a moderate trade in baled hay. A good steady trade continues in eggs. Trade in potatoes was slow. Butter prices scored a decline of 3-4 cent per pound. Cheese was weaker and prices fell off 1-4 cent to 3-4 cent per pound.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Receipts, 875 cattle and calves, 350 hogs and 180 sheep and lambs.

Trading was light on the cattle market yesterday morning, and up to noon buyers operated very sparingly, taking only a few butchers at prices in line with Wednesday's close.

The sheep and lamb market was dull. Best lambs drew a top bid of $9.00, with good light mutton sheep priced from $3.00 to $8.00.

On the hog market no definite price was established. Packers were bidding steady at $8.75 for thick smooths, with salesmen asking a higher figure.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Quality of receipts reported better, prices materially unchanged. Ontario shippers report receiving extras 28 to 31, firsts 23 to 25, seconds 18 to 20 delivered. General market situation unchanged.

Toronto jobbing, extras 34 to 36, firsts, 29 to 33, seconds 23 to 26; retail, extras 35 to 45, firsts 32 to 34, seconds 28.

Saskatchewan dealers quoting, extras 23, firsts 19, seconds 13, cracks 8 delivered.

Belgians Ask That Secrecy Be Continued.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press)—The Belgian Government has instructed its Ambassador in London to express the British Government the opinion that the publication of the documents relating to the recent pourparlers would be inopportune, because it might render continued exchanges of views difficult, according to a semi-official note published by Le Soir.

There is no question, at least for the present, the note adds, for a new conference. Evidently the Belgian Government feels that a good talk is better than an exchange of notes, but a good talk requires two, and in the present circumstances, even three, participants.

The fire works at the Lennox Picnic have always pleased the crowd. This year they will be on a higher scale than ever.

STANDARD BANK IN A SOUND POSITION

Withdrawal of Part of Reserve to Meet Losses Has Not Affected the Assets.

OTTAWA, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press)—The Standard Bank of Canada, which has written down its reserve by $1,350,000 to meet losses and by $1,000,000 more to establish a contingent reserve had a good margin between total assets and liabilities according to the last statement made by the bank to the Department of Finance. The total assets of the Standard Bank on June 30, according to the official return were $80,061,368, while the liabilities were $70,231,876. The notes of the bank in circulation at that date amounted to $5,174,010; the savings deposits were $42,603,310 and the demand deposits $15,179,904. The current gold and subsidiary coin held by the bank at that time was $1,746,287 and the Dominion notes held were $3,800,247. The deposit of the bank in the Central Gold Reserve was $1,500,000. The current loans which the Standard then had out in Canada were $66,413,512 and the call loans $3,386,119, while the over due debts were listed at $383,702. The reserve was given in that statement at its full value of $5,000,000; while the paid up capital was then and still is $4,000,000.

Kingston Asks Change in Dairy Standards Act.

KINGSTON, Aug. 3.—(Special).—At yesterday afternoons meeting of the Frontenac Cheese Board a resolution was passed on motion of George Smith, Farnam, seconded by W. Fawcett, calling on the Ontario Government to amend the dairy Standards Act so that cheese factories might pay for milk by test or by pooling as they might see fit.

Cheese is still going up in price. 274 boxes were sold on the Frontenac Cheese Board yesterday at 19 11-16c.

FASCITI IN ROUMANIA.

BUCHAREST, Aug. 3.—(Associated Press)—A Fascist party, after the model of the Italian Fascisti, has been organized in Roumania. Its motto is "Justice to the just, death to the evil; Fascismo never forgets."

In its program the new party declares that Roumania needs, first of all, a dictatorship for the restoration of order, security; and honest dealing. It calls also for the expulsion of ofreigners, whose presence to the exten of 2,000,000 persons gravely complicates the housing problem.

Delorme Case May Be Re-opened Again.

MONTREAL, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press)—The Attorney-General of Quebec has called on Deputy Officer of the Crown Jules Godin to furnish a list of all the cases to be tried at the September term of the court of King's Bench here. This is the first time that such a request has been made and it is thought to forecast a re-opening of the trial of Rev. Father Delorme in whose last trial on charge of murdering his half-brother, Raoul, the jury failed to agree.

FUEL SITUATION IS BETTER THAN FOR LAST YEAR

Greater Quantities of Both Hard and Soft Coal Have Been Imported Than in Either 1921 or 1922.

FUTURE UNCERTAIN.

OTTAWA, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The coal situation in the United States, with its uncertainty regarding the possibilities of a strike in the anthracite field, is being carefully watched by the Federal fuel authorities. The Advisory Fuel Commission established by the Government last summer is still in operation and working in harmony with the Dominion Fuel Board set up last winter for the investigation of the general question of fuel supply. Touch is also being maintained with such of the Provincial Fuel Controllers as are still in office.

According to the latest returns available at the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, imports of fuel into Canada during the present season have been kept up to the average. For the three months ending with June, covering the first quarter of the current coal year, the imports of anthracite from the United States have been much higher than last year, and a trifle over those of 1921. The imports of bituminous coal from the United States for quarter mentioned have this year been 1,303,000 tons, as compared with 260,000 tons in 1922, and 1,238,000 tons in 1921. The imports of bituminous coal from the United tSates for the same period have been 3,392,000 tons this year, as compared with 1,580,000 tons in 1922, and 2,516,000 in 1921.

The trade figures for the quarter further reflect the emergence of the United Kingdom as a source of fuel supply. During the present year there were 161,000 tons of coal imported from the United Kingdom in the three months, as compared with only 17,000 tons in the corresponding period last year. The largest increase, proportionately, has taken place in anthracite coal, though there have also been considerable increases in the imports of bituminous fuel from Great Britain.

The growth of the trade in anthracite has been particularly striking, presumably owing to the demand created for Welsh anthracite last year. In the three months ending with June of last year, there was only 245 tons of anthracite coal brought into the Dominion from the United Kingdom. During the same period this year there has been brought in nearly 50,000 tons. Of bituminous coal in the three months under consideration there was 16,500 tons imported last year, and this has grown during the present season to a little over 100,000 tons.

A new element in the fuel situation in Central Canada is being introduced this year by the placing on the market of Alberta coal. In this regard it has already been announced that the Canadian National Railways has made a rate of seven dollars a ton for the carrige of Alberta coal to Ontario, and that this fuel will be available in sufficient quantities to provide a definite test of its suitability.

DOWNEYVILLE NEWS

LINDSAY, Aug. 3.— The annual garden party at Downeyville on Wednesday under the auspices of St. Luke's church was a splendid and attracted an attendance of fully 1500 people from all parts of the district, including a number from Peterboro The ladies of the parish provided splendid meals, and no one went away hungry. There were a number of booths on the ground and all did a thriving business. A list of athletic events was pulled off but the piece de resistance was the boxing exhibition.. Mr. Les. Richman, of Lindsay was the referee and Dick Butler the announcer.

Russell Catos 115 champion of Ontario, took on Willie Godwin, of St. Helen's, Toronto, runner-up in the same event. The exhibition was a clever one and the participants were warmly applauded.

Stan Cummings, of St. Helen's, Toronto, 147lbs., champion of Ontario, and Tommy Partridge, unattached, runner-up, next met in the arena and proved themselves very clever glove artists

Two Peterboro boxers, Jack Jordan and Jack McDonough, came together in the 126 class, and got a great hand from the gallery. They gave a splendid exhibition of the manly art.

Vic. Callaghan and Basil Carroll, met in the 150 class for the championship of Downeyville, and both broke even on points.

"Red' Downey and "Kit' Carroll clashed in the bantam class, 75 pounds, for the championship of Downeyville This event caught the crowd. No decision given.

DROWNING AT PARRY SOUND

PARRY SOUND, Ont., Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press.)— Albert Lusk of Windsor, aged about thirty years, was drowned at Rosepoint yesterday morning while bathing at Hoggs Beach. The young man has been visiting the family of Charles Rowe here and the Rowe boys have a summer cottage at Rosepoint, where they were stopping. Lusk rushed into the water and doubtless fell into a hole about twelve feet deep, where the body was recovered in about half an hour. Neither young men could swim but Rowe did his best to help his friend, who did not rise, and failing rushed for help, but when recovered life was extinct. Dr. Limbert, coroner, who was called, decided death was accidental.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Automobile Plunged Into the Ditch—Home From California—News of Interest.

CAMPBELLFORD, August 3. — Rev. C. F. McIntosh, Rev. J. J. Black, of Burnbrae, Fred Wigglesworth, and Lew Hay, were returning yesterday afternoon from a three days' fishing trip in Baptiste Lake, near Bancroft, when they were eyewitnesses of an auto accident in which two Cannington residents had a miraculous escape from death.

R. Shier and his sister, who reside near that village, were driving in a big car when on Pinery hill, near Ormsley, something went wrong with the steering gear, and the auto taking the ditch turned upside down, pinning the occupants beneath it. There happened to be a log on the side of the road and the car fell upon this which kept it just far enough from the ground to save Mr. Shier and his sister from injury. They were held prisoners however until two motorists from Belleville came along. They were unable to right the car but they managed to raise it sufficiently to enable those under it to escape. The party of fishermen arrived too late to render any aid.

Mr. and Miss Shier were not injured but the car was badly wrecked.

A Successful Career.

A. E. Ming, who with his wife and daughter and three friends, motored from California, reaching here the other day, to visit Mr. and Mrs. B. I. Gibson, is an example of a Canadian, who left Canada in his youth, and, locating in the United States, made good, both in business and in politics. Mr. Ming left his home in Napanee, where two of his brothers still reside, and settled in Cheboygan, Mich., which at that time was the centre of a thriving lumber trade. His first start in life was as a school teacher, but he had a turn for politics, and while still in his twenties was elected Sheriff of Cheboygan County, an office which at that time was worth about $3,000 a year in fees. His term was for two years, but he was re-elected.

Retiring from the office of Sheriff which the statutes provide shall be held by no one man for more than two years, Mr. Ming, who was an adherent of the Republican party, was elected a member of the State Legislature, and held this office for four years. Later he removed to California, and went into the orange growing business.

Mr. Ming's first wife, who died some years ago, was Miss Margaret Montgomery, of Roseneath. Norman Montgomery, of Brighton, and Wesley, of Hastings, who is the cheesemaker in that village, are brothers of the late Mrs. Ming's, whose remains were brought from Michigan to Warkworth for burial. Mr. Ming visited and decorated her grave before he left the neighborhood on his homeward trip.

"The Signs of the Times."

Rev. R. Bloye, pastor of the Free Methodist church, will, by special request, preach on the above subject next Sunday evening. Mr. Bloye's object is to demonstrate that the prophecies with regard tto the second coming of Christ are being fulfilled.

To Meet in Warkworth.

The fourth district quarterly meeting of the Campbellford district of the Free Methodist church will be held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday next week, in the Warkworth church and an interesting programme has been arranged for each day of the gathering. On Friday at 8 p.m. there will be preaching by Rev. A. F. Ball and the quarterly conference will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday. At 2.15 on the afternoon of that day there will be a lecture on the prophet Amos by Rev. G. A. Mitchell, followed by an address on Sunday school work by Rev. W. Brown. At 8 p.m. Rev. W. Brown will preach.

On Sunday the arrangements are for a love feast at 9 a.m. and preaching at 10.45 by Rev. L. Slingerland, district elder. Miss B. Reid will preach at 2.30 and Rev. R. Bloye, of Campbellford, at 7.30.

JUMPING KILLS HORSE.

LONDON, (By mail to United Press).—A real race-horse paid its life for a little private jumping practice at Aldershot camp.

The horse, belonging to Lieut. D. O. Blake, 13th Hussars, was a well-known blooded steeeplechaser, and recently won the 13th Hussaes, Challenge Cup.

It disappeared from its stable. It was known to be an enthusiastic jumper, and soldiers went towards the nearby Twesledown racecourse to look for it. They found it hanging from the fork of a tree.

The horse, in jumping a hedge in sight of the course, went too high and caught its neck in the fork. It had strangled to death before it could be cut down.

TWO CONVICTS JUST WORSHIP THE GOVERNOR

Vic Donahey of Ohio Says Trusties He Brought to Canada Would Die for Him.

ROTTEN POLITICS

COBACONK, August 3.—On the shores of Cull Lake, about half a mile across water from Coboconk, 2 young Americans, Earl Jennings and C. Pipriani, aged 27, are enjoying the most unique vacation ever recorded in Ontario chronicles They are, indeed quite the most talked of visitors in the place, despite the fact that a State Governor and the Warden of a State Penetentiary are present also.

Both these young men took human life by act of violence, seven years ago. Both were tried for that crime; both convicted of murder in the second degree—which, in the United States, is about the equivalent of manslaughter in Canada; both were sentenced to life imprisonment in Ohio State Penetentiary. Then two good angels appeared in the persons of Warden Preston E. Thomas, and State Governor Vic Donahey; and the result has been that Jennings and Zipriandi are to-day "free prisoners," brought outside the bounds of their native State, permitted to step onto Canadian soil, and sojourning as welcome guests under the British flag; Jennings as chauffeur of the Governors car and Zipriandi as cook to the Warden and his party.

Nothing Unusual.

And the Governor and the Warden see nothing unusual, nothing to make a fuss about, in the situation. They admit that if Jennings and Ziprandi mad a dash for freedom now, well—they would be free, that's all, and the only process of getting them back to U. S. A. would be the cumbersome process of re-arrest and extradition. But they also say with great decisiveness, that these young men will not run away; that they will remain and cook and drive the car, and will be right there to drive the Governatorial party back home two weeks hence.

Die For Govrenor.

Indeed, official faith in these young men is of the kind that moves mountains, and causes two dignitaries of the State to make wagers.

"We knew before we brought them that they would be free men when they stepped on Canadian soil, said Governor Donahey. "But we trust them. We'll send them any place in Coboconk. And we'll take them back with us. Those boys would die for me, and for that man there"—meaning the Warden—"because they have faith in us."

Said Warden Thomas: "I will bet anybody ten thousand dollars against fifty, that these men will drive us back."

Added the Governor: "I will bet two thousand dollars on the same ratio, and I'm a poor man."

On other hand what these 2 officials have to say about the reports and the alleged unfavorable criticism emanating from Columbus, Ohio, and what the State Attorney is quoted as having said, wouldn't look good in print.

"This is nothing more or less than rotten Republican politics over in Ohio," declared Governor Donahey. "The Attorney General is a Republican and has retarded me in every possible way. He is a politician as well as a lawyer. I was one of the few Democratic Governors elected, and already I have vetoed thirty-eight of their legislative acts. I know who sent out this report. I don't care anything about it, only I don't want the people of Canada to think that we are carrying two common murderers around with us."

Warden Thomas has spent several summer vacations at Gull Lake. This year he is accompanied for the first time by Governor Donahey. Travelling in two motor cars, with the Governor's wife and the Warden's six sons, they came by way of Erie, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto, through Lindsay to Coboconk, and were never once stopped or questioned en route.

Clearing Situation.

By way of clearing up the situation, the Governor and the Warden sat on the piazza of a summer hotel here and told the press all about it. They were two very democratic looking figures indeed, both big, stout, ruddy faced men, wearing flannel travelling shirts and straw hats, and miles removed from the dignity and standoffishness that characterizes some officials. After the first brief interview they rowed across the lake to their quarters in Peel's cottage, where Jennings and Zipriani and the remainder of the party were already unpacking for their stay.

NEW HONEYMOON CARS PROVIDED BY PULLMAN

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—Pullman Palace car officials have made a tremendous hit with honeymooners with their new type of sleeping car, which insures daytime as well as nighttime privacy to passengers. These cars already are in operation on California Limited trains over the Santa Fe and other roads are placing orders for them.

When berths are made up, a new style partition going from the seat to the ceiling, gives the occupants absolute seclusion. Young couples who have been embarrassed by the stares and chuckles of unfeeling fellow passengers hail the new cars with joy.

"Bassinette" is really a word of French origin, meaning a cradle made of wicker.

Mrs. Harding's cry brought him back—but it was too late then for science or affection of any mortal help to bring back that which had gone winging into the sunset.

Took Oath of Office.

PLYMOUTH, Vermont, August 3. — Calvin Coolidge, Vice-President of the United States, took the presidential oath of office in the early hours of this morning, and will leave at nine o'clock for Washington to take up his duties as chief executive of the country.

The News in Great Britain.

LONDON, August 3. — "The death of President Harding adds one more complication to a world already tangled with trouble," former Premier Lloyd-George said to the United Press to-day.

"The news of the President's death came as a shock to this country, as we had been led to believe that the crisis was past. It is regarded by everyone as a great loss, for his simple straightforwardness had won for him a genuine respect and liking in this country.

"There is everywhere a deep feeling of sympathy for Mrs. Harding, and sincere good wishes for the new President in the task he is suddenly called on to discharge in such tragic circumstances."

Coolidge Takes Oath.

WASHINGTON, August 3 (Canadian Press). — Calvin Coolidge took the oath as President of the United States at Plymouth, Vermont, at 2.47 a.m. to-day.

The new President was sworn in by his father, who is a notary public, and at whose home he was visiting.

The text of the pledge as prescribed by the constitution was telephoned him by White House.

His Last Words.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 3. — (Canadian Press). — "That's good; go on, read some more."

These were the last words uttered by President Harding to Mrs. Harding.

Mrs. Harding was reading an article entitled "A Calm Review of a Calm Man," in which President Harding was the man reviewed.

The trip across the continent will be made on the same train that carried the chief executive a well, happy and hopeful man to the Pacific Coast.

Its route will take it through Reno, Ogden, Cheyenne, Omaha, Chicago, and thence to Washington.

It will make no stops, except to change engines and for other operating purposes.

Naval and military honours will be paid the dead commander by the Army and Navy throughout the whole trip. Two soldiers and two sailors, members of the guard of honour of sixteen enlisted men and two officers, will stand at attention beside the casket.

The car bearing the body will be lighted at night, and the whole train probably will be draped in black.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3. United Press. — The New York Stock Exchange will close to-day according to a statement issued early this morning by the president.

LONDON, Aug. 3. United Press. —King George has commanded that his court shall wear mourning for President Harding for a week, beginning to-day.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3. United Press. —All American League baseball games scheduled for to-day have been called off by Ben Johnson, President of the League, owing to the death of President Harding.

CHICAGO, Ills., Aug. 3. United Press. — John J. Stream, President of the Chicago Board of Trade, to-day summoned directors as a formality to suspend trading for to-day owing to the death of President Harding.

No Clues to Murderer of Game Protector.

STE. FLORENCE, Bonaventure County, Que., Aug. 3.— (Canadian Press.)— Dr. A. Marois, official autopsist left here yesterday night for Quebec with his report on the post portem of J. Blaquiere, who was shot by unknown poachers last week. With him was Dr. Derome who will flyle a report on the finger prints collected on the fishing gear left on the shore of the Bonaventure river by the alleged murderers. Coroner Drolet who had re-opened the inquest when a verdict of "criminally and wilfully killed by parties unknown." closed the investigation again Wednesday without having been able to place the responsibility on anyone.

Three men are said to have been responsible for the murder and it is believed they separated after five shots had been fired. The general opinion is that the men were afraid of being shot after refusing to accede to the demand of Warden Blaquiere calling on them to surrender.

COFFIN CRUISED THE SEAS.

BREMEN, Aug. 3.—(Associated Press)—Back in the old days when William Hohenzollern, now living quietly in Holland, used to enjoy traveling about Europe as the German emperor, the steamer Bremen often saw him installed in the imperial suite, built gaudily for his personal use. And at that time it was related, though never proved, that a sumptuous royal coffin was always carried on this vessel, in case os eventualities.

It now appears this story was true. The Bremen is today the Constantinople, running between Sandy Hook and the Golden Horn. Down in her hold there was found recently the coffin reefrred to. It is a prtentious affair, lined with silk and decorated wit hgold and silver. William last travelled on the Constantinople in 1912.

RULES FOR SWIMMERS.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (United Press).—Gene McClure, noted life guard at Kansas City swimming pools in summer, and at Miami beach in the winter, gave the following rules for swimmers:

Don't enter the water until at least two or three hours after eating. Dangerous cramps may result from violation of this rule:

Don't make foolish boasts;

Don't dive off high plaies without first learning to dive from lower ones; a dive timed incorrectly is dangerous;

Don't get excited when a cramp seizes you; a cramp in feet or arms may be massaged away.

Don't call for help in fun.

LLOYD GEORGE ASKS BALDWIN FOR HIS POLICY

What Will Great Britain Do in the Event of the Collapse or Capitulation of Germany.

TWO MISTAKES.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Mr. Lloyd George yesterday deplored his inability to find any definite policy in the speeches of Premier Baldwin.

There was no secret diplomacy on the part of the French Government, continued Mr. Lloyd George. Premier Poincare, he added, had emphatically made clear he did not propose to negotiate with Germany until she capitulated, and that France would not leave the Ruhr until the last payment was made to her. Having received overwhelming support for this policy, the speaker asked, did they think they were going to induce Poincare to deviate from it by sending him more notes? Was it not best to accept the situation?

"The French flag is in the Ruhr," asserted Mr. Lloyd George, "the honor of the country is involved. One must not overlook what appears to be sentimental, but what are really fundamental things that govern nations."

Two fundamental mistakes have been made, went on the former Premier. Although the entrance into the Ruhr was declared illegal the majority of the Allies allowed France to go there, which was the first mistake; the second was that the proposal of United States Secretary of State Hughes for an international commission to inquire into Germany's ability to pay was not adopted.

"Before the Commons meets again one of two things may happen," Mr. Lloyd George said. "First, the collapse of Germany; second, the capitulation of Germany. What our policy is to be in the case of either, the House ought to know.

"Never before has the Government of this country got into such a position in its relations with the European powers. Here is a question which intimately concerns our commerce, our finance, our position in Europe—and we are not consulted."

Mr. Lloyd George ended his address demanding: "Having due regard to the position we held in Europe and the part we played in the war, the Government will state distinctly and fairly what their policy is."

through his papers until almost daybreak.

The world conference on disarmament probably will go down in history as the greatest achievement of his administration.

But Harding's fight for an American ship subsidy, for the establishment of a world court of justice, for the preservation of the 18th or prohibition amendment, for the amicable settlement of industrial differences on the railways, and in the mines will be remembered long after his name has become only a memory

Travellers Look For Revival of Business.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—Commercial travellers generally agree that the coming autumn will see a great business revival, according to Geo. T. Hair, Secretary of the Ontario Commercial Travellers' Association yesterday. Optimism replacing predictions of slack trade in all lines, and wholesale houses in London are preparing to do the greatest amount of business this fall since the recent business depression.

Some echoes of the great buyers' strike are yet heard, but it is believed that there will be a general loosening up in buying and that money will be more plentiful than at any time since 1921.

HOLY PLACES IN PALESTINE

Of the several holy places in Palestine those will always attract the greatest interest which are associated with the sufferings and death of the Redeemer. We begin with the garden of Gethsemane. The angular maze of streets, for which Jerusalem is noted, lies behind us. At St. Stephen's gate we stand and scan the long valley which extends bare and rocky for about an hour's journey between the Mount of Olives and Zion. It is the Cedron valley, better known as Jehoshaphat. According to a very ancient Hebrew belief the last judgment is once to be held there. Since the oldest times orthodox Israelites have therefore been eager to find their grave there, wherefore an immense burial-ground has grown up all around. Its partial destruction has a depressing effect upon the visitor. Wherever one looks there is a sea of desolate grave-stones, demolished tombs and yawning rocky graves.

After some hundred paces a stone bridge leads across the dry bed of a little stream, the Cedron. The road continues straight-away. Before us we see a garden site surrounded by protecting walls. It is Gethsemane in re, juvenated yet ancient, stately form. Its guardians, the Franciscan monks have turned it into a well kept garden and divided it according to the fourteen stations of Christ's way to the cross.

The sign of Gethsemane is a group of ancient olive trees which visibly date back to the time of the crusades. They are said to have sprung from the roots of those trees that shaded the garden in the days of Christ. The same Gethsemane (oil-press) points to its ancient function. The garden which probably adjoined a manor, may have been the property of a disciple or kinsman of the Lord. Jesus is said to have come frequently to the garden and to the natural cave nearby. It was a favorite place for silent meditation.

Like the scenes of Christ's crucifixion and burial, Gethsemane, too, thanks to its natural advantages, has been preserved from destruction for two millenniums. To be sure, the arches of the grotto, to which eight steps now lead, are at present secured by six posts. Otherwise the spacious grotto, which is over 30 feet wide and twice as long, is preserved in its original state, in spite of the fact that it is now used as a chapel. A plain high altar and two side altars occupy the rear wall. An opening in the ceiling allows a faint light to enter. A marble slab in front of the center altar contains a Latin inscription from Luke.

Let us return to the church of the Holy Sepulchre. This unique undenominational church overarches not only the hill whereon Jesus was crucified, but also the adjoining grave of the Saviour. Its accurate designation would hence be the church or the crucifixion and the sepulchre. When in Judaea in the time of the Romans, a Jew sentenced to death by the governor was surrendered to his fellow believers for execution, they took him out before the city gates in order to have the sentence executed. About 50 yards beyond the western wall of the town, in front of the so-called gate of execution there was a rocky eminence some 75 feet in elevation. On account of its shape, which resembled that of a skull, the Romans called it Calvaria, that is, skull place; the Jews called it Golgatha.

At the foot of this hill there was a valley, which 200 paces further on rose to another rocky height, similar to Golgatha. In Christ's day a garden encircled this hill, belonging to a member of the Jewish High Council by the name of Joseph, who was secretly an adherent of the Saviour. He came from Arimathea, now known as Ramleh, a town lying between Jerusalem and Joppe. He had selected the rocky eminence as his future grave and had a tomb hewn out of the cliff. It contained a vault of rock similar to many which have now been found by excavations and are believed to represent the oldest and most common form of burial among the Canaanites and Israelites. Both hills are still in existence.

The hill of Golgatha rises behind the entrance to the Holy Sepulchre, at the right. Crossing the rectangular area in front of it, we enter the Sepulchre and in the main portal we ascend 18 narrow steps cut into the rock. Tehy are piously covered by marble and form the ascent to the historical place of crucifixion. It contains about 50 sq. feet. A chapel without windows forms an unusually low arch over the rocky floor. In the subdued light spread by several suspended silver lamps, two richly decked altars can be discerned. The one to the right belongs to the Roman Catholics, that to the left is the property of the "orthodox" Catholics. The former marks the place where Jesus was nailed to the cross, the latter where the cross was raised aloft. This double chapel is also undenominational.

The burial mound itself of Jesus lies under the great cupola of an open rotunda borne by 16 pillars. Within there is the cubiculum, of red marble, measuring 25 feet in length and 15 in breadth. It is the property of the Greeks who constructed it in 1808 in place of the one destroyed by fire. But the Western Church is entitled to use it, too, for the previous cubiculum had been built in the 16th century by the Franciscans.

First we reach the anteroom, hewn out of the rock, a typical old Israelite arrangement. It is as high as an ordinary room, and over ten feet square. It is known as the Angel's Chapel. According to Scripture, it was here that the angel appeared to the pious women who were on their way to the Lord's sepulchre to anoint his body, according to the custom of the land. The ponderous stone, to which the Bible refers, barred the entrance to the chamber of the grave. This entrance, a sepulchral portal in the literal sense of the word, is about 3 feet high, and the visitor must crouch down to pass through it. Originally it is said to have been even lower, having been made higher in the twelfth century. This would agree with the discoveries made in recent years with regard to old Hebraic graves in Palestine. The Angel's Chapel is constantly illuminated by 15 hanging lamps of silver.

The chamber of the grave itself is smaller than the anteroom. It contains about 6 square feet, but is high enough to permit one to stand upright. The right wall is widened into a niche, so that a bank of rock is created. In this is the compartment hewn out like a sepulchre, wherein the body lies. The vacity is not visible, being covered by two marble slabs. But a cleft in the center, half an inch in diameter, makes it possible to peer in. It is said that this was done so that vandals of the vicinity might convince themselves that the sepulchre contains no offerings, as

MOTHER

How beautiful and childlike is the word "mother!" It is as if one must bow in reverence and humility when these syllables are uttered. Mother—the word is a haven of rest for the far-off wanderer in lands ever so distant from home.

There hover in all eternity over th life of a child the words: Your mother will always give you shelter, my child.

Can you read in the countenance of your mother? So, every wrinkle of care conceals the image of the child.

And mother's care endures forever, from earliest infancy to old age.

If the hard-hearted scorn you—go home to mother.

There you will find one who understands.

Every word of a mother is worth its weight in gold.

There is something sacred about a mother.

God has blessed her with gentleness and compassion.

God has made her frail hands strong for the work of her child.

Who comprehends the nature of a mother marvels at her untiring unselfish endeavor.

So these mothers toil ceaselessly and often reap naught but ingratitude for their love and care.

But no anger nor resentment is theirs for they know that the day will be when their child will come in search of them.

And that day is their richest reward.

The word stands out like a beacon through the ages.

Mother!

It is an eternal prayer of childhood.—William Lidell.

NEWS JANETVILLE AND THE DISTRICT

Steady Hum of the Threshing Machine Heard These Days — Many Improvements.

JANETVILLE, Aug. 3. — The shrill blast of the whistle and the steady hum of the threshing machine, tell us that the yield of clover seed is being tested out. Thus far the returns are very promising. One farmer informs us that he has threshed fifty-five bushels from 5 1-2 acres. This is supposed to be an excellent yield. This crop seems to have fought its way through the unusual drought with wonderful endurance.

Property Changes Hands.

The desirable residence recently owned by Dr. Allan has been sold to Mr. James Porter of this village. Mr. Porter will make this a winter home for the time being, as the farm occupies his attention at the present. This is a beatuiful mansion, situated in the cetnre of five acres of ground, ornamented and beautified with rare skill and superior taste. The property at present is somewhat out of repair.

The Art of Improvement.

One can hear the rub, dub dub, and chuck chuck of the gasoline engine as the cement is being prepared for building purposes. Not only does this activity confine itself to dwellings, but we learn that considerable extension of sidewalks is embraced in the programme of improvement. The people have also applied for the Hydro power, and when this goes through Janetville will go forward with leaps and bounds.

The New Park.

This potentially beautiful park is now substantially fenced and embraces about eight acres of ground touching the south end of the village. This will be planted with trees in the spring and will be otherwise beautified. A grand stand will likely be built as soon as possible and a brass band organized. All the Woman's Institute needs is some money and a lusty cheer, and they will get both.

SOILED WHITE WOOL.

If you have a skein of white wool that has become soiled you can clean it by sifting warm cornstarch through it and rolling it up in a clean towel. In a couple of days shake out the starch and the wool will be perfectly white.

LAKEFIELD HAD BIG EXCURSION

Dry Weather is Causing Anxiety Among Farmers —Personals.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 3.—The second annual excursion of the employees of the Canada Cement Co. was held on Friday last (July 27th) per Steamer "Sinney Lake" to Crowe's Landing. Employees, with their families and friends, numbering approximately three hundred, availed themselves of the opportunity to have an enjoyable outing together. The boat left the dock at Lakefield at 8.30 a.m., arriving at Crowe's Landing in time for lunch, after which a full programme of sports was held. The winners of the various events were presented with splendid prizes donated by the merchants of Lakefield. Dancing was popular both at the pavilion and on the steamer, the music being provided by Hendren's orchestra and Messrs. Sullivan and McManus. Dancing, both of the round and square variety, never lagged and the trip was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone. The boat, laden with its throng of merry-makers, returned to the village in the early evening, after even a more enjoyable outing than had been anticipated. Last year's excursion, which was a splendid success, was beaten by the 1923 outing and it will undoubtedly prove an annual affair. The results of the sports are as follows:

Boys' race, under 16 years of age—1 Francis McFadden, 2 G. Wannamaker, 3 K. Junkin.

Girls' race, under 14 years of age—1 Gladys Bolton, 2 B. Abbott, 3 A. Watson.

Fat man's walking race—1 R. Allen, 2 J. Murduff, 3 L. Riel.

Ladies' race—1 Miss Allen, 2 Miss Watson.

Boys' race, under 12 years of age—1 J. McFadden, 2 Andreus, 3 B. Allen.

Girls' race, under 10 years—1 W. Junkin, 2 M. Woodhouse.

Men's time race—1 V. McManus, 2 R. Allen

Ladies' time race—Misses E. Hill and L. Summers (equal.)

Tug-of-war—Charlton's yard gang defeated Waldon's concretes.

Baseball — Mickey's brigade defeated the cottages 4-0.

Standing broad jump—1 E. Allen, 2 V. McManus, 3 A. Tighe.

Men's three-legged race—1 Allen and Richardson, 2 F. McFadden and G. Wannamaker.

Employees' wives' race—1 Mrs. A. Graham, 2 Mrs. Woodhouse.

Married mens' race—1 L. Riel, 2 A. Tighe.

Three-legged race, ladies—1 Misses Hamblin and Whibbs, 2 Misses Watson and Allen.

Mr. Bailey's prize of a bag of flour for the largest employees' family was awarded to William Webb.

Hunter and Hunter'se prize, a swing chair, for the youngest employee's child was awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Tighe's baby.

Grass Fire.

On Wednesday a spark from the C.N.R. engine started a fire in the grass near the remains of the old cement building and for about an hour ten men were kept busy extinguishing it. The dry condition of the grass made the fire spread rapidly, and only the most determined vigilance prevented a destructive conflagration. The fire which occurred last Friday was undoubtedly of the same origin as there was no other engine in the neighborhood, as the cement plant was idle that day, it being the occasion of the annual excursion.

Farmers Anxious.

The continued dry weather is giving considerable anxiety to the farmers as the crops will not be up to the mark without it. The berry crop is threatened with utter ruin, as the fruit is burning up on the bushes, and unless there is a change very soon the crop will be practically a failure. A rather serious consequence of the extreme drought is the shortage of water, which is becoming acute in some parts of the village. Wells are going dry in many cases. Several families are using water from one well.

Personals.

Wellington MacDonald returned to the village on Monday after a few days' vacation at Stoney Lake.

Mrs. Fred S. Brown was in the village from "Glenwood" on Monday.

Miss Mollie Thomson spent the week-end with Mrs. Wesley Sherin at "The Shack."

F. J. McFaddin, of Peterborough, is in the village this week on business.

Miss Mary Johnston spent the week-end with friends at Young's Point.

Miss Lottie Lemay was a week-end visitor to "Vlamede."

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon K. Fraser and Misses June and Doreen Fraser motored to the village from Burleigh Falls on Tuesday.

W. J. Leggott was in Young's Point on business on Monday.

Mrs. Wesley Sherin has returned from a visit to Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Davis at Washago.

G. E. Donaldson was in the village from Young's Point on Tuesday.

Rev. and Mrs. H. A. Ben Oliel and family, of Collingwood, motored to the village on Tuesday and will remain for a few days.

Miss Hazel Crawford is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Shewen at Nassau.

Gerald Sherin is visiting friends on Boo Island.

W. C. Weaver left on Wednesday for Kingston, where he will spend his vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Darling and Master Ralph and Mr. and Mrs. Sam. White motored to Cameron for the week-end.

AT KING'S WHARF AND THE DISTRICT

Very Successful Social and Dance—News and Personal Paragraphs.

KINGS WHARF, August 3. — A very successful social and dance was held in S. S. No. 15, Wednesday evening under the management of the Kings Wharf Baseball Club. There was a very large crowd present and avery enjoyable time was spent by all. Dainty refresments were served by the ladies in charge at midnight. A large number was present from Bobcaygeon, Dunford, Omemee and Ennismore and all report a real good time.

Personal Paragraphs.

Mrs. Lillie Luca, and children of Downeyville, spent the week-end the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Perdue.

The Misses Mary Twomley and Grace Shannahon, also Mr. Huburt Flood of Ennismore, attended the dance in the School Wednesday.

Mr. Leo Herlihey, of Peterboro, was the guest of friends here Wednesday.

A large number from here went picking huckleberries during the week and report the crop good.

Threshing has started and the hum of the threshing machine is to be heard on all sides. Curtin Bros. are threshing Ailsike which is a very good crop.

Rain is very badly needed for everything is burning up. The gardens which looked so well two weeks ago will be no good unless we get rain.

Miss Mary Twomey has returned from Toronto where she spent the last three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs Alphonse Herlihey of Cleveland, Ohio., and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Herlihey of Erie, Penn., are guests of their father and mother, Mr. and Mrs Wm. Herlihey, sr., having motored over.

Miss Margaret Perdue of Peterboro, spent Sunday, the guest of her brother, Patrick here.

Miss Flora Crough of Ennismore, attended the dance at the school on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Michael Fox and family of Lindsay were the guests of friends here Sunday.

Miss Stasia Winn is at present spending a few days the guest of her sister in Peterboro.

Everybody is looking forward to the big Social at Downeyville, Aug. 1st, and all hope to have a real good outing as it is one of the best events of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Herlihey attended the pic-nic at Long Beach, Wednesday.

QUIZ CORNER

JUVENILE DELINQUENTS

Q—What is the number of Juvenile delinquents in Canada?

TAKE A BIG LEAD

"STAND away off and go down with his arm," advises the coach. "Take a big lead."

It's the advice of success in baseball. It is good advice in life. The surest, safest "lead" in life is life insurance. At twenty-five you should have a 20-year payment, profit-participating policy in a good, sound company like the Mutual Life of Canada. You'll have it half paid for by the time some men begin to wish they had taken out more insurance when they were as young as you are now.

This policy at 25 years costs $29.80 per thousand. At 35 it costs $36.60—if you can pass the medical examination as well then as you can now.

You are starting the circuit determined to win. "Take a big lead." Send for our booklet, "Limited Payment Life Policies," and remember, Mutual Insurance is insurance at the lowest possible cost, because the Mutual Life is the only life insurance company in Canada which divides all its profits among its policyholders.

NINE-TENTHS OF MODERN SOCIAL REFORM TREATS MAN LIKE A DOG

Says G. K. Chesterton, Refuting Well's Idea of Utopia

"There was a debate the other day about the play of R. U. R., the Bohemian play about Robots or mechanical men," says G. K. Chesterton. "It took place at the theatre where this and other stimulating problematic plays have been presented; I happened to take part in it and found myself arguing with Mr. Bernard Shaw.

"Mr. Bernard Shaw appeared as the champion of one social solution, a notion that has been nicknamed the Leisure State. The argument is this: That, instead of abolishing mechanism, we should make it yet more mechanical, and even the men who work it, for certain stated hours, more mechanical. If the work were systematically apportioned, this might actually increase leisure. I oppose another which I will claim to call the Liberty State.

"It is very essential to realize that leisure is not in any way identical with liberty. If we do not realize it, we shall almost certainly all lose our liberty, for any reasonably intelligent tyrant may have the sense to give us a great deal of leisure. In fact, the two things are in two different worlds. My dog has any amount of leisure. In fact, he has nothing else. He does not even do two hours' work in a factory, pulling a handle or turning a wheel; at least I have never come on him thus industriously employed. He never does any work of any kind, except barking at my best friends in a melodramatic effort to pretend that they are burglars. He has leisure enough, but for all that he has no liberty. He is not free. He is not a citizen. He belongs to somebody else and not to himself, just as a slave did! and a slave was often quite as thoroughly idle and quite as indefensibly indulged. In the old southern plantations the whole white family would be fond of some old black Aunt Dinah or Uncle Remus, just as the family is fond of a dog or cat. But there is no civic liberty for the dog or the cat or the slave. They do not control their own lives; they are not even responsible for their own actions. The meaning of liberty, as Auberon Herbert said long ago, is self-ownership: it is also, as was always, implied in the old Roman or mediaeval traditions about it, an element of power or weight in the things of the Republic. In this sense a peasant working all day may be much freer than a puppy playing all day. For the peasant may be only working when he chooses, even if he chooses to do it all the time. He produces; he is an origin. He not only owns, but is, one of the means of production. He knows exactly what the dog does not know—where his food comes from, and why his hours of sleep or leisure are arranged as they are.

"Now, nine-tenths of the modern social reform as worked out in Utopias and ideal Republics, consists, quite coldly and literally, in treating a man like a dog. Treating him like a dog does not necessarily mean ill-treating him like a dog. Strange to say, there are some of us who do not ill-treat dogs, and who are fairly confident that we should not ill-treat slaves. But, for all that, we do not want to have slaves; still less do we want to be slaves; it is a point of sentiment with us; an elusive elemental fancy which we do not expect solid and sensible people to understand.

"But, anyhow, the sentiment exists; and in the servile school of thought we will find that it exists. If they imagine that all men are going to accept leisure instead of liberty, they will find (as they often do) that they have used the phrase 'all men' after knowing very little about all the men there are. You will never persuade a peasant who is an owner and a free man to turn somebody else's handle for two hours at a time, on condition of having nothing whatever to do for the rest of the time. He is in the habit of doing as he likes with definite things that belong to him, planning out his day for himself and his field to his own taste and fancy. He will no more give up that to turn the handle of somebody else's sausage-machine than Paderewski will leave off improvising on the piano in order to turn the handle of somebody else's hurdy gurdy. Men who are creative, on a small or large scale, will not cease to create in exchange for two hours of drudgery and twenty-two hours of drifting.

"The Bernard Shaws under the Bolshevist bureaucrats had to work a good deal more than two hours a day. But the point is, that it was the Bolshevist bureaucrats who decided whether they should work two hours a day. As a matter of fact the Bolshevist bureaucrats decided that they should work under the heaviest and harshest conscriptions of mere forced labor; that their strikes should be broken, that their leaders should be shot, that they should be driven like hordes of slaves or herds of cattle. The only elements in Russia that could not be treated in this way were exactly the elements approximating my ideal. The peasants could not be made to work whenever a despot told them to, precisely because the peasants themselves owned the means of production, and would not give them up. They were men who did not work with machines or like machines, and therefore they could not be treated as machines."

FULL INVESTIGATION OF GRAIN INDUSTRY

Every Phase of the Situation Will Be Examined By Royal Commission.

MOOSE JAW, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—According to statements made by Chairman W. F. A. Turgeon, of the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission here yesterday, the commission will investigate as fully as possible all conditions affecting the relations of country elevator buyers with their employers and with the farmers. Chairman Turgeon said it was certainly the duty of the commission to make some recommendations that would improve the conditions governing the relations between buyers, farmers and elevator companies.

"We will form no opinions, however, until we have made a full investigation into every phase of the situation and given every angle our most earnest consideration," he said. Herbert Symington and Travers Sweatman, acting as counsel for the elevator companies, intimated they were preparing evidence to counteract the effect of the Morrison charges of alleged faked shortages, black-listing, intimidation and incitation to theft, might have on the grain trade generally.

Following the hearing of the Morrison charges, the evidence presented dealt largely with strong recommendations that Goverisment officials be placed at country elevator points to weigh and grade grain sold by the farmers. This recommendation was made by L. A. Parry, Red Deer, Alberta, a former farmer, buyer and elevator manager, now engaged in inspection work for the Grain Growers' Grain Company.

The commission wound up its sessions here yesterday and Friday and Saturday will sit in Regina.

While no definite statement regarding the itinerary of the commission after the recess is available, it has been stated, on the best of authority, that it is probable the commission will sit at Prince Rupert, B. C., following the Vancouver sessions.

Discussing the Morrison charges, Mr. Symington said he doubted whether they dealt with conditions general in the grain trade. There were more than 4,000 buyers, he said, and only about a dozen cases had been found of alleged malpractices of elevator companies in connection with their buyers, only two of which had occurred since the new shortage bond went into effect more than two years ago.

"The number of charges does not amount to a severe criticism of the grain trade as a whole," he said. "I would have the commissioners take 1,000 names of grain buyers and select from them a certain number to find out actual conditions. Language used by the counsel presenting the charges on behalf of the Order of Grain Buyers, I find, has been excessive and most of the witnesses have been discharged, disgruntled employes, although probably there have been individual cases where the companies acted in an arbitrary fashion. The strong criticism that has been levelled at the grain companies which has been sent all over the country has not been justified by the existing facts."

Wm. Rose, counsel for the Order of Grain Buyers, said all of the witnesses before the commission in connection with the Morrison charges were not discharged, but that many of them were employes, some of them subpoeneed against their will to come and give evidence at the inquiry. It was never contended by the buyers that their charges were rampant, but had been presented to show to what conditions were existing in the grain trade. It was not that the elevator companies generally were doing wrong, but that there were outstanding cases needing redress of which changes in the regulations might prevent recurrence.

ADVANCE EFFICIENCY DENTAL INSTRUCTION

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Aug. 3.—(Associated Press)—Great changes are taking place in dental education owing to recent discoveries of the intimate connection between teeth and general health, according to a statement given out today by the Dental Education Council of America through its secretary, Dr. Albert L. Midgley.

"It has been clearly shown" the statement declares, "that decayed and abscessed teeth many times cause heart disease, rheumatism, neuritis, eczema, mental disorders and other serious diseases. So important has the relation between sound teeth and good health become that it is necessary now to raise educational standards in order to prepare dental students properly to meet the public needs and to maintain the position of world wide supremacy that American dentistry has always held."

A prescribed standard for dental schools has been fixed by the council, as the result of a recent survey, and in accordance therewith it has classified a large number of existing institutions in the country. Its aim is to bring the requirements of all dental schools to a higher standard of excellence.

"HUNGRY RIVER' IS NAME FOR COLORADO

The "hungry river' is the gruesome nickname of western river men for the Colorado river, some spectacular shots of which are shown in "What A Wife Learned" the Thomas H. Ince picture of twentieth century romance now running at the Royal Theatre. Sands washed from the American desert by the mighty stream make the river extremely treacherous. A man who falls into it has to fight for his life as the sands fill pockets and clothing in an extremely short time and are apt to weigh him to the bottom.

During the filming of "What A Wife Learned' scenes were made of two men struggling for their lives in the waters of the Colorado. Before the actors went into the river all the pockets were cut from their clothing to prevent them from being dragged by "sand-bags" to the bottom the camermen and two daring swimmers worked for days in icy waters of the river before the dramatic scenes shown in the film were photographed to the satisfaction of the director, John Griffith Wray.

The shortage of farm labor is due, perhaps, to the shortage in the farm laborer's pocket.

PARISH PICNIC WAS DECIDED SUCCESS

The Annual Outing of St. Paul's Parish Was Under Auspices of the Catholic Women's League.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 3—The annual picnic of St. Paul's parish was held yesterday and was a great success in every way. In past years it has been customary of the members of this parish to unite with those of St. Mary's of Young's Point but this year it was decided to hold St. Mary's picnic later.

The affair was held under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League of which Miss Emma Kendry is the president. Several strong committees were in charge of the various branches and were assisted by a corps of willing workers. The result was that there was not a dull moment at any time.

The picnic was held at Riverside Park with the water sports on the river immediately adjoining. The winners of the various events were:

100 yard dash race for men—Jack Ridpath.

75 yard race for boys under 14 years—Jack McFadden.

50 yard race for girls under 14 years—Mary Woodhouse.

Canoe race for men—Jack Ridpath.

Mixed tandem canoe race—Jack and Miss Jean Ridpath.

Swimming race for men—Arthur Doidge.

Swimming race for ladies—Miss Yvonne Stuart.

Swimming race for boys under 14 years—Jack McFadden.

Swimming race for boys under 16 years—Enneth Wannamaker.

After the sports events had been run off an excellent supper was served the tables being in charge of Mrs. George Charlton and Mrs. A. G. Lawless assisted by Mrs. Dan Maloney, Mrs. F. J. Gibson, Miss Margaret Kennedy and Mrs. Ryan.

The committee in charge of the event consisted of Rev. W. P. Meagher, Dr. S. J. Gibson, Dr. M. P. Kennedy, A. G. Lawless, G. J. Elmsley, Michael Ryan and Anthony Kelly.

Those in charge of the fancy wore Mrs. G. J. Elmsley, Miss Mona Fortier and Miss Glady Charlton.

The fish pond was in charge of Miss Mary Armstrong, Miss Margaret Allen, Miss Beth White and Miss Pearl Young.

Soft drinks and ice cream were dispensed by Mrs. M. L. Quigley, Miss Mary Johnson, A. G. Lawless, Laurence O'Neil and H. Maloney.

The ticket committee consisted of G. J. Elmsley, Dr. M. P. Kennedy, George Charlton and John Coughlin.

Thomas Duforge had charge of the wheel of fortune and was assisted by Frank Collins, Michael Sheehy and W. Prindible.

Among the priests who were present were: Rev. Peter McGuire, Rev. Joseph P. Collins, Rev. Paul Costello, Rev. J. J. Garvey of Peterboro and Rev. J. W. McAulay of Ennismore.

ONE-SIDED JEWELRY.

To wear a number of bracelets on one arm and deny the other any ornamentation whatever is a fad of the moment in Paris.

LIKE PERSIAN LAMB.

A new silk fabric which closely resembles Persian lamb is used in bands on the bottom of the fashionable new capes and coats.

Many resorts advertise as the playground of the nation; when, really, the front porch is it.

PARTNERS IN CRIME!

Confectionery concessionaires at Glacial National Park chuckle as they watch the many tame ground squirrels hustling about begging peanuts from tourists. It is estimated the verandah pets have buried half a ton of peanuts this season, to be eaten during the coming winter.

AN EXCELLING

captured the fancy of all the small boys in the audience. Miss Forbes appeared in the evening as a lady of the Victorian mode, to sing a pretty ballad.

Miss Lila Groff, a violiniste of sure, vital force, with a singing tonal quality, played Kreisler's "Liebestraume," Saint Saens' Wieniawski's "Le Cygne," "Romance" and "Rondo," and, with dimmed lights and muted strings, a softly touched rendition of "Believe Me, if all Those Endearing Young Charms," and "Annie Laurie."

Miss Frances Beeman played very skilfully as piano numbers a "Caprice" by Greig, and the Prelude in C sharp minor, by Rachmaninoff. The Roberts sisters gave two bright numbers on the marimbaphone.

The appearance of the stage draperies this year is a decided improvement over previous Chautauqua arrivals. The audience is not treated during intervals to glimpses of performers' heads above short side curtains, nor entertained with fleeting silhouettes on white draperies. The stage draping, a pleasant mid-brown, with curtains of green silk, is extended at both sides, from ground to stage top.

In the absence of the manager, Mr. B. F. Davis, who is expected later, Miss Cummings, the regular advance agent, made the announcements yesterday.

Special Attraction.

This evening, a special attraction is promised in a lecture by a renowned orator, Judge George D. Alden, former judge of the Supreme Bench of the State of Massachusetts. The judge's address on "The Need of the Hour," is described as a humorous and entertaining discourse, holding an individual appeal, delivered with force and power.

Mr. Ratto, at the conclusion of his entertainment last evening, made a spirited appeal for support of the Peterborough men who have brought the Chautauqua to our city. Last night's audience numbered in the neighborhood of only about 250 people, the afternoon performance mustering a total of about 175.

If yesterdays' performance may be taken as a good example of the quality of this year's Chautauqua offerings, it was a very fine beginning, and Peterborough people would do well to patronize the performances that are as interesting and entertaining as yesterday's proved to be.

Season tickets will continue to be sold until to-morrow night, and as the programmes are of intense interest and real merit, it will pay anyone to take season tickets at the price of $2.50 and war tax instead of paying regular admission of 75c. and tax. Tickets may be used by anyone in the family, afternoon or evening.

CHIPPING BY ELECTRICITY

The chipping and cutting of such materials as marble brass and copper is work which calls for a high degree of patience and skill if it is to be done by hand. The difficulty is to regulate the direction and force of the blow, as to remove the desired piece of material and no more. The manual worker being limited to a comparatively few blows per minute makes slow progress and at any moment he may damage the work either by an error of judgment or as a result of muscular fatigue. These several risks and difficulties are overcome by an electrically driven chipping tool perfected by a British firm of engineers. A small electric motor of about one-third horsepower is connected to a flexible shaft which terminates in a hand grip outwardly resembling an ordinary chisel. Inside this handle or casing there is a simple mechanism which causes the chisel head to deliver 2 000 blows a minute. The "stroke" or distance through which the chisel travels can be adjusted to suit the nature of the work and when the chipping has been completed a small grinding wheel can be fixed to the flexible shaft in place of the chisel so that a dead smooth finish can be imparted to the surface.

THE EMPEROR

A Chinese emperor had ruled for fifty years to the satisfaction of the gods and for the good of his people. Now that a great celebration was to take place, the whole city was in a bustle from sunrise on and countless thousands had come from distant places, crowding all the streets and highways. At the appointed hour the great gate of the inner city opened and the festive procession appeared, an indescribable glitter of gold, banners and beautiful raiments, and in its midst, borne under a jewel-bedecked baldachin, the aged emperor, the darling of the gods. All the people craned their necks and rose on their toes, and blessing from a emperor, the darling of the gods. All the people craned their necks and rose on their toes, and blessing from a on their toes, and blessing from a thousand throats permeated the air. The emperor's heart filled with gratitude and boundless benevolence. With a gesture he caused the procession to halt, stepped out of his baldachin under the clear, blue sky and raised his outstretched hands aloft, casting his eyes heavenward in humble praise. Everyone was silent and followed the course of his eyes. Then suddenly a silvery eagle was seen swooping down from the heights with outspread pinions. In his sparkling talons he bore a roll of parchment, which he gently placed in the extended hands of the ruler. Thereupon he soared back to his eternal home.

The people saw how the emperor, murmuring a prayer, touched the message with his lips and then unrolled it. In crimson letters it was written: Thou, emperor, mayest utter one wish and it shall be fulfilled!

The procession continued on its way and in its midst the emperor was borne. His grey old head was bowed, for he was pondering deeply and fervidly how he could turn the gift of the gods in such a way as to make of it a gift to his whole people. And when they reached the great temple, he had found what he sought.

The portals of the temple were open to receive him and the dazzling golden light within bode him enter. Yet again he delayed. Again he stepped out into the sunlight. In all his festive garb he threw himself upon the ground in prayer, as if he were unworthy of turning his countenance toward heaven.

Round about the people, kept in check with great difficulty by the soldiers, swarmed over the immense square. Row on row they stood on tiptoe in dense array and watched breathlessly and eagerly how the emperor lay prostrate in humble submission, praying.

Directly in front were the children, who looked on quietly and without difficulty.

The prayer that the aged ruler uttered to heaven in silent fervor ran:

"Ye have granted me fulfilment of a wish, ye powerful ones. But I have no wish for myself. I only pray and beseech you, benign powers, that ye grant each and every one of those that are now looking on what he most earnestly wishes at this moment!"

Thus he prayed and having ended, rose. And lo, his eyes beheld the most terrible of sights. Round about him his people stood headless; every member of the great throng was minus his head! Only those in the extreme background and the innocent children in front still had heads on their shoulders.

Quick as a flash the emperor realized what he had done. Not joy and grateful piety had inspired the hearts of the onlookers, but merely the glowing wish: If only the head of the man in front of me would fall off, so that I could see better!

Only those in the rear and the children in front were not bewitched, for they were in no one's way.

So the emperor prayed a third time and the gods took pity. Everything was as it had been. The whole people were revived and unharmed; but it seemed to them as if they had experienced a slight dizzy spell. The gong of the priests resounded, the ruler was borne up the steps and the portals of the temple closed behind him.

He ruled for many years more for the good of his people and to the satisfaction of the gods. But he shunned his people and never left the inner city. Visitors could see him only through spy-glasses as he sat on the terrace of his palace playing with his tame birds. —Harry Rashell, Valparaiso.

PRESBYTERIANS

work. A minister is a human being, not an angel. He is liable to make mistakes, and if he does the people should not try to trump him down.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond have come to Warkworth as strangers. They are far away from their personal friends. The congregation should strive to make up to them what they have lost, and in no better way can they be encouraged.

The minister has a right to see his people in their pews every Sabbath day. The congregation should not attempt to get rid of him by freezing him out. In case of a misunderstanding or trouble of any kind they should approach the minister through the elders, who are the proper officials to deal with such matters.

Mr. Ferguson said that after listening to what Mr. McGillivary had said of the people of Warworth, he did not believe they required much advice as to how they should treat their pastor.

Mr. Thomson said that he had met Mrs. Hammond and from what he had seen of her he believed she would make a model minister's wife, one who would be interested in the church work and a great help to her husband.

The ladies had the church bright with flowers in honour of the occasion, and at the conclusion of the service served refreshments in the school room.

Elders and Managers.

The Warkworth congregation was organized before the one in Campbellford and the two were united for several years. The former dates back for over 60 years. Rev. Thomas Alexander was the first regular pastor and he was succeeded by Rev. D. Sutherland. It was in the year 1884, while the latter was minister that Warkworth and Campbellford became separate charges. Mr. Sutherland, who had his choice of the pastorate, elected to remain in Warkworth. The latter had up to this time been known as the Percy church, but on the request of Mr. Sutherland, the Presbytery, when the separation was effected changed the name to Warkworth. Mr. Sutherland remained in Warkworth for 24 years and resigned at the request of Dr. Robertson superintendent of Home Missions to take charge of a large field in the west.

Mr. Sutherland was succeeded by Rev. Alexander Craw, now of West King, near Toronto, own brother of Rev. G. I. Craw, Springville. These brothers come of a noted family of ministers. Their father was a pastor; three of his sons entered the same profession and two of their sisters are married to clergymen. The third brother is Rev. Robert Craw of Fergus.

The next minister was Rev. J. F. Macfarlane now of Ottawa. Then came W. D. McDonald, who resigned to accept the pastorate of Egmondville; Dr. F. Sloyd Morrow, well known as the author of a book on church union, now living in Toronto, and after him Rev. R. McGillivary who was six years in the pastorate.

Mr. Hammond, the new pastor, is a native of Waterloo County a young man with a good academic record and the congregation are satisfied that in extending him a call they have chosen wisely. The church which was remodelled about ten years ago is commodious and modern in its fittings and contains a large Sunday school room. There is a handsome manse adoining the church building.

Elders and Managers.

Samuel Black is senior elder and the other members of the session are Henry Carlaw, Robert Walker, Archie Thompson and David Gow.

The managers are: William Isaac, chairman, Dr. Armstrong, Dr. Richards, Adam Campbell, William Herriott, Archie Thompson, James Armstrong and William Hermiston.

Robert Walker is treasurer, and J. A. Weatherston is clerk. The ladies of the congregation are well organized and are relied upon when anything in the nature of a financial crisis arises. The church is now only self containing but is practically free of debt. Mr. Hammond is indeed fortunate in securing such a charge in which to begin his ministry.

Death of Mrs. Boyd Clute.

On Saturday last, July 28th, after a lingering illness of some months, there passed away to her reward, Mrs. Boyd Clute, aged 66 years, a life-long resident of Seymour Township, but recently of Warkworth. The deceased was a daughter of the late William Brooks, and was well-known to a large circle of friends both in Campbellford and Seymour Township, where she had resided for the past 65 years. She leaves to mourn her loss a loving husband, one daughter, Mrs. Stewart Meiklejohn, and her only sister, Mrs. J. H. Pringle, all of Warkworth.

The funeral, which was very largely attended, was held on Sunday afternoon, and interment took place at Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Campbellford. The Rev. C. F. McIntosh, of the Presbyterian Church, Campbellford, officiated.

LEADING IN GOLF.

TORONTO, Aug. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Gene Sarazen, of Briarcliff, formerly national golf champion of the United States, was leading the field early this afternoon in the first round of the Canadian open championship at the Lakeview Golf Club. He raced ahead "Tom Creavy" had a marvellous recovery on his last nine holes by returning with a 34, which is one under par.

Nine Hundred Yards of Beautiful Swiss Organdies, Batistes and Muslins, 97c Yard

FORMER VALUES UP TO $2.25 YARD

These fabrics will make the fairest and airest of summer frocks, and, remember, you'll have plenty of time to wear them, as summer is just nicely here in earnest.

The three lines are imported by us direct from the manufacturer in Switzerland, and when we bought them we were assured that no one else in the city would have them.

The Embroidered Organdie is 36 inches wide and the colors are helio, pink, sky and delf blue, rose, navy, black and white.

Embroidered Swiss Batiste is wonderfully crisp and sheer, belonging to the Organdie family. Neatly embroidered with sprigs and sprays and 38 inches wide. The colors are pink, green, sky and another shade of pink which one could almost call a rose.

In widths of 37 to 33 inches there are the Muslins—Swiss, too—in colors of red, rose, pink, navy, black, orange and white.

Then there are Plain Organdies. You are always needing this billowy Swiss material. You can get it tomorrow in a generous 45-inch width, in colors of brown, red, grey, sky, navy, green, black and all-white.

PIANO IS FOUNDATION OF MUSICAL EXPRESSION

Parents who decide not to have their child take up the study of music at all, sometimes out of misdirected consideration for the child and a desire not to overwork it, often unwittingly do the child a great injustice. Quite apart from the question of cultural development and the esthetic value of music, no other art seems to give quite that degree of soul satisfying joy.

The musical life of the land is rich, the fraternity of people who are interested in music is both large and desirable to enter. Even a modicum of talent which will permit simple improvisation or the rendering of operatic scores, gives a pleasure to the player and those about him that is unequalled. But once childhood is past, it is not so easy to take up the beginnings of the study, and one is cheated out of perhaps the richest heritage civilization has given us, and made musically dumb by parents who lacked either the foresight or the interest to start and push one through the early, sometimes excruciating, but usually well-repaid days.

The piano is the foundation of musical expression. It is often the foundation of the composer, the guide of the singer and the invaluable ally of every other sort of instrumentalist. An ability to play it is the imperative need of all wayfarers into the realms of harmony. To the musical amateur it is a constant good companion and friend.

ROBBED TORONTO HOME.

TORONTO, Aug. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Some time during the last three weeks robbers entered the home of C. C. Moore, of Rosedale, just across the way from the Lieutenant-Governor's mansion, and got away with twelve thousand dollars worth of rugs, together with three cases of liquor. The family was away at Muskoka.

GHOSTS!

BY CANON F. C. SCOTT, C.M.G., D.S.O.

THE YELLOW ENVELOPE

The first act was over, and Gus got up and went out to have a cigarette. The theatre was largely filled with men like himself, back in England on a ten days' leave. In the lounge he met many whom he knew, and his tall well-built form attracted the notice of everyone who passed.

Secretly he paid little attention to his surroundings. It was his first leave from the Front, and he was going North in the morning. He was merely killing time by going to the theatre. The play did not interest him, and the music jarred upon his nerves.

He had just passed through a bitter experience in France, in which, though he knew it not then, he had won the Military Cross, and he had not yet recovered from the shock of the slaughter he had witnessed when his Company had been almost wholly wiped out at Hooge.

Now, there was surging up in his heart that tide of conflicting emotions which every soldier knows. At one moment, he was borne up by intense joy, at the next by acute sorrow. The feelings were very transient but they gave him no rest. The music and the movement of the crowd were a strong stimulant to them, and he felt almost dazed as he looked round about him on the lights and colours in the corridor.

Suddenly his eyes became fixed on a distant corner of the room. At a table in that corner a young woman sat alone. She was playing with a large ostrich feather fan. A shaded lamp beside her threw an exquisite rose tint upon her face and neck, and the luxuriant gold of her hair was held back by the narrow fillet of brilliants which crossed her forehead.

As Gus looked at her, a strange defiant expression, out of keeping with his mental lassitude of a moment ago, came into his face.

"By heavens it's Mabel Arleagh," he said to himself, his lips actually framing the words in a whisper.

At once, the other people in the room became to him a meaningless human blur, and he made his way swiftly to the table where the girl sat, now opening, now shutting the ostrich fan. Gus stood before her and the girl looked up with an ill-suppressed start. It seemed as if the coloured light had cast a deeper shade over her face. Her eyes met his for a moment and then they dropped, and the fan opened and shut nervously.

"Mabel what are you doing here? I little thought that we should ever meet again."

"How tragic your words sound," said the girl, still playing with the feathers. "You always were a tragic, Gus, even in the old Hartford days, you were subject to moods, and used to preach to me. I used to think you were going to be a parson. I'm glad you weren't though. You look awfully well in your uniform." Her glance met his for a moment and was quickly withdrawn. Gus drew a chair to the table and sat down. Then giving Mabel a cigarette, and taking one himself, he languidly struck a match, and they began to smoke. Neither spoke for a few moments. Then Mabel looked up hurriedly and said:

"You don't seem to be very entertaining to-night, my hero. The first act is about to begin. Perhaps you had better go to your seat. I am expecting a friend to call for me here."

"I am not going back to my seat. The play is rubbish. I want to talk to you. God help me, Mabel, but I don't know what to say."

"How delightful to remember to pray in a difficulty."

The girl gave a silvery laugh, and leaned back in her chair, gazing at him with easy self-possession.

"I hope the prayer will be answered soon, for nothing bores me so much as a silent partner."

"I want to tell you, Mabel, that I know all. I heard of your elopement with that poor devil Braithwaite, and how hardly the escapade hit his charming little wife. I also know how you treated your mother."

"Who gave you the right to speak to me in this way?" said the girl, suddenly rising, her eyes flashing with anger. "I won't stand it."

"Sit down, Mabel," said Gus, quite unmoved by her action.

"Sit down, I want to talk to you, and what is more, I am going to talk to you. Those old days of our childhood in the country, and the long intimacy of our families, give me the right to speak to you—to speak as a brother, and Heaven knows we may not meet again."

The girl stared up at him with crimsoned face, and flashing eyes, but a stranger could have observed a touch of wonder and admiration in their gaze, something no doubt, born in the old days long ago, when boy and girl had shared together the companionship of innocence.

"Well, Gus, since you wish to follow the tragedy to the last act, what is it you want to say? I rather like your browbeating manner. It is much more moving than the acting of that stupid man in the play to-night."

"Mabel, how can you talk like that? You are all tangled up in a beastly cobweb, spun by Satan himself, and you sit there talking and laughing and mocking as if you had no more heart than that statue of Music over there."

"I haven't, Gus, I used to have, but it's gone old boy. In its place there are some strings, like those in the harp which the statue holds, and on them the winds of passion play. That is really a fine sentence, isn't it? Do you remember when I used to recite my infantile poems to you as we rode through the old park at Hartford?"

A memory crossed the boy's mind of a fair haired girl with rosy cheeks, and laughing eyes kindled with the dancing sunbeams that pierced the rich green of a woodland avenue. He leaned forward. "It is too terrible, Mabel, much too terrible to be talked about so flippantly. How did it all happen?"

"How did it happen, Gus? You are a fool to ask. Another cigarette, please. What a sentimental case. Some fine damsel's parting gift to her soldier boy going to the War? Thank you, it's alright. How did it happen? It began to happen long ago, when God made me wrong, when he made me romantic, wilful passionate, jealous and vain. That is when it began to happen. I think you can see by the way I have answered my character, that I have given the subject some thought."

"Then it began to happen when God made Charlie divinely handsome, and his wife a little fool, for fool she is, in spite of all you may say or think. Then it went on happening when Charlie took Hartford Manor, and we were thrown together.

"It went on happening when we found that we were both caught in the big cobweb you just spoke of, and couldn't extricate ourselves. Then, of course, there was nothing to do but to run away together to the Continent, and read the divorce proceedings from a safe distance. Now you knew it all before, so you said. I may tell you that two blissful years were ours, two wonderful years, two years so wonderful that they were worth an eternity of the other sort. I thought they would never, could never end. They seemed to be part of the glorious world of nature which round us continually at San Remo. Then, like everything else, they came to an end, a sudden bitter end.

"I am sure a man of your high principles will be glad to hear it. They came to a sudden bitter end on August the fourth, 1914, when England declared war on Germany.

"Charlie was a man, Gus, a noble, true-hearted, pure minded man, like you, though he and I broke through conventions to win realities. And when Charlie knew that he was needed elsewhere, not even I could keep him back.

"I could not love thee, dear, so well, Loved I not honour more, he said to me as I clung to him in my despair and cried like his own little doll wife.

"So he left me money and a cottage, and a broken life and heart, and joined his old regiment, and made it up with his Dorothy, who forgave him all, and he was killed in action two months afterwards. He was nothing to me. He had gone back to her. He was never really mine. She had only lent him to me, and I never got to the depths of his heart as she had. So I had no right to mourn, and I did not mourn. He had broken from the cobweb, and left me hanging in the air."

The girl's hands trembled as she lit another cigarette.

"Ha ha, such a long way off those childhood days are now I am an old woman now, Gus, an old woman. I know the world. I believe I know it better than you do. Do you know, Gus, I used to be in love with you, when I was a girl? I thought you the noblest, bravest, and handsomest thing I had ever seen. Every time you came home from Eton, I would hear fresh tales of triumph in sport, and you became my hero. It shows how old I have got, and how wrinkled." Here she looked down at the smooth white arm lying on the table, "when I lay bare my heart's secrets to you."

"Well, what is to be the end of things," said Gus, not heeding her remark.

"I was coming to that, my friend, I am to begin my second adventure to-morrow."

"What do you mean by that?"

"I mean that my days of romance are over. I can never love again. In fact, I don't want to, knowing where love leads, and so my days of bargaining have begun. There is a man who has followed me all the way from San Remo. He is a millionaire many times over. He is half English, and half Portugese. His home is in Rio. He has invited me to go home with him to Brazil. I am to be his Brazilian wife, whatever that means, but I know enough of life to be able to take care of myself, and my interests, and I have laid great weight on the fact that I am giving up my place in the world. Ha ha ha It is such an exalted place in such a charming world. It was worth to me a milliard francs a year, so I told him. He loves me distractedly with all his gross, animal nature, and I loathe him for his ugliness, and his love, but I am sick, Gus, of life, sick of everything, above all sick of myself, and I am going to lose myself in doing the most "outre" and hideous things that come my way. Charlie's derelict is going to drift among the other wreckage in the Sea of Saragossa."

Mabel leaned back, and met the man's fixed gaze, unflinchingly, but every woman, like every man, has her breaking point. Suddenly the large eyes seemed to grow larger, something glistened on each lower lid. It was a tear. Mabel was Mabel still. Vain, impetuous, wilful, but traces of the frank-hearted companion of his boyhood still remained.

Mabel was conscious of this exhibition of weakness, but she could not hide it. Gus saw her melt. Now was his opportunity. His flesh had crept at the girl's cold blooded disclosure, but he held himself in check.

"Thank God, Mabel, we have met to-night. It is not too late to stop this mad leap into Hell. I am not going to sit by and see you take it. I will shoot the man first. By the love of your father and mother, by all the happy hours we have spent together in happy sinless days, I swear I will shoot this man first."

"Hush, Gus, here he comes. I was to wait for him here. Leave me, for God's sake, leave me."

The girl stood up distractedly, her face ashy pale and her eyes fixed in terror upon the door which opened on the corridor.

"Sit down, Mabel, I won't go. Sit down. I'll kill the brute first."

Mabel sank into her chair trembling and Gus turned round to see who was approaching. Most of the people had filed out of the room into the theatre and the orchestra could be heard in the distance playing some lively ragtime. Two or three couples were however still sitting at the tables talking or smoking.

Gus saw the whole scene at a glance but his eyes fixed themselves upon an individual who had just emerged from the retreating crowd.

He was a man below the medium height. His skin was swarthy and a heavy nose and thick lips added to the unpleasantness of his large animal-like face. His hair was black and crinkly. He saw that Mabel had a companion and a scowl made his countenance positively hideous.

He approached the table where they were sitting. Mabel was leaning forward looking down. The man looked first at her and then at Gus rage hatred and revenge darkening every wrinkle in his dark face. Gus sat bolt upright looking at him as if he were a performing animal in a circus and was about to begin one of his tricks.

"Pardon, sir," said the stranger at last with a strong foreign accent, "I think you are sitting in my place. This lady is my friend, and I have come for her."

Gus sat still, and eyed him languidly up and down. He did not deign to answer.

"Excuse me, sir," said the little man again, his voice hoarse with anger, "this is my place."

"Indeed, sir," said Gus, "you are much mistaken. I have been here for some time. My cousin and I have not met for years, and we have been talking over old times together."

"My cousin." The words struck with a poisoned arrow to the man's heart. Jealousy now made bitterness more bitter still.

"My cousin and I have not met for years, and we have still much to talk about. I can assure you I have no intention of cutting short our interview."

"Mon Dieu it is impossible," said the man, "the lady is mine, she is my friend. I will not be insulted in this way. Madam, I pray you, explain the situation." He appealed to Mabel in vain. She sat there, a beautiful carved block of ivory, motionless, and very white, gazing at the floor, her long eyelashes making dark crescents of shadows as the light from the lamp fell upon them. But in the heart of the ivory statue there was not silence. Deep down, hidden away, there was noise and war and passion, and the pounding of wild pulses of an abounding life.

There was the surging up of old years, and mighty yearnings, and one deep crying into another. There was struggle, and anguish, and shame, and purity, and a new-born admiration for Gus, her champion, who had come clothed with light out of the Great War. And then some power, was it God? Was it Satan? held up to her that dreadful mirror in the heart of each, which we strive to veil, and she saw her self in it, her beautiful, wicked, vain, wilful self, and she felt her feet already heavy in the quicksand.

The two men were quivering with passion, but what were their emotions to those which stirred to the depths the deepest thing on earth—a woman's heart.

"Madame, Mabel," the dark man hissed out between his teeth, "can you not speak? Will you not speak? You must come with me. I command it."

"Sir," said Gus, with infinite coolness, "your impetuosity carries you away. You forget this is not Brazil, this is England, and this English lady is under protection of her cousin. I must ask you to leave us, or I will call for the police."

Did Mabel hear aright. Was Gus, Gus Lushington—calling her his cousin, and fighting in her defense? Out of the dead flowers of memory, came a sweet odour which overpowered her poor stained soul with its sweetness. She could not now leap into Hell. Under the quicksands her feet felt a ledge of rock.

"Damn it, sir, I will make you repent of your insolence."

"Excuse me, sir, but your language, in the presence of a lady is indefensible. For the honour of my cousin I will not allow it."

The foreigner glanced at Gus with the rage of a wild animal caught in a steel trap. At one moment it looked as if he were going to throw himself upon him, and his white teeth were bared as though they were to be the weapon of attack. He actually made a sudden movement towards Gus, but the flashing eyes of the Brazilian saw the hopelessness of the situation. It had not been the first encounter in his life in which he had come out vanquished. The only victory which a coward can know is the ready acceptance of defeat. Already the man who saw that the eyes of those in the room were turned in his direction. He could not throw Gus. He could not stab him. He could not fight a duel. He was not in Brazil; he was in England. He had been baulked in love before. Trembling with passion, but still mastering himself, he suddenly drew himself together with a certain air of dignity, saying with a hiss like that of a Brazilian snake.

"I have much pleasure, sir, in handing over this lady to be your cousin," then walked away.

Gus literally had to hold on to his chair to prevent his grabbing the man, and throwing him out of the room. He sat there, however, very quiet, and very cool outwardly, and lit another cigarette.

He looked towards Mabel. She had never moved, but sat there still with her gaze bent downwards. She had never looked at the man, who had now gone out of her life for ever.

Gus gazed at her without speaking. She was certainly a beautiful woman. "A milliard francs to live with a brute like that," he thought.

Mabel had set her price too low. It was sickening to think of the abyss from which he had rescued her.

"Mabel," he said at last, "maybe the danger's past, the Brazilian reptile has gone back to the jungle. You are safe."

"O Gus, Gus," she said in a soft voice, unlike the hard tone, and forced gaiety of her former words, "Gus, take me away. You have broken me. Like St. Catherine, I have been broken upon the wheel. Take me away. I cannot cry, and I won't let myself faint, but I am weak. I felt like that when I read of Charlie's death in the paper. No, I can't take your arm. I am not worthy, not ready yet."

"Wait, Mabel, I don't want to leave you for a moment, lest that reptile should return. I will send an attendant for my hat and coat. You have your wraps with you. Then I will take you in a taxi to your hotel."

The coat and hat were brought, the taxi called, and the man told to drive to the Grand Hotel.

Gus led the way to the drawing room, and they sat down in an alcove out of sight. They had not spoken a word during the drive.

"Well, Mabel, what is to be done now?"

"Oh, I don't know. I cannot stay here. He knows where I am. You must save me, Gus. This night is the turning point in my life. O save me, Gus."

She looked towards him with a woman's helpless, pitiful appeal. There is nothing which goes home to a man's heart like it.

"I know where I can find you a safe home, and where no questions will be asked," Gus said at last. "Get your things together, and I will drive you there. It is a quiet lodging house in South Kensington, kept by an old servant of ours. There you will be free from molestation, and can begin to face life from a new angle.

It was late before the change of home was made, and Gus was taking his leave.

"It was no accident, Mabel," he said, "which brought us together this evening. There is no such thing as chance in this world. I am sure God arranged it. I know you don't believe in Him, and I didn't myself once. At least, I didn't act as if I believed. But God is very real to me now. A man may go on in intense satisfaction with himself, and life in general until some big call comes to him, and all of a sudden he finds he has never known himself before, and never known life. That is what Charlie felt when, on going to the war, he gave you up, and went back to his wife."

Men, at their best, are brutal things, and do not know when their words sting.

Mabel winced under his words, but she said nothing.

"You know I am engaged, Mabel."

"Engaged?"

"Yes, but it is not given out yet. Even she has taken a second place in my life. Duty is now my first love, and something tells me she will be my last. But it's babyish to be talking like this Mabel, only I am not quite normal. I have had a hard time at the Front, and have lost many pals. Mabel, without wishing to be melodramatic, this may be our last talk together."

The girl sat with her evening wraps hanging back loosely from her white shoulders. Her face was not the face Gus had seen in the lounge at the theatre.

It was a face of sorrow, and shame, and wonder, and love, all softened by something which looked like the innocence of childhood.

"Mabel, you said you thought I might be a parson some day. Well, so I am. I am not sure, but my life has had a terrible shaking up. Now, I am not going to ask you to say or do anything to-night. It is all too startling and sudden. You must take time. But I am going to give you something which you must keep. It is a leaf from the New Testament, which I carry with me in France. I will put it in an envelope and seal it up, and when you feel you want Christ to come into your life, you can open the envelope and hear what he has to say to you. I am not good enough, or pure enough to read it to you myself."

He took out of his pocket a little Testament, and tearing out a page, he put it in the envelope and sealed it up.

"It is a funny thing but I have put the paper in the envelope which held my theatre ticket. Perhaps it holds now a ticket for Heaven. Well, Mabel, God bless you. From this moment, I forget the events and words of this evening. I will know you only as the Mabel of long ago. See, I kiss your hand, as the cavaliers do in France. Good by, Mabel."

* * *

Weeks and months passed away, and the war went on. And the war in a woman's soul went on. It is a hard uphill path for a woman to climb back again to purity. But she can climb, and by the power of God she can reach it.

Weeks and months passed away and the war went on, and a little yellow envelope stood unopened on Mabel's dressing table. Several times quivering hands had almost torn it, but it had escaped destruction.

Then came a long night when the wind howled over darkened London. When the chimneys rocked, and hollow voices of despair shrieked through the shutters and under the bolted doors. It was a night of wakefulness, a night when conscience sits beside the sinner's bed, and when dying men toss their heads in vain upon their pillows. It was, to Mabel, a night of mental agony. She was losing in the struggle. She was being borne away. She felt once more the quicksands sucking down her feet. Ghosts mocked at her in her torment.

Charlie came before her, but he turned away and would not look at her.

He was not hers but another's. Then Gus came, and he did not turn away. He looked so young and strong. He was just home from school. They were to have a ride together. He held the stirrups for her to mount. The wind was in their faces, and the bright sunlight in her eyes.

"I will know you only as the Mabel of long ago."

These had been his last words to her.

Now they were riding together into the sunset. Then she turned to speak to him, and he was gone, and a great horror overwhelmed her.

The chimneys roared, and the windows rattled, and even the key holes sent forth their wail. A loneliness came over the girl's soul such as she had never known before.

"Gus, Gus." She called the name in the darkness. The windows rattled in derision. "Where is he now," she thought. "What is he doing?" "Is he fighting his last battle on a night like this?"

Then the thought of the unopened envelope came to her mind. What did it contain? What was the message to her from Christ, which Gus spoke of?

She had never felt strong enough to open it before. But now she would open it in her weakness.

She turned on the light, and brought back the envelope to her bed, and sitting there with her long golden hair falling over her shoulders, she tore the yellow paper, and took out the little page, and read it.

The last verse was marked in pencil. Gus had evidently used it before.

It was about Christ speaking to the woman who had bathed His feet in her tears.

"Then he said to the woman, Thy faith hath saved thee. Go in peace."

Down on her knee the girl sank, her golden hair falling over her hands as they clasped the Divine message, and the tears that can wash a woman's soul white fell like rain upon the invisible feet of Christ, and brought her peace.

Two days after in the casualty list in The Times appeared the name of Augustus Lushington, M.C., 2nd Battalion, ——— Regt., killed in action.

"I am glad I won my victory before I heard," Mabel said to herself, as she laid down the paper, trembling violently.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Teresa Desmond ("Terry"), seven years old, left much to herself, believes in fairies and worships.

Juliet Divine, the stage name of her beautiful half-sister. She rides in a gorgeous car and talks of a millionaire.

Terrence Desmond, their father, is caretaker of an estate on Long Island and had such-and-such taken place in Ireland years ago (he claimed) he would have been a Lord. Julia's flippant talk about millionaires angers him—he is prone to rages.

Mary Desmond, Terry's mother and Julia's stepmother, fears "disgrace" in the latter's career.

Mrs. Peter Parmalee, owner of the house, wires that she is coming out to spend a few days.

Betty Sheen, her 17-year grandaughter is coming with her.

Miles Sheridan is Betty's fiance.

Terry, fearing that an elegant teddy bear is to be taken from the house is discovered in the act of taking it out of Betty's room.

This escapade results in the Desmond's leaving Silverwood, the Parmalee place.

Tom Perrin, a prosperous friend of Julia's advances money by which Desmond opens a road house known as the Blue Moon. There Terry dwells three years. One night she is awakened by news of an accident.

A car carrying Miles Sheridan and Betty to Silverwood had broken down and the Desmonds must put them and the chauffeur and maid up for the night. Terry is forced to give up her comfortable bed for Miles. He finds her in the kitchen in the morning.

CHAPTER VI.

The Prince Atones

"Poor little Cinderella!" Sheridan pitied her. "I'm afraid you were turned out of your room for me. I wouldn't have let that happen if I'd known, but it didn't occur to me there might be a third member of the family here! It's a shame! They might have put me anywhere; I'd have been all right. It was mighty good of you and your people to give up your rooms to us. I don't know what the ladies would have done without you! Maybe Miss Sheen would like to be your fairy godmother, Cinderella! You must see her before we go. I got up early, to find my chauffeur, and——"

"Oh, no!" Terry broke out. "Please—I don't want to see Miss Sheen. She—she doesn't like me."

The young man stared more than ever. "Why, she doesn't know you exist."

"Yes, she does!" Terry confessed.

"When did you meet her?"

"I—don't want to tell you," came in a whisper. Sheridan could see only the top of the child's head and floods of tangled, bright red curls.

"But I want you to tell! Look here, Cinderella, how do you know I'm not the Prince, giving you a royal command?"

Somehow he dragged the story from her, and listened gravely, as to an affair of state.

"So you used to live at Silverwood," he said, thoughtfully.

Terry nodded, her lips quiver ing.

"I lived there, too, when I was a little boy. I loved the place! Did you?"

"Oh, yes!" she breathed.

Sheridan reflected a minute. "Are you too old for a Teddy bear now?" he wanted to know. "A big one, with a squeak and eyes that move?"

Terry's heart beat fast.

"I—I'd rather be true to that Teddy bear thank you," she answered. "Another one wouldn't be the same. I loved him too much."

"You're a loyal little thing," Miles Sheridan praised her. "Well, I must think of something else to do, to make up for the past. Would you like—a surprise?"

"I'd love it, if—it didn't come from Miss Sheen, please," replied the too truthful Terry. "I'd rather she needn't even know. It would be spoiled if she did."

Miss Sheen's fiance was amused rather than offended. He promised that he himself would think out the surprise, and Betty should be told nothing.

As a reward for this promise, he made Cinderella answer a number of questions: whether she liked life at the Inn as well as at Silverwood; whether she went to school; what she wanted to be when she grew up.

He seemed interested to hear that she didn't like the Blue Moon, because it was too noisy; that she had lessons at home, but Mother would like to send her to a convent school, where she would grow up quiet and gentle, not like the girls who came to the Inn, and laughed so loudly and smoked, and danced queer dances, and talked slang.

She wouldn't be able to do what Mother wanted, though: Father said it would cost too much money.

Mary Desmond appeared in the midst of this conversation, astonished to find the fire alight, and Mr. Sheridan in the kitchen. He apologized, saying that he'd come down to consult the chauffeur, but passing the open door had seen "Miss Cinderella" struggling with the coal scuttle.

Terry had a bad moment, then, realizing that she ought not to have told about Betty and the bear. She feared that "the Prince" might inadvertently betray her, but he did not.

He gave the impression—without fibbing—that he had known all along of the Desmonds' past at Silverwood.

Terry loved him for his consideration, and felt passionately grateful. She knew now that she could trust him, and wasn't worried when Mother sent her aupstairs with a message to Father.

Shaving water had to be taken, and various other errands run. Later, when Betty Sheen's too well remembered voice was heard, the child bolted like a rabbit to the pink and blue room where she had slept.

She longed to see Miles Sheridan again! It seemed to her never had she wished for anything as much. He was so kind, so handsome, so wonderful—a real Prince. And he had said that he would be her Prince—"Cinderella's Prince!" Still, Terry couldn't go where Miss Sheen was, not even to see him. She couldn't.

"Now they're having breakfast," she thought. "Now they'll be going."

She heard the sound of the motor, and, peeping out of the window, saw the large grey limousine which had been rolled into the garage for the night. The chauffeur had repaired it, as Mother had prophesied, in time for an early start.

Fascinated, the child watched the smart suitcases being piled in. Next the ladies stepped into the car, Betty first, despite the age of her meek-looking companion.

Terry did not see Miss Sheen's face, but there was a gleam of pale gold hair under a mourning toque, and Betty's figure at twenty-one was only a little plumper than at eighteen.

It gave the child a pang that her Prince Charming should belong to Betty Sheen!

Now he was getting into the car. He was so slim that his back looked boyish, though he was 23 or 24! She might not see his face again—ever.

But—yes, he had stopped! He turned glanced up, and caught sight of Terry at the window.

He smiled, that humorous, unforgettable smile, and taking off his hat as if she were a grown-up girl, waved it.

Then he jumped into the car, and it slid away.

The child was still at the window when Mother came running up, out of breath from the haste she had made. "Oh, my baby!" she panted. "The most wonderful thing! That dear young man knew about our trouble with Mrs. Parmalee, and how badly we were treated He loved her: she was like a mother or grandmother to him, so he wants to atone to us for her sake. He asked me about you—and sending you to school. I told him my great wish. He made me tell! And he's going to pay for the convent for you—seven years of it! He's got Father to consent, too! My baby'll be safe, far away from the ugly things here till she's a big girl, seventeen years old. Think of that!"

"Oh, Mother, why does he do it for me?" Terry asked, in Mary's arms.

"I don't know, except for what he said: to 'atone.' And because he's kind." Mary kept to herself Sheridan's last words:

"Your little daughter is the most beautiful child I ever saw. You're right not to want her brought up at an inn. It wouldn't do! She ought to amount to something in future."

It was best not to put "ideas" in the "Baby's" head.

QUIET TALKS

THE BEGINNING OF MAN

Man is of a princely brood and breed. He is not mere dust and dirt of earth. He's more. He's kin to God.

The story of how man got his start on the earth, and the old Book of God, these two, are tied up together tight. The Book has a story about man's start. It is told clearly, simply and positively. It is put in a leading place, at the very beginning. It dignifies man in a peculiar way.

There's another very different story being told today. It really lowers the dignity of man. It is being told so loudly and dogmatically that peoples are coming to think, unthinkably, that it is the only story. Everybody worth while believes it, we are told.

Yet—yet, it is striking, that there are distinct groups of the ablest thinkers among scholars and scientists who don't accept it, but say some very strong things against it, with a quiet settled positiveness.

What is this strange modern story about man's start? In a word it is this, that man evolved by a series of steps, up from the very lowest forms of matter, up through an ascending scale, getting higher and higher till finally he got up to where he is now. Some put a supernatural creative touch of God at various stages. Some leave God clean out.

Even though weak links in the chain of evidence are frankly admitted, indeed sometimes the distinct absence of links, yet there is a peculiar insistence on the main teaching, quite ignoring the fact that the weak links, the absence of links, completely neutralizes the whole teaching.

It seems as though the process must have stopped, however. New man ought to be continually evolving up from the lower stages. It seems queer that they all come another way. And the other way fits into the Book's story. Rather striking that!

The two teachings are directly opposite. That's clear. The question involves not the present teaching of science on the matter merely, but the status of the Book, whose story is so the lower levels of life, in this creation story, there are distinct forms or kinds. The striking thing to mark is that these never cross. Each kind reproduces after its own kind. It is never after another kind. This is specifically stated nine times. There is no crossing from one kind to another. There are unbridged chasms at certain points.

The Book's story is that man was created essentially as we know him today, by the direct act of God. On radically different.

Then, at the climax, God by direct act formed man as a distinct creation. God breathed his own breath of life into man, making him still another kind, distinct from the other lower kind. God's own kind. That's the story.

Of course, the principle of evolution, or growth by development, is everywhere, but always within certain fixed limits. There's growth from early immature forms, up and up, until full maturity of that particular sort of life is reached. This is in all nature, and in all life. But there's never a crossing over from one form or kind to another.

To attempt this is always punished by death, death by sterility. The power to reproduce life is lost, irretrievably lost. It's a well established fact of science that crossing species results in sterility. It is the very thing that stops life, truly a dead stop.

The familiar illustration is the mule. The arbitrary crossing by man of the horse and the ass produces the mule, a peculiarly strong and peculiarly stubborn animal, and, be it noted, always sterile.

At its core the question is a scientific one. It's a matter of biology, the science of life. And the striking thing to mark carefully is that there is a distinct group of scientists, of highest scholarly rank, in each of the nations of Christendom, who say plainly in print that scientifically this teaching of evolution is childish, wholly unscientific. The biologists among them say it is a biological absurdity, a biological impossibility.

Some of these have pointed out how the simple creation story of Genesis fits in with the latest findings of science. But the other teaching persists, like a dense fog, settled down, obscuring and quite ignoring, simply ignoring, proven facts.

In the earlier days the teaching was put forward as a "hypothesis," that is, a supposition, nothing more. It's a strange perversity that now it is taught as an established fact, even with scientific facts against it.

On the other side, the things peculiarly distinctive in man tally with the Book's story. Man is not only superior to all lower creation, but radically different, not in degree, but in kind. There are four distinctive things in man—the mind, the understanding and reasoning powers; language, the power of expressing thoughts in a reasoned-out intelligent way; conscience, the moral sense; and moral choice, the power to discern moral differences and to decide.

There is absolutely nothing in lower life out of which these could have evolved. Out of nothing nothing comes. These four things are found nowhere else, except, ah! yes, except in—God!

Indeed, these are the distinctive God traits. Here is the link upwards. Man reveals unmistakably the direct creative touch of God upon him in these traits. His make-up tallies with the Book. And this characteristic of the Book. It and man fit together.

And so a man has in his own very self the fact that the Book is reliable. It is indeed the Book of God, dependable at every turn.

Staggering Along Toward International Massacre

Demands That Great Britain at Once Call a Conference to Arrest All Armament Construction

(By E. D. Morel, M.P.)

LONDON, Aug. 3. (United Press)—The situation to which the Versailles treaty, plus four years of Lloyd Georgeism, plus four years of suppression of facts, and apathy in the face of the systematic torture and destruction of German social and economic life, through an international instrument our rulers in part created have brought us—the new programme of air-armament bears witness.

There lies no remedy. If we confine ourselves to creating air squadrons, we reach no solution, we attain no security. We simply stagger along the road leading to the next international massacre.

The government should straightaway launch an invitation to a world conference for the arrest of armaments construction by land, sea and air. The whole world would accept that invitation.

For granted that our Russian policy has been short sighted and aggressive; our near eastern policy imperialistic, the fact remains that the present French government continues to be the real stumbling block to a return to normal conditions in Europe.

Granted again that under the pestilent influence of Mr. Lloyd George our government identified itself with the French policy until its materialistic consequences to ourselves became inconvenient, the fact remains that Britain stands today for reconstruction and reconciliation. The world knows this and the world would support our iniative.

If France stood out she would be isolated. That would be a grave risk which we doubt very much the French people would be disposed to take, which we doubt they desire to take. Concurrently with that invitation our government should make up its mind once and for all to speak with perfect plainness on the Franco-German issue, if need be over the heads of the French government to the people of France, who have been shamefully betrayed by their political leaders and to the world.

A treaty is open after all to differences in interpretation. As a signatory party to the fatal instrument of Versailles, Britain is as much entitled to place her own interpretation upon it as is France.

Britain does not interpret it as giving the French the right to invade German territory, to suppress German civic officials and police, to expel thousands of families, and render them destitute, to loot banks, and shoot and starve German workingmen; to wage open economic war upon the German working classes.

It should say so, and if the present French government insists upon pursuing its present policy we should formally disassociate ourselves from its action, which is action taken under the treaty, and conclude our own diplomatic and commercial arrangements with Germany.

At the same time our government should make it clear to the French people and to the world the lengths that it is prepared to go to prove our disinterested desire for peace in Europe. The first and most obvious step in this respect should be the unqualified renunciation on our part of any further indemnity claims upon Germany—a concession to the French and Belgians as well as to Germany. And a willingness to cancel the French debt, subject to an abondonment of the Poincare policy.

A straightforward and courageous attitude on the Franco-German issue. A final settlement with Russia, which would bring with it settlement with Turkey. A clearing up of the Egyptian mess. A generous gesture towards India.

Above all, cards on the table with the United States and an active and constructive diplomatic action in Europe which is looking to us for a lead. That is the policy which wisdom dictates and necessity demands.

Warships to Assemble For Legion Convention.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—(Associated Press).—Twelve battleships, thirty-eight destroyers and numerous other vessels of the battle fleet of the United States navy will be in San Francisco Bay October 15 to 19, in conjunction with the fifth annual convention of the American Legion, according to advices from Theodore Roosevelt, acting secretary of the navy. Eleven hundred commissioned officers and twenty thousand men, under Admiral R. A. Coontz, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, will constitute the personnel of the great armada.

Vessels present are expected to include the battleships California, Maryland, New York, Texas, Arizona, Pennsylvania, New Mexico, Idaho and Tennessee, and probably the Oklahoma, Mississippi and Nevada; the armored cruiser Seattle, Admiral Coontz' flagship; the destroyer-tender Melville; hospital ship Relief; the destroyers Delphy, Chauncey, Fuller, Percival, John Francis Burns, Farragut, Somers, Stoddert, Reno, Farquhar, Thompson, Kennedy, Paul Hamilton, William Jones, Woodbury, S. P. Lee, Nicholas, Young, Zeilen, McDermut, Yarborough, Lavalette, Sloat, Wood, Shirk, Kidder, Selfridge, Marcus, Mervine, Chase, Robert Smith, Mullany, Hill, MacDonough, Farenholdt, Summer, Corry, Melvin and many smaller vessels.

The Human Side

THE MIND FINDS A WAY

I was recently walking down the street in Columbus, accompanied by a woman who is director of classes in retail selling in Central Ohio. As we passed an Italian bootblack, she called my attention to his call: "Get your shoes shined here."

"Now look across the street," she said, "there is another bootblack. Let us walk to the corner, cross over and pass his stand."

We did. He had the same number of words in his call for attention and trade: "Get your Sunday shine here." Only one word was different in the two announcements. Yet I was told that this boy always made good money, while his rival across the way barely paid rent and managed to eat.

Why this difference? How could the substitution of the word "Sunday" or the word "shoes" bring such a difference in cash results? The bootblack who called to the passerby to get their Sunday shine doubtless was unconscious that he was applying a great psychological principle which often forms the divide between success and failure. He simply had a mind and used it.

It was Saturday afternoon. Men in passing him were reminded that tomorrow was Sunday, they would be going with their families to worship. The sky was clearing away, the prospects were good for a bright Sabbath. Crowds all in their newest, would be at church. A shine they must have. They stop here and get it while the suggestion reminded them of their need.

Nor were the customers who stopped and secured a polish aware of all these thoughts. They merely heard a suggestion that aroused certain desires in their subconscious minds. These bore fruit in a passing idea, and let to appropriate action on their part—and brought success to the bootblack. The whole process was largely unconscious to all concerned.

But this shows where the psychologist come in. He take the methods he finds result successfully, analyzes them, and sets them forth in detail for the use of the untrained mind and the busy man. If he is an artist as well as an analyst, he may guide the tottering business that is on its last legs to a haven of hope and security. He may inspire the despondent business man who sees failure and dissolution ahead of him to take heart and succeed. Often a mere slogan will put the idea over and reap a fortune. "Say it With Flowers" has become famous.

The bootblack merely chanced upon an appeal to the imagination of the passersby. All was not said in his call. It suggested far more than it declared in words. It was by arousing other trains of thoughts in his prospective customers that he made his "Sunday" slogan a Saturday success.

Mine Congress to Ask More Foreign Labor.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 3.—(Associated Press).—Fewer restrictions on immigration to meet an alleged need of additional laborers in the mining industry will be discussed by the American Mining Congress to meet here September 24-29. Nearly 3,000 owners, operators and mining engineers are expected to be in attendance.

Although mining men appreciate the unwisdom of breaking down the immigration barriers entirely, they feel there should be no abridgement of opportunity in the United States for effective labor and for selecting the right type of immigrant, according to officials of the organization.

A national movement for industrial co-operation between employer and employee in mining enterprises also is to be launched here. Ways and means of assisting employees in maintaining proper standards of living also will be discussed.

The United States bureau of mines and the geological survey will participate in the exposition, and the mining states of California, Colorado and Utah will exhibit displays of their mine resources and equipment.

Additional emphasis will be placed on the use of labor saving machinery and equipment in mining enterprises. The American Mining Congress, officials say, has been advocating modernization of the mining industry and the standardization of basic methods for the last three years.

He Buys Tickets For His Own Performance.

PARIS, Aug. 3.—(Associated Press).—Ignace Jan Paderewski, the famous Polish pianist and composer, received one of the heartiest welcomes accorded him since his return to the concert stage when he appeared before a Paris audience recently. Thousands of people thronged to see him pass on his way to the theatre, and he was again besieged when the concert, a benefit affair, was concluded.

The French press re-told at great length the story of how the noted artist was expelled from Russia years ago by Emperor Alexander III., after Paderewski had played before the court.

"You are a great artist, and an honor to Russia," the emperor is reported to have said.

"Pardon, Your Majesty," replied Paderewski. "To Poland."

The next day the pianist received an order to leave Russia, and he had never returned since.

The newspapers here also mentioned the fact that on the day of his first concert, Paderewski drove to the theatre box office and purchased nearly a hundred seats at regular prices, which he distributed among his friends.

His only request to the management was that he be given a dressing room, so that he could let his hands soak in very hot water for half an hour before the concert. He explained that he had found this the best way to make them supple.

SOME THOUGHTS ON MARRIAGE

"Married life is a struggle until death," Balzac the French novelist is reported once to have said. And just as most epigrams, no matter how startling they may sound at first, this one, too, contains a grain of truth.

One of the most serious errors imaginable, but one that is constantly made, is to surround married life with a halo of poetry and sentimentality and to paint it in the rosiest colors instead of taking it for what it is: a function performed for the welfare of oneself and society. From this point of view it is a struggle of daily self-denial, suppression of egoism, sacrifice of selfish desire and caprice in favor of one's family.

There are people who see happiness in marraige only when it involves subordination and surrender of one of the parties. And in many cases the man is this party.

We all know men, often men of importance, who are feared and respected outside of the home, but who are so guided and governed at home by a shrewd, tactful wife that they themselves are unsuspecting of their subordination. For the shrewdness of the wife consists in exercising her influence unnoticed. It was Ibsen who once said that a woman is the most powerful force on earth and that it lies within her sphere to guide man as God would have him guided. This is high praise, even from a man like Ibsen.

But it is hardly the Christian conception. The Christian religion makes man the head and woman the soul of the house. And only where each maintains his position can we speak of a happy, normal relation.

What is the essence of a happy marriage? It is that the man shall be a complete man and the woman a complete women.

No feminist movement, however sweeping its scope may be, can change the real mission of woman. This mission is that she be the soul of her home. No woman can evade the questions: Is my life a blessing for my husband and children? Am I helping my husband in his work, as a wife should, by encouraging him and giving him new enthusiasm every day? Do I possess a conciliatory influence over him, an influence for the good? Am I indispensable in my home, or could the home get along without me?

If a woman cannot honestly answer these questions in the affirmative, her life is a failure.

The lives of man and wife must be a blessing to each other.

Then there is another factor: faithful comradeship. Man and wife are, in the final analysis, two good comrades who fights life battles together and bravely the storms together, ever endeavoring to make life as pleasant as possible for each other and to ward off trouble, no matter how different or how pronounced their characters may be. And their highest goal should always remain the education of their children. And if the have no children, they should stand by one another all the more steadfastly.

Nothing can fortify man so well against the trials of life as happiness at home.—A. B. Hammut, Christiania.

Conrad the Connoisseur

For the first time little Conrad goes to a concert with his mother. The soloist is rendering a subdued number and Conrad, pointing to the conductor with the baton, says in a clearly audible voice:

"Mother, why is he always threatening her with that stick?"

"Hush, Conrad," comes the answer.

Now the singer has reached a fortissimo passage and again Conrad chirps up: "Then why is she shouting so?"

A Work To the Wise

A bank director sends his manager to another city to attend a stockholder's meeting for him, asking him to inform him as soon as possible of the result of the meeting, as he has a heavy interest in the company.

The next day the manager wires: sell out immediately.

Upon his return the director greets him with the words: "I congratulate you. I sold my interest without delay and in that way avoided a heavy loss. But how did you ever manage to wire at 12 o'clock when the meeting only began at 12? Surely it must have lasted until 4."

"Yes, it wasn't adjourned until 5. But I heard only the first word. The president opened the meeting with the word "unfortunately." That was my cue. I didn't delay any longer. As soon as I heard that I hurried to the telegraph office and wired you."

Cohn in the Lunch Room

Cohn orders a slice of chocolate cake on a lunch room but sends it back, cancelling the order, and orders a piece of apple pie instead. He eats it, gets up and is about to leave when the waiter accosts him:

"Say, you haven't paid for that pie et!"

"Vot," replies Cohn indignantly, "didn't I give you the chocolate cake for it?"

"But you didn't pay for that either."

"And why should I? Did I eat it?"

Levy's Case

Levy's case comes up in a New York court, but owing to pressing business he must leave very suddenly for Boston. He leaves word with his lawyer to wire him the result immediately. After the trial the lawyer wires: "Cause of righteous ess victorious," whereupon Levy without delay wires back: "Appeal at once."

PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

INGERSOLL, Ont., Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—Reta, 10 year old daughter of Mrs. Louis McSherry, Thames street, met with an unusual mishap during an electrical storm here yesterday. Mrs. McSherry was down-town at the time and called up on the telephone to say that she would be home soon. While speaking over the telephone a flash came in over the wire and shocked the little girl, causing her to fall. In falling she struck her head against a radiator. She was not seriously hurt.

STEEL INDUSTRY WILL ELIMINATE LONG HOURS

Eight-Hour Day Will Replace the Twelve-Hour Shift Which Has Been in Force—Change in the Pay Schedule—60,000 Additional Men Needed.

NEW YORK, August 3.— (Canadian Press)— Elimination of the twelve-hour day in the steel industry will begin immmediately and wages of employees whose hours are reduced from twelve to eight hours will be so adjusted as to afford earnings equivalent to a twenty five per cent. increase in hourly and base rates, Directors of American Iron and Steel Institute decided to-day.

Elbert H. Gary, President of the American Iron and Steel Institute and Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, in making the formal announcement at the conclusion of yesterday's conferences, said the change would be effected as rapidly as the supply of labor would permit. He said it was impossible to say when the changes would be completed, but declared there would be no unnecessary delay on the part of anyone.

It is estimated that the shorter working day will necessitate the employment of between 60,000 and 65,000 additional laborers, and will add approximately $45,000,000 to the annual payroll of the industry.

Employees in the continuous process departments who now receive $4.80 for a twelve-hour day, will receive $4.00 for an eight-hour day under the plan. All other workmen, it was announced, will be on ten hours or less, and their present hourly and base rates will be continued.

Officials of both the Independent Steel Companies represented in the Institute, and of United States Steel Corporation subsidiaries, departed for their homes last night to begin at once the work of effecting the shift in hours.

Yesterday's action by steel officials representing substantially the entire industry in this country, brought to a favourable conclusion a series of conferences and study of the industry which began when President Harding at a White House Dinner requested Mr Gary to undertake an investigation to ascertain the feasibility of eliminating the long hours.

A committee, appointed by Mr. Gary, reported at the May meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute that it would be impossible to reduce hours in the immediate future because of the shortage of labour. President Harding publicly expressed his disappointment at that report, and subsequently Mr. Gary wrote the President that the industry would begin the elimination of the much-criticized twelve hour shift the much-criticized twelve hour shifts "as soon as practicable."

The first formal conference on the subject was held in New York last Thursday when heads of the manufacturing subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporaton met with Chairman Gary, and on the following day directors of the American Iron and Steel Institute took up the matter for the industry as a whole.

Both meetings adjourned over the week-end to permit the Presidents of the various companies to return to their homes to learn, if possible, the attitude of the employees who would be effected. Presumably officials found a majority of the employees agreeable to the changed rate of pay for the shorter hours, although no announcement as to that was made yesterday.

The formal statement by Mr. Gary follows:

"Following the correspondence between President Harding and the Steel Institute and as a result of the most painstaking investigation manufacturers of iron and steel, representing substantially the entire industry of the country, will now begin the total elimination of the twelve-hour day and will progress as rapidly as the supply of labor will permit.

"It is impossible to say when the first changes will be completed. It will depend upon labor conditions as representing plants. There will be no unnecessary delay on the part of anyone.

"Where the hours of employees connected with continuous process are reduced from twelve to eight hours their wage rate will be so adjusted as to afford earnings equivalent to a 25 per cent. increase in hourly and base rates.

"All other workmen will be on ten hours or less and their present hourly and base rates will be continued; but whenever it is practicable, by promotions or changes in positions, the daily earnings will be adjusted.

Officials differ as to the effect of the change in hours on the total production cost. Estimates range from $3.00 to $4.00 a ton. For the industry as a whole it has been estimated the shorter hours will add approximately 15 per cent. to the cost of the finished product.

Some of the smaller companies already have established the eight hour day, but the changes have not been established over long enough a period to furnish data, it is said.

Eugent Green, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, stated recently that his company was making progress on plans to eliminate the long working day. In that company the plans are being evolved through a series of conferences with the employees.

INCREASE IN CRIME.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 3.—(Associated Press)—Argentina abolished the death penalty from the penal code about a year ago, and since then there has been a noticeable increase in crimes of violence in this city. The question of restoring the death penalty has arisen, and a bill to this end has been introduced in Congress.

Large numbers of emigrants from Europe, many of them belonging to the criminal classes, have come to Aregntina recently, and the present crime wave is attributed to this undesirable element.

G.W.V.A. Footballers Off to Brantford

The president, secretary and members of the G.W.V.A. football team will leave for Brantford to-morrow morning at 4:31 for their first game in the Ontario Cup Competition. Many local followers of the team will be going along to cheer the local boys to victory and all are expected to gather at the C.P.R. station at least fifteen minutes before train time so that all may go in a body. The local team is conceded an excellent chance to win. The following will be the team:

Griffin, goal; Crowe and Bishop, backs; Blowers, Hurle and Burrows, halves; Sharman, Peel, J. Wade, F. Dyer and Monks, forwards; Edwards, Curtis and F. Wade.

The following officials are expected to go: President G. Coleman; Manager H. Gamble; Trainer A. E. Miller, and Secretary S. Whatley.

SECOND DAY'S EVENTS IN BELLEVILLE BAY

BELLEVILLE, August 3 (Canadian Press). — In the second day's events in connection with the annual programme of the Lake Yacht Racing Association yesterday afternoon in Big Bay, Patricia carried off the W. D. Robb Cup, leading in the second class by over 2 minutes on Bernice and 11 minutes on Nutmeg, and 24 minutes on Italia.

Lillian E. again demonstrated her ability to lead Class R boats. She finished 9 minutes 40 seconds ahead of Nayada of Toronto, and 11 minutes 40 seconds in front of Riowna of Toronto.

Nirwana of Hamilton won fourth place in Class R race. Vivian of Toronto fifth, Latonka of Watertown sixth, Swamba of Toronto seventh, and Scrapper of Kingston eighth. Chiriya of Kingston did not finish the course ,and Huskie was far behind.

Zoraya led the Class M boats by a margin of over 11 minutes on Iroquois and over 50 mintes on Aljee.

Whirl was first in the fifth class, in which twelve boats entered.

Sylvia alone finished the course in the first race. Temeraire not going round, and the Ontario and Weno making one round only.

U. S. CONSULATE FLAG FLYING HALF MAST IN PETERBOROUGH TO-DAY

Since the departure of Charles F. Leonard, who was compelled to relinquish his post here due to ill health, there has been no American Consul in Peterborough.

C. J. Seymour, Division Court Clerk, has been acting American Consul since April, and this morning he received a telegram requesting him to fly the Consulate flag at half mast. No comment was made on President Harding's death.

RAIN MISSED THE PETERBORO FARMS

A Strip of Otonabee Fairly Well Soaked, But Other Townships Still Dry.

Last night's rain merely laid the dust over a wide section of this district, and was practically of no value to the farmers, who are counting up their estimated daily losses under the prolonged drought.

Ennismore saw nothing but the dark clouds rolling by far off the south. There were a few drops in Smith, according to several men from that township, and the most of Otonabee got only a sprinkling, although in the Coldsprings district the precipitation was reported to have been fairly heavy.

On the whole, however, the Peterborough area of parched farms missed that long-suspended shower, and haying was in full progress again this morning.

The screws made in watch factories are the smallest in the world; 100,000 of them could be placed in an ordinary thimble.

ALBERTA'S COAL

"Alberta has 17 per cent of the world's supply of coal, and 71 per cent of all the coal in the British Empire is in Canada," J. E. Price, representing Alberta collieries, told the Examiner.

Mr. Price has burned Alberta coal for eighteen years, but he does not base his statements on this personal experience. He has with him a series of reports from experts who have tested the coal at the mines and under working conditions. The opinions of these experts and of householders who have tested the coal are summed up in a statement that Alberta coal is superior to United States anthracite.

"Is there not a high ash content in Alberta coal?" Mr. Price was asked. "Positively not as high as in anthracite" he replied. "The average for anthracite is three scuttles the coal to one of ash, while the Alberta coal runs one scuttle of ash to ten scuttles of coal. There are no clinkers in Alberta coal. Pennsylvania anthracite is about one third ash and clinker, whereas Alberta coal is 100 per cent coal."

"Is the Alberta coal dirty to handle?" "No. You can take it in your hands and it will leave no mark. The miners in Alberta mines never get so black as miners elsewhere. It is not necessary to use closed lights in the mines, but open light are carried."

"Does the new freight rate make it possible to sell Alberta coal here in competition with Pennsylvania coal?" "Yes. The rate of $7 per ton and the price of the coal at the mine, $4.50 should enable the dealers to sell the coal at an advantage in price. It is still possible to get enough coal from Alberta for the coming winter."

Briquette Making.

The Government Briquetting plant at Bienfort was not a success, Mr. Price said, because material could not be obtained in the vicinity of the plant. Briquettes of lignite coal make the best possible briquette fuel. The two large mines in the vicinity of the plant sold all their screenings, leaving none available for briquette making. A plant will be established in Roche Percee in the near future, where material is available. This form of fuel compares favorably with anthracite in burning quality, an dthe cost of production is small.

The prospects for Alberta coal are bright, Mr. Price said, and the question includes all of Canada. $125,000 is spent annually by Canada for coal from United States. If this can be ketp in the Dominion it would prove a great asset.

BAD FOR NERVES

(By John O'Brien.)

PARIS, Aug. 3.—(United Press.)—Electricity is bad for the health, according to Professor Charles Nordmann, of the University of Paris. Inhabitants of cities like New York and Paris, where the development of electricity for transportation and lighting has been enormous in the last twenty years, are more exposed to nervous diseases than people living in little towns where oil and gas fill all the essential needs.

Professor Nordmann bases his belief of the fact that the human body is one of the most efficient conductors of electricity. Every manifestation of electric energy has therefore an echo on the human organism. Every time there is a variation in an electric current, that is to say, every time we telephone, or send a telegram, or start a street car, or light an electric lamp, we start a series of countercurrents in our bodies.

"Electric currents," writes Professor Nordmann, "have varied effects on the nerves, on the muscles, on our thoughts. Sometimes they may produce sleep, sometimes vertigo, at other times neuralgia. These effects are dependent on the strength of the current and its duration. Dwellers in cities are more or less "electrocuted," according to the length of time they have lived there."

The brightest boy in any neighborhood is the one who knows the make of every auto he sees.

A GALA WEEK STONEY LAKE

Special Attractions Will Be Staged at Popular Summer Resort From August 6 to 13.

STONEY LAKE, Aug. 3.— A plan made last year and billed to take place this year on August 6 to 13, is a Gala Week on the lake with special festivities for each day. August 6th is Kawartha Regatta. August 8th a special Dance . August 9th trip to Chemong Regatta, August 10th, Illuminated Flotilla. August 11th children's Regatta in the afternoon and Grand Masquerade at night. August 13th Annual Regatta and Dance at Juniper. It is forty years since the first regatta was held at Juniper Island and it is rather fitting that some attemp should be made to celebrate the anniversary.

It is remarkable how many cottages and campers bring their family pets with them to the lakes and one sees dogs of nearly every breed at the various points of call. Mr. Birrell's two Belgian police dogs attract notice and one sees the aristocratic pom, the inquisitive terrier, the lovely Airedale, the aggressive bulldog and many other varities including hounds, spaniels and many of decidedly mixed origin.. Cats are not unknown and many a family pet is transported in box or basket and judging from the unmistakeable sounds is much averse to travelling. One lady adopted the original method of removing the compartments from an egg crate and transporting pussy in it; and the result seemed fairly satisfactory. This season it is possible to rent a cat at a moderate sum, so one sees that gradually all the comforts ?) of home are to be had at the lake. In connection with cats one might say that all bird cages seen on the boat do not contain birds but are often used to convey other pets.

Cities Represented.

It is an interesting study to notice the various cities represented on the roster of Stoney Lake's Summer colony.. Nearly all the cities of the United States and Canada have at least one representation while there is a small population from countries further afield. This year two Swiss gentlemen are on the lake (guests at Viamede) and it would be interesting to hear their comparison of the Swiss Lakes with the local lakes, of course, Stoney Lake lacks the mountain back ground which one associates with Switzerland.

Good old Toronto provides easily the largest number of the summer residents and transients. Possibly Peterboro has the largest percentage to its population for there are many Peterboro people who appreciate the nearby attractions and do not venture farther afield for the summer.

Of the American cities possibly Cleveland sends the largest numger, though at one time Rochester held the record but the passing of the "North King" and its Sister plunger "Caspian, the connections have not been as good and Rochester has fallen behind.

Elusive Water Lily.

The beautiful and elusive water lily is to be seen in various selected woods and is just as much sought for as usual. These beautiful flowers are always in demand and are never out of fashion, probably they possess the art (can one call it that), of being inaccessible which often enhances the charm. Their favorite haunts are in the tiny weedy bays where one can hardly guide a canoe.

Some interested person has kindly run up a new flag on Ship Island and once more a swanky looking Union Jack waves in the breeze.

BLIND POINTS WAY FOR THOSE WHO SEE.

This is the Unique Position of Thomas F. Robinson.

UNION CITY, Mich., Aug. 3.—A blind man who shows the way to others who can see!

That's the rather unique position of Tom F. Robinson, one of the outstanding personalities of this place, whose influence and loyalty are exceptionally far-reaching.

How does he do it? Well, he accomplishes it all through the columns of the Register Weekly, Union City's only newspaper, of which Robinson is sole owner, publisher and editor. And he performs his tasks in a way which would be a credit to people with less handicaps in life.

For 10 years now "Tom," as he is known to his many readers and acquaintances, has been totally blind. But the loss of vision has never tended to discourage him. In fact, the affliction has only served to spur him on to greater efforts.

Through his editorials, Robinson has grown to be a real educational force to this little slip of a town. A clear, forceful writer, he is always ready to advocate and support through his paper any project promoting growth and development.

At work, he keeps in close touch with every branch of endeavor in his plant with a sureness that is not always achieved even by those with unimpaired eyesight.

He has a Braille writer for the blind, and on this he makes notes for his own reference. These he can readily read by touch. He also runs a typewriter with speed and accuracy. The "copy" for publication has his personal supervision.

One of his chief accomplishments is the successful campaign for establishment of the new municipal Hydro-Electric power plant here.

Upshaw of Georgia says the U. S. has been on a drunk. Said it in New York, which may be why.

Washington will have new one-way streets; none, however, leading to the treasury building.

Y. W. C. A. CAMP HAPPENINGS

STONEY LAKE, Aug. 3.—Monday and Tuesday of last week were devoted to a brief (all too brief) trip to the Blue Mountains in company with the Y.M. boys. This was a great treat as the Blue Mountains tempts many to visit its peak and see the wonderful panorama of lake and wood spread out before the eye, but few are strong and brave enough to undertake the difficulties of the trip. Jack's Creek is well worth a trip in itself as it has many interesting features. It is narrow near the mouth, with many rapids terminating in quiet pools. The chutes for the boys were interesting and attracted considerable attention. The climb up the mountain was strenuous but once in a while a halt was made for rest and to pick berries and such huge huckleberries and so sweet. They were a treat, but there was very little time for picking berries. From the peak the view is marvelous, as seven lakes are to be seen. As the girls were not provided with a map it was impossible to be sure of the names of all the lakes. The trip down the mountain was made more quickly than the climb and a prelude to the homeward trip. It was a glorious opportunity to explore country rather out of the beaten track and get a new viewpoint of life at Stoney Lake. Of course everyone was tired, but they were likewise very contented with the achievement.

Wednesday was a quiet day and was spent in loafing about and swimming. In the evening Mr. Loomis and the "Y" boys called and the party had a launch trip in the moonlight.

On Thursday afternoon the girls paddled to McCracken's and explored there a bit and paddled home the back channel. The people who stick to the beaten track can never know the lure of the back channels on the lake, to real nature lovers. They possess many charms which are only known to those inclined to explore. Late in the afternoon the boys invited the girls to go fishing and of course they went, even though it was rather late for bass fishing. Mudcats were caught in abundance and one of the boys gave a lesson in the art of skinning a fish, which was quite a novelty to the girls.

On Friday the combined camps set sail for Juniper, intending to visit the Mount Julian shore before returning. However, it was not to be, as the launch declined the trip, showing a goodly share of the temperament generally attributed to genius. Several of the boys tried their 'prentice hands on the refractory engine, assisted by generously given advice from their fellows. However, in the course of time the launch decided to go and away the party went to the "Y. M." camp, where tea was served to all, and a merry meal if proved to be. The next event was a baseball game played on the diamond at the camp between two picked teams, the champions and the amateurs. Mr. McNeeley, who was a visitor to the camp, acted as umpire to the satisfaction of all. As the darkness was fast setting there was only time for three innings and the score was 14-13 in favour of the champions. It was greatly feared there would not be time for them to win and some night person suggested a lantern hung on the ball. The party ended with a monster bonfire and singsong, after which the girls returned to "Gladhalken." They were very blue about the "Y" boys camp breaking up, as they have fraternized considerably, sharing work and fun in a way that has proved beneficial to all parties and the departure of the boys leaves a gap in the programme temporarily.

On Saturday morning Evelyn Raynsford went back to Hamilton and on the noon boat Annie Simmons and Queenie Hope returned home. Beatrice Kent and Frieda Surety arrived on the afternoon boat and Phyllis Robinson and Irene Howarth at night, so the vacancies were filled in. Dorothy Clarke left earlier in the week.

The manager at Juniper Island called on Sunday morning and took the girls to the evangelical service held in the pavilion. About 90 were present and the girls enjoyed it very much. The day closed with the usual Sunday evening picnic tea and the regular sing-song. Sunday is usually a quiet day and the sing-song seems a fitting close for God's day among the rocks and lakes, which forms our great summer playground.

THEATRES

A story of lawless mountain feuds, of rude lives and strong hearts, is "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," in picture form. The popular novel has been picturized in fine fashion, and the love of the mountain girl and her stronger lover lives in realistic fashion on the silver sheet.

Mary Miles Minter is the heroine, perhaps not as lovely in this picture as in her society-girl presentations, but still a convincing and attractive heroine. As June, the young heroine, she loves John Hale, an engineer from New York, and Dave, her mountain suitor, tries to kill her lover. As in the story, June goes to New York, befriended by John's sister, returning to find the Tolliver feud in full force, and "Bad Rufe" on the warpath with deadly gun. The strong scenes of the picture follow: the trial scenes, the shooting of Dave to save him from the gallows, and the council of war by the Tolliver clan. The screening has the book's satisfactory ending.

The comedy is an account of the adventures of a fat and flirty cook, who is heiress to a real fortune, and is pursued by many swains. As she knows nothing of her good fortune until the end of the picture, her access of popularity leads to many strange situations which lend fun to the story.

AT THE ROYAL.

"HUNGRY RIVER" IS NAME FOR COLORADO

The "hungry river" is the gruesome nickname of western river men for the Colorado river, some spectacular shots of which are shown in "What A Wife Learned" the Thomas H. Ince picture of twentieth century romance now running at the Royal Theatre.

Sands washed from the American desert by the mighty stream make the river extremely treacherous. A man who falls into it has to fight for his life as the sands fill pockets and clothing in an extremely short time, and are apt to weigh him to the bottom.

During the filming of "What A Wife Learned" scenes were made of two men struggling for their lives in the waters of the Colorado. Before the actors went into the river all the pockets were cut from their clothing to prevent them from being dragged by "sand-bags" to the bottom, the cameramen and two daring swimmers worked for days in icy waters of the river before the dramatic scenes shown in the film were photographed to the satisfaction of the director, John Griffith Wray.

NO BASEBALL OWING TO PRESIDENT'S DEATH

CHICAGO, Aug. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Professional baseball is entirely suspended throughout the United States to-day as a result of the death of President Harding. Commissioner Landis issued a statement that it was the sentiment of the country that no games be played either to-day or on the day of the funeral.

CINCINNATI AGAIN IN SECOND PLACE

Pittsburgh's Defeat at the Hands of New York Sent Them Back Into Third Place.

PITTSBURGH, August 3 (Canadian Press). — The New York Nationals made it three out of five games from Pittsburgh by winning yesterday's game, 3 to 2, in a pitcher's battle between Watson and Meadows. Groh's triple in the first inning scored Young, but errors by Carey and Traynor figured in the Giants' other two runs in the third and fifth innings. Score:

|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 101010000 | 3 | 8 0 |
| Pittsburgh | 010001000 | 2 | 9 2 |

Watson and Snider; Meadows and Schmidt.

Cincinnati 2, Philadelphia 0.

CINCINNATI, August 3 (Canadian Press). — Donohue was at his best in the last game of the series yesterday, and Cincinnati went into second place in the National League race by shutting out Philadelphia, 2 to 0. The visitors did not get a runner to third base until after two were out in the ninth inning. Glazner pitched well, the Reds scoring in only one inning when a pass, Bohne's single which Walker allowed to get through him for three bases, and a sacrifice fly by Donohue gave them their two runs. Score:

Sugar Prices Are on the Down Grade.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—Sugar is on the decline and after a drop of 75 cents in the past week, further reductions are anticipated within the next day or so. This is the interesting news obtained yesterday from local wholesale dealers. A week ago sugar was selling at $11.25 per hundred. There following a drop of 25 cents with another similar reduction early this week and a third cut Wednesday. It is now selling at $10.50, and, according to latest reports, the market is weak and will continue to decline.

As yet the reduction has not affected the retail trade, although it will do so within a day or so.

Two Home Games For the Local Team

Owing to the fact that the Cobourg baseball grounds are taken up with the Horse Show the game scheduled between the Petes and Cobourg for next Wednesday will be played in Peterborough on Tuesday evening at 5 o'clock.

The regular home game for the Petes on Saturday will also be played and Cobourg will again be their opponents. This will make two good games for the local fans next week and with the home boys battling hard for their place at the top o fthe league every game from now on will be a good one.

CLEVELAND LOST TO THE YANKEES

Rally in the Ninth Was Cut Short By Hoyt — St. Louis Lost Two to Washington.

NEW YORK, August 3. Canadian Press. — The New York Yankees bunched hits to good advantage here yesterday and defeated Cleveland in the second game of the series, four to two. Hoyt pitched a strong game for the Yanks, yielding only six hits. Cleveland rallied in the ninth but Hoyt regained his efficiency after a base on balls and two hits, and retired Lutzke and Brower on pop flies.

Detroit 6, Philadelphia 5.

PHILADELPHIA, August 3. Canadian Press. — Detroit took the opening game of the series with Philadelphia yesterday 6 to 5, extending the home team's losing streak to 11 in a row.

A thrilling rally in the last inning by the Athletics fell shy of tying the count by one run, the bases being filled when Haney threw out Dykes for the third out. Detroit had a total of 22 assists. The score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Detroit | 000210300 | 6 | 7 2 |
| Philadelphia | 000001022 | 5 | 10 1 |

Pillette, Cole, Dauss and Bassler, Naylor, Wolff and Perkins.

Chicago 9, Boston 5.

BOSTON, August 3. Canadian Press. — Bunched hitting against Murray and Fullerton gave Chicago a 9 to 5 victory over Boston yesterday. Faber was knocked out of the game in the sixth inning, when Boston made all its runs, but Cvengros was efficient as a relief man. The hitting and fielding of Eddie Collins and Kam were features. The score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Chicago | 020100312 | 9 | 13 0 |
| Boston | 000005000 | 5 | 12 1 |

Faber, Cvengros and Schalk; Murray, Fullerton and Walters.

Washington Won Two.

WASHINGTON, August 3. Canadian Press. — Washington took both games of a double header from St. Louis yesterday, winning the first 5 to 0, and the second 2 to 1. Mitchell obtained from Memphis last month, held St. Louis to six hits in the first. The last out in the first game was called by Umpire Ormsby after Manager Bush of Washington had protested that Gerber, who had reached first, had been batting out of turn.

Washington won the second contest in the ninth inning. Evans singled with one out and after Goslin had filed out, Rice, Ruel and Harris singled in succession. Scores:

First game:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| St. Louis | 000000000 | 0 | 6 2 |
| Washington | 10400000x | 5 | 9 1 |

OSLERS HERE ON CIVIC HOLIDAY

Well - Known Toronto Team to Clash With the Central Leaguers.

The Petes have been fortunate in securing a strong attraction for Civic Holiday when the Oslers of the Hampden Park League, Toronto, will clash with the local Central Leaguers in morning and afternoon games. The Oslers who have been one of Toronto's leading teams for years have never met the Petes and there will be unusual interest in the series. The Toronto crew have a fine pitching staff including Joe Spring and Doc Lewis and they will provide formidable opposition for the Petes in the holiday fixtures.

LILLIAN E. IS BEST BELLEVILLE BOAT

Defeated a Strong Field Yesterday Over a Seventeen-Mile Course—Fitful Wind.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—Lillian E, pride of her crew and the most talked of craft here, demonstrated her worth in light and tricky breezes again here yesterday in the second days' events of the Lake Yacht Racing Association's regatta, now generally conceded to be the greatest success in the history of the Association. With a wind fitful and then almost dying away out of the north-west, Lillian E. rounded the course of eight and two-thirds miles twice, to cross the line nine minutes and forty seconds ahead of the Nayada, and eleven minutes and forty-five seconds ahead of the Riowna, the I.C.C. entry, which was second to Lillian E. Wednesday. Nirwana was fourth in the "R" class boats, Vivia sixth, Latonka of Rochester sixth, Swamba seventh, Scrapper (the Bruce Taylor boat) eighth. Huskie, George Cup winner, and Chirvia of the Kingston Y.C. did not finish. Patricia won the W. D. Robb Cup, leading in the second class yachts by over two minutes on Bernice, eleven minutes on Nutmeg and 24 on Italia.

Zorave led the first class boats, finishing eleven minutes ahead of Iroquois and fifty minutes on Alice. The wind blew first from the west, then from the south and finally shifted almost due east. But it continued to shift and was puffy all day. It was straight heat to windward on the last leg.

The finish was as follows:

Class 1 or M Boats—Started 1.20 and finished:

Zoraye 4.11.15; Iroquois 4.22.50; Alice 5.02.01.

Class 2 or P. Craft—Start 1.25, finished at: Patricia 4.13.18; Bernice 4.15.25; Nutmeg 4.24.17; Italia 4.37.09.

Class 3 or R. Boats—Started at 1.30: Lillian E. 5.08.10; Nayada 5.17.50; Riowna 5.19.55; Nirwana 5.29.20; Vivia 5.32.35; Latonka 5.37.13; Swamba 5.44.52; Scrapper 5.45.09.

TRAINER FROM S.A. TO HANDLE FIRPO

Horatio Lavalle Will Assist Jimmy DeForest to Get Argentine Giant in Shape For Title Bout.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Horatio Lavalle, wealthy Argentine sportsman, amateur boxer and member of a prominent family, sailed for New York yesterday on the American Legion, with the expectation of taking charge of the training of Luis Angel Firpo for his match with Jack Dempsey.

Senor Lavalle told the Associated Press that Firpo has accepted his offer to direct his training on the recommendation of the challenger's local patron, Felix Bunge. He said he did not go to the United States with the expectation of replacing Jimmy Deforest, who trained Firpo for his bout with Jess Willard and some of his previous battles, but would aid Firpo in selecting his partners and advise him in business matters.

Senor Lavalle said he wished to make it clear he was not accepting a cent for his services. He said his offer was inspired by patriotism and by his friendship for Firpo, whom he helped to train for his match with Jim Tracy, the Australian, in Buenos Aires, last year.

Lavalle himself holds the title of South American amateur middleweight champion. At the cabled request of Firpo, he is taking with him Argentine-made boxing gloves of fourteen ounces weight to use in softening the challenger's blows on his sparring partners.

LEAGUE MEETING.

A special meeting of the Girls' Soft Ball League will be held this evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. The meeting is scheduled for 8 o'clock and the representatives of the various teams are urged to be on time as there is considerable important business to be discussed.

Pussyfoot Johnson has gone to Arabia, perhaps to stop those wild Arabian nights.

MILLS BACK IN THE LINE-UP FOR TRUNKS PLAY HERE TOMORROW

Most Important Game of the Season Scheduled For Riverside Park Saturday

BIG CROWD LIKELY.

Belleville will be at full strength for tomorrows' big game at Riverside Park as Peeney Mills, after an absence of many weeks will be back behind the bat for the Railroaders.

The championship of the second half and virtually the championship of the League hinges upon the result. If Belleville wins they will likely grab off the second half title and a play off will be unnecessary. On the other hand at Peterboro victory should ensure the section honors for the Petes who will only have two games with Cobourg to play while Belleville and Kingston will tie into each other for two fixtures.

It is by long odds the most important game of the year at Riverside Park and should attract the season's record crowd. Heckman will be on the firing line for the Petes while Belleville have given no intimation as to whether Williams or Oulette will do the gunning for them. Belleville won their last two games here but since then the Petes have beaten them twice in Belleville and little line on the result can be secured from this record. Both teams are confident and there should be a barrel of excitement before the winner is decided.

The game will get under way at the usual hour, 3 o'clock.

THE TAIL AGAIN WAGGING THE DOG

The Port Hope Guide Has a Few Interesting Remarks to Make Regarding the O. B. A. A. and T. A. B. A.

About the latter part of June the Toronto Amateur Baseball Association took exception to certain decisions by the Ontario Baseball Association and the statement appeared in all the papers that the Toronto teams had withdrawn from the O.B.A.A. No representative of the Toronto teams denied the statement and the public accepted it as authentic. Now when the season has reached the final stages and the play-off games are being arranged the Toronto organization comes along with the story that the statements in the press last June were not authorized and that all the Toronto teams are desirous of remaining members of the Provincial Association. And, this spineless organization, the O.B.A.A., opens its arms wide to receive the Toronto teams. The reception and welcome extended to the wanderers is as touching as the story of the Prodigal son. Simply another case of the tail wagging dog. Toronto teams doing as they like and on checking up by the parent organization. It is high time for a shake up in the Ontario Baseball Association.

How will the O.B.A.A. explain "Chuck" Allen's case? Allen came here in May to take charge of the dancing pavilion. Port Hope at that time was definitely out of baseball, so we cannot be accused of bringing Allen here to play ball. His coming to Port Hope was purely a business venture. Port Hope having no team, the rules permitted ball players resident here, to play with the nearest Central League team which in our case was Cobourg. The Cobourg club made application to use Allen but the O.B.A.A. wouldn't hear of it. The rules distinctly said that players must be residents of the town in which they played from January 1 and this rule must be observed. But last week Chuck Allen went to Toronto, pitched for Hillcrests and arranged to play the following two Saturdays so that he would be eligible to take part in the play off games. Why was Allen eligible for Hillcrests and not Cobourg? We don't know; probably the O.B.A.A. could explain—Port Hope Guide.

SOCCER NOTES

The Thistle and Woollens will play a League game at the Oval tomorrow.

The Thistle lost the services of two of their players this week in the persons of Stott, the goal-keeper and McAlpine, left half, who have gone out the city.

The following players will constitute the Thistle team tomorrow against Woollens: Jackson, goal; Hall and Rae, backs; Anderson, McMillan and McKay, half-backs; Sumner, Hutton, Richmond, Willaims and Burgess, forwards.

The team to represent the Canadian Woollens on Saturday, Aug. 4th, against the Thistles, will be as follows:

Griffin, Cridland, Chambers, Frost, Monkman, Sayers, Mitchell, Lauchlan, Gaskell, Roberts, Downes. Reserves—Read, Crow.

Political news belongs on the sport page. When it isn't a fight somebody's being scored.

WARSAW VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

Personal Activities During the Week—Miscellaneous Shower—News in Brief.

WARSAW, Aug. 3.—Miss Verna Calvert, Peterboro, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Gordon Payne.

Miss Kathleen Lloyd spent a few days last week with friends in Peterboro.

Miss Janet Dobson, Peterboro is visiting her sister, Mrs. Wm. Hawthorne.

At Miss Alice Payne's recital, the collection amounted to a little over five dollars more than the expenses, which she donated to the piano fund of the U.F.W.O.

Miss Jean Tedford, Norwood, spent the week-end with her aunt, Mrs. Clarence Watts.

Robert Tedford and son Kenneth, Norwood, were in the village today.

Messrs. Gordon Payne, Allan Payne Arthur, Edwards and Archie Hawthorne went to Healey's Falls Sunday afternoon, called there on account of the drowning of Edward Merriott.

Rev. Hugh Brown is renewing old acquaintances in the village.

Miss Barbara Kidd, graduate of Barrie Training School for nurses, is visiting her sister, Mrs. James Hawthorne.

Miss Gladys Tucker is spending a few days with Mrs. Gordon Payne.

Miss Esther Thompson is spending her holidays with her mother.

Miscellaneous Shower.

On Friday last, friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Matthews gathered at their temporary home and gave them a miscellaneous shower. A very pleasant evening was spent. Mr. Matthews is getting ready to rebuild this fall.

Was Highy Repected.

The drowning of Edward Merriott at Healey' Falls on Sunday, a little before noon proved a sad ending to what had been planned for a happy trip. In all the 12 years of his life near Warsaw, no one had anything but good to say of him. He was a quiet, clean-living, clean-spoken young man, industrious and faithful taking the same inteerst in what he did for others as in what he undertook for himself. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the home of Mr. Gordon Payne to Warsaw cemetery. Rev. F. G. Weir conducted the services. Wreaths were sent by the neighbors, the U.F.W.O., Mrs. Geo. Brown, Archie Hawthorne, Elmer Cooper; also flowers by Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Crowe, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards and others.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Jas. Hawthorne, Allan Payne, Allan Edwards, Gerald Crowe, Fred Crowe and Elmer Cooper. The late Mr. Merriott's only relative in this country, a cousin, Mr. Stillman of North Monaghan, with his wife and child were at the funeral which was largely attended.

Institute To Meet.

The regular meeting of the Warsaw Woman's Institute will be held on Thursday, August 9 at 2.30 o'clock p.m. in the Insitute rooms. Miss Ella Dewart will talk on the relation of school and home, and also give a report of her visit to some American schools.

TWO YEAR CHASE OF POSTAL THIEF

Mounted Police Trailed Their Man Across Canada and Into United States—Arrested at Hamilton.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Followed for more than two years, in a hunt that led across the Continent, into the United States, and thence back to Canada and then arrest in Hamilton, Ont., last week, Wm. R. Fulford, former employee of the local Postal Department, yesterday pleaded guilty to theft of a mail sack containing $11,400, and within fifteen minutes was sentenced to three years in Stony Mountain Penitentiary.

The theft was committed April 30, 1921. A package of money was being shipped to Schreiber by mail. Fulford, an employee of the Post Office, knew the bag containing it. He followed the mail truck to the depot, and when the mail carrier stepped into the Canadian Pacific Railway yard office to inquire about a delayed train, he took it from the truck and carried it to a nearby field, cutting open the bag and extracting the package.

Yesterday's sequel ends one of the most puzzling robberies ever committed in the district, and one that taxed the efforts of the Criminal Investigation Department of the Royal Mounted Police and the city police.

Fulford had been shadowed by police officers from the moment he was suspected until he was brought to book by Inspector Reames, of the Mounted Police, in Hamilton, one week ago.

This has been a bad year on sport champions. Ill rest the heads that wear the crowns.

MILLBROOK AND THE DISTRICT

Preparing For Old Boys' Re-union—Funeral of the Late Miss Perdue—Personals.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 3. — The chairman of the various committees in connection with the Old Boys' Re-Union who were appointed last Saturday evening at the Executive meeting, have been calling their committees together this week and discussing plans and arrangements re that part of the event for which they are held responsible. The time being limited, it is absolutely necessary that all citizens unite in doing their utmost to make this important undertaking as great a success as possible. Over one thousand invitations have been sent out and names are still being sent in. It may be necessary to again remind the people both of Cavan and Millbrook that if they wish their relatives or friends to receive invitations such names and addresses must be sent to the secretary as soon as possible. Failing this only the friends here are responsible if some whom they wish invited are overlooked. The secretary will appreciate receiving the names and addresses of early settlers in the township or village who now have no relatives residing here from any who can furnish such information.

Laid To Rest.

The late Miss Lillie Pendrie, whose death occurred on Thursday, July 29, following a lingering illness, was one of a family of eleven children, seven girls and four boys, five of whom, four daughters, Mrs. (Rev.) William Buchanan, Miss Annie Pendrie, Mrs. T. McIndoo, and Margaret, (the latter dying in early girlhood), and one son, Robert, predeceased their sister. Her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pendrie, emigrated to the States from Ireland, and after a short time spent in New York came to Canada and were amongst the early settlers of Millbrook, where they were always regarded as useful and highly-respected citizens. Here their children were born and raised, and here the remainder of their lives was spent.

Deceased entered the business world in young womanhood, making millinery her chosen calling, and holding several responsible positions in connections with various mercantile firms in a number of the leading towns of the province. About fourteen years ago she decided to relinquish her business career and make her home with her sister, Mrs. Archer, upon the death of the latter's husband. Connected with the Methodist church practically all her life, the late Miss Pendrie was a faithful attendant at the church services as long as health permitted, and was a useful worker in several of the organizations connected therewith. Particularly in the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary was the a devoted helper, holding the position of treasurer for a number of years and faithfully and efficiently discharging its duties.

Some little time ago heart trouble developed and for the past two years at least her health had been a matter of much concern. Nervous complications also caused much suffering, and though enduring bravely and frequently rallying, the end came, somewhat unexpectedly, last week. The immediate survivors are, two sisters, Mrs. Albert Payne, and Mrs. William Archer, Millbrook, and three brothers, John, of Rochester, William and Fred, of Millbrook.

The funeral, which took place from the residence of her sister, Mrs. Archer, King street, on Sunday, July 29th, at 2 p.m. was largely attended. Her pastor, Rev. S. T. Tucker, assisted by Rev. Joseph Wilks, had charge of the services at the house and graveside, and the pall-bearers were: W. G. Hetherington, H. W. Johnston, W. E. Russell, W. Coombe, Dr. A. Jemison, and G. E. Burnham. Many beautiful floral tributes were laid upon the casket.

Relatives from outside points who attended the funeral included, Dr. and Mrs. G. N. Greer, of Peterboro, Mr. and Mrs. George McCartney, Peterboro; Mr. J. O'Byrne, of Toronto, and Mr. A. Payne, of Hamilton.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. Hooey, of Toronto, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Eakins, this week.

Misses Amy Brock, Mary and Eileen Biggs and Phyliss Richards were visitors to Peterboro on Wednesday.

Mr. W. S. Given, who has been touring the Western Provinces for the past month, returned home on Monday. Mrs. Given is remaining for a more extended visit with friends in Alberta and Manitoba before her return.

Mr. J. N. McGill has the honor of being one of the most successful fishermen of the season, landing a twenty-five pound lunge while trolling near his summer home on Nurse's Island, Rice Lake, early on Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Elgar, of Cavan, with their twin babies, Nettie and Jack, were guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilkinson, on Sunday.

Miss Jean Burnham and her guest, Miss Dorothy Higgs, of Port Perry, are spending a day or two at her uncle's camp, "Highland Park" Otonabee River.

CROP OUTLOOK NOT SO BRIGHT AS MONTH AGO

Rust and Other Causes Will Cut Down Wheat Yield But Crop Will Still Be a Large One.

START CUTTING SOON.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press)—Owing to rust and other detrimental agencies, crop prospects in the Prairie Provinces are not so bright as was the case a month ago, according to a report issued last night by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, in which the agricultural situation throughout Canada is dealt with.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia report that despite rust, saw-fly and hail in spots, the general harvest is expected (ot be good. Harvesting is expected to be general by August 15. Small loss by grasshoppers is reported from Southern Alberta. Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and Ontario hay is good, but harvesting weather reported bad.

Quebec and New Brunswick have suffered from cold weather and crops are below average.

Correspondents in Brandon and Morden, Manitoba, complain that rust and saw-fly will seriously reduce the yield, and in the Morden district drought has also contributed to this end. The general report from the Provincial Department of Agriculture is more optimistic in tone. While taking cognizance of the presence, at certain points, of rust, the departmental correspondent opines that upon the whole "the fields are mostly looking very well." Fall rye is described as a fair to good crop. Wheat cutting is expected in the earliest districts about August 1 to 8, but will be two weeks later in the delayed areas. Brandon correspondents believe cutting will begin in their district about the tenth, and Morden does not look for it start until about the end of the month.

Reporting upon the Saskatchewan outlook, the Department of Agriculture says:

"Weather first half of July hot and sultry with resulting thundes and rain storms. Some reports of tip burn on wheat and conditions peculiar to rust development. Weather last week of month cooler and conducive to filling. Wheat making good progress and harvesting expected to start about August 10 to 15. Some cases reported of leaf and stem rust but present cool weather against this development. All crops making good progress and promise excellent yield. Swift Current reports that present conditions do not sustain prospects of a month ago, but the belief is expressed that prospects are still equal to those of last year."

Alberta correspondents report:

"Wheat in this Province practically all headed out and filling well under good weather conditions. Indications point to a heavy barley crop. Trouble with grasshoppers in some southern districts, but loss will be small. Heavy hail damage in some districts will reduce the general yield. Harvesting will be general between August 15 and 20. Lethbridge described crop prospects as 'still excellent'."

PHOTOGRAPH SUN ECLIPSE.

ENSENDA, Lower California, Aug. 3.—(Associated Press)—Astronomers from the University of California will make photographs and gather observation records of the total eclipse of the sun here September 10, according to word received from university officials at Berkeley, Calif. Dr. William F. Meyer will head the expedition.

NIGHTIE THROWS OUT THE PYJAMA

By Hedda Hoyt.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., August 2 (United Press).—

Yes, we have no pyjamas—
We have no pyjamas to-day.
We've pinkies and whities
And old-fashioned nighties,
But we have no pyjamas to-day.

or to misquote a more ancient line:

Backward, oh backward! Turn time in your flight.
Give me a gown again to wear at night!

Slowly, surely, the pendulum of fashion is turning backwards. The crinolin gown appears in Paris and London, flounce skirts assert themselves in America, poke bonnets are having their day and the old-fashioned nightgown is ousting the pyjama out of its place in the sun.

True, one can still find pyjamas at the shops, but they have lost their mannish lines. They are round-necked and sleeveless, lace-trimmed, etc. But with all their feminine acquirements they lack the daintiness, charm, and comfort of the nighty. In the first place, the pyjama requires a cord about the waist and this makes it less comfortable than the gown which has developed into a wisp of a garment with no binding of any sort on the body. Pyjama trousers, though chic, can not be as comfortable as the loose-flowing nightgown and unless one is a boyish-shaped individual with bobbed hair, one had better stick to the more feminine attire. Somehow the pyjama seems incongruous on a long-haired woman. She is too entirely feminine for them. A stout woman in pyjamas is also ludicrous.

The New Type of Nightie.

The nightgown that is made like the costume slip with Empire waistline is newer and more generally becoming than the short-yoked affairs, as it has the effect of being a robe and makes one look more slender. It should be made wide enough at the waist, however, to allow comfort and prevent pulling.

Even tiny puffed sleeves are used on gowns of this type, making them truly adorable. I saw a little bride's gown with round Irish lace yoke finishing the bodice and puff sleeves of Irish lace trimmed in rosettes of silk orange blossoms. This was made of white crepe satin and would be adorable for the bride.

Another lovely gown designed for the bride, but which could also be made in colours, uses the long-waisted costume slip model with rounding neckline and a berths of fine lace which falls over the shoulders. A rosette of silk flowers is placed with long streamer attachments at the side waistline. Made in colours, this would be a veritable doll dress.

Among the French imports I found a gown that might be interesting to copy, as it is so simply made and yet so lovely. It was of yellow radium silk, sleeveless and round-necked, cut after the manner of the simple dress of to-day, bloused about the hips by loote elastic band. Wide armslits prevent tearing. Any ordinary gown the blouse, could be used for this pattern, with an elastic band to form model. A gown of this sort should be made only of some lovely silk as it would lose its charm in cotton.

The girl who is accustomed to pyjamas won't want to return to the old-fashioned nighty, but the newer types of gowns have many interesting charms to attract her.

TENNIS BEGINNERS
The Serve

The service is the initial step in getting the ball into play. It may be made a strong offensive stroke or merely an opening to develop other strokes, according to the natural ability of the players and the general plan of attack.

There are many styles of serving, but in general they fall into two broad classes — the underhand and the overhead smash. The overhead smash is a more recent development and has been brought to such perfection by some players as to be a deadly offensive stroke in itself. It is not however a good stroke for lady players, because there are few women who can get enough force to make it effective and the high pitch of an overhead ball makes it an easy one to hit winners on. The underhand services can be kept low, and while it looks inoffensive, it is a hard ball to furnish. This is particularly true if it has a little side spin or cut on it. In making this stroke the player should stand three or four feet behind the line as this allows a longer arc and decreases the chances of faults.

The smash serve is best made by standing half angling to the back line, tossing the ball a little in front of the right shoulder and hitting it as high up as possible without any straining. The ball may be hit with an open racquet—that is a straight blow—but it will come down more if hit or stroked over the top a bit, as this imparts top spin which makes the ball come down and increases the force of the bounce.

The matter of where the server shall stand is open to argument. In singles play there is not much question that he is in better position near the centre of the court.

In doubles it is a different proposition and the player will be guided by his general plan of attack. There is the fact however that any change of position gives away the server's intention while if he stands near the centre he can conceal the direction until the ball is in flight.

The server is very much in the position of the baseball pitcher. He has a striker to fool. Some strikers wilt before speed; others like nothing better. Nearly every player has a weakness, that is a speed on which he is uncertain or a side on which he is weak. The aim of the server should be to find this weakness and play to it, always having in mind that variation and sudden change are good weapons.

Beware of the excessive cut or freak serve of any kind. They are all easy balls to hit and score from, once the element of surprise is gone.

The next article will deal with the forehand stroke, which is the main reliance of most players.

PSYCHOLOGY PLAYS BIG PART IN SPORT

By BILLY EVANS.

Psychology plays a prominent part in every sport

Once a player gets it into his head that a certain task is well nigh impossible, it usually turns out that way.

Take tennis for example. Vincent Richards, third ranking tennis player, is a brilliant performer. Richards has many times beat Champion Bill Tilden. The title holder has many times beaten Bill Johnston. Yet Richards has yet to defeat Johnston.

In many of the matches between Johnston and Richards, the latter has jumped out in front, seemed certain to be returned the winner, only to have his jinx return at the crucial moment and kill off victory through some break of the game.

And in Golf, Too!

Richards has beaten several players who have wins over Johnston to their credit, yet Johnston remains the big enigma of tennis as far as Richards is concerned.

It took Bobby Jones a long time to achieve a championship in golf. Time after time Jones has been favored to win, would run true to form up to the stretch, only to falter or have the breaks go against him.

Jones, however, had the courage and simply refused to be denied.

In nearly every big golf tournament a certain hole spoils the chances of this or that player. With one player it may be the third, another the seventh, while the ninth hole may be equally fatal to others.

If a player in his first round takes a six or seven on a par four hole, it is almost a certainty that he will be bothered by that same hole on each of his four rounds of 72-hole competition. That particular hole gets his "goat."

The records of the national open reveal some decidely unusual dope on the part psychology plays in golf. Even the skilled pro, hardened to the stiffest sort of competition, often falters under the strain of playing a certain hole that appears to be his jinx.

In many cases players have taken from eight to ten strokes over par on a certain hoodoo hole in four rounds, only to discover that they have lost the championship by a less number than was wasted on the jinx hole.

Same True on Diamond.

Baseball is filled with instances of where psychology has proved to be the deciding issue. This is true because there are more possibilities in baseball than any other sport.

Pitchers constantly resort to "hokum" that they feel is upsetting the opposition. I know one pitcher who is unusually successful against a certain club simply because he "bunks" the players.

The pitcher I have in mind is Sam Jones of the New York Yankees. Against a certain club he always carefully examines a ball before each pitch. On certain occasion he will rub his hand several times over the ball in a rather mysterious manner. Once or twice each inning he will turn his back to the plate and seemingly will be fussing with the ball.

The opposition naturally sets up a howl that Jones is doctoring the ball. Time and time again the players will insist that the ball be looked over. The claim is often made that Jones is roughening the ball. An examination always reevals the ball in perfect condition.

"This club thinks I am doctoring the ball," explains Jones. "The stuff I am pulling is to keep up that belief. I never do anything wrong with the ball, but the opposing players think I am.

"As a result they spend more time trying to figure what I am doing than in hitting. That makes them easy for me."

HUNDREDS ENJOYED SPORTS PROGRAMME ON LAND AND WATER

The Annual Regatta at McCracken's Landing Was Best in the History of the Organization.

THE WINNERS.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 3.—(Special)—The annual regatta of the McCracken's Landing Cottagers Association was held yesterday afternoon and was one of the most successful in the history of the organization. A full program of both land and water sports was run off with every event keenly contested. In several of the races the entries were so numerous that it was necessary to have three and four heats before a winner could be decided.

The course for the water races was set a little further west than has been the case in previous years and the spectators were allowed the use of the hotel grounds from which to watch the sports. The land races were run off immediately in front of the hotel.

The event was particularly well attended with between two and three people present from all parts of the lake. During every event the spectators entered enthusiastically into the spirit of the contest and the excitement was kept at fever pitch throughout.

The whole affair was in charge of a small but very active committee the members of which spared no pains to make the event a success and whose efforts were amply rewarded.

Water Sports.

The water sports were run off first with the following results:

Canoe sailing race—First, Reg. Dickson; second, Otto Gliddon.

Tug-of-war, for a crew of three in a canoe—Won by Ritchie Stubbs, Stanley Dodsworth and Harold Knapman.

The Disappearing Propeller boat race for the cup donated by the manufacturers of the boat—Won by H. E. Ringel.

Ladies single skiff—First, Ivah Hendren; second, Helen Ednison.

Mens' single skiff—First, Stanley Dodsworth; second, Donald Fitzgerald.

Ladies Single Canoe—First, Miss Ada Adams; second, Miss Dorothy Meyers.

Crab race—First, Ritchie Stubbs; second, Donald Fitzgerald.

Upset race—First, Braden Blewett; second, Donald Fitbgerald.

Tandem skiff—First, Miss Helen Ednison and Donald Fitzgerald; second, Bruce Knapman and Stanley Dodsworth.

Tandem canoe—First, Miss Blossom Mackenzie and George Douglas; second, Bruce and Harold Knapman.

Long dive—First, Donald Fitzgerald; second, Vanatta.

Girls' swimming race—First, Patricia Hedley; second, Miss Violet Meyers.

Boys' swimming race (under 12)—First, Bill Peardon; second, Tom Brewin.

Land Sports.

Great enthusiasm was manifested in the land sports which were run off immediately on front of the Victoria House. The winners of the various events were:

Soap race for married ladies—First, Mrs. J. S. Knapman; second, Mrs. Rowell.

Three-legged race for men—First, Garbutt and Selkirk; second, Dr. George Zimmerman and Donald Fitzgerald.

Three-legged race for girls—First, Misses Margaret and Joan Mudge; second, Miss Dorothy Wilson and Miss Evelyn Northey.

Wheelbarrow race—First, Harold Knapman and Dr. George Zimmerman; second, Jim Peardon and Mr. Hart.

Ladies egg race—First, Miss Betty Fairbairn; second, Miss Elizabeth Hedley.

The prizes which included several silver cups as well as many valuable and useful articles were presented to the winners immediately after the race by Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Ringel. The press was in receipt of a special prize consisting of a large box of chocolates.

The committee in charge consisted of H. E. Ringel, chairman; A. F. Choate, secretary; J. M. Wilson, T. H. Jones, J. C. Strickland, J. O. McCarthy and Gordon Graham.

WON'T KEEP HER ART.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—(Associated Press)—It is not intended to take any legislative measures to keep works of art, famous books and pictures in this country, Sir W. Joynson Hicks, financial secretary of the treasury, told a questioner in the House of Commons recently.

The questioner referred to measures he thought should be introduced whereby such treasures, which might otherwise be sold to America, might come instead to national or municipal collections at a fair valuation. The secretary said the question had been considered by the trustees of the National Gallery, who advised the government against any such legislation.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, Aug. 3.—Rev. Dr. Daley, superintendent of the Counties' Children's Aid Society for Northumberland and Durham, accompanied a young girl who had been engaged as a domestic in a home in Port Hope, to Mimico on Tuesday. She had pleaded guilty to theft, and was sentenced to six months in the Mercer Reformatory.

Abating Dust Nuisance.

The Provincial Highway between Cobourg and Fort Hope has been oiled, and this action on the part of the authorities is very much appreciated by motorists. The dust on the county roads at the present time is something that may well be avoided unless one desires to consume a peck before their time.

Death of Little Child.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Montgomery of Orland have been bereaved by the death of their infant son. The funeral was held at Bethany church and the interment was in Mt. Olive cemetery. Rev. Mr. Cofley conducted the services.

Death of Mrs. C. H. Smith.

Recently Mrs. C. H. Smith passed away at Buffalo after undergoing an operation for appendicitis. She was born in Prince Edward County fifty-six years ago and was a sister of Mr. Marshal Gerow of Brighton, of Mrs. A. Cole of Belleville, and of Mrs. Ben Way of Wellington.

Auto Accident.

There are apparently some danger spots on the Provincial Highway west of Port Hope where care should be exercised if one may judge from the multiplicity of accidents. When Mr. and Mrs. E. Bermorat of Detroit were motoring recently their care swerved and went into the ditch at Rowe's Hill, west of Port Hope. The car a sport model Hudson was badly damaged and the owner received a severe cut in the forehead when he was thrown against the windshield.

District's Share $68.20.

The share of the proceeds received by the Young People's Societies of Cobourg District for the excursion to Rochester on Wednesday of last week amounted to $68.20. This is expected to leave at net sum of about $50 to be devoted to the purchase of a phonograph or Victrola for Rev. W. E. Smith, M.D. to be used in his work in China.

Swiss and Hollanders Here.

Crops in the district are ripening fast and farmers are finding difficulty in keeping up with their work. Help is very scarce, not withstanding the fact that a considerable number of Swiss and Hollanders have been placed on farms, where they are understood to be making good, by the immigration agent, Mr. James S. Haig.

A Long Motor Trip.

Rev. and Mrs. Pettit of Oil Springs visited friends in Brighton and Northumberland. They were motoring through to Delta where they will spend a holiday. The number of autos that pass up and down the Provincial highway is much increased above other seasons, and from the number of American parties seen, there must be many auto tourists from the United States in Canada this year. A good advertising medium for the Dominion.

Social and Personal.

Sir Henry and Lady Sharp, of London, England, who have returned from a trip to California, spent a few days at the King Edward, Toronto, last week, en route to Cobourg and Kingston to visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Parkerson and family have arrived at the Colontram hotel here for the summer.

Miss Myrtle Henderson is home from New York spending holidays with her mother, Mrs. Wm. Henderson.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Kerr, Peterboro, are spending holidays here.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Doheny, Toronto, have been visiting Mrs. C. M. Doheny.

Mrs. John Ferguson, is in town from Toronto, where she spent the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Walter Jackson.

ARE WOMEN OVERWORKED

Yes, hundreds of thousands of them are. This applies to the housewife whose struggles on a small income to make both ends meet by doing all the washing, ironing, cooking, making and mending for a large family. There are others who not only support themselves working in factories, shops, stores and offices, but often have an invalid father or mother to support, therefore do housework beside. These are the women who break down early and are afflicted with various forms of female weakness. Ninety-eight out of every 100 women who have tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have proved that it is a successful remedy for woman's ills. For nearly fifty years it has been restoring women to health, and it will pay every ailing woman to try it.

BIG CONSERVATIVE PICNIC.

MONTREAL, August 2 (Canadian Press). — Five or more Parliamentary speakers, including the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Hon. Rudolph Monty, and Hon. Andre Fouteux, with a gathering of ten thousand people to hear them, are anticipated for the monster picnic to be held at Belmont Park, Cartierville, on 1st September next, under the auspices of the Liberal-Conservative and other Associations. An invitation to attend has also been extended to Arthur Sauve, leader of Quebec Opposition.

COBALT BERRIES ON LOCAL MARKET

Fruit dealers report a scarcity of ripe tomatoes due to the dry weather in the Niagara and Leamington districts. The retail price lapsed back to 25c a pound yesterday, an increase of five cents over the low of 20c that was reached a week ago, when the supply was coming in freely.

Dealers say they have been unable to fill their orders, and the shipments arriving to-day were mostly tomatoes that were picked green. Niagara shippers have had nothing to send forward, and to-day's receipts were from Leamington.

The first Ontario plums are now on the market. They are the Japanese variety, grown at Niagara, and selling at 75c a basket.

Local huckleberries are reported to be about done, and the shops are buying their stock from Cobalt pickers for retail at $2.75 a basket of seventeen pounds.

Cherries range from 75c a basket to $1.25, with new sour blacks bringing the top price. Raspberries are approaching the end of their tether at 25c and 28c a box. The crop has been a disappointment.

Lemons are in active demand at 40c a dozen, and local celery is quoted at two bunches for a quarter. Arizona cantaloupes are from 25c to 40c each, and honeydew melons from 75c to $1 each. These are a novelty and something of a luxury, ordered by one of the dealers for customers who can afford to pay a dollar for a melting melon.

California pears at 50c a dozen and Alberta peaches from the same State at 40c to 75c a dozen are finding a ready demand.

FLAGS HALF MAST IN TORONTO CITY

Ontario Officials and Citizens Mourn the Death of Harding.

TORONTO, Aug. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—Ontario officials and citizens of the province to-day mourn the death of the Chief Executive of the United States, and flags fly at half mast from the Parliament Buildings at Queen's Park and the principal business concerns of the city.

Toronto has particular reason to regret the death of President Harding, in view of a recent interview granted Canadian newspaper women by Mrs. Harding while in Vancouver. In this interview Mrs. Harding remarked that she knew Toronto and the Province of Ontario well. Before becoming President her husband was, she said, very fond of the city, and frequent pleasant visits had been paid to this part of Canada.

Official duties prevented the President of the United States from spending his vacations in Ontario, as was his wont, and now death has robbed this country of the privilege of welcoming him back as a summer guest.

Drove Wagon Over King Edward Park

The "short-cut" habit that shows itself in the propensity of so many persons to wear paths across private lawns and public parks, reached its worst form in King Edward Park, where some delivery waggon in a hurry was driven across the grass as unconcernedly as if it were along a highway.

"That's about the limit," remarked Ald. Stocker, but his fellow aldermen didn't seem surprised at this example of local speed in business. However, signs will be put up warning against repetition of such trespass even if business must be slowed up by the longer drive around the streets enclosing the park.

AGE

By Berton Braley

I flattered myself that I'd kept my youth
That as far as the world could see, in truth,
My hair was thick and my movements quick
And lithe as they ever were;
But a maiden of twenty glanced at me,
And the way she glanced I could clearly see
That in spite of my pep and my youthful step
I didn't look young to her

Oh, you may deny that you're on the shelf,
And quite successfully kid yourself,
But you won't decieve the Daughter of Eve
Whose youth is youth indeed;
She will let you jolly her at a dance
(But oh, the tolerance of her glance)
As her young eyes gauge your probable age
In spite of your zest and speed

Oh, there may be youth in your inmost heart,
And your outward semblance be young and smart,
But Youth won't fall for your bluff at all
Though bravely enough you try,
When the girls' smiles say—as you have your fling—
"Oh, isn't he simply a spry old thing"
Why, it should be plain (though it brings you pain)
That you've bidden your youth good-bye

PREMIER KING SENDS MESSAGE

Canada Condoles With American People in Their Loss — Represent Canada at Funeral.

OTTAWA, August 3 (Canadian Press). — Genuine appreciation of the late President Harding, and of sorrow at his death, was expressed on behalf of the Canadian people by Premier King to-day, and suitable messages of condolence were sent to the U.S. Government and to Mrs. Harding.

Sybpathy with Mrs. Harding in her bereavement was wired to her at San Francisco this morning by Premier Mackenzie-King as follows:

"My colleagues in Government join with me in expressing deepest sympathy with you in your great bereavement. Your grief is shared not alone by the people of the United States, but in very real measure by the people of Canada."

Profound Sorrow.

In all circles at the capital, news of the sudden and unexpected passing of President Harding of the United States was received this morning with general and profound sorrow.

It is scarce more than a week ago since Mr. Harding, apparently in the best of health, paid his visit to Vancouver, and was accorded a welcome which spoke the voice of the Canadian people.

This first visit of the President of the United States to the Dominion, together with the felicitous nature of his reply to the speech of welcome, have been regarded as augurring well for the future relations of the two countries.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen is absent from the city. In his absence however, Sir Henry Drayton, former Minister of Finance, conveyed their sympathy to the people of the United States.

"President Harding," said Sir Henry, "has won the sincere respect of the Canadian people, and the news of his sudden death was received here with great sorrow."

Strengthened Ties.

On his recent visit to Canadian territory, he did much to strengthen the ties binding the two countries in friendship, and created an impression that will long be remembered with kindliness. The heartfelt sympathy of the Canadian people goes out to the American nation in its great loss.

"On account of his recent visit to Canada," said Mr. Fielding "President Harding was a little closer than usual to the people of Canada. When the first news of his serious illness came there was general sorrow here, and this was followed by relief when word came that he was gaining ground. His sudden death now comes as a great shock, and the sympathy of the Canadian people goes out in full measure to the American people in their loss."

"We recall with deep feeling the words of goodwill spoken but a few days ago by Mr. Harding on the occasion of the visit of the President and yourself to our country. In like spirit and sincerity we express to the people of the United States in the loss they have sustained, the profound sympathy of the people of Canada.

"In the feelings of international friendship between the Republic and ourselves, never stronger than they are to-day, we trust there may be something of consolation to you and to our neighbours in this hour of sorrow which we all share."

Represent Canada.

The Canadian Government, it is understood, will be officially represented on the occasion of the funeral of President Harding.

Definite arrangements have not been made, but it is considered likely that the Hon. A. B. Copp, Secretary of State, will attend as the representative of Canada.

BALL GAMES TO-NIGHT.

The Juvenile and Midget games scheduled for last evening were called off. The contests will be played this evening, Lock Works and Hillcrests at Sacred Heart grounds, and Sacred Heart and Maple Leafs at King Edward School grounds.

At King Edward Park, Mackey's and George Street will play an East Peterborough League game.

NOT EASY EVADE THE NEW TAXES

Means Used to Check Up on the New Receipt Tax

It is not so easy as it looks to evade the new receipt, tax, local officials, say. This tax provides that letters, including form letters, forwarded by mail, also postcards acknowledging the payment of money of $10 and over are subject to a tax of two cents.

Asked if it would not be possible for the Act to be evaded by sending receipts through the mail without the knowledge of the customs officials, the Examiner's informant said it is absolutely impossible, no matter how easy it looks.

If a receipt is issued without the required stamp being affixed the receipt is not recognized by the law as being valid, and the recipient must at once take steps to have the necessary stamp placed on his receipt. Such a receipt may have the stamp affixed thereto by the issuer of the receipt within a period of one month thereafter, in the presence of a collector of customs and excise, whose duty will be to levy and collect a fine of $10 as penalty for not stamping the receipt when given.

Receipts acknowledging the payment of a sum of more than $10 must bear a two-cent stamp, whether the payment was made by cash or by cheque.

Another interesting point is that any receipt liable to taxation under the special War Revenue Act of 1915 and the amendments thereto, shall not be permitted as evidence or be available for any purpose whatsoever, except in criminal court proceedings unless duty is stamped in accordance with the law at the time when given.

EVERY PERSON SHOULD DISPLAY LOYALTY TO HIS NATION AND FLAG

Witty Aphorisms and Irresistible Humor Punctuated Interest Holding Address on "The Need of the Hour" by Judge G. D. Alden of Massachusetts.

AT THE CHAUTAUQUA

"I don't go much on this ancestry proposition or this family tree dope. I have seen too many that needed spraying. There are some people in the United States who are so strong on their Pilgrim Fathers beginning that they won't eat an egg unless it is laid by a Plymouth Rock. I am more vitally interested in what a man is and where he is going, than where he came from."

Judge George D. Alden, ex-judge of the Supreme Bench of the State of Massachusetts, a speaker of direct, incisive, convincing address, whose hour and a half talk on "The Needs of the Hour," last night at the Chautauqua tent, was punctuated with witty aphorisms and humorous allusions that kept his hearers in constant good humour, in this way discounted the introduction of himself as a direct descendant of the Mayflower group, and of John Alden, of historical note.

"I have no use for an individual who does not love his country and his flag, but that is no reason why we should not see our country's faults. It is said that love is blind. I say it is an eye opener. Every individual plays his part and has a relationship to the four aspects of national life: the commercial, the political, the domestic and the religious. You can's escape it. I believe that the ills of my country to-day can be traced to ills in those four divisions; to commercial dishonesty, political corruption, domestic unhappiness, and religious indifference, and to the growing disregard of the individual to the part he should play in the game of life."

U. S. National Life.

Referring to the spirit which dominated four epochs in the national life of the United States, the speaker considered the Pilgrim Fathers as having been actuated by the spirit of conscience and conviction. The men of '76 were inspired by a spirit of revolt against the dictates of an unjust King, and the spirit of humanity dominated the progress of the Civil War. The Judge here paid a tribute to the work of Queen Victoria at that time. For the present, the modern age, the speaker contended that the spirit was the lure of gold, a spirit which infected not only the profiteers in high places, but the men in lowly occupations. Disavowing any intention of attacking Canadian citizens, and taking as hypothetical targets the men of "Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont," the Judge flayed the small grafters, the frequenters of country stores who would "water the milk, and sand the sugar," while denouncing the "grafters who are ruining the kintry."

Lesson in History.

"I do not pride myself on birth or family, because that is always either an accident or a catastrophe, but I do pride myself on my knowledge of history, self-acquired, and looking at conditions in my country for the last twenty years, I cannot help but think of the lesson of history; that every nation that has turned from God to gold has gone down to defeat. You know the fault isn't with the "tainted money."

Most of us find fault with it because 't'aint ours. The little grocer with his thumb in the scoop, and the 'ambush' scale (because it 'lies in weight') those little penny-picking pikers of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont."

"I believe that the growing need of the hour is the return to sanity and honesty. Two thousand years have passed with their wonders of modern invention and discovery but the years have not changed an iota the teachings of Him who spake to the fishermen of Galilee. The need of the hour to settle the affairs of the world is a coming back to the teachings of the Master, the need of the age is a Christian manhood. The rise of the spirit of graft and greed has caused a decline of man's regard of his duty to his God and in this you may find the cause of the ills of the world of to-day. The man who has no respect for God can have no true respect for self, and a lack of self respect is the incubator for the ills of modern life. In the commercial, the political, the domestic and the religious aspects of life you will find wrecking condition, a lack of self respect."

Belief in God.

Speaking of his own lack of belief in God at one time of his life, and a final turning to a living belief in Him, the Judge said: "The central fact of civilization is Christianity, and the central figure in Christianity is Christ. Are you people here giving vital support to those who are trying to serve the world to-day, to the Church of Christ. The need to-day is not more preaching of dogma or creed, but more of Christ, and Him crucified, and His relationship to our lives. I don't care whether this world was made in six days or in six millions years I wasn't on the job. You can't chalk up de-

Peterboro Pays Respect To the Dead President

Out of respect for citizens of the United States now in Peterborough, as a tribute to the character of Warren G. Harding and the office of the Presidency, and as a neighbourly act, Mayor Taylor gave instructions last night for the city hall flag to be dropped to half mast. This order was carried out first thing this morning.

STRANGE LULL OVER IRELAND PRESENT TIME

Shadow of Perplexity Trailing Behind Existing Quiet in Ireland as Election Day Near.

FLAGS ARE ABSENT

DUBLIN, August 4. Special. — Caution mingled with suspicion is an outstanding characteristic in Dublin as the general election draws near in the Free State. On the streets, in parks, in clubs and cafes the Irish refuse to discuss politics, adding the significant statement that "you never can tell to whom you are talking." Once convinced you are a stranger, especially an American, they throw off their mantle of caution and speak with a sincerity that everybody would admire.

Return of a Free State majority in the Dail would appear to mean better days for Ireland. A Republican victory on the other hand, may bring renewed hostilities, loss of lif and property and return of the British troops.

Utter despair seems to prevail. "Even in a thousand years this country will be no better," one wealthy Loyalist said. "It's quiet now but that's just a lull before the storm. They'll always fight here. This country is cursed to be a subject of ridicule throughout the world."

Dublin is now enjoying a period of quietude it has not seen in years, waiting patiently for the election which is to be held in August. A poll of 25 random opinions as to the outcome of the elecion gives the Free State a slight edge with 14 to 11.

A Canadian walking along O'Connell (Sackville) street, the main thoroughfare, would hardly call Dublin a "health resort." Here and there are ruins of government buildings—bare, gray walls enclosing heaps of crumbled stone, twisted ironwork and debris.

Continuing along the street there are several private buildings totally wrecked while others show that they had been subjected to a fierce machine gun fire. Here and there are piles of sandbags that had been used for temporary fortifications.

Bridges, fences and buildings are decorated with such war crys as "The Republic still Lives," Women Fired on While Praying in Prison," and "Up, I.R.A., and Fight" Efforts have been made to eradicate these slogans with some success but the words "murder" and "fight" still remain.

Flags are conspicuous by their absence. The Free State standard flies over the Dail building, formerly the Royal Dublin Society. The orange, white and green can also be seen at the barracks. But not a single home, store or public place cares to fly the national emblem.

The streets are continually crowded with the green uniformed soldiers of the Free State army. Nearly everybody will admit that the soldiers are well behaved and no source of annoyance to civilians. Their youth is another feature, many being only 16 years old.

Canadians bump into old acquainance in Dublin—John Barleycorn. All the hotels have bars while saloons can be found in nearly every corner with one or two in between.

Yet there is very little drunkenness sin Dublin. Arrested on the streets for drunkenness would mean a minimum sentence of 30 days as no fines are imposed. A Republican selling liquor to a drunken man or selling him enough to get drunk is dealt with severely. In addition to losing his license forever, a prison sentence would be imposed. A dry movement in Ireland is hardly in embryo.

The Irish drink little water. Not one cafe will serve water unless asked. When a Canadian asked one waitress for water first, she immediately recognized him as an American.

"Ah," she exclaimed, "you come from Yankeeland, where they serve you water first!"

She explained that she had worked in a restaurant in Chicago.

There is a soda water fountain doing a thriving business while serving sundaes to the natives. It is operated by an Italian.

The few visitors that dare to go to Ireland are chiefly from the Unit-

PREPARE PLANS PUBLIC FUNERAL U. S. PRESIDENT

After Services in Capitol Body of Late President Harding Will Lie in State.

BURIED ON FRIDAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(Special).—As the Harding funeral train moved eastward to-day, President Coolidge devoted his attention to plans for fitting services here and prepared to carry on with the policies of the late chief executive.

Accompanied by his wife and several close friends, Mr Coolidge arrived in Washington, last night, from Plymouth, Vt., where shortly before dawn yesterday, he took the Pesidental oath of office in his father's modest home Going immediately to the Hotel suite which he and Mrs. Coolidge will occupy until they begin their residence in the White House, new president went into conference with Secretary Hughes, Postmaster General New and Senator Curtis, republican whip.

Later, it was announced that detailed funeral plans fitting in with the schedule worked out by members of the Harding party before its departure last night from San Francisco were being perfected. Arrangements subject to any changes desired by Mrs. Harding call for removal of Mr. Harding's body on its arrival here Tuseday afternoon, to the White House. There it will remain until Wednesday morning in the majestic east room, where private services may be held just before the body is taken to the Capitol Rotunda. for serivecs at 10 o'clock. Detachments of soldiers, sailors and marines will serve as an escort.

After services in the rotunda, the body of the dead president will lie in state and public will be permitted to file past the catafalque until six p.m. Wednesday At that hour the body will be removed to the train which leaving at seven p.m., will carry it to Marion, Ohio., for burial probably Friday.

Day of Mourning.

The first official act of President Coolidge as new executive of the proclamation announcing death of President Harding and calling upon death of the President. Premier Friday, August 10 as a day of mourning and prayer. On that day Mr. Harding's body is to be buried at Marion.

Cabled To While House.

Pope Pius cabled to-day to the White House condolences to Mrs. Harding and the American nation, on the deat of thePresident. Premier Mussolini and Senator Cremonzi, on behalf of Italy and the city of Rome respectively, also sent messages of sympathy.

Silent Tribute.

On board the Harding funeral train, Roseville, Cal., Aug. 4.—The sorrow in the hearts of the people of the United States over the death of their leader was exemplified today by silent groups along the railroad side as the special train bearing the body of Warren G. Harding traversed western California and the wide reaches of Nevada.

With bared reads they stood, sometimes in groups of hundreds, sometimes only a score and sometimes singly. It was the same from early morning on throughout the whole day It had been the same since the train left San Francisco at 7.15 last evening. It will be the same through out the three thousand mile journey to Washington and after that the trip to Marion, Ohio. The nation mourns as the saddest transcontenential journey in its history is being made.

A Memorial Service.

SCORCHING HEAT OVER PETERBORO COUNTY MEANS SERIOUS LOSS

Actual Fire Could Not Have Been Much Worse For Pastures Than Are the Steady, Withering Rays of the Sun—Oats and Peas Damaged.

POTATOES AFFECTED

If meadows and grain fields throughout this district had been put to the torch during the last three weeks the clouds of smarting smoke would be blowing in everybody's eye by day, and by night the countryside would be lit up with the extending circle of fire leaving a waste of ashes to shock the people with the evidence of incalculable loss.

That may be an exaggerated illustration of the disastrous effects of the dry, scorching weather that has hung over this county and its neighbouring municipalities for nearly a month, but—

The receipts of milk at the Peterboro Milk Products Company's plant are 10,000 pounds a day less than at this time a year ago, Mr. G. A. Gillespie told the Examiner, and the production of cheese by factories in this district has diminished by fifty per cent.

There is nothing left of the pastures," was Mr. Gillespies expression.

Actual fire could not have been much worse than the steady withering heat of the sun. Of course, there are patches of meadows where the cattle find places to graze, but generally speaking the pasturage has been burned up.

Not Worth Cutting.

"Late oats will not be worth cutting,' said Mr. R. Denne from his own observation and the reports of the many farmers with whom he is in constant touch. "The grain is ripening, but it hasn't headed up, and on most farms it won't amount to much.'

"Hay was a great crop and fall wheat was good around here,' Mr. Vincent Eastwood manager of the Royal Bank told the Examiner, "but Spring wheat, oats and peas will all be under averages. They ripened too speedily under the hot weather and without rain, and the crop has been shortened up. There is plenty of fodder from the clover, timothy and sweet clover but the Spring grains are a disappointment."

Mr Eastwood spoke conservatively of the outlook, and did not convey any impression of alarm at the turn the harvest has taken, but he and the Examiner's other informants realized that the farmers of this part of the province had suffered a heavy aggregate financial loss during July. There was no charred stuble to mark the ruins of much of the farmer's investment of labour and seed and his dairy herds, but there were seared meadows and ripened crops that mocked him with their emptiness and false show of fulness.

Farmers Disappointed.

Farmers who were interviewed expressed disappointment, but most of them were philosophical. An Enniskore man spoke in the spirit of surrender, as if he was ready to quit the farm with two neighbours whom he said were moving into town because they were simply going behind on the land. That was an extreme opinion of those heardi in places where farmers of the adjoining town ship do business locally.

There is no intention of holding up the dark side of the picture in piecing together the reports of the last few days. The hope of rain has been so long deferred of late that farmers are inclined to the mood of resignation as if conditions could not become more aggravataed under any conditions. but they all admit that immediate heavy showers will save some of the crops that are now hanging in the balance.

Potatoes Suffer.

Potatoes for instance are suffering under the continous drought, and mid-July. The killing heat rather affected. Some farmers declare that the late potatoes will be a failure, while others expect timely showers to revive them. But, undoubtedly farmers have only losses to count up instead of profits in that part of the harvest had not ripened before mid-July. The killing heat rather the lack of rain that would have balanced it in the proper adjustments of nature, has left a trail of loss over the parched lands virtually as really as if they had been swept by fire.

The torch would have made it spectacular with armies of men recruited to fight the flame, whereas the continuous sunshine has been perfect holiday weather at the crowded resorts.

Adopts Many

Dr. H. B Allen (wearing cap) of Sabt, Va., who has attracted attention because of his adoption of many young girls, is under arrest in Hollywood, Calif., on a Mann act charge sworn to in Pittsburg. Dr. Allen is the founder of a school for poor mountain boys and girls. Most of his adopted daughters are about 17 or 18 years old, officals say.

RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT SENT MESSAGE SYMPATHY

MOSCOW, Aug. 4. — (United Press).—Georges Tchitcherin, Soviet Foreign Minister, in a message of sympathy to Mrs. Harding and to America regarding the death of President Harding, cabled:

"The Russian Government wishes to express the respectful sympathy of the Russian people for the United States.

"Russia gratefully remembers that it was under President Harding's administration that America's great generosity came to the aid of Russia in our hour of need. The Russian people regret that the prevailing political condition preventing close Russian-American co-operation during President Hardong's administration."

GRANDSTAND IS MADE SAFE BUT COST IS HEAVY

Account for Repairs at Riverside Indicates the Extent of the Work that Had to Be Done.

A NEAR ACCIDENT

Grand stand repairs at Riverside Park have cost the city $2,239.16, according to the account received by the Finance committee from Mr. T. C. Ephgrave, who had charge of the work. Of that sum labour amounted to $1,133.13, of which $303.93 was for labourers and $829.20 went to carpenters.

The total was higher than the aldermen had expected, but it was recognized that the cost was increased by the new timbers and supports which had to be set into the foundation. The baseball fans are probably still unaware of the narrowly averted accident early in the season, which, had it materialized to the full extent, might have been attended with very serious results.

One of the big beams under the north stand cracked under the dead weight of a capacity crowd, and something less than a miracle prevented a complete collapse. It was found by City Engineer Parsons that the wood in the big square timbers had decayed to a punkiness that broke up under one's fingers. That experience was a lesson to the Parks committee who, with the consent of the Council, set out to make the stands safe for the public.

The improvements that have been under way are permanent, and if the cost has exceeded the committee's estimates there is a sort of counter-balancing satisfaction that there was no fatality and claims for personal damages which might have run into a large figure.

Ald. Crowe moved last night, seconded by Mayor Taylor, that Mr. Ephgrave be asked to furnish the committee with an itemized account of the cost of the work showing particularly the names of the workmen, their rates of pay and the time they were employed.

DELEGATES ON THE WAY TO THE ANNUAL SESSION

TORONTO, Aug. 4. — (Canadian Press). — Yesterday afternoon the delegates of the Cyzious Sanctorum No. 24, O.O.H. and P., Peterboro, Ont., passed through the city on their way to the annual session of the Supreme Orient of the Order, which will be held this year at Grand Rapids, Iowa, on August 9, 10 and 11.

On the resignation of Supreme Monarchos Emil N. Hufenus, Syracuse, N.Y., there will be a strong effort on the part of the Canadian delegates to install in the position John R. Watson, St. Catharines, present Supreme Khalifah, and the representatives from St. Catharines are rallying in full force to the standard of their townsman. Clarke Allen is Toronto's delegate. Over 2,200 members will receive the degree of Perfection at this convention, it is estimated.

LACKED QUORUM OF THE FINANCE

But Louis Yeotes Explained His Views on Appeal For Keduced Billard License.

Lacking a quorum last night, members of the Finance Committee jocosely suggested that Louis Yeotes be pressed into service.

"It might be a good idea," remarked Mr. Yeotes, who was seeking a further reduction in the city's license fee for billiard tables.

Ald. Stocker was entertaining a friend, Ald. Turner was busy at something else, and Ald. Meyers had just arrived in the city from Lindsay. He appeared to be the most accessible, and Mayor Taylor went after him in his car.

"The last time you gave us a reduction of five dollars on each table," said Mr. Yeotes, in presenting his appeal. "I pay $35 license to the city and $15 to the Ontario Government, making $50 license for each table. The reduction the Council gave us was much appreciated, but I got twenty tables, and have to pay $1,000 along with the taxes on the building, which is $900. I find it hard to pay that $1,000. Business is poor, and I'd be glad to have only ten tables. I closed down about half the building, but it takes some time to sell the tables."

City Clerk Armstrong explained later that Mr. Yeotes had taken the sides off eight tables which he was not using.

A license fee based on a sliding scale was proposed by Mr. Yeotes, but he said he was the only billiard room proprietor with more than ten tables. The next largest public place had seven tables. He did not ask for any stated reduction, but requested some relief. Incidentally he remarked that the "automobile game had killed the whole thing," presumably during summer.

Members of the committee wondered what the other billiard room proprietors would have to say about any reduction in the fee, and Aldermen Phelan and McIntyre remarked that the hotels should receive consideration in view of the free facilities they provided for the public.

While it was believed that the billiard tables in the hotels were generally for the accommodation of guests, Ald. Crowe suspected that gambling went on in some of the public pool-rooms.

Mayor Taylor said that Mr. Yeotes had been a good employer of labor, paid heavy taxes and spent his money in improving his premises. He moved, seconded by Ald. Meyers, that the license fee be $35 each for the first ten tables in any billiard room, and $20 each for all in excess of that number.

The motion carried, with Ald. Crowe opposing, and Ald. McIntyre not voting.

PLENTY FRUIT LOCAL MARKET THIS MORNING

TODAY'S PRICES

"What are those, daddy?" said a small, correct boy on the market this morning, pointing to the crate where six piebald pigs grunted in warm discomfort. Their checker-board hides were mottled black and white, from the Berkshire and Yorkshire strain which bred them, and they sold for $5.00 a-piece. Across the way, larger specimens of unmarked grey were $11.50 a pair.

There was plenty of produce on the farmers' market this morning, and much talk of dry weather. Small, wizened apples of the Duchess variety, selling for 30 cents a peck, were pointed to as examples of what the lack of rain is doing to the fruit crop. The apples are dropping from the trees, in small, half-grown quality. As one man expressed it, "there are cracks around the trees themselves where the ground lacks moisture."

Early harvest apples were 50 cents a peck.

Raspberries, red and blue and gold, were fairly plentiful, at 25 cents a box. Upstairs, there were wild red raspberries at the same price, or in palls, $1.50 for the 8-pound containers, $2.00 for the 11-pounders.

The sale of blueberries was brisk, with the product unequal to the demand, and the price 25 cents a quart.

Several dealers had honey, at 19 cents a pound, at $1.00 for a 5-pound pail, at 35 cents for a 2-pound glass jar.

Tomatoes were 20 cents a box, and new potatoes 50c and 60c a peck, in Irish Cobbler and pinkish Early Buckeye brands.

Scrubbed-looking carrots, beets and onions were a nickel a bunch, and small round white onions were 15c and 20c a quart. String beans were 10 cents a quart, and two small boys were selling celery at 15 cents a bunch.

Cucumbers were 5 and 8 cents apiece, the long "telegraph" seedless brand selling for 15, 20 and 25 cents.

Cabbage was 10 cents a head.

In the basket section, one woman had novelties—head lettuce at 15c, fragrant, fresh mint, parsley, sage, and summer savoury at 5 cents a bunch; enormous Windsor broad beans and the elongated pole bean, at two measures for a quarter.

The fish man had fresh white fish, "just this morning from the water," at 20 cents a pound.

There was much fowl on view this morning; hens and chickens of varying ages and sizes, from 25c to 35c a pound, and duck at 30c to 40c a pound.

Butter was 37c to 40c a pound, and eggs ranged from 23c to 28c a dozen.

Home-made lard was $1.10 for a 5½-pound tin.

There were plenty of floral notes this morning; Mixed bouquets at 35 cents, with delicate fern grass, red plume, petunias, zinnias, and feathered pinks in their make-up. Bouquets of pure white asters were 20 cents, pink gladioli were 5 cents a-piece, and there were dainty sweet peas and snapdragon, or antirrhinum, as the florists call them, in deep red and yellow velvets.

Two cheerful young men, broad grins on their pink plaster countenances, with red and black polls and minus feet on black-stockinged, thin legs, conversed amiably through the medium of a loquacious ventriloquist, who was selling red-flannel lumbago pads.

The auctioneer, bare-headed under the broiling sun, disposed of children's rubbers and men's print shirts, in a stray lot of odds and ends of clothing, and a vendor of collar buttons had an ingenious device by which he illustrated the claimed conversion of a blank piece of paper into a five-dollar bill.

The Hobo King of All Dogdom

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 4.—Introducing the hobo king of all dogdom—

He's a fluffy, six-year-old black mongrel of uncertain pedigree, answering to the name of "Nig."

Unlike the illustrious Jeff Davis, who reigns supreme among human gents of the road, "Nig" rides no blinds nor pods. He travels afoot and alone.

He's just back from a 600-mile jaunt that won him the crown in the land of canine tramps. He was gone for 20 months. Through the Ozark Mountains, across rivers, creeks and valleys, he hot-footed it summer and winter until he reached the trail's end.

And here's how it all came about: "Nig" accompanied his mistress, Mrs. A. G. Sharp of this city, and her family on an automobile tour to Denver in July, 1921. En route home, the party rested at Cedar Rapids, Kas. When time came to pull out of town, "Nig" failed to answer roll call.

A search of many hours failed to find the truant. So the Sharps came back to Columbus sorrowful and alone.

But ah! "Nig" followed 'em.

Meanwhile the Sharps had moved from the house in which they lived when "Nig" was with them. But "Nig" didn't know it. He went to the old place and found others there. Then an idea soaked through his canine brain.

He would go over to the nearby schoolhouse. Some boys surely would recognize him and lead him home. And his hunch was right.

How did he do it? You'll have to ask him.

But there's one thing certain. "Nig" won't hit the open again. He's satisfied with a nice juicy bone and a nice shady nook under the old cherry tree now.

You've got as much chance of enticing him to answer the call of the wild as you have of trapping elephants on Broadway.

COST OF LIVING RAISING IN WORD.

Indicated By Statistics On Wholesale Prices.

(By HENRY WOOD)

GENEVA, Aug 4. (United Press) The world is facing another general increase in the cost of living.

This, at least, is indicated by the latest worldwide statistics just received by the International Labor bureau on wholesale prices.

Up until a month ago, wholesale prices the world over were showing a marked tendency to stabilize. During the past month, however, for reasons that have not yet been clearly established, this tendency towards stabilization has turned into a steadily upward movement.

Only one country in the entire world, namely, France, has been able to report for the past month a decrease in wholesale prices.

Since the close of the war and the organization of the International Labor Bureau, the latter's statistical department has been able to demonstrate that the first percursor of an increase in the most of living is a rise in wholesale prices, and in a short time a general increase is reflected in the entire cost of living.

World-Wide Movement

Countries which have reported during the past month an increase in their wholesale index numbers, as compared with a previous tendency towards stabilization, are the United States, Great Britain, Germany, Belgium, Denmark, Italy, Norway, Holland, Poland, Sweden, Switzerland, China and Japan. In other words, the tendency is essentially world-wide.

In France, the only country in the world to report an actual downward tendency in wholesale prices for the past month, this phenomenon is believed to be due mrerely to the fact that wholesale prices there had been steadily increasing ever since February, 1922, and had probably reached a point considerably above that of other countries.

France was able to report not only a fall of 9 pounds in her wholesale index number, but also a fall of 1 point in her retail price.

On the other hand, in Czecho-Slovakia, where wholesale prices had been falling steadily since the beginning of 1922 till the beginning of 1923, when they participated in the general worldwide tendency towards stabilization, the index number there has turned towards an increase as in all of the other countries except France.

Owing to the fact that a certain period of time must elapse after an increase in wholesale prices before the latter is reflected in retail prices and the cost of living generally, the statistics for the past month have not as yet shown any serious change in the retail prices. This, it is declared, however, is inevitable and it is expected that next month's world-wide reports will begin to see last month's increase in wholesale prices reflected in the retail price of things and the cost of living generally.

More harvesters than ever will be needed this year in Western Canada on account of the bumper crop. Special trains will be run by the Canadian Pacific Railway, which is advertising the usual low rate of $15 to Winnipeg, plus a half-cent per mile beyond to destination in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Returning the fare will be $20 from Winnipeg, plus a half-cent per mile from starting point. Going dates are August 13, 15, 22 and 24, according to the territory in Ontario. On the lunch cars food and refreshments may be obtained at reasonable prices. Special cars will be provided for ladies, children (full fare) and their escorts. First special train will leave Toronto on each date at 10.00 a.m., and last special at 10.30 p.m. on each date.

Full information may be secured from any Canadian Pacific ticket office.

WASHINGTON AWAITS IN SORROW ARRIVAL OF DEPARTED LEADER

Plans For Funeral of the Late President Have Not Been Completed—President Coolidge in Washington.

ALL IN MOURNING.

WASHINGTON, Aug .—(Canadian Press).— The grief- stricken capital of the United States prepared yesterday both to receive it, dead and to welcome into authority a new Chief of State. Even before the departure from San Francisco of the funeral train, arrangements had taken form here for such a ceremony as will express in brimming measure a nation's tribute to the kindly gentle leadership of its fallen chieftain.

At the same time, official Washington rendered its allegiance to President Coolidge, who has come into the chief magistracy of his country in the vigorous prime of a public life already made notable by executive achievements.

The whole transition was made quietly and without flurry or confusion. None of the pomp and circumstance which usually welcome in-coming presidents to Washington awaited Mr. Coolidge on his arrival late last night to take up his new responsibilities and except for the solemn demeanor of officials and the sorrowful faces of the little groups which gathered in front of the bulletin boards to read of the tragedy enacted on the Pacific Coast, there was little to indicate that one president had passed and another was coming in.

Throughout the day, Secretary Hughes, as ranking Government representative in the Capital, devoted himself almost entirely to preparation of funeral plans and data on urgent matters of state to be laid before the new president upon his arrival. The conference between them was arranged to take place at the New Willard Hotel, where Mr Coolidge has lived as Vice-president, and where he will maintain his residence and lay out the groundwork of his executive work while the executive offices at the White House are being put in order for him.

Because of repairs in progress there, and in deference to Mrs. Harding, it will be several days before the President and the new First Lady of the Land take charge of the Executive Mansion.

One of the subjects to be discussed between Mr. Coolidge and Secretary Hughes was the detailed program for the State funeral of Mr. Harding, but the plans had not reached a stage last night where they were ready for announcement.

Until the body of the departed President has been consigned to the soil of the State which gave him to the nation, it is probable that little will be done toward the shaping of public policies by his successor. By retaining in office all the present members of the Cabinet, Mr. Coolidge has not only left in operation the necessary machinery to carry on the work of the Government, but has contributed to the complete stability of a Governmental organism which might otherwise have functioned but poorly under the stress of the emergency.

DESIGN AERIAL RAMS TO DEMOLISH ENEMY PLANES

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(Associated Press). — Heavily-armored, steel-prowed battering rams, for use in the leviathan airships now being designed, are being constructed secretly by British aircraft experts, says the Daily Chronicle's aeronautical correspondent. These new terrors of the air will be launched at an immense height from the mother-airships and will rush down, guided by a solitary man sitting protected within their hulls, ready to strike hostile airships or bombing planes.

"Without guns or any weapon save a knife-like, cutting bow," says the writer, "the pilot of the 'ram' will seek as his quarry the big, slow-flying troop-planes or transports, or he will swerve in deadly attack toward a hostile battleship of the air. Before he strikes his blow he will have the power, by operating interior mechanism, of drawing in his telescopic, metal wings. Then, with a fearful final plunge, like a great projectile, he will steer, not at the hull of the craft he seeks to cripple, but at vulnerable wings or control surfaces. Through these he will cut and rip his way, and the great craft he has rammed, stricken and put out of control, will reel earthward to destruction."

The writer then says the "air ram" will extend its wings again and check its pell-mell descent. The pilot will be able, after starting a powerful interior engine, to bring into action previously-shielded air-screws, and by aid of these he will steal upward, regaining his mother airship and then prepare for another devastating dive.

STEAMER SUNK.

LONDON, August 4 (Canadian Press). — A Lloyd's despatch from Naples reports the Italian steamer Maria M. was sunk yesterday through a collision with the steamer Napoli in the Bay of Naples.

The Napoli proceeded on her way. Although the Lloyd's message makes no mention of the fate of the Maria's crew, other advices say only one man was drowned.

Canadian Cars Had U.S. License Plates.

Citizens of Hamilton counted scores of American license plates on cars in their streets and complimented themselves on the number of United States tourists the city was attracting. Then they found that the "tourists" were Hamilton citizens.

A number of motorists from Hamilton toured through the United States this summer, and at certain points were compelled to display American license plates. On their return to Canada they left these plates on their cars. The ordinance recognizing American plates in Canada does not extend to Canadian motorists returning from a trip in the United States, and the offending motorists are now being hailed into court.

WEEKLY REPORT OF TRADE ASSN.

Business Conditions in Canada Continue to Show An Improvement.

WINNIPEG Aug. 4.— (Canadian Press).—The report of the Canadian Creditmen's Trust Association, Limited, states:

Halifax—Wholesale trade generally fair. Retail trade showing some improvement over previous weeks. Collections fair.

St. John—Wholesalers find immediate business at the present time somewhat quiet but generally there appears to be a hopeful feeling and the volume of trade secured compares favorable with last year. Retailers are advertising sales for clearing up of summer stocks. Collections fairly good, some evident improvement.

Montreal— Wholesalers conditions generally show slightly improved conditions but collections leave much to be desired Retailers report sales good but not up to previous week but seem optimistic as to the future.

Toronto—Wholesale conditions remain the same as reported last week. Retail trade still holding steady. Collections only fair.

Winnipeg—Wholesale trade holding its own though improvement hoped for in the near future. Retail conditions quiet. Collections slow.

Regina—Wholesale trade generally steady. Retail trade just fair. Collections slow.

Saskatoon—Wholesale trade fair, which is a reflection of retail conditions. Collections poor.

Calgary—Wholesale conditions still leave much to be desired. Refail business fair. Collections slow to fair.

Vancouver— Wholesale hardware, dry goods and grocery report business fair. Boots and shoes improvement Retail hardware very poor dry goods and grocery fair. Retail boots and shoes also feel slight improvement. Collections fair to poor.

VOLSTEAD LAW MAY BE 1923 ISSUE IN MICHIGAN

DETROIT, Aug. 4.—(Associated Press).—Only the decision of Senator James Couzens not to seek re-election next year can halt the gaining momentum of the Volstead law as an issue in Michigan's 1923 campaigns, according to opinion among political leaders and wet and dry advocates. Divisions of the latter already are in the field.

Senator Couzens declared for enforcement of the Volstead law, but also for modification of its interpretation of intoxicating liquor. He holds that beer of less than five per cent. alcoholic content is not necessarily intoxicating.

The declaration resulted in a controversy between the Senator and national officials of the Anti-Saloon League, and the State Anti-Saloon League announced its intention of going out to "beat Couzens." The organization hopes to do it either by supporting one of the avowed candidates who is considered dry, or by putting its own candidate into the race, it is indicated in present activities.

Dry leaders assert that prohibition sentiment is stronger in Michigan now than it was in 1916, when an amendment to the State constitution placing Michigan in the dry column was adopted 353,378 to 284,754. Wet proponents counter with the assertion that the rapid growth of industrial communities has stored up an immense volume of votes favoring repeal of the dry laws. The drys claim that the farmer communities and the larger counties, previously dry, will stay dry. The wets reply that a few precincts in Detroit or the other industrial centres will poll more votes than entire out-state counties, and that if Senator Couzens decides to run he will sweep Detroit and other manufacturing communities.

Luren D. Dickinson, former Lieutenant-Governor and an active dry worker, issued a warning to his forces that the issue must be met in the primary.

Lord Byng Has Sent Message of Sympathy.

OTTAWA, August 4 (Canadian Press). — Lord Byng of Vimy, the GovernorGeneral of Canada, sent the following message of condolence to Mrs. Warren G. Harding yesterday:

"Please accept the deepest sympathy of myself and Lady Byng in the sad loss of your husband, President Harding."

It was announced last night that the Canadian Government was sending President Calvin Coolidge, through the usual diplomatic channel a formal message of condolence in the Republic's loss of its Chief Executive.

OHIO GOVERNOR SENDS MESSAGE OF SYMPATHY

Summer Visitor at Coboconk Moved By the Death of President Harding.

COBOCONK, Aug. 4.—Governor Vic Donahey of Ohio has become weary of reporters, interviews and telephone calls since his arrival here with an entourage including two convict trustees from the State prison who are accompanying him as chauffeur and cook. He has answered so many calls and reporters' queries that his genial temper was beginning to wear thin this morning, and he started up to Mud Turtle Lake to get away from the interrogators and forget them in a day's fishing.

The Governor was deeply moved by the news of the sudden death of President Harding, expressed his regret to the newspaper men who are here, and prepared a message of condolence to be forwarded to Mrs. Harding.

"President Harding was one of the most democratic men who have ever been in charge of the nation's affairs. He was a man of the people, who had risen from the ranks, unassuming and easily approachable. He was esteemed and respected by all classes and his death will have an important effect on the political situation in the United States. The people will greatly sympathize with Mrs. Harding in her bereavement."

OTTAWA, Aug. 4. — (Canadian Press.)—Announcement is made by the Civil Service Commission in the Canada Gazette of competitive examination for the post of Agricultural Produce Marketing Agent at an annual salary of $5,040. The appointee to this position will be located in England and will be given a living allowance of $100 a month.

GURRD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea, and dysentery, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to banish them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EXTREME GRAVITY OF THE RUHR SITUATION IS APPARENT TO ALL

London Papers Unanimous in Pointing to the Approaching Crisis Over Reparations Problems.

DIVERGENT VIEWS.

LONDON, Aug. 4. — (Canadian Press).—The extreme gravity of the Rhur crisis as revealed by Thursday's ministerial statements in parliament is emphasied in all the comment appearing yesterday in the London papers, but the unanimity does not go beyond this and the attitude of the various papers towards the Government declarations differs widely.

The Lloyd Georgian Daily Chronicle and the Socialist Herald scoff at a cabinet having no policy and say that the country cannot afford to drift at such a tragic moment.

The moderate Liberal Westminster Gazette approves the Government's decision to appeal to public opinion in this country and abroad as the first essential step towards working out a definite British policy for the salvaging of Europe." It say that the decision must be quickly followed up and that the Governement ought not to be satisfied to remain for many hours in ignorance of its own intentions.

The moderate Conservative Daily Telegraph infers from Mr. Baldwins speech that he is determined not to allow the crisis to drift longer and that the Cabinet regards the negotiations with France ended, and is determined "to appeal from the French Government to the fair and dispassionate judgement of the western nations."

The Premier and Lloyd Curzon are, in fact, invoking the aid of publicity to solve a problem that baffles the diplomatists, the newspaper adds:

Continuing, the Daily Telegraph hopes such a vigorous expression of opinion will be elicited as to change the policy of France." The resources of civilization are not exhausted, and with or without France, the Government must go forward in an effort to foster the peace of Europe," it says.

The Moring Post, as the leading Conservative organ tries to reconcil, its loyalty to the partys leaders with its pro-France advocacy. It regrets that "at this moment Great Britain is more divided from France than at any time since the conclusion of the Entente."

The newspaper attributes this to to David Lloyd Georges "blunders," because of which the British Government "now is in a helpless and almost humiliating position.

Thursday's statement, the newspapers declares, will convince the country there is no alternative to a policy of co-operation with France, "or the alternative is so dreadful that it cannot be contemplated." It finds however, consolation in Mr. Baldwins steady, honest goodwill toward France and sees indications to the winds. Its attitude verges ward acquiescence of the French policy.

The Daily Mail, which is an unwavering champion of France, says the British Government's statement was a great disappointment. "The policy announced yesterday," it asserts, "is a complete revolution, a complete departure from Premier Bonar Laws policy. The Governmen seems to have thrown prudence that the next step will be a step o dangerously near sympathy and encouragement for Germany.x xx The Government made a rash movement from which it would be wise to withdraw with all possible speed and good grace."

The Times contends that the very fact that a statement was made constitutes a new and very definite step forward and applauds the Government accordingly.

"The Governments explanation," says the Times "must serve to support British initiative and effect profoundly the course of any future negotiations."

The newspaper entertains the hope that "the statement and the strong movement of opinion they must provoke will be an imporant factor in promoting an ultimate settlement."

The Daily Express describes the statements of the British Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary as "a confession of sheer impotence."

Will Not Attend Resources Conference.

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 4. — (Canadian Press.)—Premier Greenfield has cancelled his Ottawa trip and has wired Hon. Mackenzie King that he will be unable to attend the Natural Resources Conference as expected. This will mean that so far as Alberta is concerned, the resources question cannot be taken up again until November, the Prime Minister and several members of the cabinet having in the meantime to attend the Imperial Conference in London.

The reason for the change in plans is that developments in connection with the wheat pooling scheme are now heading up in such a way as to require Premier Greenshield's presence at home. He had already asked for a few days' postponement of the Ottawa meeting but in view of the urgency of the marketing situation he has decided to cancel the engagement entirely, leaving the further discussion of the natural resources until fall.

Veterans Say Changes Made in Pensions Bill.

OTTAWA, Aug. 4. — (Canadian Press.)—A petition was forwarded to the Prime Minster yesterday by the Dominion Veterans' Alliance asking for the enactment by order-in-council of certain sections of the Pensions Act, which it is asserted, have been deleted without authority of parliament. An investigation is urged "into the mysterious circumstances surrounding the disappearance of these sections from the copy of the bill as it passed from the Senate to the House of Commons," on the last day of the session.

There has been wonderful weather for the 1923 camp of Rotary. The most popular forms of activity have been those which are a complete change from life in the city. Swimming and paddling have taken first place in the affections of the boys.

Donald Weir of Central Y.M.C.A. Toronto, and of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew Camp at Lake Simcoe, is eminently qualified as instructor in swimming and life-saving. His work has added interest to these branches of camp life and the boys will be far better qualified in these two important lines of acquatics as a result of his presence and work.

One of the features of the camp so far has been the canoe race between the two ends of the bunkhouse. West end camp crew has been captained by Happy O'Toole, and East end camp crew by Harold Kennedy. The first three mornings West end brought home the bacon, but Thursday morning East enders had their revenge by nosing in half a length ahead.

The early morning routine has been decidely popular. Physical exercises followed by an early morning dip begin the day, and during the latter feature the canoe race takes place with crews of five boys each from the two camps. Adjournment to the breakfast table is made with the keenest of all hearty, boyish appetites.

COMMUNISTS SEIZE MINE.

DRESDEN, Aug. 4.— (Canadian Press.)— Four thousand Communists yesterday took advantage of the miners' strike and seized the United States coal mine near Swickan, Saxony, and propose to operate the mine. The police were called but the last reports were that the Communists were in full possession of the property.

Princess Olga Will Marry Serbian Prince.

LONDON, August 4 (Canadian Press). — Arrangements have been made, according to a Belgrade, Jugo-Slavia, despatch, for the marriage of Prince Paul of Serbia and Princess Olga, eldest daughter of Prince Nicholas of Greece.

Prince Paul is a first cousin of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia. He is 30 years of age. Princess Olga, whose father is a brother of the Greek king, George, was betrothed early in 1922 to Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark, but in September it was officially announced that by mutual agreement they had annulled their engagement. The Princess is twenty years old.

WHAT IS MEANT BY CONVICT TRUSTIES

A System of Rehabilitation Which Explains Governor Donahey's Attitude.

COBOCONK, Aug. 4.—At attitude of Governor Donahey and Warden Thomas of Ohio toward the two convict trustees they have brought with them here is explained a follows: There are fifty or more prisoners serving life terms in Ohio Penitentiary. Many of these fifty "lifers" are young men who shed blood and took human life under provocation. Zipriani shot and killed a street car conductor in the course of a scrap after the conductor had short-changed him. Jennings killed a man in a pool-room brawl; killed by wielding a cue or some similar weapon.

Believing that even a man who takes human life is not beyond social redemption, Warden Thomas some years ago instituted a sort of rehabilitation system in the Penitentiary. Young prisoners are sorted out from among the old; promising prisoners are segregated from the incorrigibles. Gradually these men are put on a "....." list, permitted to work outside the prison wall, and given, in some instances, responsible positions. Finally, if they make good, the Governor grants a full pardon. In his six months' term of office he has signed sixteen pardons. He signed one for Jennings before the party left Ohio; but it hasn't gone into effect yet. Zirpiani's pardon is in the offing.

"We have lots and lots of lifers working out there," said the Warden. "When you ride over a certain Ohio railway you ride under a second degree man who has been pardoned."

"Put boys into a cell and they become hardened criminals, anarchists," said the Governor. "I was interested in this work before I became Governor. We can't go on filling our institutions with boys, and throwing them in with hardened criminals. The Warden is segregating them. Give these young fellows a chance, and in a surprising number of instances they 'make good.' We trust them and they trust us. My daughter, Margaret, aged 25, is at home now, at the executive mansion, with a gardener and a houseman who are both lifers. The only other person in the house is a housekeeper. We don't pick the men who can't be made over. The story that one of these men who are with me is a first degree man is absolutely false. First degree murderers are electrocuted in Ohio."

RAILWAY EARNINGS.

MONTREAL, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press.)— The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the week ending July 31 were $6,877,280, being an increase of $769,614 or 13 per cent. as compared with the corresponding period of 1922.

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways from January 1, 1923, to July 31, have been $137,786,896.00, being an increase of $15,877,541 18 as compared with the corresponding period of 1922.

DEATH OF HARDING IS A SAD BEREAVEMENT FOR WHOLE WORLD

U.S. Army and Navy to Honor the Dead.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—The Army and Navy of the United Sttaes to-day will honor their dead Commander-in-Chief.

On every ship and at every shore station and at every fort and every army post throughout the country guns will boom forth a salute and all flags will be at half mast, thus to remain until after the funeral. In addition, a period of mourning for thirty days will be observed.

Orders to rthe honors were sent forward yesterday by the acting heads of the War and Navy Departments.

At the forts and army posts a salute of 13 guns will be fired at daybreak and thereafter there will be single shots at half hour intervals until sundown, when a salute of 48 guns will be fired.

Livingstone Admits Signature on Letter.

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press.)— At the preliminary examination yesterday of J. B. McLachlan and Dan Livingstone, former officers of District 26 of the United Mine Workers of America, Mr. McLachlan stated he had signed the original of the circular letter which had been sent to the thirty-five local unions of the district.

It was in connection with this circular that the two officers were arrested on charges of "publishing false tales." The cases were continued until August 16 and the bail of the two men renewed at $1,000.

Passing of U. S. Chief Executive May Have a Serious Effect on the Political Crisis in Europe.

LONDON IN MOURNING

LONDON, August 4 (Canadian Press). — President Harding's death comes to the people of Great Britain much as would a personal bereavement. The ties of blood between the two great English-speaking peoples have evidenced themselves in a universal expression of sorrow in the United Kingdom over the passing of one who to-day is given the place almost of a beloved native son. One of the earliest indications of this feeling was an order from Buckingham Palace for the rare tribute of a week's observation of mourning by the Court for the late President.

At the same time King George and Premier Baldwin despatched messages of condolence to Mrs. Harding, while Lord Curzon, the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, expressed the national sympathy in a despatch to Washington.

Grave international affairs have been submerged for the moment in the tragic story from San Francisco, and the press to-day is devoting column upon column to the sorrowful news.

Word of his sudden death was flashed into the British Capital at 4.59 o'clock yesterday morning. The city was deep in sleep, but within a few moments the news was spreading rapidly over the telephones to all parts of the Metropolis and was being sent by telegraph throughout the country.

To British officialdom, one of the disappointing effects of President Harding's on international politics, is the probable delay in mobilising word opinion with regard to the Ruhr and the final reparation settlement with Germany.

One of the most important results of Thursday's six-hour debate in the House of Commons was expected to be an immediate reaction from the Allied countries and the United

WHY NOT CANADA?

Stories of the arrival at Montreal of liners carrying some 2000 Scotch immigrants en route to the United States, makes sorry reading for Canadians.

These splendid Britishers, most of them expert mechanics, are being lost to the Empire, when there should be a place for them in Canada.

The majority of the party would undoubtedly have preferred to remain under the Union Jack, yet they had been given the impression that there was nothing for them in Canada, and that their only chance to get ahead was to take up residence in the United States.

Why should there be nothing here for such fine types as these workers from the land o' cakes?

What is the matter with Canada that Britishers must pass through to the neighboring republic instead of remaining in this country, and help develop the resources of the Dominion?

And what are our immigration officials doing that the flow of new citizens is steadily towards the United States, rather than to Canada?

These are questions that no doubt have suggested themselves to everybody who read of the arrival of the party at Montreal.

They call for an answer from Ottawa.

PUNISHING SPEEDERS.

If the method used to punish speeders and reckless motorists in River Rouge, Mich., was to be established in Peterboro, it is fancied that wild driving would shortly come to an end.

The River Rouge driver who is found guilty of reckless handling of his car does not escape with a nominal fine, as do so many offenders elsewhere—he is given a jail sentence, and he serves it in a manner that is not only a lesson to himself, but is a very forcible warning for other speeders.

He is fitted with a jail costume, with the words "City Prisoner No. ——" emblazoned on the back, and he is sent out to work on the city streets, a course of punishment that may seem drastic but that surely cannot fail to have a lasting impression upon the mind of the offender.

By the time the unlucky motorist has spent two weeks as a street cleaner or laborer, he has doubtless realized that yielding to the temptation to "step on the gas" is a profitless action that may result in an accident, and at the least is liable to give the erring driver an uncomfortable and embarrassing amount of labour and publicity.

Since the introduction of this novel form of punishment it is claimed that traffic conditions in the district are not giving nearly as much trouble.

The cure seems to be thoroughly effective.

THE WONDER OF THE RADIO.

It is doubtful whether in the history of the world the intelligence of the death of a great personage ever spread so rapidly before as did the news of the passing of President Harding circulate over this Continent on Thursday night.

The radio, that wonder of the age which we, case-hardened to the miracles of modern science, accept as an every-day common-place, filled the air with the message that the chief executive of the United States had suddenly collapsed and died.

Within a few minutes of the end broadcasting stations were hurling the news through space, and "listeners in" all over the United States and Canada knew that the President was no more.

In Peterborough radio enthusiasts, entranced with the strains of music played by famous orchestras in the larger American cities, heard the music suddenly falter and stop, and then came the tragic message that Mr. Harding had just died.

Similarly, in city and country, in the summer cottage on lake or river, on steamers on the Great Lakes and ships at sea, everywhere where a listener sat at a receiving set the news of the death of the President spread, until within a few brief minutes every State in the Union and every Province in Canada doubtless knew that the end had come.

The efficiency of radio as a dispenser of information has never been more convincingly demonstrated.

SCHOOLS OF INDUSTRY.

Quebec has suffered much at times from short-sighted criticism on the part of other Provinces of this Dominion. But in one direction at any rate the Administration of this Province can claim to have given a lead to the rest of Canada—that is, in the establishment of Schools of Industry, says the Montreal Star. Last session the Government set aside an appropriation for the inauguration of a pulp and paper school, at which technical instruction in the principal industry of the Province would be provided for the youth who will be the mainstay of that industry during the next generation. An order-in-Council now gives practical effect to the scheme by authorizing preliminary steps, in the shape of the establishment of this school as an annex to the technical school at Three Rivers. This has been arranged so that the first Government organization for the instruction of the working man in a technical industry may be started at the headquarters of that industry. The employes working at the big mills in and around Three Rivers will be able to attend the courses in pulp and paper making at night and continue their ordinary work by day.

At the same time the forest rangers' school will be opened at Berthierville during the first week in September. Thus throughout the winter months there will be in operation two active centres of instruction where scientific education in the art of making paper, from beginning to end, and the work of safeguarding the forests against fires will be continued under qualified experts. The Province has never planned any expenditure better calculated to justify itself in the eyes of the public. The pulpwood industry is our greatest Provincial asset, and forest fires are our greatest Provincial menace.

AN IMPORTANT POSITION.

Hon. G. H. Ferguson has given the people of the Province some new information as to the duties to be performed by the financial controller to be appointed soon by the Government.

Apparently the position is to be even more important than was at first anticipated by the public, for it is now announced that the Treasury Department is to be thoroughly re-organized by the new controller.

The gradual increase in revenue through various departments of the Crown, some of which are practically new, such as the Motion Picture Department and the Provincial Savings Banks, makes a re-organization necessary to bring the department into a closer unit, is the explanation offered by the Premier.

The controller of finance will have an administrative post rather than act in a merely advisory capacity to guide the Province in its financial transactions.

With such important duties entrusted to his care, it is obvious that the Government should endeavour to secure the services of the best possible man for this new and onerous position.

The right man given such powers as are outlined and allowed to operate without political interference—if that condition be possible—should be a decided asset to the Province, and save the people of Ontario a sum many times greater than his salary each year.

It would be good business to provide remuneration large enough to attract a qualified financial expert.

No salary in reason would be too large for the man who could properly fill the position, and until such a man can be found the Government would be well advised to leave the controllership open.

NO. 10 DOWNING STREET.

"The British Cabinet resumed its sessions this morning in Downing Street with the prospect that the proceedings would develop into one of the most important conferences of British Ministers since the war."—Canadian Press Cable.

The picture which this despatch brings to mind is one of imposing marble halls, stately architecture, and luxurious chambers, with solemn-garbed statesmen meeting in an atmosphere of gravity. Yet how different the actuality. For Downing Street—named after Sir George Downing, famous English soldier and diplomatist of the 17th century—is a short, narrow, unpretentious street, leading off Whitehall, and suggesting anything but pomp or power. Its buildings are old, unostentatious, smoke-begrimed, and shabby; nothing outwardly to suggest that it has been the theatre of some of the greatest events and greatest tragedies of English history.

No. 10, where yesterday's conference was held, was a gift of George II. to Walpole, in 1735. It was given as a home for the First Lord of the Treasury, a post always held by the Prime Minister, and for 188 years has been the official residence of British Premiers and the meeting place of the Cabinet. The building is an unimpressive one, without architectural distinction of any sort, and, for all its outward appearance suggests, might be the residence of a briefless barrister.

Nor is the Cabinet meeting chamber of imposing grandeur. It is a room of small dimensions, little larger than the Canadian Privy Council Chamber, and with only paintings of great figures in British political history upon the walls to reveal its significance. Its square paned back windows look out upon, and little old-fashioned swinging doors divided half way up lead to a typical, well-kept English garden, and there, with tea, as often as inside the chamber itself, the Cabinet takes momentous decisions. "The trouble with this Government," said Lord Gladstone last November, "is that the Foreign Office has been transferred to Mr. George's garden." Mr. George is gone; but it is not unlikely that the British Ministers who met at 10 Downing Street yesterday reached their conclusions, if it was warm as in Ottawa, not around the long table of the Council Chamber, but out in that English garden, with its English roses, its abundant geraniums, and its songs of English birds.

To the visitor, such a place is viewed only with awe and reverence. For one feels instinctively that within its walls lies a world of history. There, throughout generations, decisions have been taken that altered human destiny. There Pitt took the resolves which achieved the downfall of Napoleon. There Melbourne served the pretty young lady on the Throne. There Palmerston laid down the doctrine that a British subject everywhere ought to be protected by the strong arm of the British Government against injustice and wrong. There Disraeli worked his mighty schemes for his Queen and for the Empire. There Gladstone, with Morley and Harcourt, and other giants of their day, raised the banner of Home Rule. There Campbell-Bannerman took his noble decision to give freedom to South Africa. There, on the fateful night of August third, Asquith and Grey and Churchill sat and heard the clock tick in the greatest war in history. There Lloyd George met Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins and brought peace at last with Ireland.

And so 10 Downing Street stands a place of tradition and romance. It is a building of architectural faults and old furniture, but they seem of great nobility. For they stand as the symbol of a real miracle, a mixture of ramshackleness and greatness. There has been developed a system of Government which bears witness to the extraordinary nature of the human soul, and the hopefulness and the prospects that are before human society. There again and again ministries have gathered in all honesty, have matured to power, have fallen into corruption, have miraculously reassembled again, strong with the honesty of a new generation and a new movement. There, lastly, men of all sorts who seemed utterly selfish and corrupt have to an extraordinary extent, the most cynical interpretation of history cannot dispute, showed that they cared much for the common good.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The new President of the United States has never owned an automobile. He should be popular with pedestrians.

Governor Donahey declares that the agitation aroused by his bringing two convicted murderers to camp with him in Ontario is "political bunk" stirred up by his opponents. Ontario people care nothing about the political end of the matter, however, but merely wonder at the Governor's lack of good taste.

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, August 4. — Trade at the cattle markets continues dull, though perhaps not more so than usual during the height of the summer season, except that complaints as to quality of cattle shipped in have during this week been more general than in former seasons. The market has, in fact, been overloaded with far too heavy a proportion of plain rough quality cattle which have been hard to place.

There is an insistent demand for good quality butcher cattle, while many of the class of cattle offering are neglected and apparently not wanted by would-be buyers at any price. The result has been a large holdover of common cattle hanging round the market all week, with still many of these still unsold, and holding over the week-end and the holiday on Monday, when there will be no market.

In the opening market on Monday last there was a demand for heavy cattle of export quality which afforded an outlet for about 300 steers. After this there was practically no further demand for this class of cattle for the export trade. The best heavy steers sold from $7.25 to $7.75, with a few extra choice at $8.00.

In the butcher section there was a fair steady market for choice quality steers and heifers at from $6.75 to $7.00; a few extra choice lots, including good weighty steers around 1,200 pounds, and of export quality, but taken for the domestic butcher trade, up to $7.25 to $7.65, but only one or two loads at the latter figure.

Some buyers claimed all through the week that they were in the market for real good butcher cattle at steady prices as quoted. The sellers on the other hand claimed that for even good loads of very fair quality butcher cattle it was very difficult to get anything like decent bids. All agreed, however, that in Thursday's market there was not a full load of real good butcher offering. For the common cattle prices weakened, and at the week-end close were from 15c to 25c lower.

The week's receipts included about 2,000 Western cattle, mostly of the stocker class. The lower prices proved attractive for a few buyers, and a good number of the Western stockers were cleared out at from $3.50 up to $5.00 for fair good feeders around 800 to 900 pounds.

There should be a market for heavy export steers in Tuesday's opening market next week, as a limited amount of boat space will be available.

The calf market has held steady for choice veal at from $10.00 to $11.00, and medium around $8.00 to $8.50.

The lamb market opened steady to form, but weakened at the close, going off to $12.00 and $12.75 for choicest tops.

Hog market held steady to firm, with a good demand from outside buyers, who secured most of the hogs in Wednesday's and Thursday's markets at about 25c higher than local packers' bids, outsiders paying on basis of $8.50 f.o.b.

Receipts.

Union Stock Yards receipts for the week were:

451 cars—7,505 cattle, 2,173 calves, 5,555 hogs, 4,122 sheep, and 17 horses.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press.)— Receipts 620 cattle and calves, 375 hogs and seven sheep.

With the offerings generally of a plain variety, trading on the cattle market continued inactive here yesterday. There was a fair demand for the limited supply of decent killing stock. Prices were steady to slightly lower.

The hog market strengthened 25 cents over the close of yesterday, thick smooths weighing up at $9.00 and select bacon at $9.30.

The sheep and lamb market was inactive.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Aug. 4.—The trade in cash grain in the local market was dull yesterday. A moderate business was reported in flour for domestic and country account with prices unchanged. A very firm feeling preavils in the millfeed market, but there is no improvement in the demand for rolled oats. The condition of the baled hay market was unchanged. There is nothing new in the egg situation. The tone of the potato market remains firm. Prices for butter were down 1-4 cent per pound. The cheese market was steady.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, Aug. 4.—A very regrettable accident happened on the Biglow farm on the Provincial highway west, on Wednesday. A young man named Burley had both arms accidentally fractured. His home was in Port Hope.

Civic Holiday, Aug. 6.

Mayor Boggs of this town has proclaimed Monday next, August 6, as Civic Holiday here. The holiday was observed last year at practically the same time.

Boys Made Restitution.

Two Cobourg boys came up before Col. W. H. Floyd, Police Magistrate, charged with breaking into some cars at the down-town freight sheds. They have made restitution, and were handed over to the supervision of Dr. Daley, Counties Children's Aid Superintendent.

Had Enjoyable Outing.

On Wednesday afternoon the congregation and Sunday School of the Cobourg Baptist Church motored down to Richardson's Point, where they passed the afternoon very enjoyably. The gathering was all the more pleasant as it afforded the members of the church an opportunity to meet their new pastor, Rev. John M. Morton, and his family socially. There were sports of all kinds, for which desirable prizes were given. A delectable supper was served picnic style, and in the early evening hours the picnicers returned to town well pleased with their outing.

Dr. Hugh Pedley's Funeral.

The funeral services of the late Rev. Hugh Pedley, D.D., which were held at Montreal on Monday afternoon, were conducted by Rev. W. H. Warriner, pastor of Emmanuel Church, and Principal D. L. Ritchie of the Congregational College. The deacons and officers of the church were seated together during the service in front of the communion rail. Among the mourners were his son, Dr. Frank Pedley; his brothers, Rev. James Pedley of Toronto and Rev. Hilton Pedley of Japan; the Rev. Walter Gurd, son-in-law; F. M. Field, K.C., brother-in-law. In the addresses given by his colleagues a warm tribute of regard and high esteem was paid to Rev. Dr. Pedley.

Stole the Booze.

A story—how true is not known—is afloat that an attempt was made to ship a quantity of Canadian beer, covered over with pulpwood, from here to the United States last week, but when the car arrived at the United States port only the pulpwood remained.

Chevrolet Burned.

A Baby Grand Chevrolet, owned by Messrs. Roberts & Smith, and used on R. R. No. 5 rural delivery, was burned on the Baltimore road when the electric wiring of the car, it is stated, became short-circuited. The driver was able to save the mail and one rear tire. It is stated that the engine will not be altogether a loss. There was insurance of $500.

Infant Child Dead.

Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Phillips, Oshawa, were bereaved on Saturday by the death of their infant daughter, who was only a few days old. Dr. Phillips was engaged in the practise of his profession, dentistry, here before the outbreak of the war, in which he enlisted. He later settled in Oshawa.

Guillet-Windover.

In the Methodist Church at Frankford the marriage was solemnized last week of Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Windover, and Dr. D. Guillet of Picton. The bride was given away by her grandmother, Mrs. Breakel. She wore her travelling suit of navy tricotine. Later in the day the happy couple motored to Trenton, where they took the train for western points. Upon their return they will take up residence at Picton.

A Quick Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Ming and daughter, Helen, of Highland, California, with another daughter, Mrs. J. Tigner, her husband and son, Jimmie, of Los Angeles, were visitors the past week at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Winn, Elmview, Hamilton Township, and are also visiting other friends in the district, going on east as far as Napanee. Mr. Ming was formerly of Warkworth. The itineracy of their tour included from Highland, Cal., about two hundred miles from Los Angeles, to Mr. Wing's son's at Phoenix, Ariz., then to Abe-Queike, New Mexico, over the Great Divide, and through Denver and Wyoming to Omaha, then on to Des Moines, Chicago and Mackinaw, visiting at Cheboygan. They travelled in a Buick car, carrying 1,250 pounds. They camped eleven times in ten States, and covered 3,180 miles. The party made the trip from Los Angeles to Chicago in ten days. Their visit in Canada includes Guelph, Paris, Cobourg and Napanee.

All Kinds of Fish.

Mr. John Biglow, a veteran Newcastle sportsman, went out to Rice Lake last week, and the fishing was so good that he caught all kinds of fish—almost, it is stated. He and his associates had excellent luck and enjoyed their outing to the utmost.

Going To The West.

Although farm help is at a premium in this locality, it is learned that a number of young men will as usual take in the harvesters' excursion to the West to assist in the harvest there. A visitor from Saskatchewan, who left yesterday to return home, said that it was a race now between the rust and the harvest. In some places where the grain is more nearly ripe it may escape. He feared very much, however, that there will be serious loss because of rust.

Improvements to Parsonage.

The Methodist parsonage here has been extensively redecorated and refurnished for its new occupants. Rev. and Mrs. R. Forbes Stillman and their family, who are expected to come to town next week. Mr. Stillman is expected to commence his ministerial work here on August 12. Next Sunday the preacher for the day will be Rev. Leonard W. Scott, a young minister, who will also take a service for Rev. F. J. Horwood on the Camborne circuit during this month.

Local and Personal.

Mr. Herbert Alp of the Agricultural College, Guelph, spent the week-end with Mrs. James Harper, Camborne.

Mr. Herbert Lander, Camborne, is conducting the services in Roseneath Methodist Church on Sunday next.

Miss Lillian Dixon, who was visiting her sister, Mrs. F. J. Horwood, Camborne, has returned to Hastings.

Rev. J. F. Mears, Welcome, takes the services on the Camborne circuit next Sunday. The Board of Management of the Camborne Church has decided to re-decorate the interior of the church.

Rev. M. L. and Mrs. Hinton and family, Hastings, have been holidaying in this locality.

Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Jeffery, Toronto, are spending the summer at their country home near Grafton.

Mr. Harris, representative of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, and family are removing to Port Hope.

Mr. Wm. Russell, who was visiting his mother and sisters here, left a day or two ago to return to Creekman, Sask.

Mrs. Lappin of New York is a guest of the Misses Jayne, Toronto, at their country home here.

Mr. F. J. Lynch of Toledo, Ohio, has been visiting with his brother in Percy Township.

Two and a Half Million For One Week's Wages.

COLOGNE August 4. Canadian Press. — Cologne is without newspapers, and also is experiencing another money famine. This is due to a strike of the pressman in sympathy with the striking printers, who are demanding 2,500,000 marks weekly as wages.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

MILLBROOK, Aug. 4.—An executive meeting in connection with the East Durham League was held in the council chamber on Tuesday evening, President Hanna, of Bethany, in the chair. The meeting was called to consider the protest re games between Garden Hill and Elizabethville and Kendal.

Lang-Russell: That the decision of Umpire Cathcart in game between Kendal and Elizabethville, awarding the game to the latter club, be confirmed.

Lang-Russell: That the game between Garden Hill and Elizabethville, played on June 16, in which the decision of Umpire Smith, of Newtonville, has been called in question, be ordered re-played either Thursday or Friday evening, this week.

Stinson-Mercer: That the following be committee to settle protests: Dr. Hamilton, L. C. Russell, C. Sisson, W. Hanna.

The winners in the game between Garden Hill and Elizabethville this week will have the South District championship, and the play-off with Bethany, who hold the palm for the North District, for the final honors in the East Durham League will probably take place on Wednesday evening of next week.

Those present at Tuesday's meeting were: W. Hanna, J. Cathcart, C. Mercer, L. C. Russell, J. N. McGill, H. Nattrass, R. Wright, J. R. Mercer, M. Dunbar, J. Wright, C. Sisson, Dr. Hamilton and J. Lang.

List of Winners.

A corrected list of the winners in the fall wheat competition, under the auspices of the Millbrook Agricultural Society has been received by the secretary, J. N. McGill, from the Department at Toronto, and is as follows:

Mrs. McBrian, Sr., who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. Wilson, received word that her son, Louis, recently underwent a serious operation for an aggrevated case of appendicitis in a Detroit hospital but is now in a fair way to recovery, hoping shorty to be able to be removed to his own home in that city. Mr. L. McBrian is an old Millbrook boy. His friends here and in Peterboro will be relieved to learn of his improved condition.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Burnham and daughter, Dorothy, Mrs. E. Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. Gonsolus, and son, Harold, of Peterboro, Miss E. Needler, Misses Jean Burnham, Marjorie Sayles, of Millbrook, and Dorothy Higgs, of Port Perry, were at the Highland Park camp on Thursday.

VERDICTS OF GUILTY.

PARIS, Aug. 4. — (Canadian Press.)— Verdicts of guilty have been returned against the president and directors of the Banque Industrille de Chine who have been on the trial since May 31 on charges of violating the banking laws.

Andre Berthlot, President of the bank, who is a brother of Phillipe J. L. Barthelot, former political director of the Foreign Office, was fined 3,000 francs, and Jules Pernotte, manager of the bank, was sentenced to six months in prison and fined 3,000 francs. Other directors were fined 300 francs each.

PAYS TO PATRONIZE INDUSTRY AT HOME.

Hardware and Metal Tells Story of a Farmer Still Waiting For Goods Ordered in May.

Hardware and Metal, in telling the story of a farmer in Port Hope district, who ordered fence wire from a big city firm last May and is still waiting for the goods, gives more evidence that it pays to patronize home industry. This journal says:

That it pays to patronize home trade is shown by the following article from Hardware & Metal in which the story is told of a farmer in the Port Hope section ordering fence wire from a city firm on May 15th and he is still waiting. This journal says:

Bearing out the information given in the April 14 issue of Hardware and Metal concerning the unsatisfactory condition arising in connection with mail order business in fencing, another definite case has come to the attention of Hardware and Metal. The manager of a savings company located in Port Hope, Ont., acting in the interests of a client, is making enquiries concerning a fence company, in view of the fact that this client, a farmer, remitted a post office order on May 13 last the sum of $32 for some farm fencing which that company had advertised in the papers.

At time of writing, on July 21, the farmer had received neither the fencing nor his money back. The correspondence in the matter is rather interesting. The answer of the fence company to the farmer's letter enclosing money and order for fencing was as follows:

May 18, 1923.

"Your letter of the 14th with an order for farm fencing reached me this morning. You certainly are wise to take advantage of these low prices, for it means a neat saving on your spring requirements. Your order has been entered on our books as No. 3848 and we have scheduled it for early shipment.

"Tell your neighbors about our fence and our prices. We want to serve all of your farm buyers and to save you money. Over 3,000 orders filled last year—not one cancellation nor one complaint on quality. That's a pretty good record. I thank you, Mr....."

Delay in Wire.

Not having received any fencing, or a satisfactory explanation for the delay, the farmer again wrote about the order. In answer to this letter the company wrote as follows, under date of June 5, 1923:

"Yes, I'll be very glad to see that your order goes forward at once as you have asked I know that these are pretty busy days and that when you do have a chance to build fence you want to be sure that will be on hand.

"We are making every effort to take care of orders promptly and to give all our customers the service they have a right to expect. It is our constant endeavor to 'Say it With Service.' I know you will agree that the only fair way to every one is 'First come, first served,' so we are trying to make shipments in rotation.

"A delay early in the season in getting wire from the mill complicated the situation and for a while delayed our schedule. But I'll make it a point to see that your order goes out at the very first opportunity so that you won't be tied up as we were for lack of materials. We know from our own experience just how annoying and inconvenient that it."

When due time had elapsed after the receipt of this letter and still no satisfaction was forthcoming the farmer wrote making a request that the firm either ship the fencing within ten days or refund the money. The answer to this letter from the firm, under date of June 22, was as follows:

An Exceptional Offer.

"I know just how you feel. When you have ordered your fence, and sent in your money, you want to have the goods shipped right away. But truly we have been doing everything in our power to speed up delivery, for we are just as anxious to give you real service as you are to get it.

"Right now, however, we are facing the difficulties which confront most manufacturers—the problem of getting raw material. And naturally when we are held up on raw materials ourselves we can't make the prompt delivery which is our aim.

"So you see how it is. But we are making every effort to get the rush orders out with a minimum of delay. Ordinarily we try to keep the orders in rotation, but a rush order like yours will be an exception to that rule.

"I certainly appreciate your patience and consideration and I'll show my appreciation by getting your order out as soon as I possibly can. Perhaps it will be well for me to keep a tracer after it until it reaches you.

"Thank you for your co-operation and for your courtesy."

On drawing this matter to the attention of his banker, the farmer, on July 21, a month after the last letter from the firm, had received neither his money nor his fencing. His order had been on file with the company since May 13, or two months and a week.

Price Not Only Thing.

The whole business

The whole history of wire fencing business handled on a mail-order-to-consumer basis has been such as to emphasize the fact that price is not the only consideration. The foregoing case is just one of hundreds where buyers of fencing have been disappointed in both quality and service when endeavoring to depart from the regular retail channels of distribution, with the idea of saving a little money. Both merchants and the public have been educated to the fact that price is not the only consideration in buying fencing or any other line of goods handled by the retail merchant.

NEWS OF MARMORA AND THE DISTRICT

Masquerade Carnival at Crow Lake a Huge Success—Feared Crops Will Fail.

MARMORA, August 4. — A very enjoyable evening was spent at Marble Cliff Pavilion, Crow Lake, onWednesday evening The weather was ideal and the music excellent, but how Miss Fred Boland and Henry Meyers could pick up with two such tough looking Dagoes as Wynn Meyers and Ray Wescott, and still make every one try to do the shimmie, cake walk, and all other dances known to dancers, was the big mystery.

In Howard Blucker, the Cave Man who took first prize for fancy dress one could close their eyes and hope they would soon wake up from having such bad dreams, he was so true to the original cave man

Jack McCullough, Jr., who took second prize, was good as an Indian Chief.

S. McInnis of Delora, who took as comic Vice Versa (the two faced man) was good.

The second prize went to James Marrin, as infant.

The ladies' fancy dress prize was captured by Miss Grace Watt as a Harem Girl, and the second by Berna McCullough, as Indian Girl.

Ladies' comic costume prize was won by Jennie Connor as an 18th Century Lady.

A few of the many costumes were Miss G. Lafountain, of Tweed, as Pierriot; Miss Mary McPherson of Peterboro, as Armenian; Miss Tess Sullivan of Toronto, as Canada; Miss F S. Pearce, as a Chinese lady, Miss M. Morse, of Rochester, as Pierrette; Mrs. Brownley of New York, as Harem Lady; Edna Neal, as Egyptian Lady; Loraine Bell as Egyptian Lady; Rose Sullivan, as Indian Girl.

A few of the gentlemen in costume of special note were: Mr. Acklem of New York, as Bandit Chief, Harry Dunlop, clover; Bugs Bower, Canadian officer; R. Ray of Delora, a Spaniard; Mr. Paterson, Delora, English gentleman; Mr Gresham, of Delora, English dude; Tiny Yates, Delora, Terrible Turk; S. Brenkman, Havelock, Scotch gentleman; Mr Tample, Delora, Knight of the Bath; E Gladney and Mrs. J. Marrin and little girls; Mrs. E. Gladney, of Toronto; Miss Anderson, of New York; Miss K. Quinn and Miss Deacon of Marmora; Mrs. Cora Hodge of Toronto; also James Marrin of Marmora.

Every one had a grand and glorious time. Madoc Tweed, Havelock, Campbellford, Sterling and Peterboro were well represented.

Crops May Fail.

The raspberries around Marmora are a failure this year and all root crops will also be a failure if we do not soon get much-needed rain.

Personal News.

Mr. John McCullough and family, of Sudbury, are spending their holidays at their cottage at Crowe Lake.

Mrs. J. A. MacPherson and daughter Mary, Murtagh and Donald, and Misses Madaline Guiry and Camilla Fitzpatrick, of Peterborough, are camping at Crowe Lake.

Mrs. J. A. McDonald, of Moose Jaw, Sask., after spending a week in Toronto and Buffalo, arrived in Marmora her old home town, to renew old acquaintances.

Rev. Clare and family motored to Bancroft, where they will spend the next two weeks.

E. J. Downey of Marshville, is spending a few days in town visiting friends.

Wynn and Henry Meyers, Fred Boland, and Roy Wescott motored to Sparrow Lake, where they played at Delmonte's on Saturday night. The Meyers boys played there last season.

Robert Bontes had a very painful accident on Sunday. While cranking his car it back-fired, and broke his arm between his elbow and wrist.

St. Luke's Church at Bonarlaw and Rawdon had their annual picnic at Crowe Lake on Tuesday afternoon. About a dozen cars motored there. As usual a big time was spent in boating and swimming. T. Neal's Orchestra played a number of selections at Marble Cliff Pavilion for their entertainment.

Misses Wolverton, Softly and Johnson have returned to Grimsby after spending their holidays at Crowe Lake.

James McGrath, the genial proprietor of Tipperary House at Crowe Lake is out to beat his guests' fishing to date, this week, two lunge and seventy bass, one lunge weighing 15 pounds, constituting his catch. If the truth were known, however, his daughter Elizabeth looked the big one.

Art and Fred Penrose, of Toronto, spent the first of the week renewing old acquaintances in town. Mrs. W. Donnelly and children motored back with them, and will spend the week with her mother, Mrs. Penrose.

Mrs. Jones and Olive moved to their cottage at Crowe Lake on Wednesday.

Mrs. Benson, of Rochester (formerly Miss Lizzie Farrell, of Marmora), with her two children, are visiting friends in Marmora.

DEATH OF HARDING

States approving or disapproving Prime Minister Baldwin's statements. With the United States in mourning, it is realised that the expressions of United States opinions will be delayed.

Most of the Cabinet Ministers have left the Capital and will not return until Wednesday, when the Premier is expected to meet them. Meanwhile the documents of the recent negotiations will be published, and replies to France and Belgium despatched to those nations. The publication of Great Britain's draft note to Germany, which the French and Belgians have not approved, will serve as a notification to the Berlin Government as to the lines along which the British policy is likely to develop.

Twenty-Eight Nominated to International Court.

GENEVA, Aug. 4. — (Canadian Press.)—Thirty-two national groups have forwarded nominations to the League of Nations for the election to be held in September to fill the vacancy of the Court of International Justice due to the death of Ruy Barbosa of Brazil.

About twenty-eight candidates have been nominated. The list will be circulated in alphabetical order to all member states.

SEES POSSIBILITIES IN PETERBOROUGH

Three Hamilton Men Acquire Property Known As Victoria Heights.

An indication that the city of Peterborough is progressing is seen in the desire people are evincing to obtain the property known as Victoria Heights. Three men from Hamilton saw the possibilities in this property and acquired it with the object of putting it on the market. They believed that Peterborough was going ahead in population and in business, and decided to hold the lots for higher prices.

Through the misfortune of two of the three men dying, the property is to be placed on the market immediately, as the estates of the deceased gentlemen wish to close out the holdings.

The men who saw this opportunity and purchased the property were J. W. Lamereaux, Thomas Fanning and Willoughby Ellis. They formed the Hamilton Realty Company, and Mr. Ellis, the survivor, is in the city today making arrangements for Mr. H. J. McCannan to dispose of the lots.

Splendid Property.

The lots are 50 feet by 117 feet, and are fitted with sewer and water, and instructions have been issued by the city to build a sidewalk on the north side of Homewood avenue.

Mr. McCannan, who has been appointed sole agent for the lots in Peterborough, is optimistic in reference to the property, as he has made considerable property sales lately, and he believes that business is progressing in the city. Seven new families have been at his office looking for houses, and some had their household goods packed ready to move into Peterborough when houses were obtained. The tide has turned, Mr. McCannan says, and the population of Peterborough will gradually increase.

James B. Brown is already building a splendid bungalow on this property and his intention is to build more.

Mr. Ellis stated today that the lots will be disposed of at a very reasonable figure, and being in one of the best residential districts in the city, will soon be taken up.

Why Stay Fat? You Can Reduce

The answer of most fat people is that it is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous to force the weight down. Marmola Prescription Tablets overcome all these difficulties. They are absolutely harmless, entail no dieting, exercise, or absurd greases and salves, and have the added advantage of cheapness. A case is sold at one dollar by all druggists the world over, or send the price direct to the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this, you have no excuse for being fat, but can reduce steadily and easily without going through long sieges of tiresome exercise and starvation diet or fear of bad effects.

FUR BANDING.

Fur banding is used to excellent advantage on the newest velvet and satin frocks for fall.

FANCY SCARFS.

A scarf of figured silk is one of the most approved ways of livening up the suit or dress of serge or twill. Satin costumes feature the sheer one of chiffon or brocaded georgette.

EVERY MONTH MANY WOMEN

Take ZUTOO Tablets and are free of the Griping Pain and Sick Headaches.

Read what Mrs. Wright says: "I received your sample of Zutoo Tablets, and took them for severe pain (monthly) and headache. At the end of 30 minutes, I was entirely free of pain and experienced no more throughout the period. I suffer a great deal at these times and feel grateful that I have a remedy which affords quick relief. Every woman in the land should know about Zutoo Tablets and what they willdo."

INTERESTING FACTS OF EARLY DAYS OF PETERBORO AND THE DISTRICT

In gathering information in regard to the early history of the Richard H l and Son business, many facts have been ascertained that we believe will be of interest alike to old settlers and to later residents.

The early history of the now city of Peterborough includes relation of the early settlement, comprising the incoming of those of the pioneers who came thither from the Old Land to seek a living in what seemed to them to be a veritable Land of Promise.

During the year 1818 the heads of several families ventured to Canada West, and in the autumn of the same year found a way into and along the borders of the now Township of Smith, which had at the time only been recently thrown open for settlement, following the silencing of the Indian claims to the lands now known in general as the Midland District of Ontario.

Pioneer Adventurers.

These pioneer adventurers found a way by the route of crossing the divide between Lake Ontario and Rice Lake and up the Otonabee River to the lands afterwards to be known as the town plot of Peterborough. Having ascertained the boundaries of the township, and communicated with the agent in charge of lands for settlement, a temporary log house or shelter was put up, just where the Communication Line giving access to Chemong Lake, joins with Reid Street on the northern boundary of the city. There they lived in common until, by mutual assistance, small houses or shanties were erected on the several locations to which they then removed.

Colony Settlers.

This group was known afterwards as the "Colony Settlers," to distinguish from a later influx of those of the Robinson immigration, some six years afterwards. Of the group may be mentioned William Dixon and his family of five sons, Joseph Lee and his sons, John and George, Robert Milburn, Robert Walton, John Walton, Walton Wilson, Thomas W. Milburn, John Smith and his son Joseph Smith. A little later came John Harvey, Jacob Brumwell, Robert Nicholson, tax collector, James Mann and his son James, the McKibbins, Walter and Samuel, Thomas Robinson, Isaac Nicholson, Silas Pearson, Jos. Walton and his sons, Matthew and Richard Bell, John Edmison, Jas. Davidson, John Edmison, James Davidson, John Hall, William Hall and former Wm. Elliot and several others. These names constitute the roll of honor among the early settlers of Smith.

And a special interest lies in the fact that out of Smith Township came many of the business men who excelled in energy and enterprise and who laid the foundation of the commercial progress of the now city of Peterborough.

Other Early Stores.

Following the grouping of those who came and settled on the town plot of Peterborough were several, coming in front the "Front," as the district along Lake Ontario was termed, and who established stores and began to do trade. It is interesting to note that in 1838, twelve years after the formal survey and identification of the lands on which the future city should rise and stand there were the following places of business, of course all known as general stores, carrying diverse stocks of goods such as needed by the wants of the population, and one with only a moderate amount of money to expend: Shaw & Fortune, Charles Perry, Robert Nicholls, John Crawford, Holland & Morrow. The third store opened was that of John Brown, in 1827, with a very good stock of goods suitable to the locality. Mr. Brown came from Port Hope (or Smith's Creek, as it was known), and opened out in a small log building at the corner of Water and Simcoe Streets (now the site of the Bank of Montreal), the store to be afterwards the business place of the firm of Nicholls & Hall.

Mr. Richard Hall and his brother, Mr. John Hall, sons of Mr. William Hall mentioned among the earliest settlers of Smith Township, are the only surviving members of this group of early pioneers.

OLD-TIME SCOWS STILL CROSS THE WHITE RIVER

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—(Associated Press).—A scow of the same sort as that in which young Abraham Lincoln and his home-seeking parents were ferried across the White River near Petersburg, Ind., plies there today, propelled in the same manner by the current, according to Dr. William E. Barton of Oak Park, Ill., moderator of the National Council of Congregational churches.

The ferryman, Dr. Barton says, doubtless like the ferryman of Lincoln's day, manipulates cables from boat to shore and swings his craft so that the current, striking it at an angle, drives it in the direction desired. He shortens one cable and slackens another until his prow points to the shore he seeks. The White River does the rest.

This survival of pioneer methods was witnessed by Dr. Barton on a motor trip from Springfield, Ky., to Springfield, Ill., in which he traced the life journey of Lincoln and his parents from the place of the parents' marriage to the place of the son's burial.

While the White River ferry is representative of early conditions, the ferry where the Lincoln family crossed the Ohio from Kentucky into Indiana is representative of a combination of the modern and the primitive, which Dr. Barton reported as recurring along his route. On the Ohio, a small low-powered gasoline launch has been hitched to the scow; it does not propel the scow, but replacing the cables heads it at the right angle of the current, which furnishes the real power.

Similarly, a log church once attended by Lincoln's relatives remains a log church, but few would appreciate it as it has been weatherboarded.

Life is still primitive in parts of the Lincoln country, Dr. Barton states, but schools and churches are better housed. Tractors are unknown in the broken farm country of southern Indiana, he adds, although motor cars are numerous on the highways, many of which follow trails blazed by Lincoln.

ENTERTAIN THE THIRSTY.

BUFFALO, N.Y., August 4 (United Press). —Champagne at $27.50 per case is Canada's offer to the thirsty.

There is an abundance of it just now in Ontario towns that may be purchased legally and consumed without fear. The news has gone forth that the supply is to be increased to meet the requirements of thirsty Americans visiting the north shore.

This bubbling beverage is made from the juice of grapes grown in the Province of Ontario. Its production is the result of a law passed many months ago by the United Farmers' Party, then in power. The farmers didn't believe in permitting the breweries to turn out 4 or 5 per cent. ale and beer, but they shied at drawing the line on wine produced from grapes grown on their own lands. The wine carries an alcoholic content of about 17 per cent.

It has taken some time to get the supply really swinging along, because the process of making champagne is a tedious one.

But Not Regarded as First Choice for Republican Leadership.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14. —(Canadian Press.)—With the shock of the death of President Harding somewhat abated to-day, there were ample indications of the political storm which is to follow throughout the United States.

President Coolidge has announced that he will continue the policities of his predecessor, which include the entrance of the United States into the International Court of Justice. But the death of President Harding has turned the fight on this issue into a more difficult battle.

The National convention of the Republican party, which will assemble in early summer of 1924, will not be a ratification meeting as it had been certain to be if Mr. Harding had lived. Every element of the party will be drawn into battle for the nomination.

Republican leaders had never considered Mr. Coolidge as being in the running for the party nomination. Now, with the party machine behind him, he is in a position to control an important influence. However, the field is open to many contestants representing every shade of opinion in the Republican party. Among those already mentioned as "possibilities" are Secretary of State Hughes, Senator Hiram Johnson, Senator La Follette, Wisconsin, Senator aL Follette, Wisconsin, Senator Watson, Indiana, Senator Borah, Idaho, Major Wood, former Governor Lowden, Illinois, Senator George Pepper, Pennsylvania, and former Senator Albert Beveridge, of Indiana.

The radical forces are expected to concentrate on Senator La Follette.

Senator Hiram Johnson has a strong following in his own State, California. He will probably have the support of the old guard, though he is believed to have lost the radical sentiment that formerly followed him.

RECONSTRUCTING EXISTING RIVER

NEW YORK, August 4. Canadian Press. — Concrete private proposals for making a "New St. Lawrence" by reconstructing the existing river to obtain the maximum efficiency both for navigation and power, have been made by Colonel Hugh L. Cooper, New York engineer, who has developed more than 1,500,000 hydraulic horsepower in various parts of the world. Details of these proposals were given in a recent article published by the Wall Street Journal.

At present the 120 mile stretch between Ogdensburg and Montreal, with a drop of 220 feet, transports 4,500,000 tons of freight a year, and develops 200,000 horsepower. The International Joint Commission report to the governments of Canada and the United States based on recommendations of government engineers, proposed three dams, nine locks, thirty one miles of canals, and the installation of 4,545,000 h.p. capacity, at a total cost of $506,000,000 without interest during construction.

MACKEY'S BREAD WINS FROM GEORGE STREET

Mackey's Bread defeated George Street in an East Peterborough League game last evening by 11 to 7, the bread makers getting away to an early lead when Grant Miller had trouble in locating the plate. It was 11 to 2 when George Street batted in the last frame for five more runs. The batteries were: George Street—G. Miller and C. Miller, and Delahaye and R. Miller; Mackey's Bread, Clarke and Dugan.

TABLE LINEN.

If you hang your table linen carefully, stretching and pulling it into shape as it hangs on the line, the task of ironing will be greatly lessened.

Automobiles Must Not Pass Funeral Cortege.

That automobiles are prohibited from passing funeral processions is not generally known by motor car drivers, but several cases in Simcoe Police Court this week brought the statute into discussion.

The law, as stated by the Peterborough police, reads as follows: "The driver of a motor vehicle upon any highway outside the limits of a city shall upon meeting a funeral procession stop his vehicle, including the motor, or where practicable shall turn out into an intersecting highway or lane until the funeral procession has passed."

It is supposed that the statute was introduced before automobile hearses replaced the old horse-draown vehicles, and was probably intended to prevent accidents due to uncontrollable horses, but it is still on the statute books.

When automobile drivers met a funeral procession a few days ago in Simcoe and failed to stop their cars and engines, they were summoned for the offence.

MILLIONS IN SUGAR

HONOLULU, August 4.— (Associated press)—"King Sugar," monarch of Hawaiian products, will pour approximately $70,000,000 into the territory this year, an increase of almost 40 per cent over the gross return from this product last year, according to estimates of prominent planters.

All except a few miles in the territory have completed their grinding for the season and the combined output is certain to exceed 500,000 tons, a decrease of approximately 100,000 tons from the production of last year which is laid to the plantation laborers strike of 1920, when most of the 1923 crop was planted.

The average price for last year's crop, however, was $92.26 a ton, as compared with this year's estimated average price of between $130 and $140 a ton.

Planters here have pointed out that the value of the Hawaiian sugar crop approximately equals the production of silver on the United State, which usually averages between $50,000,000 and $60,000,009 annually, although it rose in 1915 to $77,0336,170.

With the large increase in the sugar income, it is estimated that Hawaii's exports to the mainland United States this year will aggregate $100,000,000, as the pineapple pack will bring $25,000,000 and other miscellaneous products approximately $5,000,000.

How Can You Prevent Frequent Tire Changes?

Many tire changes are made necessary by tube failures. Heat raises havoc with tubes. It is the inner tube's constant enemy. The way to save yourself tube trouble and consequent annoyance is to buy tubes that resist heat.

Firestone High Test Tubes resist heat successfully. Steam welding is a Firestone process that prevents air leakage and flat tires because even extreme heat will not break down the splice.

Firestone High Test Tubes have strength as well as heat resistance. The Firestone method of placing ply upon ply of rubber so that the grain of each ply runs in opposite directions gives the strongest tube wall.

Compare Firestones with other tubes and note the wider Firestone cross section. This extra width means less stretch to fill the casing, less strain when inflated, less tension and longer life.

Firestone High Test Tubes, like Firestone Cord Tires, cost more to build. But Firestone economies in buying, manufacture and distribution enable you to obtain these better tires and tubes and the increased mileage they give at no additional first cost.

Your investment in Firestone High Test Tubes is a small matter compared to the big saving they effect in giving you extra miles out of your tires. Ask your dealer.

SEES POSSIBILITIES IN PETERBOROUGH

Three Hamilton Men Acquire Property Known As Victoria Heights.

An indication that the city of Peterborough is progressing is seen in the desire people are evincing to obtain the property known as Victoria Heights. Three men from Hamilton saw the possibilities in this property and acquired it with the object of putting it on the market. They believed that Peterborough was going ahead in population and in business, and decided to hold the lots for higher prices.

Through the misfortune of two of the three men dying, the property is to be placed on the market immediately, as the estates of the deceased gentlemen wish to close out the holdings.

The men who saw this opportunity and purchased the property were J. W. Lamereaux, Thomas Fanning and Willoughby Ellis. They formed the Hamilton Realty Company, and Mr. Ellis, the survivor, is in the city today making arrangements for Mr. H. J. McCannan to dispose of the lots.

Splendid Property.

The lots are 50 feet by 117 feet, and are fitted with sewer and water, and instructions have been issued by the city to build a sidewalk on the north side of Homewood avenue.

Mr. McCannan, who has been appointed sole agent for the lots in Peterborough, is optimistic in reference to the property, as he has made considerable property sales lately, and he believes that business is progressing in the city. Seven new families have been at his office looking for houses, and some had their household goods packed ready to move into Peterborough when houses were obtained. The tide has turned, Mr. McCannan says, and the population of Peterborough will gradually increase.

James B. Brown is already building a splendid bungalow on this property and his intention is to build more.

Mr. Ellis stated today that the lots will be disposed of at a very reasonable figure, and being in one of the best residential districts in the city, will soon be taken up.

Why Stay Fat? You Can Reduce

The answer of most fat people is that it is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous to force the weight down. Marmola Prescription Tablets overcome all these difficulties. They are absolutely harmless, entail no dieting, exercise, or absurd greases and salves, and have the added advantage of cheapness. A case is sold at one dollar by all druggists the world over, or send the price direct to the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this, you have no excuse for being fat, but can reduce steadily and easily without going through long sieges of tiresome exercise and starvation diet or fear of bad effects.

MILLIONS IN SUGAR

HONOLULU, August 4.— (Associated press)—"King Sugar," monarch of Hawaiian products, will pour approximately $70,000,000 into the territory this year, an increase of almost 40 per cent over the gross return from this product last year, according to estimates of prominent planters.

All except a few miles in the territory have completed their grinding for the season and the combined output is certain to exceed 500,000 tons, a decrease of approximately 100,000 tons from the production of last year which is laid to the plantation laborers strike of 1920, when most of the 1923 crop was planted.

The average price for last year's crop, however, was $92.26 a ton, as compared with this year's estimated average price of between $130 and $140 a ton.

Planters here have pointed out that the value of the Hawaiian sugar crop approximately equals the production of silver on the United State, which usually averages between $50,000,000 and $60,000,009 annually although it rose in 1915 to $77,0336,170.

With the large increase in the sugar income, it is estimated that Hawaii's exports to the mainland United States this year will aggregate $100,000,000, as the pineapple pack will bring $25,000,000 and other miscellaneous products approximately $5,000,000.

A THOUGHT

Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.—Phil. 4:8.

To praise good actions with sincerity may be said to be taking part in them.—Rochefoucauld.

How Can You Prevent Frequent Tire Changes?

Many tire changes are made necessary by tube failures. Heat raises havoc with tubes. It is the inner tube's constant enemy. The way to save yourself tube trouble and consequent annoyance is to buy tubes that resist heat.

Firestone High Test Tubes resist heat successfully. Steam welding is a Firestone process that prevents air leakage and flat tires because even extreme heat will not break down the splice.

Firestone High Test Tubes have strength as well as heat resistance. The Firestone method of placing ply upon ply of rubber so that the grain of each ply runs in opposite directions gives the strongest tube wall.

Compare Firestones with other tubes and note the wider Firestone cross section. This extra width means less stretch to fill the casing, less strain when inflated, less tension and longer life.

Firestone High Test Tubes, like Firestone Cord Tires, cost more to build. But Firestone economies in buying, manufacture and distribution enable you to obtain these better tires and tubes and the increased mileage they give at no additional first cost.

Your investment in Firestone High Test Tubes is a small matter compared to the big saving they effect in giving you extra miles out of your tires. Ask your dealer.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Meeting of the Cheese Board—Percy Township Pioneer Passes — Personals.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 4.—All the salesmen on the Cheese Board refused to sell the output of their several factories at the price offered, 18 3-8 cents, as compared to the high bid, 19¼ cents a week ago. The Board adjourned until 7.30 this evening. The buyers in attendance were: Cook, McCreary, Thompson and Fitzgerald.

The number of boxes boarded was 463, from the following factories: Brae, 42; Crow Bay, 50; Empire, 67; IXL, 29; Kimberley, 28; Meyersburg, 44; Prince of Wales, 30; Stanwood, 40; Trent Valley, 29; West Seymour, 34; Woodlands, 70.

Dan. Petherick, chairman of the Stanwood Factory, who refused to board the output last week, fell in line again, but in common with the other salesmen, refused to accept the price offered.

Percy Pioneer Passes.

Henry Stevenson, a pioneer of Percy Township, died Friday in Nicholls Hospital, Peterboro, aged 67 years. He had been ill for about two months, and on Tuesday was removed to the hospital. He had resided in Percy all his life, and enjoyed the confidence of a large circle of acquaintances. The deceased was one of the most active members of the Hastings Methodist Church, in which he held the office of steward. Rev. M. L. Hinton, his pastor, says that the late Mr. Stevenson was of the greatest assistance in carrying on the work of the congregation.

Surviving the deceased are the widow and two sons, Ernest, at home, and Russell, who graduated as a druggist last spring.

The funeral will be held from the family residence on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock to the cemetery at Trent River. Rev. M. L. Hinton will conduct the religious services.

Juniors Play Ball.

A team of lusty young fellows from Trent River, who have been winning games everywhere since the opening of the season, played a junior nine here yesterday and added another victory to their list by a score of 8-4. It was the first contest in which the local boys have taken part this year, and their lineup was strengthened by the presence of Cowell and Brady, of the Northumberland League team. But for the residence rule, some of the clubs in that League could increase their chances to win by signing up some of the boys who played here yesterday.

It was a good game, and neither side made a run or scored a hit in the first two innings, thanks to the good pitching of Smith for the locals, backed up by faultless fielding.

The visitors made a run in the third, and in the same inning three local players crossed the plate. The first hit of the game was made by McArthur in this inning. Smith also found his batting eye, and sent a double to left. Archer hit safely to right for two bases, but was neatly caught at third when he tried to stretch his double into a triple. Besides his good box work and his extra base hit, Smith had two clean singles to his redit. He struck out 11 of the visitors in the seven innings that the game lasted. Christie, the Trent River pitcher, fanned 10 of his opponents. A double play was made by Smith and Archer and one by J. Christie and Chapman. Sloan at bat in the fifth sent a beauty to right that was good for three bases. Charlie Davidson umpired to the satisfaction of both sides.

The line-up:

Trent River—Haywood, ss; C. Christie, 1b; Plunkett, c; J. Christie, p; Chapman, 2b; Greenley rf; Scott, cf; Hallowell, lf; Sloan, 3b.

Coming League Games.

Orland plays here this afternoon at 3 o'clock. On Monday the Campbellfords go to Harwood, and on Wednesday they will play at Warkworth with Roseneath. The game with Hastings, twice postponed on account of rain, is set for Saturday afternoon at Hastings. This will wind up the season except for the play-off.

Bowlers For Belleville.

Four rinks of local bowlers will go to Belleville next week to take part in the tournament. The rink that went to Kingston this week brought back no trophies, but the papers in that city praise the showing which they made.

Personals.

J. Doody, the golf professonal, will attend the tournament in Toronto next week.

Mrs. John Hendricks has gone to St. Thomas to visit her son, J. E. Hendricks, who is manager of the Dominion Stores, Ltd., in that city and Chatham. Mr. Hendricks recently spent his vacation here and at Bass Lake.

Read—Ketcheson.

A very pretty wedding took place on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clement Ketcheson, Sydney Township, near Foxboro, when their eldest daughter, Mary Faye, was united in marriage to Mr. Carl Clayton Read, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Read.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. F. McIntosh, M.A., B.D., pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Church, Campbellford, assisted by Mr. D. McGinnis, student at Foxboro, in the presence of about forty guests.

The bride and groom were unattended, and little Miss Peggy Ketcheson, sister of the bride, made a charming flower girl. The bride was smartly attired in a fawn travelling suit, with hat to match.

After the ceremony a dainty buffet luncheon was served, after which the happy couple left on a motor trip to the Adirondacks, Albany, and New York, and on their return they will reside on Rear Street, Campbellford.

The bride is one of the town's popular young ladies, being a member of the Public School staff, while the groom is a popular member of the Hydro staff, and their many friends unite in extending heartiest congratulations.

Personal Items.

Mr. Andrew Peeling, who has been visiting his daughters for the past eight months at Niagara Falls, New York, returned home this week.

HAVELOCK LADIES HAD GOOD OUTING

Discussed New Scheme of Hydro-Electric Commission at Belmont Lake.

HAVELOCK, Aug. 4.—The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church, Havelock, held their last picnic for this year at the newly erected summer home of Mr. and Mrs. James Barlow, on Belmont Lake.

Belmont Lake is one of the most picturesque lakes of the Kawartha group, containing some thirty islands which are noted for their bold and rocky shores. It is fed by two rivers, the North river draining the western section of the north country to the watershed dividing the flow of water from the Stoney Lake district, and the Deer river which drains the eastern section.

The visitors arrived in cars from Havelock and on foot from the immediate vicinity, arranging themselves in groups for a social time until the call for dinner. The main topic of conversation was the proposed change in the size of Belmont Lake due to the conservation scheme consideration by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario. All last winter Hydro surveyors were at work taking levels and it is reported that the engineering office of the Commission find the lake far better adapted for conservation purposes than at first anticipated. It is reported that if the scheme goes through, and there seems to be some foundation for the report of the proposed scheme becoming a reality, the lake level will be raised from 20 to 30 feet above present low water mark and consequently increase the size of the surface to far larger dimensions. The scheme also comprises a pipe line from Belmont lake to Trent river, emptying into the river immediately above Healey Falls, where the large Hydro power plant is situated. The purpose of the scheme is to divert the conserved water to the Trent river, thereby ensuring a higher minimum as to power production.

Big Attendance.

When the call to dinner was sounded the visitors found the tables set in the wide, screened-in verandah which extended along three sides of the cottage, and the cool, airy compartment added much to the enjoyment of the repast so bountifully supplied by the ladies. The tables were arranged to seat sixty persons and two sittings did not accommodate all present. The Ladies' Aid were quite relieved to find, when the event was over, that from a financial point of view they had nothing to complain of and expressed themselves as well pleased with the support given them in their undertaking to raise money required for the renovation of the Havelock Methodist church.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. James Barlow for their kindness in placing their new residence at the disposal of the ladies. Among those present were: H. M. Brown and wife, Mrs. J. B. Seymour, Mrs. B. Haig, Havelock; Miss Erma Flynn, Moose Jaw; Miss B. Varty, Havelock; Earl Burnett, Havelock; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. and Bobbie Cross, Havelock; Mr. and Mrs. J. ## SYMPTOMS OF DEBILITY

How to Tell Whether Your Blood Needs Revitalizing.

The symptoms of general debility vary according to the cause, but weakness is always present, a tendency to perspire and fatigue easily, ringing in the ears, sometimes black spots passing before the eyes, weak back, vertigo, wakefulness caused by inability to stop thinking and unrefreshing sleep. The cause of the trouble may be some drain on the system, or it may be mental or physical overwork, sometimes insufficient nutrition due to digestive disturbance.

If you have any or all of these symptoms try building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as the new blood courses through your veins there should be an increase in your appetite, a better digestion and soon a renewal of strength and vigor.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, postpaid, at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DAY OF MOURNING IN UNITED STATES

Whole Nation Will Pay Tribute to Memory of Late President Harding

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.— (Canadian Press).—President Coolidge is expected to proclaim day off for Mr. Harding's funeral, one of mourning throughout the United States. Flags over Government buildings, at Army and Navy Posts are flying at half-mast. At daybreak forts and posts throughout the country began the firing of an all-day salute, beginning with 13 guns, at half-hour intervals, single shots were to be fired until sundown when there will be final salute of 48 guns. Orders also had been issued for suitable salutes by the Navy.

Messages of condolence to Mrs. Harding continue to pour into White House where telegraph operators are kept busy receiving them.

For the present, Mr. Coolidge, has indicated he will not make use of executive offices, but will transact official business in offices set aside for him in his hotel and in the vice-presiden's suite at the Capitol.

As far as occupying White House as a residence is concerned, both Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge have expressed themselves a preferring to remain in the Hotel suite which has been their home here since March, 1921 until Mrs Harding finds it convenient fro them to take over executive mansion. They have notified her of this decision.

RAIL EMPLOYEES MEET AT CALGARY

Preparations Under Way For Biennial Grand Division Gathering.

OTTAWA, Aug. 4. — (Canadian Press).—Preparations are under way for a biennial grand division meeting of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, which will be held at Calgary, commencing September 17. Delegates from all over the Dominion will be in attendance.

This will be the first time the convention has been held so far West. Two years ago, at Winnipeg, the attendance was some 150, but in view of the large number of local branches opened since then, it is anticipated by officials that the attendance this year will reach 200.

Among more important matters to be considered are proposals for the affiliation of the Brotherhood with other organizations of Canadian railway workers. Attempts are being made to amalgamate the sixteen standard railway associations into one central organization, representing around 150,000 railway employees of all classes — shop men, clerical forces, station employees, maintenance-of-way men and running trades.

HUGE APPETITE KEEPS HIM POOR

Can Eat 24 Eggs and 2 Pounds of Meat at One Meal.

MONTREAL, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Alexandre Berthellett keeps a tavern in Montreal, but he has another claim to glory. He appeared yesterday before Judge Casson in police court on a charge of non-support. It developed that he and his wife are not living together, and their five children are with Mrs. Berthellett.

Through counsel Berthellett explained that his net revenue was $350 a month and of this he had to pay $200 a month to a man from whom he had bought the business, which left him $150 a month and he was willing to pay $75 monthly to his wife. He lives over the tavern.

"But," said Judge Cusson, "it is peculiar that one man living alone and having no house rent to pay should require as much as a woman and five children, with house rent to pay."

"True, but my client is not an ordinary man," said counsel for defence. "He has a wonderful appetite. He can eat two dozen eggs and two pounds of steak at one meal."

"And if anyone will pay for it, I will eat that much at once," said the client, jumping to his feet.

There were no takers of this sporting proposition.

DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE'S DAUGHTER IS MARRIED

LONDON, August 4th. Canadian Press. — Lady Rachel Cavendish, the fourth daughter of the Duke of Devonshire, Colonial Secretary, was married to-day to Hon James Stuart, the third son of the Earl of Morey, formerly equery to the Duke of York.

The wedding took place at St. Peter's church, Edensor, on the border of the Duke of Devonshire's famous Chatworth estate.

Lady Rachel Cavendish is well known in Canada and was very popular in Ottawa during her father's term as Governor-General of the Dominion.

A WOODSTOCK MAN FELL INTO A VAT

Was Terribly Scalded But is Expected to Recover

WOODSTOCK, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—At a local factory yesterday afternoon, Wallace Taber, a young man, fell backwards into one of the steam vats used for removing bark from logs. He was terribly scalded from his hips down before he got out. He was rushed to the hospital and last night it was reported that he is resting as well as could be expected.

It appears that young Taber, who is an Arts student at Toronto University, had returned to his home here when school closed and secured work at a local factory. Yesterday shortly after noon he was standing on the track on which logs are carried into the vats. Seeing he was in danger of being struck by the log he stepped back and in doing so fell into the vat.

THOUGHT A PENNY GOOD TO EAT AND SWALLOWED IT

Sad Fatality Befel Two Year Old Girl When Given a Copper for Being Good.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 — (Canadian Press).—Dorothy Rapels, two year old, promised to be good girl when her mama kissed her Saturday and went down town to meet her daddy and she kept her word.

Later when her parents returned grand-mother told what a good baby Dorothy had been, and her proud daddy gave her a bright new penny. Dorothy's idea of any gift was that it was something to be eaten, so a few minutes later she swallowed her penny. This fact was not discovered until a day or so later when she was rushed to hospital and the penny was removed. But it was too late, for Oedema, a poison from copper set in and she died yesterday.

Fashion's Refuge

(By HEDDA HOYT)

NEW YORK, N. Y., Aug. 4 (United Press).—When a woman spends money on a raincoat or an umbrella she feels sure she is throwing away money. Nevertheless they are necessary evils. Styles in raincoats have undergone great changes in the last ten years. From the mackintosh we turned to the horrid rubber-effects of a season or two ago and now we have silk-surfaced coats in beautiful luxurious colors that have no earmarks of the raincoat. They are really rainproof silks made in the most fashionable lines imaginable and they are lovely enough to be worn on a stormy night to any dressy occasion. In fact, many of them look more like evening wraps than raincoats.

Gray, tan, navy and golden brown are the shades that are most desirable, as bright colored raincoats are not worn by smartly groomed women any more. The idea is to have a raincoat that doesn't look like a raincoat. While the lining of these coats are rubberized, they are but a shade or two lighter than the garment and have a soft, velvety appearance.

Japanese waterproof parasols offer a solution for the summer weather problem. The average summer parasol is certainly not adaptable to the sudden summer showers and the umbrella has been discarded until the winter months, hence the lovely Japanese parasol has its day. These are made of heavy oiled paper and they are spoked with bamboo. They have dark backgrounds painted in dull blues, greens and other dark shades, which make them less conspicuous than the Japanese parasols of former seasons. Being sunproof and rainproof and beautifully colored, they are becoming the rage at the beaches about New York. They are cheaper than the silk or cretonne parasols and equally as lovely for resort usage.

Rain has a peculiar effect on shoe styles. It will chase all the little red green, and blue shoes off the fashion map by fall. Mud and light shoes don't mix. Many of us will hate to give up the cheery colored shoes and go back to somber black. Others, more conservative, will be glad to see the last of them.

But—colored shoes have so taken the fashion by storm that they will not be discarded so easily. There will be few bright colors worn for street-wear this fall, but colors are to be introduced that have never before been used for shoes.

Recently I visited a shoe establishment and saw a case full of little French wear. There were dark blues with pipings of deep purple lizard-skin, black patents with tiny pipings of light blue, rose, gold and green, and black patents painted in Persian designs that would be beautiful with the black frock.

A new brown, called "logcabin," is trimmed in narrow bands of brown lizard-skin.

The south wind whispered to the rose,
"Ah, lass, but you are fair"
The rose returned his gay caress—
"I wonder if you care"

The south wind murmured tenderly,
"My love is ever yours"
The rose replied with fragrant lips,
"Such love I know endures"

But when the dawn with dainty step
Danced softly through the close,
Her silver feet touched as they passed
The petals of a rose

A summer resort is a place where everybody is from somewhere.

East Meets West

(By A. H. FREDERICK)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—When East meets West what happens? Sometimes one thing and sometimes another, as these two stories witness.

Recently there appeared in court here a Chinese woman, truly oriental in manner, be-panted costume and jade ornamentation.

With true Chinese passivity, she declared she wanted a divorce from her husband.

"Upon what grounds?" asked the judge.

"My husband no good now," she replied. "He go see other women, he drink much bootleg, he spend all our money, he come home only once in awhile. He just like Melican husbands."

* * *

But the other story, from Los Angeles, tells of East that didn't meet West.

A Japanese woman was taken from the quarter where her countrymen live to an emergency hospital. Her tongue was badly cut, almost severed.

"I did it myself," she wrote in reply to the doctor's questioning. "It said harsh things to my husband, it offended him, it made him leave me. I wished to rid myself of such a bad thing."

The newest use for radio is not, to date, an unmitigated success. Joel McClintock, swimming instructor of Alameda, Calif., conceived the idea of adapting radio to swimming instruction, telling the pupils to time their strokes by the radio music.

"And it worked fine," deposes McClintock, "until the radio station shut down for a two-minute intermission. Then four of the pupils sank."

Ships once sailed in from a wet ocean to a wetter San Francisco waterfront.

Wherever sailors gathered they told wild tales of the Embarcadero "hangouts," and the honky-tonk attractions of the Barbary Coast. Doped drinks and shanghaiing, women who smiled and betrayed, robbery and wholesale fighting were all in the day's or night's pleasure.

Now the Barbery Coast has surrendered to Volsteadism and warehouses are building where once the bars and dance halls reigned.

And the waterfront, theoretically bone dry, remembers the old days mostly by a few names still decorating dilapidated buildings—The Arrival Saloon, The Sailor's Rest, The Bulkhead Saloon.

* * *

But there is one bar that will remain, a memorial to Jack London, as long as its present owner lives.

This is the "First and Last Chance Saloon," standing near the dividing line between Oakland and Alameda.

Its owner, familiarly known as Old Johnny Heinhold, befriended Jack London, then a penniless and hungry boy of 14, and financed his start toward his brilliant literary career.

"Jack loved this place, and it was here that he ate and slept when I was his only friend," says Heinhold. "I won't ever let it be torn down or fall down, no sir."

When, not long ago, a fire in a neighboring warehouse threatened "The First and Last Chance," Heinhold stuck, despite the importunities of firemen and water which flooded into the place from six firehoses.

With an umbrella protecting himself and a large dictionary, one of London's early literary aids, Heinhold watched the progress of the fire.

When it was over, he walked to the door.

"Come on in, boys, treat's on the house," he called to those outside. "Jack always said fire wasn't hot enough to hurt this joint."

QUIET TALKS

FALLING UP? OR DOWN

When Newton's apple swung loose from the tree it didn't fall up, nor out, but down. It fell to the earth.

It grew up out of the earth through the tree. It was a bit of the earth. Now, when free it went straight back, back to its mother-earth. The earth pulled the apple. The apple yielded to the pull toward the centre of its gravity. We call that the law of gravitation.

But there are three laws of gravitation. Newton discovered one. There's the law of spirit gravitation. It pulls man toward his spirit center of gravity. There is always a pull up. Man's center of spirit gravity is up. That's a second law of gravity, spirit gravity. It pulls up.

There is still another, a counter law of spirit gravity. It pulls a man away from his true center of gravity. It pulls him down toward another centre. It's the pull toward the thing that's wrong. Wrong has a gravity of its own. Its gravity is always down, like the physical law. That pull away is a pull down.

The gravity of wrong has its centre in the Evil One. He is the opposite centre of moral gravity, opposite to God. The pull-down is a distinct pull away from the God-centre-of-gravity. Man is between the two pulls, up and down. The weight of his choice decides which way the thing goes.

Every man feels the God-pull inside. It's a pull up. There is an inner voice. It calls up. Everyone hears it. It's a quiet voice, but distinct and insistent. It never quits, or very, very rarely. There is a hand beckoning up. There is a light shining on the next step up. There's a gravity pulling gently, strongly up. It makes the next step up easier, even when it's not easy.

And every man feels that other Evil-pull. It's a pull down. It's an outside pull. It becomes an inside pull. There is an insistent voice calling down, a hand beckoning down, a light luring down, a gravity pulling down. Sometimes coarse, sometimes cultured, it is always down. Everyone feels the two pulls within, up and down. He hears two voices. He sees two beckoning hands. Two lights catch his eye. Qnd he decides which wins. Neither can do a thing except through his consent. There's no appeal from his decision. His say-so goes.

That pull-up is very distinct. That inner voice insistently unceasingly says, "Do the right. Don't do the wrong. This is right; do it; do it now. Do what you ought to." And everyone hears that voice.

That pull-down says, "Do the thing you want to. Don't bother about moral distinctions. Don't be so particular. It won't matter. Do the easy thing. Do it now. Don't think into things. Now, do it now."

It's the natural thing to say "yes" to the pull-up. We belong up. That's the first pull, the real human pull. As Newton's apple, detached, went to the earth, so man unhindered falls up, up to where he came from. He grew out of God. His life centres in God. He answers the pull-up toward his true centre of gravity—when unhindered.

But—but, the terrible bother is the hindrance. That pull-down has become a second nature in all of us. It gets terrific. There is a suction to it, sometimes like the ocean's undertow in a wild storm. It seems resistless. It's easy to yield. It's desperate hard not to yield.

Yet—yet, the man himself is stronger than the pull-down, even when he's weak. He's stronger in this that he can't be budged nor pulled down without his own consent. No man goes up nor down except as he chooses to.

That pull-down makes a break with the centre one pulls down from. It's a gradual break. It gets tenser. By and by the strings can't stand the tension. They snap off short. That's the last stage. The common word is death. At its core death is a separation in spirit from God. We think most of the body part. That's bad. The other's far worse.

The pull-down gets to the bottom of the hill. The common word turns that i into an e. That makes a hateful, hated word. But the thing is worse than the word. It may be left out of one's thinking, but it refuses to be left out as a fact. Gravity puts it in. It's gravity down, at the last lowest pull-down.

The Old Book gets the story straight. The Man of the Book came to break that pull-down. He came to start a new pull-up, and to start it strong enough to offset clean the down pull.

It was a stiff job. It took his life clean out. But he did it. He starts a new pull-up inside a man. It's a resistless pull-up, through a man's own choosing to have it so.

Victor Hugo describes a man caught inadventently in a treacherous quicksand, at low tide, on the coast of Brittany in France. Despite his frantic efforts, the merciless pull-down persisted silently, relentlessly.

Now the man is down to the knees, the loins, the vitals. Now only the head is seen, then two glaring bloodshot eyes, then a tuft of hair. Then only the smooth, pretty quicksand is. That's how gravitation works, Newton's, and the other, too. But the other is worse, and worst.

DUTY ON BARLEY

OTTAWA, August 4.— (Canadian Press).—Announcing that the British Government is considering the imposition of customs duty upon barley has aroused much interest owing to the opportunity preferference under it would give to Canadian growers Already there is trade in this grain between Canada and the United Kingdom, and it is regarded as probable that preference might lead to considerable further development. Quite recently the department of Trade and Commerce received inquiries for barly from British sources.

The average production of barley in Canada during the last decade is placed at 54,000,000 bushels by authorities and of this amount some ten million bushels have been exported. Of the Canadian exports about eight per cent approximately eight million mussions already go to Great Britain.

Many statesmen are returning from Europe. It can't be helped.

MOTHER OF TWIN BOYS

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Her of Inflammation and Great Weakness

West St. John, N. B.—"I was in a general run-down condition following the birth of my twin boys. I had a great deal of inflammation, with pains and weakness. Finally my doctor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. He said that your medicine would be the only thing to build me up. I am sure he is right, for I am feeling much better and am gaining in weight, having gone down to ninety-three pounds. I was in bed for over a month, but am up again now. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to my friends and give you permission to use my letter."—Mrs. ELMER A. RITCHIE, 82 Rodney St., West St. John, N. B.

There are many women who find their household duties almost unbearable owing to some weakness or derangement. The trouble may be slight, yet cause such annoying symptoms as dragging pains, weakness and a run-down feeling.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for such conditions. It has in many cases relieved those symptoms by removing the cause of them.

I'll Heat Your House for Less Money

GET rid of dusty stoves. They mean work. They eat up fuel. Using them costs you money year after year. Let me put in a Gilson Pipeless Furnace and stop all this unnecessary work and waste.

You don't need a big cellar. There are no pipes. Just six connections will do. Every room in your house will be easily heated with healthful, moist, warm air. The Gilson burns coal and wood.

The whole job can be done in less than a day. You'll pay me less for a Gilson than any other heating system. You'll get a job that will give you untold satisfaction.

I'll be glad to tell you all the features about this furnace and give you a free estimate. Get in touch with me.

FACTORIES IN RUSSIA ARE IN RUINOUS STATE

MOSCOW, Aug. 4—Russia's manufacturing industry, which during the generation before the war grew with tremendous strides, lies today almost a complete ruin. Some isolated industries, like flax, show satisfactory returns, and a few others, like the textiles, have succeeded in enlarging their output, though at a heavy loss.

Heavy industries, like iron, steel and coal, met a most complete disaster. Their plants were largely ruined, their mines are lacking machinery and their workmen, impatient at discipline, are striking and sometimes rioting.

Primitive callings, like fishing, are largely paralyzed by a lack of nets, rotted boats and wrecked gear.

Urban industry generally employs about a third of the hands employed in 1917. The workers' wages, while rising, average in buying power only about 64 per cent of the pre-war rates.

Production Cost Heavy

The cost of production is so great that most goods when sold realize only about 64 per cent of the cost. Many manufacturing centers are full of unemployed, the jobless in Petrograd alone numbering 100,000' Overhead charges and the cost of labor are appaling. Private employers whom the writer knows declare that their taxation for compensation, funds for the unemployed and the like, amount at 28 per cent of their bill for wages. In some of the government industries, overseers like foremen and managers number 15 per cent of the total employed.

Measures established for the betterment of the workers' lot, such as shop committees which share the responsibility, often make it very difficult to penalize the incompetents or to promote the especially efficient. Poor production with the heavy taxation on imports makes the cost of many articles beyond the reach of all except a privileged few.

Sugar retails at 30 cents a pound. A suit of clothes costs more than a month's wages. Poverty is in rags, and lacks shoes. Under-feeding and over-crowding is common in most industrial quarters of the larger cities.

Those who imagine the dictatorship of the proletariat has brought about a workers' paradise imagine wrongly.

Relative Coal Costs

This high cost of production paralyzes the industries depending on abundant cheap raw fuel. It is cheaper to import coal through Petrograd from England than to mine it in the Donetz Basin, though the latter is one of the richest coal fields in the world. European Russia possesses enormous iron ore fields, yet iron and steel cost so much that they almost rank among the precious metals. This high cost of steel and coal stops engineering industries and the whole range of industries dependent on them.

Very little building except wooden structures is proceeding outside Moscow, because it is economically unprofitable.

The fundamental cause of the manufacturing troubles is the expulsion or slaughter of managers and foremen early in the revolution, and the attempt of workmen to manage everything themselves.

Since the first flush of revolutionary ardor died down, the government has attempted to restore the discipline of outside control, but the political influence of the trade unions is too strong to permit full measures to be taken.

Discipline Still Poor

Factories still lack discipline in their resources and organization. Many of their old trained workers perished during the civil wars and many others were driven into the country by hunger and the lack of work. Less than 25 per cent of the workers today are old trained hands. Hence the existing chaos.

The government-controlled industries cost directly $100,000,000 last year and indirectly much more. Business experts urged a restoration this year of private or foreign direction, but the government was unwilling to yield, the Communist Party pronouncing strongly against such a measure.

Private ownership will be confined as far as possible to smaller industries. While some plants suffer from lack of machinery others permit vast supplies of costly machinery to go to utter wreck due to inexperience.

Untrained workers use the most primitive tools—hand shovels where steam diggers are available, and so on. There is none to teach them better.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Teresa Desmond (Terry), a beautiful imaginative child who worships

Juliet Divine, the stage name of her half-sister. She rides in a gorgeous car and talks of a millionaire.

Terrence Desmond, their father, quick-tempered and unreliable, was formerly a caretaker of a Long Island estate. Forced to leave the estate through an escapade of Terry's he opens a roadhouse called The Blue Moon, with money advanced to him by Tom Perrin, a prosperous friend of Julia's.

Mrs. Peter Parmalee, owns the house, Silverwood, of which Desmond was formerly caretaker.

Betty Sheen, her spoiled young granddaughter, whose rudeness to Terry, at Silverwood, the latter will never forget, is engaged to Miles Sheridan, a handsome, likable young chap. His car breaks down at the door of The Blue Moon, and he meets Terry. Delighted with the child's charm and anxious to atone for his fiancee's past rudeness, supplies the wherewithal to send Terry to a Convent for next seven years.

The Grim Reaper

The convent was not more than forty miles away, but after she was twelve Terry did not go home for her holidays. Mother came to visit her instead, but could never stay long; a few days at the most.

"Why can't I go home with you?" the child pleaded. Always she was answered evasively, but the true reason dawned upon the girl's mind as she grew older.

The Blue Moon Inn was popular with a rowdy crowd of young men and women, and Father drank more and more heavily. His temper couldn't be counted on. Altogether Terry would have been glad not to return, if Mother could have paid longer visits, and if Julia had come often to the convent.

But Julia never came. Instead she sent presents and birthday telegrams.

By this time a great war was going on in Europe, and America had joined. Women were eagerly helping, and when Terry asked Mother if Julia were "knitting or something" Mary, slightly embarrassed, said yes, she supposed so. All the girls in the convent school knitted and sewed, and made bandages for the soldiers.

Terry applied herself to this work with secret joy, almost with passion, because Mother had read in some paper the "Prince"—Miles Sheridan—had gone to France. Who could tell that by some chance he mightn't happen to wear a scarf she had knitted?

She might even have tried to get his address, so as to post him a scarf with a note from "Cinderella," if he hadn't felt sure he must long ago have been forgotten.

The Prince had, it seemed, sent Mother the whole sum needed for "Cinderella's" schooling, in one big cheque soon after his adventure at the Inn. Then, a few weeks later, he had married Miss Sheen, and there had been no further correspondence.

Terry prayed every night for the Prince's safety in the fighting. And as she prayed, with eyes tight shut, she saw the dark face lit with its brilliant smile, as it had been when he waved his hat for goodbye—perhaps forever She wondered if Betty Sheen (Terry hated to think of her as Betty Sheridan) prayed too? It was hard to imagine Betty praying

One day when Terry was sixteen, an older girl beckoned her to the garden seat where three of the class ahead of hers were sitting together. Somehow they managed secretly to get hold of a newspaper, or part of one; the "Society" pages of a Sunday supplement.

"Look at this," said the girl who had called Terry. "Rose and Mame and I think it's the image of you."

The newspaper fragment had been folded very small, and hidden between the leaves of a lesson book. The girl half opened the volume, and Terry peeped in.

What she saw was an enlarged snapshot of a beautifull young woman with a splendidly developed yet slender figure generously shown in bathing dress. Her head was swathed in a handkerchief-cap, and the big eyes smiled into the camera.

Terry bit back the cry "Why, it's my sister" she remembered that, for some unknown reason, Father and Mother and Julia wished the relationship kept secret. Julia's "being on the stage" was the excuse, yet Terry felt vaguely that there was something more.

Long ago at Silverwood the child had seen the resemblance: and now she had grown up (sixteen seemed grown up) it was more marked.

The snapshot might almost be a portrait of Teresa, not Julia, Desmond, except for the full development of the figure. The younger girl was already as tall as Julia, but she had the sword-like slenderness of a boy.

"I wonder if Julie has war work to do at that place by the sea, Palm Beach," she thought. "Or maybe she's gone there to rest." Terry determined to write and ask, begging Julia to answer, which she seldom or never did.

Julia hadn't changed her address since the day when she first motored to Silverwood in the smart blue car. The only difference was that she'd moved into a bigger apartment in the same house on Riverside Drive.

The November before Terry's seventeenth birthday the war ended. Everyone was joyous on Armistice Day. There was rejoicings even at the convent whose peace had not been broken.

It was a happy winter, though Terry began to ask herself what would happen when the summer holidays came. The seven years schooling specified and paid for by Miles Sheridan would be at an end. Would she go home? Or, would Mother have saved up money to keep her at the convent a year longer, according to a secret plan.

"At eighteen your character ought to be formed, and you can go into the world to earn your own living," she had said. "That will be better than staying in a house like ours. You can find a good, quiet place, as a stenographer perhaps."

Since then Terry had taken up typing and shorthand with one of the nuns who had had a business education.

"Mother'll tell me at Easter what I'm to do," she thought.

But Mother did not come at Easter. She wrote a short letter, in an unsteady hand. Her love, and she was so disappointed, she had taken a bad cold.

It was on her lungs, and the doctor ordered her to lie in bed, but her little girl mustn't worry.

After that a week passed without a word, though Terry wrote every day. Then, one morning, a telegram came for "Miss Teresa Desmond" the first she had ever received.

"Mother died suddenly pneumonia. No time send for you. Funeral yesterday. Get couple of mourning dresses my expense. Will send money fare home. Wish you return for good next week. I need your help. Will settle all expenses. Terence Desmond."

THE MEADOWLARK

The meadow lark is said to be our most useful bird, the quail alone excepted. In addition to this he is a fine singer and a good looker. Most of us know him as we see him rising from some meadow through fear of our intrusion. Somewhere in that same meadow is a nest with five speckled eggs. Frequently the nest is arched over with grasses; frequently, too, there is a visible path to the nest, a path a foot or two in length, marking the travel of the parents to and from the nest. Not so many are interested in his song, a cheerful whistle of the fields, a series of clear notes, slurred. "Spring of the year," he says, whether spring or autumn, yet it is always a delightful song. The western meadowlark is even a better singer, although unchanged in appearance.

But when it comes to utility this is the bird for us. The Department of Agriculture tells us that of 285 stomachs examined, 73 per cent of the contents constituted insects and 27 per cent vegetable matter. Insects were ground species such as beetles, grasshoppers and caterpillars with a few flies, wasps and spiders. Of all these, grasshoppers seem to be preferred. Of the vegetable matter eaten there were grain, weed and other hard seeds. Grain seed can be considered as waste seed of summer or winter.

Briefly stated, more than half of the meadowlark's food consists of harmful insects, the other half of the insects being largely of neutral value to man. Its vegetable food is composed either of noxious weeds or waste grain and the remainder is made up of useful beetles or neutral insects or spiders. A strong point in the bird's favor is that, although naturally an insect eater, it is able to subsist on vegetable food and consequently is not forced to migrate in cold weather farther than is necessary to find ground free from snow.

REDUCING THE COST OF COMMERCIAL MOTOR VEHICLES

A threefold saving in the first cost, running cost, and maintenance cost of commercial motor vehicles is effected by the use of steel instead of wood for the frame members of the body. This system of construction has been applied successfully by a well-known British firm to passenger-carrying vehicles, delivery vans of all sizes, and, in fact, to all types of commercial vehicles. Light rolled sections of special alloy steel are riveted together to form a frame which is light, strong and cheap. The covering of the frame may be of wood, steel, or aluminum as desired. The steel-frame bodies are lighter than wooden bodies of equal size, hence there is a saving in tires and petrol consumption, and there is a saving in the first cost of the bodies themselves. Where climatic conditions are severe or where white ants are prevalent, the steel bodies are at a great advantage, for they cannot warp or crack and they are immune from attack by any vermin. The fireproof nature of the steel structure is often a further advantage. Indeed, the many conflicting requirements of a commercial motor vehicle are fulfilled by this construction to an unprecedented degree.

HIGH COLLARS.

While it is not expected to become a popular style, the high collar is seen on some of the most chic costumes. Lingerie collars are not so favoured as those of the material of the frock.

THE "TROUBLE-SHOOTER"

TIMELY TIPS FOR AUTO THE OWNER

By E. H. SCOTT

How to Prevent Breakdowns on the Road

There is little pleasure in motoring unless you have a contented mind as far as your car is concerned. If you know it is O. K. you can hum along the road and enjoy your trip. If you have ever had any stops on the road, I think you will find, in most cases, that the trouble was due to your neglecting some part that should have had attention, and not to any actual defect in the car itself.

Some time ago, I was talking to an automobile owner who had had battery trouble while on a tour. Before starting he had bought a new battery, which did not give the slightest trouble during the first three weeks. One evening, however, he noticed that the lights were not as bright as usual, but due to the fact that he had just bought the battery before starting out, did not worry about it. The next night, however, the lights became so dim that he decided to consult an expert. The expert tested and examined the battery, then to my friend's surprise, informed him that the battery was ruined. The trouble was caused by the owner neglecting to keep the battery supplied with Distilled water. A little attention at the right time would have saved the cost of a new battery and a lot of trouble and delay.

Once a week during the warm weather, take out the vent plugs, then add DISTILLED WATER to each cell to ½" above the plates. Do not completely fill the cells, there must be room left for expansion. If not renewed from time to time, the water evaporates, leaving the top parts of the plates inside the battery exposed. The current is then forced to pass through a much smaller plate area than was originally intended, causing them to become sulphated. They are then unable to stand the usual rate of charging, and rapidly heat, buckle, and warp, and the battery is permanently injured.

Buy a hydrometer, they only cost about 50 cents, and test the condition of your battery regularly. A fully charged cell will read between 1.280 and 1.300. If the reading is below 1.250 have it examined and recharged at once.

Inspect your gasoline lines and connections to see that they do not leak at any point. Take out the strainer at the top of the Vacuum Tank and see that it is clear. Drain off a little gasoline from the bottom of the Vacuum Tank to remove any sediment or dirt that may have collected there. Make sure that the connections of the pipe on top of the Vacuum Tank that leads to the Intake Manifold is tight. If it is loose, it will allow air to leak in and the tank cannot operate properly. Open the drain cock at the bottom of the Carburetor and drain off some gasoline. If there is a strainer on the carburetor, take it out and see that it is clear. The above inspection should be made once a month.

See that the gas and spark control levers work freely, and take particular pains to see that they close promptly when you retard them. Accidents happen frequently because the gas lever sometimes sticks or a cotter pin drops out, with the result that when you try to close the throttle, it won't close, and the engine will not slow down. If this ever happens to you, just keep your head and turn off the Ignition Switch.

Take out and examine all spark plugs about once a month. See that they are clean and that the gaps are correct.

Watch the Fan Belt to see that it is kept adjusted properly. Do not adjust too tightly or it will cause the bushing in the bearing to wear and make the fan noisy, but do not have it too slack, or the belt will slip. Adjust the belt so that you can pull the fan over the pulley with two fingers.

Do not overload or run your car constantly at high speeds. Overloading and speeding put a strain or every part. Your car will stand this abuse for a time, but before long you will pay for it in cash to the repair man. High speeds set up a vibration that no car can withstand for long, and loosens every nut and bolt, including spring clips, shackle bolts, body bolts, radiator holding down bolts, etc., and before long your car has developed a fine collection of squeaks and rattles. Go over and tighten all nuts and bolts at regular intervals. This attention is very necessary during the first 2,000 miles a car runs until all nuts and bolts have bedded down.

Keep the engine and all connections clean, then your car will not only last longer and function better, but it will also make it easier for you to quickly inspect all parts to see that they are in order. Do not tinker with adjustments unless you thoroughly understand what you are doing. Learn how to make all minor repairs and adjustments yourself. If you do not understand how to make an adjustment to a certain part, consult the instruction book you received with your car. ### Negro Porter of Mark Hambourg's Runaway Coach Was Superstitious—Victim's Language Terrible

"TO see oneself as others see one is no doubt good for the soul," says Mark Hambourg, the distinguished pianist, in some racy recollections in the London Magazine for August. "This happened to me when I was in New York. I went to practise at the house of a friend. I had just finished my work and was getting up to go, when I saw a lady come to speak to my friend, who was sitting in the neighboring room, and overheard her exclaim: "My, oh, my, Mrs. K. how your little girl has improved! I have just been listening to her practising in the next room!"

Mark Hambourg

"While I was staying in New York I settled myself very comfortably into some charming rooms at one of the big hotels, and was working hard, when, to my vexation, the little Swiss manager appeared very early one morning, all apologies and protests. He hoped that Monsieur would not be very annoyed and would excuse the derangement, but would monsieur be so very obliging as to change his apartment immediately to one at the other end of the building?

"Why?" said I impatiently, "I am very satisfied where I am."

"The fact is, monsieur," said the manager, "it is most embarrassing to tell you, but there is a millionaire gentleman just below you here who has suddenly gone out of his mind, completely demented. The doctors say he must not hear any more music, as it might excite him in his present condition, and he must be kept absolutely quiet. It is an unfortunate contretemps!"

Would I have gone out of my mind, I wonder, if I had had to watch that poor fellow all day cutting off the million coupons of his dividend shares, which I afterwards heard was the heaviest occupation of his life? Perhaps I would!

While traveling in the southern states of America, an uncomfortable predicament happened to me which might have had serious consequences, but ended happily. I and my party had got into the dining car of the train we were traveling by, and were engrossed in our lunch. Suddenly we looked out and realized we were no longer moving! We ran out of the dining car and found to our horror that the main part of the train had gone off, leaving the restaurant car behind in a wayside station. The train attendants had obviously forgotten to tell us that this car was not ging right through.

I was in an awful state of mind, as I was due at an important concert that evening, and if I could not catch up that train again I was done. So we rushed off to the stationmaster, and by mingled threats and financial pressure managed to make him find us a spare engine. He coupled it on to our dining car, wired up the line to warn the railway people of our approach, and sent us on at sixty miles an hour in pursuit of our runaway coach. To my discomfort, I heard the stationmaster say to the engine driver just as we were about to start: "Go ahead, Bill, as fast as possible, and as for the signals, well, look out as well as you can!"

The amusing thing was that our nigger porter counted that we were thirteen people on the improvised train. He thought this altogether too unlucky, and as we were going off he threw his arms round a casual man standing on the platform and dragged him willy-nilly into the car. This unwilling passenger had to go with us three hours up the line to appease the porter's superstition and make a fourteenth person. His language was terrible, but he had a grievance, I do own, and luckily he was able to return on the engine which had taken us on, for we did eventual overhaul our train in safety and arrived on time at our destination."

THERE is a yarn going about that when Lord Riddell, as godfather to Sir Hamar Greenwood's baby, renounced for it the World, the Flesh and the Devil, a voice added, "and the News of the World." Nobody in church knew where this voice came from, or what it meant, so the incident remains "wropt in mistry."—London Opinion.

Mr. Justice Middleton Flavors a Sandy Judgment With Unusual Paraphrase About a "Bitter Tear"

By I. D. P.

AMONG the Supreme Court judges of Ontario Hon. Mr. Justice Middleton is respected as one of the most erudite on the bench. His judgments have long been regarded as unusually clear and fair to all parties and, unlike many of his brother judges, he oftentimes extends to the unsuccessfully suitor a word of solace. In a recent Hamilton case his Lordship decided that certain property owners at Van Wagner's Beach, though greatly damaged by the removal of sand by the neighbors who were selling it at $1.00 per load, were entitled to only small damages.

Justice Middleton

"The situation and temptation are not new," remarked his Lordship, and flavors his judgment with the following conclusion:

"The walrus and the carpenter
"Were walking close at hand;
"They wept like anything to see
"Such quantities of sand;
"'If this were only cleared away,'
"They said, 'it would be grand.'

"If seven maids with seven mops
"Swept it for half a year,
"Do you suppose,' the walrus said,
"That they could get it clear?'
"I doubt it,' said the carpenter,
"And shed a bitter tear."

"This sand at $1 per load no doubt looked "grand"—the result may cause the 'bitter tear'."

Great French Marshal Conquered by a Poilu

Andre Maginot Thinks Every French Minister Should Carry a Soldier's Bayonet in His Knapsack.

ACCORDING to Napoleon, every soldier should carry in his knapsack a marshal's baton. Andre Maginot is of the opinion that every minister, especially in France, should carry in his portfolio a soldier's bayonet.

At the blood-drenched village of Douamont, near Verdun, during the immortal defence, a huge poilu meekly approached his captain and asked for leave of absence. There was a sharp enquiry for the reason.

Andre Maginot

"I am Andre Maginot," was the reply, "formerly minister, also deputy for the Department of the Meuse, and now President of the General Council, which is about to meet." The leave was granted.

Like Danton, Maginot stands, a huge mass of honest muscle, six feet two in height, and, like Danton, he started at first to make his living as a lawyer. He is the symbol of the France beyond Paris. His department is no boulevard or Quartier Lation, but the Meuse. His breath is not the cabaret, but the breeze. He is a true son of a sacred soil.

At Mageville there was a fight, already a legend among the heroic deeds of war, in which Maginot, promoted to a sergancy, had both legs shattered. There he won the Military Medal and had to retire from active service. He returned to politics and at a secret session in Paris exposed the weakness of the position at Verdun. In 1917, Prime Minister Ribot appointed him to be Minister of the Colonies and later he was M. Briand's Minister of Pensions. When Poincare rose to power again, Maginot became his Minister of War.

When it was decided to occupy the Ruhr, a supreme test came to Maginot. He was the poilu, promoted to be minister. Was the minister, who had served as poilu, to manage a marshal called Foch or was a marshal called Foch to manage the minister? There was a severe struggle, and the minister won it. While soldiers were sent to the Ruhr they were kept under civilian and not military control. Constitutionally, Maginot was right. He would have no Boulanger endangering the Republic—not even the revered Foch himself.

WORD OF GOD TASTED GOOD TO CULTUS JACK PARNELL

Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs Can Vouch for Religious Fervor of One Indian

THE superintendent general of Indian affairs for Canada, Hon. Charles Stewart, is not expected to concern himself with the religious tendencies of the native wards under his charge. So long as there is statistical information available regarding the number of Catholics, Protestants, Pagans, etc., the minister of the interior may be held to have done his duty.

All the same, Mr. Stewart is able to vouch for the religious fervor of John Stewart Parnell, of Clinton, B.C., an Indian he has never met, but of whom he tells this story:

Hon. Chas. Stewart

Some weeks ago the irrigation water board held a session in Clinton. Among other cases, an Indian sought to establish water rights granted his grandfather a quarter of a century ago.

An interpreter was necessary, and John Stewart Parnell was called upon.

It is only when in court that he answers to the name of John Stewart Parnell, but he is in court fairly often, though seldom in the capacity of interpreter. Usually he goes by the name of "Cultus Jack." The word "cultus" means "bad."

When it came his turn to be sworn, instead of perfunctorily kissing the Book, Parnell ostentatiously applied his tongue the full length of a page, then declared, in a challenging voice:

"The Word of God tastes pretty good to Cultus Jack!"

At the conclusion of the hearing the Bible was formally presented to Cultus Jack.

Dr. House has been conducting a series of demonstrations in state penitentiaries and jails on prisoners and his results have been astounding.

Amazing Story of the World's Indifference Told by Luther Burbank, Wizard of Plants

World Does Not Appreciate His Discoveries—Land Worth Billion Dollars an Acre Sacrificed—Too Many Human Weeds.

"IT is much more difficult to introduce an improved form of plant life than it is to produce it," says Luther Burbank, in an amazing personal message in the Dearborn Independent.

At the height of the growing and ripening season, sometimes as many as forty superior varieties are found on our farms in a day—better fruits, grains, nuts, vegetables or flowers than ever existed before on this earth, some of them the products of experiments that have been going on for thirty years.

What can we do with them? The only way they can be introduced to the public is through seedsmen and nurserymen. No seedsman or nurseryman wants more than two or three new plants a year. They assert that it disorganizes their business to take more.

What becomes of the remainder? It stays on our farms, unused and unknown to the public. I have thirteen acres of land at Sebastopol, California, that would be worth to the world a billion dollars an acre if all of the new creations upon this land were introduced to the world and put to use. I had sixteen acres at Sebastopol until I sold three acres a few months ago. It was sold to a cemetery association and every plant on it is being pulled up and burned so that the tract may be plotted for graves. Among the thousands of new and improved varieties on this little three-acre tract were more than forty new selected thornless blackberries that would have been worth $30,000 if they had been introduced to the world.

I am seventy-four years old. My strength is good for my age, but it is not what is used to be. I sold part of the Sebastopol experiment farm because I could no longer operate it. The remainder will have to be sold for the same reason. On the thirteen acres that are left at Sebastopol are 2,000 varieties of cherries, 1,000 varieties of plums, sixty or seventy kinds of selected chestnuts, between three hundred and five hundred varieties of pears and fifty or sixty or seventy kinds of selected chestnuts, between 300 and 500 varieties of pears and fifty or sixty varieties of quinces. There is also a walnut tree that, for many years, has produced each year $1,000 worth of walnuts. This tree is so superior to anything else in existence that I was once requested to supply 10,000,000 young trees like it to be delivered a million a year for ten years. Of course, that was too big an order to be filled from one tree. I could have supplied 65,000 trees a year if I had been able to superintend this work in addition to everything else I have to do. But I supplied only a few thousands.

When I am tired I sometimes feel that if the world does not care if the best varieties of plant life the earth has ever produced go to waste, I don't care either. But it will be a great loss to the world if the thousands of improved varieties on the Sebastopol farm be permitted to go to waste. And they will go to waste unless some body gives them the attention that I can no longer give. The finest plum tree I ever saw—a tree that bore an abundance of big plums as sweet as honey—broke down because an employe forgot to thin out the plums on the tree as I told him to do. The tree broke from the weight of its fruit and before I knew, it was dead. Valuable trees and plants are constantly being lost in this way. We are burning fruit trees off this place for firewood because dealers will not handle them.

I took up plant improvement, sixty years ago, only by chance. I had a greater tendency toward art, mechanics, chemistry and the practice of medicine. Plant breeding was chosen as my occupation because I had not a very robust physique, and it was necessary that I be out-of-doors. It seemed to me then, as it does now, that one who is confined all of the time within doors loses at least half of the joys of life.

Being a naturalist by heredity and environment, the variations which I saw in plant life greatly interested me.

One can hardly imagine the happiness that came to me when I was able first to produce and then to sell an important production to an eastern seedsman. It was a triumph in the plant world of more importance, perhaps, than the discovery of a gold mine capable of producing millions of dollars.

The new plums, quinces, apples, berries, nuts and vegetables that I have produced have built cities and furnished the great overland railroads with the task of transporting many thousands of carloads of delicious foods. I have developed timber trees that will produce hardwood lumber ten times as rapidly as it could be produced before, created new flowers and added size, fragrance and abundance to those already in existence.

I am as interested in children as I am in plants. Human life is more sensitive to environment than any other form of life, and it is therefore of the greatest importance that children have proper surroundings and be reared in the right way. If a child is told that it is bad or no good, it is very likely to become bad or no good. But any child, if it is praised, will try to live up to its reputation. I think the present generation is composed of some who are better and some who are worse than any generation that has preceded it, and I have no doubt that the young people of to-day, taken as a whole, represent an improvement upon past generations.

All my life I have worked an average of more than ten hours a day for every calendar day of the year, and I still work ten or more hours out of each twenty-four. I have no recreations in the sense that most men have, except fishing. I will not hunt and kill wild animals, but fish are so far removed in their relationship to us that I can hook them—when I am fortunate enough to be able to do so—without a pang.

My attitude toward life is one of cheerfulness, tempered with a certain concern that comes from my contemplation of the trend of human development. We are producing too many human weeds. Just as there are now more varieties of plant life in the world than ever there were before, so are there more varieties of human life. In human life, too, the tendency toward variation is constantly increasing. The plant breeder can take advantage of this tendency.

But our great human problem cannot be so easily solved. Yet what we may call human weeds have the same tendency to overrun the earth, crowding out better specimens, that plant weeds have for taking possession of the land. Nothing seems more certain to me than that such civilization as we have—poor as it is—will be destroyed, unless means can be found to prevent the unfit from multiplying so rapidly that they swamp and overwhelm the fit. By "fit" I mean a reasonable degree of intelligence combined with a willingness to live and let live. There are some persons fit to get money who are fit for nothing else, just as there are others who are fit to work, but are not good neighbors.

This is the greatest problem, in my opinion, that confronts the human race. I know how it could be, but I do not know how it will be solved. But I have no doubt that the human race will in time find a way out of this difficulty.

MILKBOY TO MILLIONAIRE

DR. JOHN SEDDON, who left Liverpool thirty-one years ago with $175 in his pocket, has returned to Liverpool worth millions.

He owns the largest estates and the most valuable cattle ranch in the neighborhood of San Diego, California.

He left school at Preston at the age of twelve and became a milkboy. Four years later he was a jockey, riding in France.

Dr. Seddon began in America at $15 a week, saved enough to buy a small farm, and when he had made $10,000 invested it wisely.

EVER TRY RIDER HAGGARD FOR PNEUMONIA CURE?

WHEN Sir Rider Haggard was at a garden party at Buckingham Palace—according to Walter Tattle, the artist—he was approached by a titled pair who wished to express their gratitude to him for having been instrumental in saving the life of their son. The boy was suffering from pneumonia, which had reached the crisis, and it was vital that he be made to perspire. They tried many things to secure this end, but without success. The patient was very weak and listless. Nothing interested him until they tried reading to him from one of Sir Rider's books. At once his curiosity was aroused, and when a thrilling climax was reached, he broke into a profuse perspiration. From then his recovery was rapid.

SEES BLACK MONSTERS IN TERRIFIC CRASH

But It Was Only a Spider, Not a Wrong Order to a Train

A MICHIGAN CENTRAL passenger agent tells the following story about Mr. G. E. Gott, chief train despatcher of the Canadian Division of the Michigan Central Railway.

Some years ago when train despatching was done exclusively by telegraph, the passenger agent and Mr. Gott, who were then ordinary train despatchers, were working side by side at their keys one night busily sending out orders for the meetings and movements of their trains without a word being spoken by either of them. Suddenly Mr. Gott, fixing his gaze on something in front of the present-day Passenger Agent's desk and leaping from his chair, called out: "Get that fellow and do it quick, or it will be too late." Our friend relates that with his heart leaping into his throat he snatched open his key, prepared to call his station and hold the train to which he supposed a wrong order had been given; and, at the same moment, visions of black monsters, crashing together, cut on the line, flashed across his mind. He turned quickly to Mr. Gott and enquired: "which fellow shall I get?" but Mr. Gott calmly replied: "That spider going up the wall in front of you." In the excitement the spider escaped.

LADY ASTOR ON HERSELF

"THE historian may gather a fairly clear idea of 'Nancy Astor by Lady Astor' from the little volume of her speeches just published under the title—My Two Countries (5s.).

"Here are a few of Nancy Astor's judgments on Lady Astor:

"'I certainly have been given courage and strength. I won't say too much about wisdom.'

"'It was my husband who started me off on this downward career—from home to the House.'

"'I usually do speak from my heart. It has been a safer guide to me than my head.'

"'I am striving to take into public life what any man gets from his mother, and most men get from their wives, if they choose wisely.'

"'I don't pretend to be an educated woman, but I have a slight understanding of human nature and a positive nose for politics and politicians.'"

COULDN'T BE DONE

IN the rough and tumble of an electioneering contest, says Sir H. W. Lucy in his "Later Peeps at Parliament," Sir E. Ashmead-Bartlett sometimes met his match in Yorkshire, the county of his constituency.

At one of the gatherings in an electoral campaign he was frequently interrupted by a man in the body of the hall, who resented his uncompromising attacks upon political opponents.

He bore this trial with admirable good humor, till, seeing an opening for scoring a point, he said:

"Now I am going to tell you something about the government that will make my friend's hair stand on end," indicating, with a smiling nod, the vigorous critic in the body of the hall.

"Wrong again," shouted the irrepressible one, removing his cap and displaying a head as smoth as a billiard ball; "it can't be done."

The minister, when presented with the subscription, declined to accept this token of the solicitude of his compatriots, and the sum was handed over to the local Red Cross.

All Big League Games Yesterday Were Cancelled -- Other Sports

RAZZING PLAYERS A POPULAR SPORT

Sporting Public Has Become Far More Discriminating Than Was Formerly the Case.

"Razzing" the athletes has suddenly become the favorite amusement of sporting public. Of late years sport enthusiasts have become far more discriminating than formerly. An athlete in any sport must deliver all the time, if he hopes to retain his prestige and escape the proverbial "razz" that goes with failure.

Ball players maintain that cities in which the boxing game is decidely popular are as a rule harder to please than others. This is noticeably true of Philadelphia, where the fight game is extremely popular. Umpires also view Philadelphia in a similar manner.

It is a matter of ring history that some peculiar rulings have been pulled in Philadelphia boxing, prominent among them being the Willie Jackson-Lew Tendler bout. In that contest Tendler, a heavily played Philadelphia favorite, was knocked down by Jackson for, what many ringsiders claim, a count of 19. In addition a bucket of water was permitted to be poured over Tendler in reviving him. It was an awful fiasco.

Philly fans seem never to have forgotten that bout and when player or official pull a "bone" the rooters start to page Willie Jackson as a reminder of their thoughts.

ANCIENT FEUD OF DIAMOND RENEWED

Cobb Spiked Riconda and Revived the Flames That Have Been Smoldering For Years.

DETROIT, Aug. 4.—The old Detroit-Philadelphia baseball feud has been renewed.

After smoldering for a number of years it has been fanned into flames by the recent spiking of Third Baseman Riconda by Ty Cobb.

Back in the days when the Athletics were winning pennants and world series Cobb, in going to third, spiked Frank Baker high on the arm. At another time Jack Barry in making a play at second, was so badly spiked by Cobb that he was out of the game for a number of weeks.

Regardless of whether there was any intent on the part of Cobb, the Athletics so regarded the incidents and a bitter feeling existed between the clubs.

Philadelphia fans became so heated up over the matter that Cobb was threatened with bodily harm when he appeared in that city. In a number of series Cobb was under police protection in order to avert trouble. While nothing serious ever came of the affair, Cobb spent many unpleasant hours in the Quaker City.

In the recent series between Philadelphia and Detroit Cobb was thrown out at third base. In attempting to avoid the touch he came into the base very high. Riconda, who handled the throw, was cut on the arm.

The story is that Riconda expressed himself very strongly. Cobb, on getting to his feet, brushed against the Athletic third baseman. In so doing he stepped on Riconda's left foot in such a way as to twice cut the visiting player. Serious trouble was narrowly averted by the timely interference of players and umpires.

Cobb's actions, whether intentional or merely accidental, have again stirred up the old feud that for years made every meeting between the two clubs as a hectic struggle. Mack's men openly assert they intend to make trouble. We shall see. A number of players have threatened to get Cobb, but so far their efforts have been confined entirely to conversation.

The fact that Cobb is an outfielder makes him almost immune from injury. An infielder is always in danger, but it is rather hard to make the going unpleasant for an outfielder. If the Athletics are to make trouble for Cobb it looks as if they would be forced to see a battle ground other than the ball field.

International League Changes Proposed.

It is more than probable that the Syracuse franchise in the International Baseball League may be transferred to Montreal. As a matter of fact negotiations to that end have already been entered into. It is stated on reliable authority that about all hands concerned are favorable to the project and that it is likely to take place at any time.

Syracuse has been turning out around the four hundred mark for its games. The city is not and never was of International League calibre in attendance and the other seven clubs are at about the end of their patience in that direction.

The Eastern Canada League, it is reported, is ready to vacate the Montreal territory to accommodate the International. In fact they have not been going so well financially either, and about all hands are assembled in the one city, Montreal.

Jersey City, too, is subject for discussion and the talk is that their franchise will be shifted next year to Providence.

Cobourg Team Will Be Here on Tuesday.

Regardless of the outcome of today's game there is still a chance for Peterborough, Belleville and Kingston to break into a three-cornered tie, and as a result every game of the schedule right to the last will have a definite bearing on the winning of the league honors. While Cobourg is now definitely out of the running they may yet prove the downfall of one or more of the leading teams.

The Petes will meet Cobourg on Tuesday evening for the first of the two games still to be played with them. The game is scheduled at 5 o'clock and is being played in Peterborough on account of the Cobourg Horse Show occupying the grounds at Cobourg. The final game of the second half will be played on Saturday at the usual time, with Cobourg again the visiting team.

Rookie Making Good With the Tail-Enders.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Speaking of 1923 recruits who have made the grade in the big leagues, don't fail to include Jack Reichle, stellar outfielder of the Boston Red Sox.

For Reichle, a graduate of the University of Illionis, has come through with a vengeance. A heavy hitter, and an exceptionally clever man in a pinch, the former college star has done yeoman service for the Chance entourage in its efforts to keep out of the cellar position.

That he swings a mean stick is shown by the fact that he is massaging the apple around the .375 mark, being right up along with the leaders. But is isn't only at the plate that Reichle stars, for be it known that he is a pretty nifty fielder as well; gets over territory fast, is a sure shot on fly balls and packs a rifle-like arm.

Reichle comes from the same school that has turned out quite a cluster of major league celebrities, two of them most famous, perhaps, being Garland (Jake) Stahl, old Washington and Boston American League player and manager, and Carl Lundgren, who pitched for the Cubs back in the days when "Peerless" Chance was grabbing pennants and world's championships with reckless abandon.

Unless all predictions prove very wrong, Reichle has a most promising future in the diamond pastime.

Babe Ruth Has Chance to Regain Lost Laurels.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Babe Ruth with over a score of home runs to his credit seems destined to regain the honors he lost last year to Rogers Hornsby and Kenneth Williams.

Hornsby with 42 circuit clouts dethroned the king of the swat last season. Even Williams with 39 had it on the Babe. This season the home-run business is slumping with Hornsby and Williams, while Ruth finds it pretty good.

For a time Cy Williams of the Philadelphia Nationals looked as if he might seriously threaten Babe's record of 59. Playing most of the early games at the Philadelphia park with its short right-field fence, Williams for more than two months had an edge on Babe's big year. Then an injury set him back. For the past month Ruth has been gaining on him rapid'y.

While Ruth isn't trying for home runs as he once did, his terrific swing just naturally gets them. Ruth has been a team player this year and has been of more value to the Yankees than the campaign he busted all the swat records.

Going along at his present clip, the Bambino should top the home-run field by the middle of August at the very latest.

FIRPO WALLOPED GUNBOAT SMITH

Was Credited With Two Victories Over Gunboat Smith of England Through An Error.

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

Did Luis Angel Firpo lick Gunboat Smith in a couple of fights in South America before ever he came up to the United States? Some sports writers are saying he did.

Maybe so, but the story the sports writers tell sounds as if this was what they had in mind:

Two or three years ago, when Firpo's reputation was only a local one, it was announced in Buenos Aires, his home town, that Gunboat was on his way down the South American west coast on a fighting tour and that Luis was going over to Chile to meet him.

But Luis Fooled 'Em.

American and English residents of the Argentine, on hearing this, were of the opinion that Smith would lay the Wild Bull of the Pampas out flat, but he didn't. Firpo beat him instead. Whereupon the Americans and the Englishmen agreed that Luis had done dern well. Not that they had an unduly exalted idea of Gunboat, but they knew him as a reasoned fighter and they hadn't thought that Luis was.

Then it was advertised that a return engagement would be staged in Buenos Aires. The Anglo-Saxon contingent turned out to see it en masse.

The fight was put on at the Universities Club. Firpo appeared and was greeted with a hearty round of applause. Then the supposed Gunboat climbed into the ring.

Couldn't Figure Him Out.

Now, in the crowd there were a few spectators who had seen the real Gunboat before.

"Gosh!" they gasped, when they saw this scrapper introduced under his name. "That ain't Gunboat Smith." He was as black as the ace of spades.

"You've forgotten how he looked" suggested others, to whom the original Smith was unknown.

"Well, the last time we saw him," answered the doubtful one, "he was white."

Firpo won again all right. It wasn't surprising that he did. The smoke was big, but he had nothing else. Probably there were 100 men among the spectators who could have licked him, too.

"Mah Name's Gunboat"

Later, pinned down by local newspaper men, the colored scrapper admitted that he wasn't the "Gunboat" known in the States. He hadn't said so, either, he added. He had called himself "Gunboat" Smith and the reporters had made a mistake. He was a Jamaican, he related, and his name really was Smith.

Nevertheless a lot of people continued to contend that Luis had defeated the original blown-in-the-bottle Gunboat Smith. It isn't on record in Argentina or Chile if he did.

Two Brothers Form Star Battery in West.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Aug. 4.—Several families boast of brothers in professional baseball.

Some brag of brothers in the majors—witness the O'Neills and Meusels, and until recently the Bigbees and Johnstons.

The Cleveland Indians have two brothers on the same team—the Sewells, Joe and Luke.

But the Shea family of Stockton, near here, boasts of two brothers not only playing on the same club, but forming a battery.

Elmer (Specs) Shea has been one of the most dependable right handers in the Pacific Coast League in the three seasons he has been playing with Sacramento.

Now his brother, Marvin, is looming up at the other end of the battery. Taken on for a trial late last season, he is still being carried as a backstop, and as a relief catcher and hitter. Brother Marvin takes his chest protector off to no youngster in Class AA baseball.

"Specs" Shea earned his nickname because he wears 'em, even while he's playing. And when he has his glasses shined up and his brother, Marvin, back of the plate, the show is wonderful to behold.

GAME IN ADIRONDACKS.

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y., August 4 (United Press). — Wild life is a long ways from extinct in the Tahawus section of the Adirondacks, long noted as one of the real wilderness tracts in the mountains. F. J. Jones recently completed a surveying trip in that territory. All the game he saw was twenty-nine deer, one red fox, one wild-cat, two Canadian lynx, four rabbits two partridges one great blue heron, and one full-grown bear.

Girls' Soft Ball League Meeting

Executive of Girls' Softball League met last evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. The meeting was rather poorly attended, the hot weather accounting for the absence of any of its members. However, some important business was discussed and the schedule for the second half drawn up. The new schedule will get off to a good start, when the Colonials and Woollens clash on Aug. 8. The De Laval and Quakers came together on Aug. 9.

The fans are promised something good Friday evening, Aug. 10, when the second game between All Stars and Colonials will be played.

All Major League Games Cancelled

All games in the National, American and International Leagues scheduled for yesterday were cancelled in respect to the memory of the late President Harding. President Harding was himself an ardent fan and a keen follower of the game. As often as his multitudinous duties would permit he attended both professional and amateur games and took a keen delight in following the play.

PFEFFER HAS A GREAT SYSTEM

Does Not Try For Strike-Outs and Only Works Hard in a Pinch.

(By Billy Evans)

A right arm that is in its tenth year of major league service that has never been afflicted with a kink and has only once been below the .500 mark hangs from Edward Joseph Pfeffer's 200-pound frame.

"Just a little common sense in the spring and in the summer," is the prescription presented by the giant right-hander, now a member of the St. Louis Cardinals' staff.

Pfeffer engages in physical training in the spring at least two weeks before he attempts to twist a curve. Pfeffer exerts himself only in a pinch. Strikeouts mean nothing to him. He works on the theory that he has eight other players to help him.

Works on His Batter.

"I keep them away from the batter's favorite spot with slow curves and only an occasional fast one. The arm cannot stand the strain of one fast ball after another. At least that's my theory and although I have just passed my 34th birthday my arm feels as good as it did the first day I arrived in the big league."

Pfeffer, by pitching winning ball for nine straight years and starting the present season with six victories andone defeat, is considered one of the stars of the National League. It must not be forgotten that he has passed over the line of youth several years ago, yet he has not lost his effectiveness.

His trade to the St. Louis Cardinals during the summer of 1921 proves the uncertainty of baseball marketing. Branch Rickey, always a fond admirer of Pfeffer as a pitcher, dickered with the Superbas and eventually landed him but paid Ferdinand Schupp and Harold Janvrin.

Rickey Made Good Trade

When the exchange was completed it looked as if the Superbas had the edge as Schupp was pitching winning ball and Janvrin was a valuable utility player. Rickey, however, expressed himself as being perfectly satisfied with his bargain.

Pfeffer, in 1922, won 19 games and lost 12, ranking seventh in the league. Schupp and Janvrin have passed down to the minors.

The only season Pfeffer failed to win more games than he lost was in 1917 when his record showed 11 victories and 15 defeats. His pitching total includes 141 victories and 94 defeats up to this season.

Pfeffer was born at Seymour, Ill., March 4, 1889, and after serving the season with Grand Rapids in 1913, advanced to the major circuit.

A HAMILTON BOY WON BANTAM CLASS BELT

TORONTO, Aug. 4 — (Canadian Press).—Bobby Eber of Hamilton, Bantam Champion of Canada, earned decision over Eddie Pinchot of Charleroi, Penn., in the main bout at the International Athletic club Open Air Boxing Show at Hampden Park last night.

A crowd estimated at about 3500 witnessed the bouts, and were treated to four fast fights, which included plenty of action and good boxing. The fight went ten rounds, and the Hamilton boy had a good margin when final bell sounded Eber collected points by his two fisted jabbing, and had Pinchot worried at times.

Both Eber and Pinchot took things easy in the first two rounds, which were fairly even but in the third Eber commenced to force things and kept it up until the end. Pinchot was on the defensive when Eber started his winning rush.

Here's summer half gone, and many of us more than that.

GHOSTS!

BY CANON F. G. SCOTT, C.M.G., D.S.O.

(Copyright United States and Great Britain, publication rights reserved.)

THE LAST BATTLE

"Very well, Mrs. Markham," said the doctor, as he rose to go. "You will come into the hospital to-morrow evening, and I will see that one of the sunniest and pleasantest rooms is reserved for you."

He left. I heard the front door close and then I sank into a chair and began to think. It was a most critical operation, he had said, the proportion of cures was only one in five and my case was specially serious. Could it be that this was my last active day in life?

That the world, which was so dear to me and had held out so many opportunities of pleasure, and better still of serving others, was slipping from me?

The sunlight flooded the drawing room and deepened the colours of the hyacinths which filled the place with the annual odours of springtime.

I looked dreamily from one object to another in the room which had always been to me the centre of attraction and delight. Its dainty furniture, its old cabinets, the pictures and priceless rugs were a constant pleasure to the eye. I had collected them myself, and each one had its own special associations and memories. It seemed strange to think that suddenly, almost without warning, I was sitting in a room that in a few hours might be another's.

Even since my husband's death three years after our marriage, I had had no one else to think of or arrange for but Tom and myself. Tom laid down his life in the Great War, and now I was following on the mysterious path. I had no fear, no regrets. It was strange, that was all.

Then I let my eyes wander to the little table whereon in a silver frame was Tom's photograph. I had wanted to look at it all along, but I made myself look at the other things first. The frame shone in the morning sunlight as though it was itself a border of light. But there was Tom's face, looking at me. His dark eyes, his lips half-parted in the smile which was his special charm, and frank manly expression of his whole countenance, and the general air of distinction enhanced by his uniform and the ribbon of the Military Cross, all these separate appeals to a mother's pride were in the large photograph before me with its border of morning sunlight.

"Tom, what would he think, what would he say to me now? Does this mean my getting nearer to him? Does it, can it be that I am to see him? To kiss once again that boyish face and feel those strong young arms once more around me a little closer?

I had long forced myself to learn self-restraint, in the school of sorrow. The idea in my mind was that I had wrapped my heart up in the folds of the flag for which Tom had died, and no one could see through them the battered broken thing within. Only I felt Tom knew and he loved me for it all the more.

"To-morrow evening," the doctor said, "Only one out of five is a cure, and yours is a specially bad case." I had insisted on the good man speaking plainly. I was no weakling. "To-morrow" I have much to arrange, I will go to Tom's room first.

I had kept it just as it was the day he left me. It was my dream-house, my chapel. Not a thing in it had been, changed and day after day I have gone and sat there and read his letters over and over again and looked at his boyhood's treasures and the little memories of his childhood which I had stored away—his first pair of shoes and his first copy-book, for Tom was my idol.

The room, as I entered it now, did not feel quite so lonely or vacant. I opened the drawer in the desk where I kept his letters and was just undoing the piece of white ribbon with which they were tied when someone knocked quietly. "Come in," I said, turning towards the door. It opened softly and there stood Tom, my boy, just as he had been, and yet—and yet—as I looked at him, more spiritual, more radiantly beautiful than I had ever seen him in life.

"Tom," I tried to speak the name, but my lips seemed paralyzed. He heard it, however, and came forward, and clasped me in his arms, and kissed me, and called me "Little mother" just as he did on the day he left me.

"Don't be surprised little mother," he said. "I know all about you. You are coming to me. I have always kept near you, and I heard what the doctor said. I know the Master wants you, and he has let me come here for a moment just to tell you to have courage, that it is all real. I found it all out for myself on the Ménin road that night in the battle of Passchendæl. I was tired and cold and hungry and very, very scared as I was going up with my men to a gun pit at the front. I was thinking of you at the time. The night was very black and a drizzling rain falling and along the front line, the German flare-lights every now and then lit up the low clouds and their rays for a moment glistened in the muddy road. Suddenly there was a loud hiss. I knew it was a shell coming. I heard the crash, something struck me, I felt it for a moment, and then there was peace—peace and light and comradeship, and welcome, and many men I knew, and wonderful scenery, and tremendous energy, and great lightness of moving and no more pain, and no more war, but a voice was speaking softly. I knew it was the voice of God. It was life the voice of conscience which you told me about when I was a little boy only not now a warning voice, but a welcoming voice. It said, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

At first I thought it couldn't be meant for me, because, I hadn't done anything very special. In fact, I had a good many things in my life to be ashamed of, but someone told me God was speaking to me, so I knelt down and bowed my head at the Master's voice. And one day I am to see him plainly, face to face. I am not quite ready yet, but I am drawing nearer to him. It will be wonderful to see the countenance of Christ, Mother. Look at that picture of Him, which you gave me on my birthday, years ago. I wonder if He will be like that.

"But now, Mother, little Mother, I must go. The Master only allowed me to come and tell you that the hour of victory in your life has come, and I, your little son, will be there to see it.

"Good bye, Mother, this is the last time I will say the word, for we shall never be parted again."

He stooped down and kissed me. I felt his lips on my forehead. His arms loosened their hold. Slowly while still looking at me he made his way to the door, and then, and then, I saw him no more. The door had not opened, but he was gone.

I was going up the lonely road. It was the last engagement in the battle of Life. Tom said, when the shell fell, he felt nothing but peace, and heard only the Master's voice.

I knelt beside Tom's bed and prayed. It was all so strange, so very strange. Then I pulled myself together. I must be brave. I have much to arrange. "You will come to the Hospital tomorrow evening," the doctor had said.

"The proportion of cures is only one in five, and yours is a specially bad case."

Tom said he felt nothing but peace when the shell burst beside him.

PROGRESS OF THE TORONTO GOLFERS

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press). — Laurie Ayton of Chicago and C. W. Hackney of Atlantic Ctiy lead field in sixteenth Canadian Open Golf Championship at end of first two rounds, last night with very creditable scores of 147 for first thirty six holes, and they have a lead of four strokes on their nearest rival, Tom Kerrigan of Siwandy, runner-up to Al. Watrous, last year at Montreal, who, in turn, is one stroke in front of Jock Hutchison of Chicago and Fred Canusa of New York. Gene Sarazen, who lead field at end of first round, shares sixth place with Johnny Farrell, another New Yorker. Three more Americans follow, making first ten players from other side of the border Canadians then take a hand in matter and next nine, ranging from 156 to 159 are contestants hailing from Canadian Clubs, and include two amateurs, Frank and W. J. Thompson of Mississauga Club, latter present Canadian Champion, and former ex-title holder.

AUSTRALIA SHOCKED BY PRESIDENT'S DEATH

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 4.—(Canadain Press.)—Australia was greatly shocked by the sudden death of President Harding. Touching references to him were made in Federal Parliament when the session opened yesterday, and prompt adjournment was taken as a mark of respect. Both houses will adopt motions of regret when sittings are resumed next week.

THE HUSKIE WON A FEATURE RACE

Fastest Event in the Big Aquatic Meet at Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press.)— At the aquatic races here the Huskie, of the Crescent Yacht Club of Watertown, won the R class with the unique feature that the Nayada, the R.C.Y.C. challenger for the George Cup, followed only 36 seconds later.

Yesterday proved ideal weather. The wind, which was blowing a gale of about fifteen miles, blew pretty well from the west, with slight variation to the southwest. The race from the time the boats crossed the line until the close, was the fastest of the entire L. Y. R. A. meet, which closed here this afternoon. The Huskie was cheered by American crowds as the Ed Lansing yacht crossed the line and won the Industrial Cup. The Nayada gave her a fight all the way and was sailed by Walter Windeyer. Tom Chisholm's Vivia crossed the line third, three minutes and forty seconds behind the Nayada. The Kingston boat, Chiriya, was exactly six minutes behind the Huskie. The next four boats finished close together, Scrapper beating Lillian E, the winner of the trophies on Wednesday and Thursday, by three-fifths of a second. The Nirwana and Riowana followed.

ANOTHER GAME FOR MASTERSON

Sacred Heart Hits Hard in the Fourth to Beat Leafs by 14 to 6.

Sacred Heart Midgets went into a play-off with Curlers for the first half championship of the series by defeating Maple Leafs last evening by 14 to 6. Sacred Heart played poorly behind Masterson early in the game, but tightened up, and also hit well, having one big frame at the bat, when they scored six runs in the fourth.

Kenneally hit a homer in the seventh and Lewis hit for three bases in the third. Taylor, LeBarr and Taylor clouted the ball for two bases.

Masterson struck out thirteen and passed five, while Lewis fanned seven and walked one.

The Leafs used Lewis, McDuffee, Barrie and Nixon from the Bantam series and the youngsters behaved well.

Chuck Kenneally put in a good night with the willow, getting a single, double and home run, all of which drove in runs.

The teams:

Sacred Heart — Kenneally, c.; Archambault, l.f.; Rishea, 1b.; McDougal, 2b.; Masterson, p.; O'Brien, 3b.; Grady, c.f.; Solmes, r.f.

Maple Leafs—Lewis, p.; Barrie, c., r.f.; Heard, 1b.; McDuffee, s.s.; Taylor, c.f.; Nixon, 3b.; Jones, r.f.; Walton, 2b.; Cohen, r.f.; Carroll, r.f., c.

FOOTBALL NOTES

BASEBALL COMMENT

Rotary Bantams will be given a trip to Cobourg next Wednesday to play a game with a Rotary nine from Port Hope. Because of this trip, Rotary will meet the Curlers in a League game at King Edward school grounds on Monday evening. The schedule for all other games to be played next week is withheld until Monday.

A meeting of the Juvenile clubs at LeBarr's news agency at 6.45 o'clock this evening will decide the games of the series for the week and where they will be played. There are seven more games scheduled for the second half and a winner must be reported to the O.B.A.A. not later than next Saturday.

East Peterborough League teams tried out King Edward Park last evening and ran into difficulties with football players who insisted on using part of the grounds for practice The ball teams had official permission to use the grounds

The Bantam Curlers will be entertained to a trip to Port Hope during the third week for a game with a Rotary Club there

Members of the Maple Leaf Juvenile baseball team leave to-night to open a camp down the river The Leafs will be located on the east shore opposite the foot of Park St., and will always have a welcome for other members of the baseball fraternity.

Hillcrests defaulted to Lock Works juveniles in a game billed for the Sacred Heart grounds last evening.

TUG OF WAR TEAM.

The Board of Works, city, have organized their tug-of-war team, and appointed the following named members as officers:

Harry Evans, president.

Charles Stapleton, secretary.

John Murphy, manager and anchor man.

John Thirnbeck, captain.

They have entered their team to compete in the sports at Exhibition Park, on Civic Holiday, August 13th, and are prepared to meet all comers, irrespective of creed, class or color, from Vancouver to Halifax.

TRAPSHOOTING.

The Peterboro Gun Club held their weekly shoot last evening and some good scores were turned in. Quite a number of the shooters are away on their holidays, and the attendance has been rather light, but is hoped that the boys will turn out and get the scores for the cup shoot for August.

Following are the scores—

THIRD SON OF KING INJURED BY A HORSE

LONDON, August 4. Canadian Press. — Prince Henry, third son of King George, is in the hospital at Aldershot with a fractured ankle according to the Daily Mail. He was leading his troop of Tenth Hussars at jumpng practice on Wednesday, when he saw a recruit unable to manage a restive horse. The prince dismounted took the recruit's place and had nearly subdued the animal when it threw him and rolled upon him.

The Mail says he will have to remain in hospital for some days.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — and New York Stock Exchange — and Curb Prices —

NEW YORK, August 4 (Special to The Examiner). — Price movements in the brief session of the stock market which closed the week demonstrated the wisdom of suspending trading on Friday, not only as manifestation of Wall Street's grief, but also to give the speculative mind time to absorb the shock of President Harding's death. ..... ..... .....

While the net result of the two hours 'trading showed lower prices at no time were the declines so very great when it is remembered that serenity ..existed ..in ..the ..financial world over Harding's condition at the time the last figures were established. ..... ..... ..... ..... .....

....The recessions in the principal trading issues were pretty well distributed around the whole of the industrials and rates.

It could not be said that any particular section of the market was weak more than the rest suggesting that speculative attention was almost entirely focused upon eventualities rising out of the change in the head of the administration. ..... ..... .....

Toward the close a better tone set in on the belief in Wall Street that no important economic developments likely to result from Calvin Coolidge' ascension to the highest office of the country.

Foreign exchanges were generally steadiest and francs rallied sharply from the record low established earlier in the week, but there was uncertainty over the European situation.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Campbellford, Ont.
Aug. 3, 1923

The Examiner, Peterboro,

Dear Editor,

Some time ago you printed an article that I had an accident with my car. My car was stolen by a fellow by the name of Norman Andreys. He had the accident with my car which tore the top and windshield off my car, so he had to go to the Hospital and to save himself he gave his name as mine. I had notices out for the return of my car at that time and he got away as slick as that. Some authorities, I will say,

Yours very truly,
EARLE HARPER

P. S. Please contradict the other article.

ed Kingdom. There are very few Americans in Dublin. The cafes and theatres are never crowded, the historical buildings are closed to the public while St. Patrick's cathedral and other noted institutions are in dire financial distress.

Outstanding in the great struggle that has disrupted Ireland for years is the unique position occupied by the 3000 or more Jews in Dublin.

Being neither Catholic nor Protestant and not interested in their strife, the Jews are on recognized neutral ground and have enjoyed complete immunity from the ravages of civil war.

As one faction has always posed as representing law and order while the other side has always contended that it is fighting for an ideal,neither could consistently interfere with the Jews. Casualties among the Jews, when Dublin was a battlefield are almost unknown.

Jews in Dublin might be termed as stragglers from that great army that migrated to America from eastern Europe. The coming generation however will be native Irish Jews.

AN INNOVATION
IN MACHINE TOOLS

An extraordinary machine which bids fair to have far-reaching effects in cheapening production has recently been built by a British firm. Though primarily designed for repetition drilling on metal parts used in railway wagons and carriages the principle is applicable to a much wider field. In the ordinary multiple drilling machine a number of drill spindles are driven simultaneously through suitable gearing and through shafts which have universal joints. In the new machine there are a number of multiple-drilling "heads" each with twelve drills driven by an electric motor. Each of these drilling units is self-contained and can be clamped in any desired position on a massive framework which forms the backbone of the machine. The number of spindles in use can be varied at will and each spindle can be adjusted to suit the contour of the work. A battery of these drilling units can be arranged so that the operator is kept busy continuously changing the pieces of work; or a hundred or more holes can be drilled simultaneously and with absolute accuracy along a large piece of intricate form. On a particular job drilling holes in three directions at once the rate of production has been increased twenty-fold. It is obvious that the unique features of this British development will find application in many branches of manufacture to the benefit of all concerned.

Balance of power in Europe depends upon their balance of mind.

FARM AND CITY LABOR UNITE ON MARKET PLAN

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—(Associated Press)—Bringing farmer and city laborer into a non-political alliance to fight the high cost of marketing their products, is the scheme of O. F. Lowrie, former president of the Montana Farmers' Society of Equity who has opened a small warehouse here.

"There are many farmers' co-operative societies throughout the country," he explained, "and there are others in the city. Our purpose is to ally the farmer and the city laborer. We are handling honey, potatoes and fruit for the farmers, and are sending furniture and clothing back to them.

"We began with 50,000 pounds of Idaho honey. The farmers out there have been discouraged. They have been flocking to the cities. We told the city laboring men it was up to them to keep the farmers on the farm, else they would come to the city and make greater competition for jobs.

"By forming an alliance with the South Chicago Labor Assembly, we obtained a warehouse and started to work. We have marketed apples from Montana, walnuts from Tennessee and potatoes from Minnesota. We are selling cigars, gloves and clothing to the farmers, the product of city co-operatives."

"We are not affiliated with any political group," declared Mr. Lowrie. "We have no political ambitions. We want to form a nation-wide alliance eventually to bring these two classes of co-operatives together in a way never before known."

Mr. Fred Palmer, 217 Dalhousie St., Brantford, Ont., writes:—"When I first went out to the North-West the water played havoc with my bowels, and being in a remote spot I could not get anything to give me relief for any length of time.

I wrote and told my wife about the time I was having and she sent me a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and I cannot speak too highly of it for what it did for me.

Whenever the children have any bowel trouble from eating fruit or drinking strange water, which they have done for the past five years, living in the country, the only remedy we use is 'Dr. Fowler's', and nobody should be without it as it cannot be beat for instant relief."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for the past 78 years, you don't experiment with now and untried remedies when you buy it, but be sure and get 'Dr. Fowler's' when you ask for it, as a substitute may be dangerous to your health.

The Human Side

ARE YOU A SALESMAN?

"Salesmanship is selling goods that won't come back to people who will."

The other day I went to get a shave. Two barbers in the shop were favorites of mine. Both were finishing their men at the same instant. Which should I choose?

Finally when I went to Sam's chair Billy asked me why I did not choose a good barber. Sam replied: "Don't you know why he came to me? It was because I never try to sell him anything but service. I do not try to sell him a haircut or a shampoo or a tonic. I give him just the service he asks for. He always comes back, you notice."

Sam had spoken a mouthful of sound barber shop psychology.

Many men dread to visit a barber and even prefer the torture of having their wives shave their necks because they are annoyed by barbers urging them to buy what they don't want. When men go to a shop to get a shave or a haircut they usually know what they want.

Their hair may be dirty but they don't want the barber to tell them so to sell a shampoo. The man's time is often limited and he wants what he asks for. He isn't paying for the town news nor buying out a perfumery. He's getting a haircut only perhaps.

Promoters are all right but they should use sole leather and tires not razors.

If you hire a man to mow your lawn would you like him to walk up when he has finished the grass and tell you that your back fence was ugly and needed painting or that the trees need trimming, you tell him you did not hire him to suggest needed repairs to your place but to use your lawn mower.

The real salesman is the man who sells his wares be they goods or service or both so as to have no come-back except his customers themselves.

What makes the people come back again and again to repeat their buying? Sometimes the goods you handle. But that isn't the main attraction. Other goods just as serviceable can be had elsewhere. Often your competitor handles the same brands you do.

What tips the scale in your favor is the psychology of your service. The little things of courtesy alertness welcome a merry good-morning. That's all. It sells goods that won't be returned to folks who will return.

REFORMERS URGED TO CEASE LABORS FOR MORAL UPLIFT.

Professor Leonard Darwin of England Says They Do More Harm Than Good.

LONDON, August 3.— (Associated Press).—Social reformers as a class do much more harm than good, according to Professor Leonard Darwin, and society would improve much faster if they ceased to worry about it and let it go its own way.

Professor Darwin is a son of the great Charles Darwin, and it is natural that he should hold strong views on the survival of the, fittest and now this can be accomplished. He says that the misguided efforts of many sincere and earnest social reformers really result in encouraging the continuance of race inferiority and deterioration, which is just the reverse of what they are trying to do. In a recent speech before the Eugenic Education Society, of which he is president, he dwelt upon the harm he thought social reformers were doing.

"Mate Selection was the title of Professor Darwin's address. He was not sure that mate selection in the present state of society, was good for the future of the race, and argued that when the fit married the fit they tended to have smaller families, while the inferior people continued producing unfit types which became more marked.

"To secure human progress," he said "the inferior types must be eliminated, and all that should be demanded is that this process be made as little painful as possible.' Pity for others and solitude for their liberty the speaker regarded as among the things that constituted obstacles in the way of racial improvement.

"The philanthropists of today, however, Professor Darwin said "only look on one side of the question, and entirely ignore the racial effects of the reforms they are advocating.

Both out-of-work doles to those constitutionally incapable of work, and out-of-door relief generally, if given wthout regard to the probability of parent-hood in the future, would directly tend to promote the inferiority of the race in the future.

Motherhood endowment to the naturally superior and unfit alike, these and other methods of relieving distress, would have the same result, he contended.

Altogether, as viewed by Professor Darwin there seemed to be a pretty blue outlook for the world generally and even enlightened eugenists appeared to be able to find little comfort in his views.

But Professor Darwin said his objection to mate selection would disappear if "some method less cruel than that of natural selection the inferior stocks could be made to multiply less quickly than the superior."

DAILY ZEIHR DAILY DAILY¼
HOT WATER UNDER DISCIPLINE

In many industrial and manufacturing processes as well as in the domestic arts of coffee-making and washing linen the secret of success lies in obtaining a suitable circulation of boiling water through the material under treatment. An ingenious method of doing this has been invented by a British firm. The material to be treated is placed in a perforated container which rests on the top of a dome-shaped vessel open at the bottom. This combination fits in an outer container with a small clearance all round. A pipe rising through the perforated container from the top of the domed chamber is fitted at its lower end with a thimble which acts as a water-seal. The quantity of water in the apparatus is enough to cover the top of the domed chamber. When the water is boiled steam collects under the dome and the water is driven out of the bottom of the dome thus flooding the material in the perforated container above. This goes on until the steam pressure in the dome is sufficient to break the water seal at the bottom of the central pipe. When this happens the steam escapes, the water rushes into the dome again and the whole cycle is repeated. The action is entirely automatic and it has been applied successfully to coffee percolators, chemical extractors and clothes washers. No adjustments are required there are no moving parts and there is no possibility of accident.

TARNISHED COPPER.

Buttermilk, cream of tartar, lemon juice and some other acids clean copper very easily, but unless all trace of the acid is removed, the tarnish returns very quickly. After cleaning with an acid it is well to go over the surface with whiting to take up the excess acid.

AUTO RACE SCENE IN "RACING HEARTS" THRILLING

Perhaps one-tenth of the dangers encountered in motion picture production reach and are appreciated by the fans who see the finished photoplay.

No greater example of this truth exists than "Racing Hearts," a Paramount picture starring Agnes Ayres which is due at the Capitol Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Time after time during the filming of the big automobile racing scenes dangerous skids, near-accidents took place while the hurtling cars roared around the track. But many of these were entirely out of the sight of the camera eye.

One example of a thrill that was actually caught by the camera and is a guaranteed breath-taker was that in which Miss Ayres, driving her powerful automobile, skids around a curve at 75 miles an hour and smashes into baled hay piled at the turn for the protection of spectators.

However, the cameras kept grinding away on the scene, with the result that one of the most thrilling moments in motion picture history has reached the screen in "Racing Hearts." Theodore Roberts and Richard Dix are featured players in Miss Ayres' support.

LANDRY SENT DOWN ON FRAUD CHARGE

Sentence of One Month Without Option of Fine

William Landry, alias W. H. Larkin, was sentenced to imprisonment for one month, without the option of a fine, when he appeared in Police Court this morning on a charge of fraud.

Landry was charged with representing himself wrongfully as a salesman of a Montreal firm, thereby obtaining orders from local firms. The offence took place on May 23, and since then Landry has been in custody in Hamilton. He was released there on suspended sentence.

The prisoner was represented this morning by Wilfred Huycke, who said he had wired relatives of the man for funds to make restitution, without success. Other people who might have advanced a loan were out of the city.

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton moved for sentence, saying the man had a record elsewhere. A telegram had been received saying Landry was wanted in Whitby on similar charges.

Magistrate O. A. Langley advised the prisoner to stop his sharp practices, and sentenced him to one month in jail, less the seven days he had already been in custody. "Then," His Worship said, "if these other places want you they can get you."
